

MINOR TIBETAN TEXTS
THE SONG OF
THE EASTERN
SNOW-MOUNTAIN

JOHAN VAN MANEN
1919

MINOR TIBETAN TEXTS
THE SONG OF
THE EASTERN
SNOW-MOUNTAIN

JOHAN VAN MANEN
1919

THE PROJECT GUTENBERG EBOOK OF MINOR TIBETAN TEXTS: 1. THE SONG OF
THE EASTERN SNOW-MOUNTAIN

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere in the United States and most other parts of the world at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.org. If you are not located in the United States, you will have to check the laws of the country where you are located before using this eBook.

Title: Minor Tibetan Texts: 1. The song of the Eastern Snow-mountain

Editor: Johan van Manen

Release date: February 20, 2022 [eBook #67451]

Most recently updated: October 18, 2024

Language: Tibetan, English

Original publication: India: Asiatic Society, 1919

Other information and formats: www.gutenberg.org/ebooks/67451

Credits: Jeroen Hellingman and the Online Distributed Proofreading Team at <https://www.pgdp.net/> for Project Gutenberg (This file was produced from images generously made available by The Internet Archive/Canadian Libraries)

 START OF THE PROJECT GUTENBERG EBOOK MINOR TIBETAN TEXTS: 1.
THE SONG OF THE EASTERN SNOW-MOUNTAIN ***

[\[Contents\]](#)

[\[Contents\]](#)

BIBLIOTHECA INDICA:
A COLLECTION OF ORIENTAL WORKS

PUBLISHED BY THE ASIATIC SOCIETY OF BENGAL.

NEW SERIES, No. 1426.

MINOR TIBETAN TEXTS.

I.—THE SONG OF THE EASTERN SNOW-MOUNTAIN.

BY JOHAN VAN MANEN.

CALCUTTA:
PRINTED AT THE BAPTIST MISSION PRESS,
AND PUBLISHED BY THE ASIATIC SOCIETY, 1, PARK STREET.
1919.

BIBLIOTHECA INDICA:
A COLLECTION OF ORIENTAL WORKS

PUBLISHED BY THE
ASIATIC SOCIETY OF BENGAL.
NEW SERIES, No. 1426.

MINOR TIBETAN TEXTS.
I.—THE SONG OF THE EASTERN SNOW-MOUNTAIN.

BY JOHAN VAN MANEN.

CALCUTTA:
PRINTED AT THE BAPTIST MISSION PRESS,
AND PUBLISHED BY THE ASIATIC SOCIETY, 1, PARK STREET.
1919.

[\[Contents\]](#)

[iii]

[Contents]

PREFATORY NOTE.

Lewin, in his 'Manual of Tibetan,' 1879, preface, states: "Tibet and its language are still comparatively unknown ... the familiar tongue of the people, their folk-lore, songs and ballads are all unknown."

Far from contradicting this saying, Jäschke, the greatest Tibetan scholar of his time, stated two years later, in 1881, in the preface to the third edition of his Tibetan Dictionary: "(To) the student who has for immediate object to learn how to read and write the Tibetan language ... existing dictionaries (are) almost if not quite useless."

Since Jäschke's third edition, two new Tibetan dictionaries have appeared. Walsh in an article in the J.A.S.B., Vol. 72, Pt. 1, n. 2, 1903, reviewing the last one of these, the one by Sarat Chandra Das, says, p. 78: "Although the present Dictionary has fulfilled what it purposed to be, namely, a complete Dictionary of literary Tibetan, so far as our present sources of knowledge go, it does not fulfil the requirements of a standard dictionary of the entire language, and the standard dictionary of the modern and current Tibetan language has yet to be written."

Laufer, 'Roman einer Tibetischen Königin,' 1911, p. 27 et seq., says: "We have here to open a road through the jungles, unaided and by ourselves; we have to work through text after text and note down expressions and idioms as we meet them," etc.

Grünwedel in 'Padmasambhava und Verwandtes,' 1912, pp. 9–10, endorses Laufer's remarks and adds about the difficulty of translating from Tibetan: "Ignorance regarding the subject-matter, mistakes and misunderstandings in the text itself, and, finally, the insufficiently explored idiomatic element of the language, of which the history is as yet poorly known, these are the main shoals.... Of all the dictionaries only Jäschke's has really achieved something in the matter of idiom."

As a matter of fact the printed materials available for the home student do not at present enable him, if without the help of a native teacher, to translate, accurately and without skipping the difficulties, any modern Tibetan book (not even the so-called Tibetan Primers in use in Darjeeling) if such books do not happen to belong to those excerpted in the existing dictionaries. Jäschke's, which is the best from this point of view, mentions only 25 titles of texts used as his sources. Comparing this with the more than 1000 titles quoted by Skeat as the sources for the material for his Etymological Dictionary of the [iv]English language we at once see the inadequacy of such material in the case of Tibetan.

It is true that at present more showy results can be obtained by the wholesale translation of texts (more with a view to making known their general contents, than to the furnishing of a precise philological, lexicographical and grammatical analysis), and it is certain that the results of such work of translation would be more attractive and interesting to the wider public. Yet one of the most valuable contributions towards laying a sound basis for future Tibetan scholarship is the painstaking, laborious and to a certain extent inglorious and humdrum drudging away at small texts with scrupulous attention to the smallest minutiae, for a secure fixing of illustrative examples by co-ordinating correctness of text, full discussion of meanings, sharp formulation of definitions and subtle analysis of all questions and problems involved.

The following essay is a first contribution towards an attempt to serve such an ideal. [v]

[Contents]

ABBREVIATIONS.

adj.	= Adjective.
A.S.B.	= Asiatic Society of Bengal.
Bell	= Bell's Manual.
Cs., Csoma	= Csoma's Dictionary; if his Grammar is referred to it is specifically stated.
D.	= Dutch.
Desg.	= Desgodins, Dictionary.
dict.	= Dictionary.
dicts.	= All existing European Tibetan Dictionaries, but especially the three current ones by Jäschke, Sarat Chandra Das and Desgodins.
Dzl.	= Dzanglun, ed. and trsl. by Schmidt.
Ed.	= Edition.
fig.	= figuratively.
G.	= German.
Hannah	= Hannah's Grammar.
Henderson	= Henderson's Manual.
Hon.	= Honorific.
J.	= Jäschke, Dictionary, 3rd ed.; also Journal.
L.	= Latin.
l.	= line.
M.A.S.B.	= Memoirs, Asiatic Society of Bengal.
pr.	= pronounce, pronunciation.
prob.	= probably.
q. v.	= see.
S. Ch. D.	= Sarat Chandra Das, Dictionary.
Schmidt	= Schmidt's Dictionary, German Edition.
Schroeter	= Schroeter's Dictionary.
Sk.	= Sanskrit.
subst.	= Substantive.

s.v. = sub voce.
syn(s). = synonym(s), synonymous.
voc. = vocabulary.

[1]

MINOR TIBETAN TEXTS.

PRIMARILY LEXICOGRAPHICALLY TREATED.

By JOHAN VAN MANEN.

[\[Contents\]](#)

I. THE SONG OF THE EASTERN SNOW MOUNTAIN.

[Contents]

A. INTRODUCTION.

In his ‘Mythologie des Buddhismus,’ Grünwedel gives on p. 59 the figures of a triad of famous reformers of lamaism; Rje Rin po ch’e, better known as Tsoñ k’a pa, and his two pupils, Rgyal ts’ab rje and Mk’as grub rje. On pp. 70–72 he gives biographical notes concerning the three, and indicates their place and historical importance in lamaism. Günther Schulemann, in ‘Die Geschichte der Dalailamas,’ gives in chapters II and III a complete compilation of what is known about these three.

In the modern Dge lugs pa sect their historical importance has never been lost sight of and their memory is kept green by a universal prayer or invocation, still in daily use, opening and closing every ceremony in a Dge lugs pa monastery. In preceding a ceremony it runs as follows:—

To the repairer of the Tibetan vehicle, Tsoñ k’a pa (the Onionlander),
To the true, strong, wise Lord Rgyal ts’ab rje (Noble Throne-prince),
To the sūtra and mantra teaching master Mk’as grub rje (Noble Cleverness-perfection)
To these three victorious (illustrious) Father and Sons (Family of three), obeisance!

In closing the ceremony the words _____ are changed into _____, ‘may their blessing be on us,’ ‘may they bless us.’ [2]

When the monks meet for _____, collective or communal tea drinking, the last three words are changed into _____, ‘we give our offering,’ said before drinking the first cup and whilst sprinkling a few drops in libation with two fingers, the thumb and fourth finger of the right hand. At the termination of tea drinking nothing is said at all. Except for these changes the formula remains the same for all occasions.

Another pupil of Tsoñ k'a pa was his own nephew Dge ḥdun grub, about whom further particulars are given in the same passages of the two works cited above, and who may be called the first Dalai Lama, though not known by that title but by that of Rgyal ba, or conqueror. Yet it will be seen from the above formula that the three who are together called 'father and sons,' that is Tsoñ k'a pa and his two spiritual sons or pupils, are all three called . The expression has no doubt to be understood as a collective word like 'group,' 'family,' just like means 'parents.'

From this a small poem in praise of his teachers, the , has come to us, which we now publish. Of it is said that he founded a formal cult of his teacher Tsoñ k'a pa, and it may be that his devotional attitude found a reflection in this poem, showing the attitude taken by his own pupil towards him and his two other teachers in his turn.

This poem occurs in a miscellaneous collection of religious matter (said to comprise about 150 leaves), in a work ('Religious Practice'), leaves 59, 60. I have not been able to see a complete copy of this work. In this edition the text is fairly correct and clearly legible. A small edition, complete in itself, of which I possess two copies (not quite so legible), offers several different readings which nearly all seem quite as good, and some decidedly better, than those of the larger edition. The differences shown by the two texts are, relatively to the size of the poem, so numerous and of such a nature as to preclude the idea that mere copying can have led to them. One is led to the conclusion that one of the two texts was produced [3] from memory and not by actual copying. We shall note the variants furnished by the larger edition, marking them B., whilst following for our own text, with one exception, duly noted, the smaller edition A. My two copies of the smaller edition would seem to be prints from the same blocks but for some difference in the last page. Whether the other pages are printed from the same blocks, whilst only this one last block has been, for one reason or another, renewed (and changed in the process) may be left undiscussed for the moment. Enough to make the general statement that great care should always be exercised before pronouncing Tibetan prints as made or not made from the same blocks, and that, indeed, interesting observations may be made on Tibetan typographical practices.

The title _____ is a very frequent one in Tibet, and indicates, like _____ (as in J. Dict., p. 273*b*, but not as on p. XXI a), a religious miscellany. The particular _____ from which our poem is taken is said to be one of the text-books which the Tashilhunpo tapas are required to learn by heart. The book with the same title which Laufer (Verzeichniss der Tib. Handschr. etc. zu Dresden, Z.D.M.G., 1901, p. 123, n. 135) mentions, might or might not be the same. As I have not been able to examine the title pages and final pages of the book, I cannot give any further information about it. _____ is the marginal short title.

Another Gelukpa prayer of almost equal popularity and frequency as those of the one quoted above, is the following which may be used as an alternative to the former one. It is distinguished from it in that not the _____, but Tsoñ k'a pa alone is invoked in it. It runs:—

To the unfathomable great treasury of love, the Down-Looking-One (Chenresi, Avalokiteshvara), [4]
To the immaculate Lord of knowledge, Sweet-voice (Jamyang, Mañjughosha),
To the subduer of the hosts of devils without exception, the Master of Mysteries (Chanadorje, Vajrapāṇi),
To that crown-jewel of Tibetan sages, Tsoñ k'a pa,
To the feet of that (or: thee, o!) Famous Goodheart (Lozangtakpa, Sumatikīrti), we pray.

The chief difference between the use of the two prayers is that the latter is more in private use, whilst the former is more favoured in what may be called official meetings and collective acts of worship. The latter prayer is often used in a manner like the 'Om maṇi padme hūṃ' formula, and cases in which a devotee vowed to recite this prayer once or more times a 100,000 times are known. The practical purpose of the latter prayer was thus defined by a Tibetan:

..... To ensure (bring, ask for) in (this present, earthly) life: health, happiness, absence of sickness, and longevity—and at the time of death a happy mind and a firm hold on (grasp of) religion.

The above form of the prayer is the printed one which is used by the monks to read aloud, mechanically and repeatedly, as a sort of prayer-litany, together with other similar matter, for the benefit of their clients, or also to ensure their own salvation. It is said to occur in a prayer-book called _____, which I have not seen myself and about which I have no further details.

This prayer has also some variations in its final line (after the words _____) according to circumstances. This line ends, when:

Opening a ceremony :

Closing _____ :

„ „
Before tea _____ : _____ (or _____)

After _____ : nothing at all is said.
„

It is interesting to note that one of my informants interprets the above formula as indicating that Tsoñ k'a pa is the [5]simultaneous incarnation of Avalokiteshvara, Mañjughosha and Vajrapāṇi, and that these persons invoked in the prayer are not referred to as a consecutive series of separate entities, but as all embodied in the one Tsoñ k'a pa. My informant was very insistent about it that this is the general and orthodox interpretation of this prayer. The other two names of Tsoñ k'a pa are _____ and _____ .

The closing verse of our poem is also a prayer to Tsoñ k'a pa. It is also in use elsewhere than in connection with the present booklet and occurs elsewhere in print as well. My informant ascribes it to Gendundub himself and thinks that its wider use has spread from this booklet, though he cannot definitely assure that Gendundub himself did not appropriate it for the closing lines of his poem, taking an already current prayer to Tsoñ k'a pa. The latter theory is plausible inasmuch as the last verse is seven-footed as against the eight-footed lines of the rest of the poem. Anyhow, the statement that this prayer also refers to Tsoñ k'a pa alone, and is as such used and understood by all Gelukpa monks, settles a doubt we might otherwise entertain as to whether it is not addressed to the _____, in which case its final line would have to be translated in the plural.

As to the edition, in the original the verses are not marked; they are evidently four-lined. The small edition has no divisions at all, except marking the lines, but the larger edition has in addition a _____ (_____ = snake head) after lines 16 and 48. In my own text and translation I have by typographical disposition and by the introduction of title headings indicated my conception of the clever and very logical inner structure of the poem.

The text is followed by a short discussion of the variants in it, next by a translation, and then, my main business, by a full lexicographical discussion, in alphabetical order. This embodies in the first place all the new material, supplementing, amplifying, modifying, or even only questioning, the data in Jäschke's Dictionary, 3rd edition. For this Dictionary is, as far as lexicographical method is concerned, still superior to all other, even subsequent, Tibetan dictionaries, however much valuable and additional matter may be contained in the two latter. Jäschke's dictionary is as yet the proper starting point for all future lexicographical research. In this glossary I have also drawn special attention to contradictions in these three current dictionaries, those of Jäschke, Desgodins and Sarat Chandra Das, even to such points for which I myself have not been able to suggest a solution or about which I could not bring [6] new material. For the good of future lexicographical work in the Tibetan field, it is very necessary to point out as many as possible of the numerous existing discrepancies and uncertainties (especially relating to finer shades of discrimination and precision) so as to focus the attention of investigators on them. It is unavoidable that most of this work can only be suitably undertaken on the spot in consultation with educated, intelligent Tibetans, and not in European closets. The number of those in a position to undertake such research will, for a long time to come, remain limited enough. As indicated in the sub-title of this essay my own main object in writing it is primarily a lexicographical one. For this reason I have also incorporated in my glossary notes on side-issues and all sorts of incidental idiomatic 'catches' which cropped up in the discussion of our text, though not immediately connected with the poem itself.

As it seemed the handiest way to present all the results of my investigation I have also embodied all commentatorial matter, the philological notes as distinct from the lexicographical ones, under the same alphabet. The few syntactical remarks have also been wedged in in this list, though in their case the ‘Stichwort’ had to be chosen more or less at haphazard.

In the matter of oral information and illustrative examples embodied in this paper, my authorities are nearly exclusively my two Tibetan teachers Skarma Bsam Gtan Paul and P’un Ts’ogs Lung Rtogs. The first is a native of Ghoom, though of pure Tibetan extraction (K’ams). He has resided for nearly a year in Lhasa, for another 3 months in Tashilhunpo (where he was Tibetan interpreter between the Tashi Lama and Capt. R. Steen, I.M.S.), and for 4 years in Gyangtse. The second is a native of Lhasa, where he resided till his 18th year, after which he spent 3 years in Tashilhunpo as a tapa. Then he wandered for 12 years through Tibet, Sikkhim and Nepal, after which he settled in Ghoom since about 1914. Until recently he was there schoolmaster (dge rgan) in the local Tibetan monastery.

Both these intelligent men have given me the greatest help in long, patient and painstaking discussions concerning the lexicographical and other problems presented by this present text, as well as by several others, which I hope I will be able to publish and discuss from time to time in the future. [Z]

[Contents]

B. TEXT.

I

2					*
3
4
II 5					*
6
7		*
8
III 9
10				*
11
12
II
IV 13
14					[8]
15
16		*
V 17	*
18				*
19			*
20	*
VI 21
22				*
23

24

III

VII 25

26

27

28

VIII 29

*

30

[9]

31

32

*

IX 33

34

35

36

IV

X 37

38

39

40

*

XI 41

42

*

43

44

*

*

**

XII 45

*

*

46

*

*

*

*

[10]

47

*

48

*

*

V

XIII 49

*

50

51

52

VI

XIV 53

54

55

56

*

*

TEXTUAL NOTES

*l. 2 B *l. 5 B *l. 7 A 1 and 2 l. 7 B *l. 10 B *l.
 16 A 1 and 2 both . Text from B l. 16 B closes the line with a instead of *l.
 17 B *l. 18 B *l. 19 B *l. 20 A 2 *l. 22 B *l. 24 A 1 and 2 l. 24 B *l. 26 B *l. 29 B l. 29 A 2 *l.
 32 B l. 32 B *l. 34 B *l. 35 B *l. 37 A 1 and 2 *l. 38 B *l. 40 B instead of *l. 41 B *l. 42 B *l. 43 B *l. 44 B last three words in B *l. 45 A 1 and B *l. 45 B *l. 46 last four words in B *l. 47 A 2 *l. 48 4 2 *l. 48 B has at the end of the line instead of *l. 49 B *Colophon, A 2 has no after
 , and has a final to . B has a different colophon

[Contents]

C. THE VARIANTS.

The texts used were two small blockprints, nearly identical A 1 and A 2, and a large blockprint B.

On the whole A furnishes a good text and it may be used as the basis for the edition. Two curious cases of the use of for (7. 45) seem more than mere negligence of the wood-cutter [11] in connection with the badly printed in l. 13 (which looks also like _____) and also a _____ like _____ in l. 23. Inversely there is a clear _____ — _____ —in l. 37 and a _____ for _____ in l. 48. A 2 twice lacks the hook in _____ (20, 24) and the naro _____ in lines 29, 47. These two latter variants may be due to deterioration in the blocks or the roughness of the paper, or defective inking. Otherwise A 1 and A 2 are practically identical, and except for the last pages (the last two of A 1 are condensed into a single one in A 2) the two copies may have been printed from the same blocks.

In 5 B writes _____ for _____ as authorized by the Dicts. But the question of final particles is still far from being satisfactorily settled. The Dicts. are on the whole much at variance on this point. Desg. gives as a rule a greater variety of them than J.

Some differences in the tenses of the verb are presented by the two copies of A on one side and B on the other. In l. 2 _____ is the present tense as against the past form _____ in A. As to the sense both would do, and though the past form in Tibetan is better rendered in English by the present we may understand the past form as 'has begun to rise.' In verse XI B gives imp. forms, making the sense one of command whereas A has present forms giving a mere statement. The final _____ in _____, however, is not recorded in the Dicts., nor the form _____; _____, however, is a regularly recognised imp. form.

_____ in l. 35 is a correct past tense. The form _____ (without an initial _____) as in B is not recorded, though _____, present, might do equally well. _____, l. 32, is not authorized by the Dicts. which all omit the initial _____. The substitution of _____ for _____ (38) seems to lack sufficient urgency, [12] though J. records a _____ 'to listen to an explanation' from Sch. A _____, l. 29, is correct according to the Dicts., not _____ of B, though J. and S. Ch. D. give the alternative spelling.

In the treatment of grammatical particles A is superior to B. _____ (10) is correct, not _____ B. It is an adverbial construction. In 18, _____, and 22, _____, equally so. In 24 _____ is a terminative dependent on _____.

The remaining variants are all in the nature of equivalents for or against which nothing (or the same!) can be said, and which would do as well as the readings we have adopted.

Many of them are, however, curious for this reason, that they are not homonymous variants at all and consequently substitutions for, not corruptions of, the text. We have to leave the question alone whether those in A or in B are likely to be the original ones.

In 7, , very kind, is as good as , very precious; in 17 means practically the same as , ‘from this moment’, and ‘from this very day.’ In 19 ‘in another’ seems even a trifle better than ‘from another.’ seems better in 32 than in B, ‘even, indeed!’ ‘to perform,’ in l. 34, is as good as , also ‘to perform, accomplish,’ and the future form of the latter would be better if changed into a pf. form or pr. . In l. 40 , ‘the sending, throwing,’ seems as good as , ‘(as silly) as the conveying.’
In 41 the article means the same as plural B. In 44, , ‘egotism, selfishness,’ is substituted for , [13]‘sin’; similarly in 45 and 49 ‘all,’ for ‘many.’ Lastly, the difficult construction
, in 46, is replaced in B by the easier
, ‘not allowing (letting, making) it [the soul] (to) fall’ instead of ‘letting it remain fallen when once it has done so.’

All these examples seem to point out that one of the blockprints (probably the larger one) was derived from a version which was not actually copied from the original but rather written down from memory. The variants are no cutting or copying mistakes except and l. 16, and and in l. 7.

In l. 26 we find an erroneous for .

The two at the end of lines 16 and 48 in B (or rather at the beginning of the following lines, for that is where they must be put if the Tibetan text is printed line for line like English verse) do not agree with my conception of the structure of the poem as indicated by my typographical arrangement of it. I would not have expected a after line 16 but after lines 12, 24, 36 and 48. The occurrence of the sign after line 48 may, however, be taken to indicate that the next two verses have to be regarded as appendices to the body of the poem proper.

It must be mentioned that in the title, in both copies of A., the final word is .
In B., as the poem occurs in the body of the volume, there is no equivalent title. I have written without prejudice to the question whether the form is legitimate or not. My teachers say that before a the is required.

The only reading taken from B is for the incomprehensible of A 1 and 2, in line 16.

It may be, finally, remarked that the three copies from which this edition was prepared, show once more that textual [14]correctness and perfection of typographical execution are not necessarily related in Tibet. The two small prints which are, but for the single omission of a dengbu in line 16, quite correct, are small, badly printed on bad paper, and not carefully or neatly cut. The larger copy is neat, well printed on good paper, very legible, but not nearly so satisfactory as a text.

[Contents]

D. TRANSLATION.

The Song of the Eastern Snow Mountain.

OBEISANCE TO THE TEACHER.

I. (HIS TEACHERS).

1. On the peak of the white snow mountain in the East
A white cloud seems to be rising towards the sky.
At the instant of beholding it I remember my teacher
And, pondering over his kindness, faith stirs in me.

2. To the East of where that cloud is floating,
In that entirely victorious Virtue Solitude,
There resided the precious ones, difficult to be invoked,
Father Famous Goodheart, the Sire with (his two spiritual) sons.

3. The yoga and other (teachings) of the two stages of the road Relating to the profound Doctrine, they preached most fully.
To the pious of snowy Tibet
Your grace, O protectors, was ineffable.

II. (HIMSELF).

4. Especially that this ease-loving Clergy-Perfection
Has turned his mind a little towards the Doctrine
Is (thanks to) the kindness of these noble father and sons.
Truly your kindness is great, O father and sons.

5. From now onward till (I reach) the heart of saintship,
Whilst, except in you, noble father and sons,
I will not place my hope for protection in anyone else,
I pray you to drag me along with your mercy-hook.

6. Though I cannot repay you in proportion to whatever your favours have been,
I pray that, with my soul not enslaved by attraction or repulsion,^[15]
I may hold fast to your teaching, O protectors,
And may always put my best energy into the endeavour.

III. (HIS CONTEMPORARIES).

7. However, nowadays, in this snow mountain solitude,
(There are those who) whilst promising to follow the teaching themselves, Regard others, who (equally) follow the teaching, as their veriest enemies.
Such conduct calls forth the deepest sorrow.

8. With thoughts wishing the ruin of others
And with souls fettered by fierce ambition,

They nevertheless promise to dwell on the high road.
If we consider this (carefully) it is a matter of shame for all concerned.

9. These malignant beings,
Angry because they find themselves in their old age in the wrong road,
And raging from the bottom of their hearts
Against those persons who have (duly) acted conform to the Doctrine,
Has not a demon entered their minds?

IV. (HIS PUPILS).

10. Not to take steps to conquer the enemy, sin,
But yet after mere reproach to flare up in reply,
That is as silly as,
When an evil spirit is at the Eastern door,
To throw the ransom towards the Western door.

11. Those virtue-friends who understand that this is so,
Think of all embodied beings in general with kindness,
But saintly thoughts especially of all who devote themselves to the Doctrine.
And they subdue the enemy residing within, sin.

12. O, my followers and friends,
Whilst not letting your souls remain fallen after a lapse,
But whilst examining (yourselves constantly) whether your minds keep to righteousness,
To remain on the straight road, that surely is good.

V. (FINAL PRAYER).

13. May all those who believe in these words,
With a mind bent on the drawing on of all beings by means of love and mercy,^[16]
Through the (direct) vision of the actionless state of (pure) knowledge, Speedily obtain (that) glorious, supreme saintship.

VI. (FINAL BLESSING).

14. He, whose body blazes with the marks and beauties (as of a Buddha), Whose speech is adorned with the sixty branches of melody,
Whose deep and wide mind, indeed, is a treasury of omniscient love,
May that glorious teacher's blessing be on us.

The above was composed by the Great Omniscient Clergy Perfection Good-Glory as a song in loving memory.

Blessing.

[Contents]

E. GLOSSARY AND NOTES.

(Lexicographical, Syntactical and Material.)

see .

, 32. Not so much 'a matter of shame to all'
(= all the people who look at or into the matter, the beholders, the general public, or even humanity in general), but rather 'a matter of all (of them) being ashamed,' i.e. the people doing the shameful acts, the people concerned, engaged in this conduct, not the public in general.

, 29. Here thought, conception, wish (cf. D. opwelling). (Desg. 'all-enveloping,' i.e. 'natural corruption or sin,' p. 8*b*, but = , 'excitement of passion' on p. 1044*a*). See also S. Ch. D., p. 29*b*,
....., but Schroeter, p. 2*b*, 'approbation, assent, the consenting to any proposition.'

see . [17]

, 30. Here equal to , 'yet, however, nevertheless.'

, 20. Not as a separate word in J., who gives _____ and _____, the latter after Schmidt. This is the word occurring in the compound _____ the Tibetan u-vowel, the 'foot-hook' (not merely honorific of _____ as Hannah seems to suggest in his Grammar of the Tibetan Language, p. 4), which J. has under _____, on p. 472a, together with a queried meaning 'spur' (of the foot: 'ein Sporn'), taken from Csoma. This latter meaning is unknown to my informants. Bell gives: hook _____; fishhook _____, but iron hook _____. Henderson gives both _____ and _____ for hook, and also _____ alone for iron hook. My informants deny the correctness of _____. Desg. knows _____ () only as a verb, not as a subst.; he mentions _____ as a separate word, subst. hook, and does not mention _____. The various articles in the three Dicts. sub _____ are interesting but the meaning hook is not given in any of them. S. Ch. D. translates _____ with '_____, a pointed iron hook, a large pin to pierce with,' whilst Macdonell in his Sk. dict. translates the Sk. word as 'hook, goad, stimulus, remedy.' (See below s.v. _____.) J. under _____ gives also _____, an iron hook, and _____, a fishing hook, but my informants say that the colloquial for fish hook is rather _____ (or _____) or simply _____ (pr. nyendzin), just as a meat hook (to hang up meat on) is _____ (pr. shendzin). The _____ in [18] the above represents the pronunciation of the more illiterate people.

One of my informants is, however, of opinion that _____ does not mean an iron hook at all, but hook in general even though it might be made of silver, copper, gold, etc. He compares it with the word wall, _____, which is not necessarily made of iron, and though of stone or earth is still called 'iron-mountain.' Women's ornaments such as earrings, chains, or necklaces (_____, pr. kenthang, not in the Dicts. or Bell. As a colloquial word the dengbu might perhaps be left out in writing) may have golden or silver hooks, _____ or _____.

. Example:

, this woman has a very fine necklace which has four golden and silver hooks (or clasps). Schroeter's dict., p. 361*b*, already gives as hook only. The expression in the sense of mineral, given by Desg., 307*a*, would make us think that might perhaps mean metal hook, but see below. S. Ch. D. adds to the confusion. Under he gives: (1) iron pin to guide and punish elephants; fish-hook; (2) name of a plant. (His next entry seems improbable, elephant driving and elephant driver for one and the same word). But under he defines as 'iron hook, an angle, a fishing-hook.' J. has under and gives 'an iron hook, esp. fishing-hook, angle; often fig.' and in his illustration he translates simply as 'hook of grace.' [19] He marks the word as belonging to the book language. It is curious to note that Schlagintweit in his Rgyal-rabs (title, or introductory verse) translates the word with 'eisernen Hacken' (p. 25), whilst Schiefner renders the same word correctly on the next page by 'Hacken' alone. But in his new translation of the Rgyal-rabs, H. A. Francke (J.P.A.S.B., Vol. VI, n. 8, p. 397) writes again 'Iron Hook.'

There is still another compound with , namely , the name for a component part of the elaborate tormas structure. It indicates a small piece of dough in the form of the top of the thumb. From all these examples it might be hazarded that the element means primarily 'curve, curved' or 'curvature,' and has no substantial meaning like 'hook' or the like. My teachers, however, think that by itself is a substantive 'hook.' So it is not clear whether J. is right as against the other Dicts. in not entering the word separately. The above discussion is in any case better entered under the word , whether this is really an independent word or not. The fact that S. Ch. D. gives a Sk. equivalent for alone, pleads for its separate existence.

My teachers opine that as a separate word may occur alone, but their nearest approach to framing a sentence illustrating such a use was one in which they spoke of a wooden hook (made by a junglesman to fish or hunt with) as or more briefly . So the example was not decisive.

Additional Note—Cf. the example in Csoma's Grammar, p 109:

, golden fetters or chains, lit.: golden iron ropes. See also Ramsay, 'Western Tibet', p. 62:

'To hook—ngiákuk táng ches, properly applicable only to a fish caught with a hook, but also used generally', and:

'Hook—ngiákuk (fish hook), kuk kuk (a hook of any kind)...' [20]

Query: Is the use of merely conventional in several words, as in , cage (Bell, Walsh 'Tromowa Dialect'), (iron) bridge, etc.? And is the use of perhaps analogous to that of honorific prefixes? Cf. the Dutch guilder (gulden) which is made of silver, though its name is derived from 'gold.'

see .

, 7. Difficult, but here rather with some of the meaning of the English 'hard' (hard lines?), the French 'dur', perhaps L. 'arduus.' The meaning is somewhat that the invocation should not be undertaken lightly (God's name should not be spoken 'in vain'). Conceptions like: grave, serious, weighty, not lighthearted, or commonplace, or flippant, suggest themselves here. It is 'a serious matter' to invoke these teachers.

, 42. To think with kindness of or towards, or about ().

, 11. We have taken this word in the general sense given by J. 'the pious,' though it may equally well be rendered by 'the fortunate ones,' i.e. those who were fortunate enough to hear Tsoñ k'a pa's preaching or that of his two pupils. One of my informants suggests, however, that should here be taken more literally as 'sharers', 'share-havers' in Tsoñ k'a pa's message and consequently should here be understood as his 'followers.'

see .

see .

, 19. May either be taken as two separate words ‘protection and hope’ or as a compound ‘hope for protection,’ ‘protection-hope.’ More accurately ‘the spot (place = persons in this case) in whom I place my hope for protection, to whom I resort or go, in whom I trust, for protection.’ (cf. D. heul, toeverlaat). [21]

see .

see .

, 4. This is an illustration of the meaning of under J...s 4th sub-heading, 1st division. ‘faith has been born,’ but here rather ‘becomes active,’ ‘sprouts,’ ‘waxes strong,’ or ‘grows, flames up, intensifies, awakens, arises, stirs.’ The idea is not, as in a case of Christian conversion, of a state of previously non-existent faith, suddenly arising, but of an existing faith becoming strongly energised, leaping up (‘an outburst of faith’). The colloquial can be suitably translated by ‘to inspire faith to.’ For instance

() , that lama inspires me with (no) faith. A free translation of is consequently ‘to have faith in,’ but in our passage the additional meaning of ‘renewed’ is implied. Therefore we may also render ‘they call up my faith’ or ‘renewed faith comes up in me.’ See the use of this expression in the Tibetan Primer III, p. 7, 1. 8. (read)

Then he, recognising that the king was very good, and having gained faith in him, and having prostrated himself numberless times, (asked) how can I request (i.e. take, accept) such (gifts) given by the king.

see .

, 50. To generate, the generation, production. ‘that which has been produced in the soul,’ ‘the (completed) productions of the soul’; with = with; ‘with thoughts of, assuming, observing an attitude of, with a mental attitude of or disposition to.’

[22] () is one elaborate substantive, a ‘the-beings-with-kindness-having-drawn-soul-disposition.’

, 28. Here not in J.’s sense ‘to be weary,’ but as Desg. and S. Ch. D. have it ‘sadness, grief, sorrow,’ or adj. ‘sad’, etc. In seeing a half-naked beggar, it may be said: . Here the word is adjective: ‘that unhappy (unfortunate, wretched, miserable) man has not even a coat.’ [(Bell) = J. = = Desg.

, coat, garment, dress; not alone ‘man’s coat,’ as J. has it, but for both sexes—J. S.Y. . and both missing in S. Ch. D. is pronounced both golak and gölak. Walsh, Vocabulary Tromowa Dialect, s.v. coat ‘go’ and ‘golag.’ My teachers do not know a word for coat in Tibetan. Desg. has a , overcoat. S. Ch. D. or ‘old coat or garment patched up and mended.’]

see .
see .
see .
see .

, 45. My followers and friends (cf. citizens and compatriots), i.e. followers who are also my friends; the same people under two qualifications, not two different groups of people, the friends and the followers. See .

see . [23]

18, 12, 23. The difference in form is not accidental.
is a stereotyped , manner of speech, expression.
, l. 18, is a normal honorific form. The form was described to me as one of intimacy, of utter confidence, as distinct from familiarity and lack of respect. This seems an almost exact parallel to the use of (thou), tu, du in (English), French and German in addressing parents, God, and relations. The following example was given, a quotation from the , a little ritual gelukpa book, leaf 12a:

‘As thou art our lama, our yi-dam, our ḍākinī, our dharmapāla ...’ (prayer addressed to Tsoṅ k’a pa). Likewise, in the little prayerbook (to Tārā) we find a few cases of (e.g. p. 5b) amidst many cases of . In the term the hon. form of the first two syllables of course determines the hon. form of the last. The ‘intimate’ form was further described as ‘the language of religious transport, ardour, fervour,’ .

() see .

see .

, 32. According to the Dicts. ‘to be ashamed.’ Desg. and S. Ch. D. do not support J.’s meaning ‘piety’ and his third meaning ‘disgust, aversion.’ My oral information rejects these second and third meanings, yet see below.

, freely translated ‘is a matter of (cause for) shame to all,’ literally ‘a-by-all-shame-feeling-cause,’ i.e. all should feel ashamed. The shame, it should be understood, must be felt, not by all who behold the bad behaviour, but by all who [24]are guilty of it. The exact meaning of the root from which the verb is derived is not yet satisfactorily dealt with in the Dicts. which are supplementary as well as contradictory in their data. The compounds exhibit a great variety of shades of meaning. That of , for instance, may perhaps cover so wide a range as ‘shameless, impudent, self-willed, stubborn, stiff-necked, arrogant, insolent, ungrateful, loveless, heartless, harsh, cruel, wanton, ruchlos, frech.’ Some of the compounds and applications clearly indicate that must also mean ‘sexual modesty, chastity,’ others that it must mean ‘bashfulness, shyness, timidity’ (in this sense ‘brazen, forward, unabashed, saucy, bold, audacious’). seems to come very near to the D. 'schroom' which is more 'diffidence' than 'scruple,' but may in some cases mean 'unscrupulous' or 'without a conscience.' In this sense it comes near to 'impious.' The German subst. 'Scheu' may be also compared. It is also averred that in certain combinations a positive statement with _____ is practically identical with the English exclamation: how dare you! how can you!

A compound, difficult to define exactly, is _____ in which _____ has the meaning, not given in the Dicts. of straight, straightforward, honest, true, dependable, the French 'droit' (cf. rectitude). The whole expression may mean 'abandoned,' or simply _____. Example _____, 'the lives of these abandoned (shameless, etc.) men are useless.' An old sweetheart who has cast off her lover may be called _____ 'the brazen, perfidious girl.' Desg. gives _____ in this sense as equal to _____, 'good, just, generous.' This may be Schmidt's 'sincere, orderly.' In the sentence

[25] _____, 'to render your parents kindness in this way shows a lack of gratitude,' my teachers explain the word as 'ungrateful, loveless, harsh.'

As far as the further meanings of _____, as given in J. (see above), are concerned, P'un Ts'ogs maintains that _____ = _____, 'pious,' but Karma denies it, and the former also states that _____ = _____, which latter expression Desg. and S. Ch. D. know as 'to be disgusted with.' But J. and the others render the former expression with _____, as 'chaste' or 'modest,' or as 'to be chaste,' etc. Both of my teachers are at one about the expression 'to be weary, tired, sick of.' Examples:

_____, I am tired of this food. (_____, pr. tobché, see Henderson's Manual, Voc., p. 48, s.v. food; there written _____.) _____, 'I have got tired of this man.' The sentence _____ was explained to me as: Having understood the doctrine, and having been delivered (saved), I am now weary of the world, have renounced the world, know the world for vanity, have turned away from it. For J.'s , 'scornful laughter', the synonym was given to me, as well as the explanation 'a laugh to make the other feel ashamed,' 'to make another feel small.' We may therefore think of ironic, sarcastic, malicious laughter, or of derision and Schadenfreude. , to laugh at another, at the expense of another, in order to make him ridiculous. This word furnishes a very striking test of the present state of Tibetan lexicography, the word will furnish another. [26]

For words like these a comprehensive collection of authentic illustrations is imperative before finer shades and the exact range of meanings can be fixed. , commonly translated as 'shame,' a synonym for , is a similarly uncertain word. Compare the translations in J. and S. Ch. D. of this same sentence:

, J.: 'he has no shame nor dread'; S. Ch. D.: 'he has no shame or modesty.'

see .

see .

see .

see .

see and .

see .

, 55. J.'s queried , quoted from Gyal-rabs: 'prob.: omniscient-merciful,' cannot with any certainty be decided from this passage.

Desg. has = = 'knowledge of the heart, i.e. pity, mercy.'

S. Ch. D. 'omniscient mercy.'

According to my teachers these are two different words here, knowledge and mercy; not a compound. is here hon. form of to know. But a subst.

 is not recorded in the Dicts. Desg. has a = = ‘science, knowledge,’ and S. Ch. D. also gives as ‘knowledge.’ In compounds has usually the verbal value of ‘knowing.’ The entries s.v. in the Dicts. need careful comparison and deserve close study.

[27]

 is often used in an emphatic sense, to know all, to know through and through, to know with supernatural knowledge (as, for instance, to know what happens from a distance), cf. the English adj. ‘knowing.’

The shades of meaning: wise, learned, intelligent, sensible, careful, cautious, clever, need further analysis.

 , 35. The value of this word is clear from the Dicts., but there is a difficulty in choosing suitable English words to fit each case in rendering. Such words as the following may be found useful under various circumstances: to be disturbed, upset, disordered (cf. disordered brain), unbalanced, deranged, convulsed, in turmoil, tumultuous (a soul in tumult), in revolt, turbulent, wild, seething, in uproar, in the throes of (passion, etc.).

And even so none of the above expressions furnishes an easy, idiomatic and close rendering for , the man whose very character is an utter chaos.

 , 21. Ordinarily to carry, but here to carry back, i.e. to repay, render, return.

Example: , You must render your parents their kindness. The verb , primarily ‘to weigh’, is equally so used; see J. s.v. 4. For the above example the word would ordinarily be inserted, , but this would lessen the force of the illustration for our purpose as means here ‘return,’ and , ‘a kindness in return.’ The above sentence can be expressed in three ways: (with or without , (or , or), .

, title. Mother Snow Mountain. The affixes to are according to J. and ; Desg. adds ; S. Ch. [28] D. only ; Bell and Henderson no affix.
Of these gives a definite sense of greatness to the mountain. (See S. Ch. D., Grammar, Introduction, p. 18). Here the particle is not an inherent part of the substantive, but is added to give a feminine sense to the word, which here means something like 'Mother Mountain,' the big mountain being as it were the mother of all smaller hills and heights around it. My informants were definitely of opinion that, here, 'Mother Mountain' and not 'Lady Mountain' was meant. So we should not understand the expression as 'Her Majesty or Ladyship the Snow Mountain.' The meaning though grammatically important remains better neglected in the translation.

, 25. In this snow-mountain-mass, i.e. monastery.
as monastery in J. s.v. but not s.v. . Bell has as 'cell (of hermit).'

Here the expression seems rather to indicate Gendundub's own monastery (be it Daipung, Tashilhunpo or Namgyalchöde) than Galdan, spoken of in the second verse.
See Schulemann, Gesch. der Dalailamas, pp. 92 fl. See and .

see .

, 33. J. , error, mistake. In Desg. or , solitary spot (s.v.) and (s.v.), 'has lost his way'; and also to put apart; , a separate road, a side road (route détournée). According to Desg. only the past form of
, i.e. , means to have erred, gone astray, both physically and morally. S.
Ch. D. copies J., but adds to J.'s , the place where two roads separate: 'so as to create doubt in the mind regarding the right path.' Schroeter (p. 451a) has two entries , 'remote,' and , 'a closet.' J. has the latter expression as ‘a hermitage,’ [29] and Desg., as above, ‘solitary spot.’ In our passage does not mean ‘the mistake as to the road,’ or Anglice ‘the error of his ways.’

In our passage has to be taken together in the sense of = = , the wrong road (in a religious sense, in contrast to the of l. 31). is here to be understood as a ‘wrong-road-place,’ as the spot or place (=) which is, or proves to be, the wrong road, i.e. the place where one realizes that the road on which one is, is the wrong road, or, perhaps better, that the road is a wrong road (= place) to be in, a wrong-road-spot, indeed.

The meanings, recorded in the Dicts. for compounds with or without initial of , seem logical, as one who has separated himself from the road, is astray, is mistaken, is (in moral or intellectual matters) in the wrong, in error.

Note this example of the use of the verb:

, answer very carefully otherwise you will make a mistake.

[, ‘having twisted, squeezed, screwed up your brains??’
= adv., carefully, attentively.]

see .

see .

, 40. Ransom. Is here rather , well defined by S. Ch. D., s.v.
The meaning of is probably ‘the ransom (which is thrown to the evil spirit) as a substitute for, representative of (the person on whose behalf the offering is made),’ J.’s ‘a man’s image which in his stead is cast [30] away in the ,’ a ransom in effigy. There are, however, uses of in which the primary sense is perhaps rather ‘effigy’ than ‘ransom.’ In a ritual describing the construction of the torma cake it is said that the _____ (together with many other moulds) must be imprinted on the dough or paste. Here the word seems to mean no more than ‘a mould constituting an effigy of the body.’ Though all the torma-cake material is thrown away after it has served its purpose, these imprinted effigies do not seem to serve specially as ransoms like the _____ and _____ quoted above.

As to J.’s queried _____ (and the slightly different _____), this is explained as follows. The first phrase means: he is a lü in human form (a man-lü, cf. werwolf; D. een lü in menschenvorm, menschenlijke gedaante). _____ means ‘that man, there (with a pointing out by word or finger).’ For instance: that man John, that king _____. ‘That man’ alone would be

_____. But the second phrase would mean: ‘that man so-and-so is a very devil.’ J.’s rendering of the first phrase as ‘he is a curse, an anathema, one deserving to be cursed’ seems too strong. Rather ‘an unmitigated nuisance,’ for, though harsh, it may be said by a mother of her own child when it is naughty and unruly. The sense seems to be ‘devil’ (as may also be applied to children or wicked grown-ups in English ‘they are true devils,’ D. ‘een paar baarlijke duivels’) and seems to be a case of meaning-shifting from result to cause (pale death!), the lü being the ransom thrown to the evil spirit, Anglice devil. The association does not seem to be that of worthlessness, hatefulness, something good for nothing, only fit to be thrown away like a lü.

As to the above King Koko, this is a facetious name applied (something like thingumbob) to such Tibetans as ape Chinese manners in dress and in other ways.

_____ is said to be a Chinese word for Tib. _____ or _____, elder brother. A Tibetan, strutting about in Darjeeling with Chinese cap and [31]coat may hear the sarcasm addressed to him:

‘Well Mr. Chinaman (or John Ch., Uncle Ch.) where are you going to?’ (‘Mossioo’ of the mid-Victorian Punch and music hall ditties).

see _____.

see _____.

, 6. Clearly printed in both copies, not . This name, ‘the virtuous,’ seems to refer to the Gelukpa sect, though the monastery which is here meant is usually called . The relation between the two terms is not quite clear. Grünwedel, in his ‘Mythologie des Buddhismus,’ etc., p. 72, speaks of ‘das Kloster dGa-ldan oder dGe-ldan.’ Günther Schulemann in ‘Die Geschichte der Dalailamas,’ p. 65, speaks of the ‘Schule, die zuerst dGa-ldan-pa, dann aber dGe-ldan-pa oder dGe-lugs-pa, ‘die Tugendsekte’, genannt wurde.’ Modern Tibetans seem to know only the name for the famous monastery.

, 37. This is an apposition. The enemies, the sins; the enemies who are the sins; ‘these enemies of sins’ as in ‘these rascals of boys.’ See

∴

, title. Its hon. form is . As a single word the affix is required, which may disappear in compounds. Bell gives as meaning of ‘religious song,’ Henderson ‘hymn.’

As J. points out, the profane song is and the religious song . A synonym for is (not in the three Dicts. but in Bell and Henderson s.v. song).

S...Ch...D...s ‘sportive song’ is not supported by the data in J. or Desg., nor by my informants. They take the [32]second part of this compound as a misprint for and hold that is a double-form with the meaning of either of its parts: song. The word has one honorific form, . The words and have each various hon. forms: (recorded in Bell) and . Desg. has a , pleasant song, but my oral information does not support this special meaning.

Note the difference between J. (s.v.), ‘song of joy,’ and Desg. id. s.v. ‘chant érotique.’

In Redslob’s translation of the Psalms into classical Tibetan, the word is used for psalm.

The following table may be useful.

Ordinary	= hon.
”	= ”	{	(sic.) (??)
”	= ”	{	(rare) ??

see .

see .

and , 38. Attention must be drawn to the fact that Desg. identifies with as against J.’s distinction between the two forms as neutral and active. Also that Desg.’s explanation of etc., as ‘to put (the [33]enemy) to flight in battle,’ seems more probable than J.’s ‘to fight a battle,’ etc. The explanation of , by in the note on , q.v., seems to support this supposition. S. Ch. D. gives as a meaning of ‘to institute, set going’ and translates accordingly as ‘to start a combat,’ as against J. ‘to combat’ alone. Also ‘one who gives battle.’ Desg. s.v. (p. 923): or ‘to fight in battle, to combat.’ Cf. also J. s.v. . S. Ch. D. copies J. as against Desg. , ‘to fight a battle.’ These words and , again, need further investigation supported by quotations (as well as the word with which they are used).

, 33. To be old, the state of being old, old age. Example
 , ‘the being born, growing old, being ill, dying are sorrows,’ or ‘birth, old age, illness and death are sorrowful.’ Cf. the treatment of the first four words in J. , with following verb, to be translated as ‘of old age,’ literally: of (belonging to, attendant on) having become old; for instance, the joys, sorrows, etc., of the state of having become old (of old age) = (or). This is not the subst. or of Desg. J. treats as a verb with as a past tense, taking and as adjectives from which the usual substantives in , , etc., are made. Desg. gives the four forms , , and [34] as substantives and has no verb ‘to be old.’ J.’s analysis seems the more accurate one. J.’s ‘old age’ is absent in Desg., whilst this latter has a without affix as ‘old man,’ ‘old age.’ This word S. Ch. D. has as = ‘old, ripe’; whilst he adds = ‘aged, old; exhausted, infirm; an old man.’ This group needs proper quotations for final settlement.

My oral information on some of these points is as follows: The use of alone, as ‘old, ripe’ is denied. does not mean ‘old,’ because requires a ‘grown old in years’ in that sense. As an independent adjective, however, it means ‘worn out, exhausted, thin, lean, aged, grown older,’ and is in that case an equivalent for . Troubles make a man ‘age him’; make him as if old. Age makes a man , old, i.e. really old. For the use of the following two illustrations were given:

‘don’t do such work (or things: or don’t behave in that manner) in your old age;’
 ‘don’t think bad (evil) thoughts in your old age when (whilst) death is drawing near.’

, , see .

(or) see .

see .

see .

see . [35]

and , 54. The treatment of these words in the Dicts. seems unsatisfactory. None of the Dicts. give a passive verb or 'being adorned, being decked out, embellished,' etc. J. has only as a subst. 'ornament, decoration,' and a verb 'to adorn, decorate, provide with.' According to this his own example should not mean, as he says, 'the letter nya () being provided with an S above it' (=), but rather something like 'to adorn the letter nya with a sa as a topletter.'

Desg. knows a verb or (or or) with the meaning of 'to adorn,' with a past tense , 'ornavi, ornatus, orné,' whatever that means. He and J. quote also a 'adorned,' in which the has clearly a substantival value, like in , 'without adornment, unadorned.'

S.v. Desg. says: 'praet. verbi , ornatus, et v. act. ornare, orné, orner,' and he adds or 'ornament.' Bell has for ornament. But J. knows no or as substantives and refers expressly to the unprefixd for the substantives. He further equates and 'ornaments' (plural). Under , 'to put on,' we find further , to put on gay clothes, finery (s.v. , the same expression is translated as 'to adorn one's self,') and , 'beautifully attired' (Mil.). If these translations are idiomatically true we should expect 36 to have a wider sense than the English ornament, rather anything beautiful or fine, whether ornaments (in the sense of trinkets) or not. The word adornment would fit better. (Cf. D. tooi, G. Schmuck.)

Desg. gives no example of _____ with a clearly active value of the verb ‘to ornament,’ but both in J. and Desg. such examples are given under _____.

Desg. gives as synonyms _____ and _____ and it is a question whether in these expressions _____ can have the neuter sense of ‘to act as’ = ‘to be’ (like in _____). S. Ch. D. (who has several misprints in his syns. for _____) quotes s.v. _____ (292b) a _____, ‘to arrange ornaments (tastefully); to decorate, adorn, to construct or adjust grammatical forms, sentences, (Zam.).’ This latter use of _____ is evidently the clue to the expression, quoted elsewhere by Desg. and S. Ch. D.:

_____, one versed in rhetoric, a clever orator. The equation = _____ (in the modern language, v. Bell, to put, place), given by S. Ch. D. is denied by both my teachers, though confirmed by Desg.; they know of no Tibetan word of this spelling and sound with the meaning bejewelled, adorned, decorated, as is the correct translation of the Sk. equivalent cited, _____. Yet may _____ () perhaps mean ‘an ornamented object’, hence ‘die, dice’; hence again Desg. ‘objets mêlés pour tirer les sorts’, and lastly ‘stake’ (in gambling) and ‘lot’? This first meaning is not in the Dicts. but would settle the question discussed a few lines lower down, and explain those combinations with _____ which refer to gambling and divination. In connection with the immediately following articles in S. Ch. D., _____, ‘one who joins in a wager, gambler’ [one who puts up his jewels, ornaments for [37]a stake?], and _____ or _____, ‘a dice-rogue, a gamester, one who throws dice,’ etc., it should be ascertained whether there is a Tibetan word with _____ which means die, dice, or whether the combinations refer to the staking of ornaments and jewels in gambling.

S.v. _____ S. Ch. D. gives no news, treating this word, however, as a verb, and referring to _____ for the subst.

As a result of this little investigation we come to the conclusion that it is legitimate to inquire whether there is not a Tibetan verb _____ (more likely than _____) with the passive or neuter sense of ‘being decked out, being ornamented or adorned, showing gaily.’ What would render such a word exactly in English is difficult to see, unless we coin a verb ‘to splendiferate,’ but D. pronken (pronken in vollen luister) comes near to it. Other related words would be: to blaze forth, to shine out, to cut a dash, or else to swagger, to swank, to preen, to strut, or again to be graced with or by, to show forth, etc., but especially ‘to display’ in the technical zoological sense.

An instructive illustration in this matter is furnished by the following two sentences, both with the same meaning: _____, or

_____, of which the best idiomatic translation is: O, what a fine picture!; how fine is the painting (drawing) of (in) (this) picture!

But the psychological translation is in the first case: ‘This picture is by-lines-(fine)-displaying’, and in the second case: ‘To this picture there is a by-the-lines-(drawings)-ornamentation (or display).’

see _____.

_____, 6. According to J., III, also ‘superior, excellent, eminent.’

_____, ‘most excellent, illustrious.’ This may be the meaning here. Whether there is a connection between the word as used here and the _____ title of the Dalai Lamas may be left undecided. [38]

_____, 30. Here character, heart, disposition, etc. It is curious that this meaning, given by J. and Desg., is absent in S. Ch. D.

_____, 39, 40. Door. Though the average Tibetan house (if it be not a mere hut) has two doors, a front door and a back door, they are not on a principle located in the eastern and western sides of the house. For the text the words east and west have no special significance; they are simply used _____, by way of speech, as an example, illustration or comparison.

The front (main, public) door is called _____ or _____ (or _____)

_____. The first word is interpreted as the ‘main,’ ‘public,’ or ‘middle’ door; the second as the ‘wide’ or ‘royal’ door. The back door is called _____ (in J. s.v.

_____), which is explained as ‘the door for horses and cattle.’ The quoted by J., p. 29*b*, is unknown to my informants. They only know a _____,

'the door leading to birth, or re-birth.'

see .

see .

see .

() see and .

, 16. With terminative: 'there is certainty for' = 'it is certain' = 'I am sure of', 'I know for certain that', 'it is surely, truly so.' A has for in B.

Here, however, = = = = = 'indeed, truly, really, forsooth.' Compare also . [39]

see .

see .

see and .

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

, 48. (Also). Here rather with the meaning ‘without fail, for sure, indeed, surely’ in addition to J.’s ‘anyhow, by all means.’ It is said to be synonymous with and colloquial , as, for instance, in: , ‘I ask (you) to come without fail, indeed, surely, for sure, so that I may count on it.’ Also . Cf. Desg. in addition to J.—J. (p. 129b) has the spelling . Bell s.v. ‘certainly’ (syn.); s.v. ‘indeed’ (syn.); s.v. ‘surely’ ; s.v. ‘actual’ ; s.v. ‘real’ (syn.); s.v. ‘really’ . Desg. ‘natural, not manufactured,’ but (next article) ‘certitude’ = , or . S. Ch. D. ‘true, genuine, really.’ and are not in the Dicts. and are not endorsed by my authorities. See also . [40]

, colophon. According to J. = , ‘that which has been spoken,’ i.e. ‘speech, word,’ etc. Corresponds very closely to D. ‘het gesprokene, het gezegde’ or L. ‘dictum.’ Here, however, the meaning may be extended to ‘piece of writing’ (D. ‘het geschrevene,’ L. ‘scriptum’) or perhaps even more generally ‘the above, the foregoing.’

The other use of the expression, as an abbreviation for , ‘the so-called,’ is here, of course, not applicable.

(or) see .

see .

see .

see .

, 22. In J. ‘love and hatred,’ but here better ‘attraction (for the pleasant) and repulsion (for the unpleasant),’ in other words: ‘non-attachment (to weal and woe), indifference (to the ups and downs of life),’ or again ‘bondage’ (to emotions, impressions, etc.). S. Ch. D. has ‘passion for, passionate attachment.’ It is the German ‘Lust und Unlust.’

see .

see .

see .

see .

, 34. To be construed: + (or), and not as + , etc.

(), 43. Here most likely in the stricter sense those who have devoted, given, themselves (entirely) to the religious life, i.e. those who have entered the order, the or even , learners, pupils, lay-brothers. Cf.

however, [41]J. s.v. , p. 163a, and Desg. who has a subst.

, ‘lamaist dignity, rank,’ p. 333b.

, 10. Stands here for , or , ‘the deep, profound, doctrine, teaching, religion.’ Perhaps an allusion to the , the ‘profound doctrine of Buddhism as explained in the Tantras’ (S. Ch. D. s.v.). J. renders it ‘a term of Buddhist mysticism, doctrine of witchcraft,’ whilst Desg. translates the term as ‘doctrina magica.’ instead of perhaps for metrical reasons; in ordinary speech the inversion seems not usual. See also

.

see .

see .

, 46. ‘To hold, to keep, to stick to, adhere to.’ ‘not keeping (it) so, not preserving, maintaining (it) in that (the same) state, not letting (it) continue in the same way, not keeping up the state of, not persisting in (the same way)’ etc.

Freely translated by its reverse: rectifying, redressing, correcting, changing (one’s attitude, condition, action, etc., previously referred to).

see .

see .

see .

, 45. Not in the Dicts., lit. ‘after-track,’ is here, ‘followers, pupils, disciples, adherents.’ Though is sometimes used for , see J. 177a, last line, the word [42] , ‘affix, final consonant,’ a grammatical term, is of course different, as well as J.’s adj. ‘following, coming after.’

The word has also the meaning ‘orphan’ (those left behind). See also under , etc.

see .

see .

, 37. Here ‘sin’ or ‘vice’ are to be understood as either the three sins, or vices, or failings, or defects, or frailties, , ‘lust, anger and stupidity’ (in the conventional rendering), , , , or the five sins, , namely the three mentioned above with the addition of ‘pride’ and ‘envy’ as fourth and fifth.

See also .

see .

see .

see .

, 13. Equals (or)
= 'to be ease-loving, indolent, lazy.'

, 28. 'From the bottom' (sc. of the heart), hence expressions like may be simply translated 'a deep pity (or sadness) arises, I become very sad, I am very sorry.' See also .

, 55. Here perhaps better 'treasure heap' than mere 'treasure,' or perhaps even 'treasury.' S. Ch. D. gives as [43] meanings: 'treasure' and 'store-place,' in this deviating from J. and Desg. S. Ch. D.'s example , 'the repository of water, the ocean', seems to prove his additional explanation.

see .

see .

see .

, 49. (Pf. and ft.). Has here simply the primary meaning 'to adhere to,' more colloquially, 'to stick to,' or 'to keep to, hold fast to, to heed, to observe.' May, however, here be also taken as Desg.'s 'to believe in, to trust' (in the sense of 'to rely on') according to his example

, 'I believe, trust (in) your words' (p. 420a), or otherwise: to put reliance on (what another says, states, preaches, teaches).

, 32. (Pf.). May almost be translated here as 'to contemplate, to consider' ('if one comes to think about it' or 'if one looks into that matter'), but not merely as 'to behold, to see.'

, 47. Evidently the same as J.'s.

'examination, trial' (214b). J. has a verb (or)

, occurring in the Padma t'añ yig and in Milaraspa, with the meaning 'to examine, search into, see whether or whether not.' J. has also the forms and , both subst. 'examination,' s.v. , 'to examine,' p. 329a.

Desg. gives as syn. with , 'to consider, test, judge';
, 'examination, judgment.' [44]

S. Ch. D. (= , or) 'consideration, examination, trial,' and (558a) (=), 'examination, careful weighing of all the details of a case, deliberation.' S. Ch. D. seems to treat and as two quite different words. S.v. he has further , 'to examine anything,' and , 'investigation, inquiry.'

see .

51. This word seems here to mean 'vision, illumination, (direct mystical) contemplation, the seeing face to face.' In our passage it is the direct vision (the 'vision direct'), proper to, inherent in, characteristic of, belonging to, the knowledge pertaining to the actionless (or undifferentiated) state, the 'passive-state-knowledge-vision.' See also see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

() see .

, 23. ‘To follow, to keep to the teaching; to be or remain true, faithful to the teaching, to hold fast to it, to stick to it.’ See also . [45]

see .

, lit. ‘Great-all-knowing-clergy-perfection-good-glory,’ corresponds to a Sk. Mahā-sarva-jñā-saṃgha-siddhi-shrī-bhadra. See for literature about him: Schulemann, Geschichte der Dalailamas, pp. 91–92, note 11, and S. Ch. D.: The Hierarchy of the Dalai Lamas, J.A.S.B., Vol. LXXIII, Pt. I, extra No., p. 81.

, 55. This is here, in my opinion, not a sort of Hottentottenpotentatentantenattentater-like formation. I take the to refer to the , a profound and wide mind, whilst the only refers to the , the treasury of omniscient mercy. It is not likely that the qualities of width and depth form part of an enumeration of which the remaining items are love and knowledge or even (as a compound) omniscient-mercy. See the various component words in this glossary.

see .

see .

see .

see

see

, 43. J.'s entry under this entry is as follows: “ ()

() Schr. ‘good opinion’ (?), prob.: a pure, sound view or knowledge Glr.; in Mil. it has a similar meaning.” He adds an oral sentence: “dhag-nán jón-wa C. to lead a holy life.” (sic. jón = jón?) Schroeter has (135b): “ , a good opinion, a good conception of any thing, a conceit, a thought.” [Based on an Italian ‘conpetto’?] He has two further entries ‘ , to form a good [46] opinion of any individual,’ and ‘ (read:) , to form a good opinion, or to conceive well of any one.’

In our passage we are inclined to take as , as ‘view, thought, idea, conception,’ etc., and = ‘to exercise, practise, perform’, or even ‘to entertain, cherish (thoughts).’ we take as , ‘pure’—the connection with thought not the opposite of false, erroneous, but of bad, cruel, unkind. So here the expression seems to mean ‘to think with goodwill, with kindness (of others),’ not the colloquial ‘to have a good opinion of, to think well of.’ To think ‘good’ is here the opposite of to think ‘evil,’ but the idiomatic value of the expression ‘to think well of’ (as the opposite of ‘to think poorly of’) would make the latter rendering misleading. The real value, then, of the expression as used in this passage, seems to be: ‘to think good, kind thoughts of,’ i.e. purely, or saintly in the sense of kindly, lovingly, benevolently, in a friendly manner, with sympathy, but not, as J. seems to suggest, intellectually correct. We may expand the rendering into ‘with a holy mind, with thoughts of saintliness, thinking saintly thoughts.’ Compare J.’s colloquial phrase quoted above. So, as to the interpretation of the line in which the compound occurs, we take it that it means to enjoin, in contrast with the previous line in which it is said that beings in general must be thought of with kindness, that religious people (instead of the mere laymen) must be thought of in a still better, higher manner, namely with holiness and saintliness.

One of my informants was first inclined to take as ‘to teach, to preach the true knowledge.’ Though he later on sided with the explanation adopted above, the opinion should be recorded, but it should be added that a second informant rejected this view of the first one.

Attention should be drawn to the meaning of , ‘the soul’ (with spellings and ; , , , s. J.). Also the curious expression ‘to be indifferent’ , S. Ch. D.; and , Bell. These expressions not in Desg. [47]

see .

see .

 , 27. Adverb: ‘purely, first class, first rate.’ Not in J. but in Desg., yet here in a slightly different application. About S. Ch. D.’s ‘gravy’ and ‘relish’ see below.

 with the genitive seems to mean ‘acme’, ‘essence’, the typical embodiment of something, like in expressions as ‘a first class liar, a thief pure and simple, the very devil, satan himself, nothing short of an angel, a saint in propria persona.’ , ‘the very enemy.’ In the colloquial

 , and may have the same meaning. The latter is something like pidgin-English ‘number one’ or the kitchen Malay equivalent ‘nommer satu.’ Other equations are (or), also , the Anglo-Indian ‘pukka.’

The word may mean soup or gravy in the following case, when there is question of singling out the liquid portion from a mixture of broth and liquid. The primary meaning seems in that case rather to be liquid as contrasted to solid.

 = give me (only) the liquid (not the solid stuff), pour out to me (only) the liquid. But this has no final . A common word for soup which is not in the Dicts. is ‘rü thang’, probably , or alone. This latter word is in J. with the meaning of ‘potion’, a medical term, and in S. Ch. D. as ‘potion, plain decoction, or mixture to be drunk after a medicinal pill has been taken.’ The word means originally bone-soup, but has acquired also the more general meaning ‘soup.’ can be applied to meat-soup, , but cannot be used. It might be that and are really the same word. [48]

see .

, 30. Might here, in connection with ambition, be translated as ‘fierce,’ an extension of its primary meaning ‘strong.’

see .

see .

see .

, 24. For ever, always.

see .

see .

, 40. ‘Exceedingly stupid, meaningless, useless, silly, senseless.’

The particle has an emphatic value, but it is difficult to define its precise scope in English. Oral information is vague on the subject, and seems to point towards a possibility that the is a syllable of exclamation or turns the expression, of which it forms part, into an exclamation. . ‘Oh, how silly!’ An equivalent is = . alone is not used, and demands a final or .

S. Ch. D. (502*a*) translates as: ‘I pity you, ye Tibetans’; perhaps better ‘What a pity, O ye Tibetans.’ Compare the list of words with wedged-in in J. s.v. p. 533*b*.

, 16. Also , adjective ‘kind.’ According to S. Ch. D. also ‘very kind, great boon, and the great or greatest benefactor.’ S. Ch. D.’s wording is unsatisfactorily indefinite and his examples, taken from J., fit the text badly. [49]J. does not define the combination though he has an example with the meaning ‘greatest benefit.’ Two colloquial examples are:

, ‘the two (very) kind parents,’ and
 , that man is (very) kind.

In form is a comparative, ‘kinder.’ is one of those adjectives which have a comparative and superlative of their own as:

	Great.	Many.	Good.	Small.	Bad. positive comparative			(or
			)
superlative

In practice, however, as shown by the above examples, the form is used for an ordinary quality in the positive degree though implying an amount of abundance or fullness of the quality referred to. Bell (p. 33) and Hannah (p. 129) have described these degrees of comparison. Short and partial notes in S. Ch. D.’s grammar (p. 31) and Henderson (p. 23). See J. Dict. s.v. , p. 564. , J. 262*b* (as equal to) is not acknowledged by my informants.

 is objected to by my teachers because they say it never occurs alone but requires a final , except in the superlative form which, of course, is another thing. See, however, S. Ch. D. , p. 654, J. p. 13. As to the or in many Tibetan adjectives, this is better regarded as an enclitic particle, exactly corresponding to the English termination -ful. As little as the English -ful really [50] means ‘full’, does the Tibetan () as a termination of adjectives really mean ‘great.’

Bell has for ‘kind.’

The word _____ and its uses merit a separate inquiry. In this place we shall limit ourselves to stating that the entry gratitude (S. Ch. D., Ramsay, Schroeter) seems incorrect. The confusion has most likely come about because a _____ is an answer to kindness (return gift, etc.) and so betokens gratitude.

(_____) see _____ .

_____, 21. Ellipse for: according to (or, in the measure of) whatever kindness (you have shown to me).

see _____ .

see _____ .

see _____ .

_____, 35. The three Dicts. are not at one as to the exact shades of meaning of _____ .

J. has, subst.: ‘anything hurtful, or any injury, mischief, harm, done.’

Desg., subst.: ‘dommage, perte, mal.’

S. Ch. D. no substantive.

J., adj. (= _____), ‘noxious, mischievous, dangerous.’ Desg., adj. only _____, not _____ alone: nuisible (noxious), and a _____ = _____, deteriorated.

S. Ch. D., adj.: _____, vicious, mischievous, deleterious, poisonous.

In J. and S. Ch. D. further applied meanings as: wild, hideous (screams); ferocity (in beasts), deleterious (smell), fierce (woman). [51]

In our passage the expression _____ may be rendered by malign, wicked, evil, evil-minded, spiteful, with sufficient correctness.

see .

see .

see .

see .

, Colophon. J. renders this word as ‘a song expressive of longing or of grief, an elegy (Mil.)’; but this definition is not quite typical of our present poem. S. Ch. D. has ‘a song of longing grief.’ J.’s example

, where means (spiritual) love, seems to point out to a meaning more apposite here. So we would prefer a translation: paeon, hymn of praise (D. lofzang), or psalm instead of elegy. Other words to be considered: song of thanksgiving, memorial song, lament, plaintive song (jammerklacht?), memorial verses, an in memoriam, a memorial, etc. See also .

The dge rgan, however, explains the word indeed in J.’s manner, but states that the longing and grief are not the worldly sentiments but religious ones. The longing and grief are concerned with the sorrows of the world and a yearning after spiritual realities, but not with the memory of the three teachers mentioned in the poem. If this is true, the above hypothesis is likely to be a wrong one and in my translation of the colophon the words there used should in that case rather run ‘as a song of yearning for the higher life’ (cf. the G. ‘Weltschmerz’).

see .

, 37. Steps, measures, to subdue or tame, etc.

, to take such measures. [52]

see .

, 20. (Fut.). If the (see) is here to be thought of as a goad (like the one of the mahout) then the verb should be understood as sub J. 2, ‘to conduct, lead, guide’ (by prodding). My teachers take it as ‘to draw,’ or ‘pull.’ Pictorial representations might decide the point. My teachers think rather of a rod with a hook at the end, like the episcopal staff, and not of angling with a fishhook or prodding with a goad.

, 33. Or simply , here: ‘the loss of temper, wrath, angry explosion or outburst.’ This sense is not given in the Dicts., though J.’s 4, ‘ardour, fervour, transport’ comes near it. is the same as , but for the fact that the former word shows the cause, an outburst on account of trouble, vexation, worry, pain, sorrow. () (or) = to show (or to lose) one’s temper, to flare up, to burst out, to break loose, to explode in anger, wrath. , ‘don’t show temper to your parents.’ , ‘don’t lose your temper before (or with) the master.’ , ‘to-day he has entirely lost his temper before (or to) me.’ It is synonymous, in this sense, with the word which is also dealt with inadequately in the Dicts. q.v. , ‘don’t lose your temper to anyone, to whomsoever.’ , ‘there is no reason (no need, or it is senseless) to lose your temper.’ (Cf. D. uitvallen, uitvaren, uitvoeteren, opstuiven, uitbarsten.)

, 2. Either ‘as if rising towards the [53]sky,’ in which case refers to all the previous words, or: as if rising whilst in the sky, in which case the would only refer to .

see .

see .

, 9. I have not received an explanation of the ‘etc.’ () in this place and I ignore what kind of category is alluded to here. It seems not probable that the ‘18 classes of science’ can be meant, which, in the Mahāvvyutpatti (Ed. M.A.S.B.), form group XXIV, p. 20. Group L, (p. 59), furnishes more likely material, but Yoga is missing in it.

see .

, 56. ‘Glorious, noble,’ also ‘having abundance.’ Twice mentioned in J.’s article but not translated, perhaps because the meaning is so evident. Curious that neither Desg. nor J. specially cite this compound to which S. Ch. D. gives 7 lines, besides mentioning several combinations.

, 52. Is this one word?

, 53. ‘Glory- or splendour-burning,’ i.e. ‘to blaze with glory,’ or, more tamely, ‘to be famous, renowned, celebrated’; the latter quoted by J. from Cs. s.v.

(It may also be taken as glory-spreading, i.e. getting more famous). Desg. quotes a geographical name , Chinese Pienpa. The expression is not in Desg. or S. Ch. D., and in J. only as taken from Cs., so that the latter’s explanation needs verification. The literal translation ‘to blaze with glory’ fits here better.

Colloquially is ‘to thrive, to prosper, to do well.’ , ‘he is doing well, is well-to-do, thriving.’ [54] , he has become rich, has made a success of his life, has come out top dog, has made good, has become wealthy, opulent, is safe, got his ship home, has ‘got there,’ made his pile, is now a man of position. (Fr. est arrivé. D. is binnen, heeft zijn schapjes op het drooge.)

, 53. Here = or , technically ‘the eighty symmetrical parts, proportions, or points of beauty’ (Cs., Mahāvīyutpatti); or beauties, lesser signs (de Harlez); proportions (Schieffner). See the references under and . J. (s.v. , p. 327b) gives the full expression ‘the eighty physical perfections of Buddha,’ , and alone ‘proportion, symmetry, beauty.’ J. has the entry ‘symmetry, harmony, beauty (in certain phrases)’ but S. Ch. D. omits this. Our passage is an example of this use, but the syllable is really an abbreviation here and not a full and independent word. Desg. seems to be mistaken in saying: (sic, misprint for) or , ‘proportion, symmetry, the 80 marvels of the body of the Buddha.’ So means indeed ‘symmetrical, showing 80 marvels,’ but these meanings would not be applicable to which could only mean ‘showing the 32 signs and 80 beauties.’

For the rest Desg.’s 2nd article s.v. adds to J.’s data, and his and ‘custom, rule, example’ are new. In Desg. ‘custom, rule’ tally with S. Ch. D. ‘way of doing, method’ which J. has as ‘pattern, model,’ but which he translates more freely in his examples. J. s.v. ‘proportion, symmetry, beauty,’ quotes a from the Dzl. in the same [55]sense. According to this would be equal to which seems improbable and is denied by my informants. An example of the use of is the following:

, the new year’s dance of now-a-days in the monastery is in imitation of the old way, is after the ancient pattern, the old manner, follows the old example.

is here not exactly ‘custom’ but rather: ‘(with) the (ancient) method (as) an example.’

Note the use of in the above example as ‘old, ancient.’

see .

see .

(=) see .

see .

see .

, 2, 5. The white cloud is a figure often occurring in Tibetan poetry. If used as an emblem of holiness or spiritual loftiness in connection with eminent persons, this expression may perhaps contain a stereotyped allusion to the name of the tenth and supreme bhūmi or stage of the Bodhisattva, the dharma-megha, ‘cloud of virtue,’ . See Mahāvvyutpatti, ed. A.S.B., p. 11. Here evidently not J.'s (336a) 'emblem of transitoriness,' though the point might be argued on the basis of the final remark s.v. _____, see above.

_____, 51. This word corresponds according to S. Ch. D. to a Sk. nishprapañca (or apañca, aprapañca) which in Macdonell's Sk. Dict. is rendered by 'unevolved, exempt from [56]multiformity.' We may, therefore, think of expressions like 'the undifferentiated, homogeneous, absolute.' The word dhātu being the Sk. equivalent for Tib. _____ the whole expression _____ must correspond to a Sk. aprapañca dhātu. The same Sk. Dict. translates the word dhātu as 'layer, component part, element.' In Tibetan _____ means, according to J.: (1) 'the heavens'; (2) 'height'; (3) 'extent, region, space, in metaphysics an undefined idea.' According to the etymology _____ should mean 'passive, actionless, quietistic, inert,' but according to the etymology of its Sk. prototype rather 'undifferentiated, monadic.' One of my informants compares it with _____, dharma dhātu, and _____, shunyatā, the void, the absolute. In this connection one should compare J.'s statements (215a) that in modern (Tibetan) Buddhism the term _____ (_____), 'clear understanding or perception' means the same as _____, and further (259b) that _____, originally _____, has, in later times, also become equivalent to

_____. It seems that the old metaphysicians reached regions and distinctions where their followers could no longer join them, and hence the process became 'omne ignotum pro _____.' For practical purposes the rendering 'absolute,' or 'motionless' might be used for _____, whilst the word _____ might be rendered by 'principle, state, region.' If occurring in a specimen of the more technically and theoretically philosophical literature of Northern Buddhism, a more precise rendering and more careful definition might be required. Taking the following _____ as 'knowledge, perception, cognition,' then the whole expression becomes in English 'the knowledge of the motionless state (or [57]region, or principle)' or—more pedantic but perhaps truer—'the knowledge of (that is: pertaining to, inherent in) the monadic state.' Other equivalents: 'a state of stillness, the still state' and, mystically, 'the wisdom of the silence.'

One of my informants, the dge rgan, knows of a colloquial use of _____ = _____ = 'hopeless,' but my second authority ignores this use. The following two examples were given: _____, 'it is labour lost (hopeless) to [try and] know this.' You cannot hope to know this. (N.B.—Note the elliptic construction 'hopeless to know' for 'to try to know, to study and so come to know.')

_____, 'As he does not even know how to read well (or properly), it is hopeless (lost labour), for him to (or: how can he?) study grammar' (Not: how can he pretend to know grammar?).

N.B.—The Tibetan does not 'read' but 'reads books'; he does not 'write' but 'writes letters,' he does not 'go' but 'goes to the shop.' In short, he is a very objective being.

_____, 8. 'Father.' It is not clear why in the same line the same person is referred to by the ordinary _____ and then by the honorific _____, unless _____ is a standard expression which cannot be changed whilst the first _____ is used for the sake of variety in expression.

The same double use of the honorific and ordinary terms for father occurs in Laufer's 'Ein Sühngedicht der Bonpo', line 41.

_____, 5. In expressions like _____ the _____ is explained as equivalent to _____, 'of the place where.' So the phrase _____ should be understood as 'towards where the man has gone, to the place where the man has gone,'

_____. [58]

_____, 14. Here verb, infinitive, connected with Gendundub in instrumental (agentive) or genitival relation: to turn, move towards, to tend to.

_____, 46. Lit. 'to fall aside,' but here, as applied to the mind (_____), simply to be deflected, to go astray, to fall, sin (mentally), to deviate from the right path (religion, the right), to lapse (from virtue), etc.

, 29. 'To wish the ruin, the undoing, destruction of, to be bent on the perdition of, to wish evil to' = .

, 17. The bodhimaṇḍa, according to the Dicts. historically and geographically Gaya, where the Buddha attained nirvāṇa. Here, however, it means rather the state implied by the locality, 'illumination, the essence of purification, final sainthood' literally 'the quintessence of bodhi.' In Christian language Golgotha (or the Cross) is similarly used in a metaphorical sense. In living Tibetan (bodhi) is not understood as 'wisdom' but as 'saintliness, purity.' There is, it seems, a confusion in the group of Tibetan [and Chinese!] renderings of bodhimaṇḍa (bodhi-essence) and bodhi-maṇḍala (bodhi-round), and their synonyms, a confusion which may already have its origin in India itself. The treatment of these words in the Dicts. is not satisfactory. J. and S. Ch. D. give s.v. this word as synonymous with , Vajrāsana, but under S. Ch. D. has the entry: '... , the spirit of the Bodhisattva, i.e. Buddhahood.' This is the sense meant in our passage, though it may be doubted whether really stands here for as S. Ch. D. interprets it instead of only for bodhi. The Mahāvvyutpatti (A.S.B., p. 44) has Bodhimaṇḍa = , and Cs. translates, 'the essence of sanctity [59] or holiness (name of the holy place at Gaya).' I yet believe that here a confusion of maṇḍa and maṇḍala must be thought of. J. has, s.v. (p. 198b) 'snyin-po-byan c'úb- (or byan-c'ub-snyin-po)-la mč'is-pa, to become Buddha Thgy.' Rockhill, Life of the Buddha, p. 35, mentions the form byang-tchub-kyi-snying-po as the equivalent for bodhimaṇḍa, and though Foucaux in the alphabetical index to his translation of the Lalita Vistāra gives only the form without , yet in his text, in the places I verified (p. 239, five times), there is the as with Rockhill.

In mentioning the word a special reference must be made to the element , commonly translated as bolster, cushion, seat, rug, etc. J. is very detailed about it. He has: 'a bolster, or seat composed of several quilts or cushions, put one upon the other (five for common people, nine for people of quality).' Desg. simply 'stuffed cushion.' S. Ch. D. more general 'a low seat, a divan, cushion, a bolster.' As to J.'s definition my authorities declare that this may be so perhaps 'on the Ladakh side,' but is certainly not so in Tibet and in the Darjeeling district. They do not know about the details of five and nine cushions. They take the meaning far wider than bolster or cushion. They say that anything used to support anything or to seat anybody may be called _____, it may be a sheet of cloth, a carpet, a blanket, a cushion, a bolster, a seat in general, anything used for lying or sitting down on. The word has a meaning exactly opposite to the English 'cover' and can consequently be used in as many varied senses as the latter. Etymologically—if the root of _____, as seems probable, means 'to support'—the word would mean something like 'bearer,' 'basis,' 'bed,' 'floor,' 'upholder.' We might think of 'underwear,' though in English that particular word is used with quite another association of ideas. In typography there is a word 'underlay' which corresponds exactly to the meaning of _____. The word 'bedplate', used in engineering, comes also near to it. It will be easily seen how an applied meaning as 'cushion, bolster,' if given as the general sense of the word, would in many cases be totally inadequate. The line of associations to which 'cushion' belongs, and the line of associations to which 'seat, support, underlay' belong, intersect at only one [60] point and for the rest have nothing in common. A table-cloth may be called _____ because the food rests on it (_____ is used in this sense; lit. something like 'food-sheet, that on which the food rests'). In a ritual it is prescribed that the _____ for the offerings should be a spotless piece of white cotton or other cloth, called _____, 'offering sheet,' 'that on which the offerings rest.' Bell has _____ for 'carpet'; small cushion, placed on chair _____; large cushion on ground _____. This is a most interesting example illustrating the fact that it is strictly necessary first to find out the root-idea of a Tibetan word before translating it by words representing the incidental applications of that root-idea. Whoever has handled Chinese dictionaries knows how specially necessary this is in studying Indo-Chinese languages. The Sanskrit equivalent, āsana, is derived from the root ās, to sit or lie, but the Tib. root seems different.

Further notes on _____. Cf. J. _____ (pr. magdàn), ground, basis, foundation, p. 409a. Bell, apron _____. Cs., Grammar, p. 170, l. 10, translates _____ as couch (stuffed seat). Lewin, Manual, p. 123, first word last line: 'mat, seat', in the same sentence taken over from Cs.'s Grammar. Two synonyms for J.'s _____, quoted above, are _____ and _____. Bell also has 'mat.'

, 50. Seems simply an amplified form for 'love.' Difficult to be translated exactly, Sk. maitrīkaruṇā, may be treated as a compound, loving-kindness, love and kindness, or pity. On the question of karuṇā, especially, the learned have descanted profusely.

() (), 52. Sk. , unsurpassed, unexcelled, unrivalled, supreme, incomparable, most high, highest. Not specially entered in J. but illustrated by an example s.v. . [61] Altogether absent in Desg. S. Ch. D.

, 'to those who are supreme, or to the followers of the Anuttara school.' A curious entry! See S. Ch. D. also s.v. .

, 3. Here perhaps better 'teacher' than 'priest' or 'superior.' The word may be here equally well taken in the singular as in the plural, but the latter is perhaps more likely.

, see .

, 47. 'Straight, upright, righteous mind.' J.'s entry is a little vague. I think he takes in his example as an indication that is also a honorific form. That, however, is not the case. Compare also the quotation from Cs. in S. Ch. D., 'to be impartial and straightforward, to be on the side of honesty.' I don't find this example in Schmidt. Desg. 'straight, upright, (élevé,) just, honest.' According to the above the word is an adj. and the translation of the passage becomes 'whether you persevere in a straight (righteous) mind.' The verb has then to be taken as 'to hold, adhere to, persevere in (an opinion, etc.).' If however, we should find that can also be sbst. 'righteousness,' 'straightness,' (not in any Dict.), then would have the other meaning of 'to dwell, reside' and the phrase would have to be rendered 'whether the mind (continues to) dwell(s) in righteousness.' S. Ch. D. renders as 'honest mind,' but the sense honest versus dishonest seems not quite applicable in our passage. J. is vague here. My informants gave the above definition 'straight, upright' as their own but felt afterwards vague about this example which, though they had framed it, they could not vouch for:

, ‘see whether the man keeps straight or not.’ The framer honestly confessed that whilst we were discussing the word he had been influenced by S. Ch. D.’s Dict. in coining the sentence; a [62]confession so instructive for idiom-verifiers that I think it worth while to record it here.

Finally, Desg. supports S. Ch.’s second meaning ‘witness’ for . He, however, does not give S. Ch.’s form . The ordinary word for witness is, of course, (). It is characteristic of S. Ch. D. that he copies J.’s extract from Sch. under ‘witness, mediator,’ but then immediately adds his own individual interpretation which not only is likely to be correct, but which also nullifies and contradicts the previous entry which he copied immediately above. He himself says, ‘an honest and truthful witness.’ It often occurs that S. Ch. D. brings modifications, extensions and even corrections to J.’s statements, but at the same time he copies J. far too slavishly and so contradicts himself in the pages of his own dictionary. Whether meanings like ‘reliable, straightforward, correct, proper,’ etc., have to be attached to is as yet uncertain.

, 8. In Sk. Sumatikīrti. According to the Sk. dictionaries the primary sense of ‘sumati’ is ‘benevolence.’ In present-day Tibetan is rather ‘good-natured, kindhearted,’ as against ‘benevolent.’ So the Tibetan name has to be rendered as Good-nature-fame, or Famous good-nature, the personal name of Tsoñ k’a pa.

(), 22. (Not) fallen under the power (of)....

, 54 and colophon. This word seems here hardly to mean ‘song, singing tune,’ but rather ‘melody, melodiousness, sweetness,’ etc. This tallies to a certain extent with Csoma’s translation of the title of list LXI (p. 86) of the Mahāvyutpatti, ‘Names of the 60 sorts (or divisions) of melody or melodious voices (or vocal sound).’ I take it that this list refers to what is mentioned here in our text. How these 60 branches of melody are exactly to be understood I have not been able to ascertain. The opinions of P’un Ts’ogs on the point are as follows. The Buddha’s voice had such a [63]variety of (magic?) qualities, sixty in number, that they made him understood by all beings, whatever their own languages. The Buddha was in this way simultaneously understood by men, devas, nāgas, etc. In proffering this explanation P’un Ts’ogs takes to mean rather ‘kind’ than ‘branch.’ As an alternative he suggests that is an adjective synonymous with , ‘high’ (as applied to voice or rather tone) [or perhaps long, lengthened?] and that then would mean a ‘variety’ of tones or modulations. I myself am inclined to think that if the Mahāvyutpatti list is not referred to, we have here to do with some scholastic scheme of rhetorics, though if so understood the exact value of is not clear and certainly not sufficiently defined in the Dicts.

(Cf. S. Ch. D. s.v. (p. 1092a), = , , ‘a deep voice, a musical tone.’ See also .)

see .

see .

see .

see .

, 6. Here ‘solitude, wilderness’ and so = = , ‘monastery.’ Not associated with any of the meanings connected with ‘pasturing.’ Cf. S. Ch. D. s.v. .

The famous Galdan monastery was erected on a site called .
See S. Ch. D., The Monasteries of Tibet, J.A.S.B., Vol. I, N.S. (1905), p. 108.

see . [64]

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

, 52. J. adj., and adv., ‘quick(ly), swift(ly).’ In Mil. adj. . Desg. and (), subst. ‘promptness,’ and ‘swift.’ As adv. , or , or . S. Ch. D. , verb, ‘to hurry by, to pass on swiftly,’ (example , ‘time quickly runs away.’ [= tempus fugit]), and adv. quickly. Further adv. . Some interesting compounds in S. Ch. D.: ‘a dancing woman,’ etc. Note the expression ‘as speedily as possible,’ J.

According to my informants S. Ch. D.’s example is not good Tibetan. It should either be (or) , lit. ‘time is quick,’ or with another meaning also ‘the time is near’ (i.e. at hand, coming quickly), or again , ‘the quick time.’ Time quickly runs away, they say, should be expressed thus: .

Cf. also J., Desg.: .

see .

, 38. Here: ‘after only, as a result of only, in consequence [65] of only, mere, simple.’ But has also the meanings: as soon as, simply on (hearing), on the slightest (reproach, etc.) with a more prominent stress on the time element, instantaneousness.

see .

see .

see .

see .

, 55. = , vb. 'to love' sbst. 'love, kindness, affection,' etc. Desg. has also a , 'acidity,' which is also known to my informants. His 'bodyguard of the Dalai Lama' is held, by one of my informants, to be a mistake for (pronounce tsī-dung), the monk-employees of the Tibetan government (and in a narrower sense: the clerical staff, the clerks and secretaries amongst them) as contrasted with the lay-employees of noble birth (not officials in general as with S. Ch. D. 656a, but only those belonging to the nobility) who are called . The word in the compound is said to be derived from the designation of the Potala palace where many of the government offices are located, and which is called , the Potala peak, but most commonly, by the people, briefly , the peak. This explanation of tsī-dung as a general class of lama government-employees is wider than that given in Waddell's table in his 'Lhasa and its Mysteries,' p. 165. See also , 'chief clerk or secretary' in S. Ch. D. s.v. (1013b), the latter being the special name of the former's hat.

see . [66]

, 24. Equals (or) 'to apply oneself, exert oneself, put one's best energy into something' = , 'to be zealous, diligent.' Also (,).

, 28. Here 'conduct, behaviour' pure and simple, without allusion to the , 'religious law, discipline, monastic rules.'

see .

, 53. Here technically the (thirty-two) characteristic signs or marks of a 'Great Man,' the mahāpurusha. Mahāvīyutpatti (Ed. A. S. B.), LXIII, p. 92. De Harlez, ‘Vocabulaire Bouddhique Sanscrit-Chinois,’ no. 3. Schiefner, ‘Triglotte,’ no. 3. See de la Vallée Poussin, ‘Bouddhisme,’ pp. 241 et seq.

The transition of meaning of the word in modern Tibetan in such expressions as , ‘a holy lama,’ or , ‘a woman of good appearance and virtues’ (S. Ch. D.) should not be overlooked in the interpretation of our passage for its psychological value. See also .

see .

 , 53. This is a compound substantive of an elliptic nature, and means: ‘the [well known 32 primary] characteristics [and the 80] beauties [of Buddhas]’ = (). See also and .

 , 30. is here hon. of ‘name,’ and the compound, literally ‘name grasping,’ means ‘ambition, thirst for fame, glory,’ etc. (D. eerzucht, roemzucht), perhaps even ‘vainglory, pride, conceit, egotism,’ i.e. the hugging of one’s own name and fame. [67]

 , 7. To invoke by name, to address a prayer to by name. Applied to both spiritual and human beings. , ‘to address the king, speak to the king, direct, appeal to the king,’ but always by calling him by his name. ‘O king help me’ is not a proper example of , but ‘O, thou, King George, help me!’ would be one. To spiritual beings their names may be expressed in a paraphrase, metaphor or symbol, but they must be expressed in some way. The prayers to superhuman beings may be twofold, either an address containing requests, etc., or a mere litany of names without any further subject matter attached to them. The one is a recitation of names, the other a direct address by name; the one a litany proper, the other an invocation or prayer.

 , 19. The form was paraphrased to me as = = simple future, ‘not going to seek’ (D. niet zullende zoeken).

see .

see .

see .

() see () .

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

, 10, 55. = . J. vb., adj., subst. and adv. 'to be deep, deep, deeply, depth'; adj. and . Desg. [68] and adj. only. S. Ch. D.

vb. 'to make deep, to deepen,' also adj. and sbst.; further in and only adj. Note the additional meaning 'dense' (also 'thickness') in S. Ch. D., not in the two others. My teachers deny that can be a verb 'to deepen,' or 'to make deep.' must also be understood as 'profound' (wisdom, teaching, etc.). See , also , also , etc.

see , etc.

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

, 55. = or , ‘wide, large.’ Desg. also ‘ample, abundant.’ S. Ch.
D. only . Note J. ‘mig-yañ’, C., W. liberal, generous, bounteous,’ but Desg.
‘wide-eyes: envious, covetous, greedy.’ In S. Ch. D.
= , ‘large-eyes, a handsome woman, name of a Goddess.’ Cf.
also in the same dict. , ‘beautiful-eyes, a very handsome woman, a nymph’s name.’ As to J.’s mig-yañ, one of my teachers holds with him as against Desg., the other does not know the expression.

see .

see .

(), 8, 15, 16, 18. ‘Father (and) sons,’ or, as Csoma already has it in his Grammar, p. 28, ‘teacher and [69]pupils.’ With the addition ‘three,’ and also as here without this addition, a very well known appellation of Tson k’a pa and his two pupils (his spiritual sons). It is likely that to the Tibetan mind the expression means something like ‘spiritual family (of three),’ namely of one father and two sons. See introductory remarks. Free renderings like ‘spiritual trio’ or ‘teacher triad’ and the like are apt enough for practical purposes. Cf. an expression like the following:

, ‘where have you two, father and son, come from?’

(But the sentence has also the second meaning ‘where do you live? where is your home?’).

In the light of the above, has the note on p. 98 of the J.A.S.B., Vol. II, N.S., no. 4, 1906, in Satis Chandra Vidyābhūṣana’s article on ‘the Gyantse rock inscription’ to be rectified?
My informants do not think that the expression is used among the Sakyapas in the sense given in that note.

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

() , 26. This expression must here not be understood as 'to follow one's own teaching.' is here not one compound word. The meaning is: they who themselves follow the teaching, as against the
, the others who (also) follow the teaching. See ()
, 27.

see and .

see and .

see . [70]

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

see .

, 31. 'The high, elevated road,' has a religious connotation, the proper road that leads to heaven after death, the 'narrow' road of Christianity. See below.

, 48. The straight road (metaphorically), the road of righteousness, of straightness of mind. Cf. S. Ch. D. s.v. , p. 649a. The meaning of this expression and that of , in line 31 (see above), are quite different. The other is the highroad (towards heaven), the road of a high standard of moral conduct.

, 9. 'Steps on the path,' 'degrees of advance,' 'steps towards perfection,' is the short title of many mystical writings and especially of one by Tsoñ k'a pa, to which the words may allude here without specially designating it. In this place the meaning does not seem to be a specific work but merely '(religious) instructions, teaching in general.' The are here, according to my oral information, to be taken as the two halves or divisions of the Kandjur which is commonly divided into and , sūtra and tantra (or mantra, or dhāraṇī). In this division the or tantra section is called , whilst all the rest, properly subdivided [71] in six divisions, is taken together as , of which the real or sūtra-division (the 5th in sequence in the Kandjur) is only one. Concerning Tsoñ k'a pa's study of the 'Sūtras and Tantras' see S. Ch. D., 'Contributions, etc. on Tibet,' VI, in J.A.S.B., 1882, Vol. LI, Part I, no. 1, p. 53. J., s.v. , quotes a : 'with Urgyan Padma, etc., the same as mdoi and snags kyi lam, v. mdo extr.' This is seemingly the same as our expression.

, 42. J. has = , 'beings, creatures,' but may not the idea rather be all embodied creatures; with the etymological sense still potent in connection with the Buddhist reincarnation theory? S. Ch. D. gives a = = 'town, city,' which seems rather to point to the meaning 'man' for . My informants don't feel quite certain whether to include the five other classes of beings (including animals) amongst the , but are somewhat inclined to interpret the word as , 'man,' in general.

see .

, title, 1. The author writes his poem in a place to the west of a snow-capped mountain, to the east of which the Galdan monastery is situated. See notes on , and . Which mountain or mountain chain is meant must be left undecided, even if granting that modern cartography could show it if identified. Local tradition, however, would most likely be able to point out a particular mountain.

see .

see . [72]

see .

, 38. This expression cannot yet be explained with certainty. It may be taken here to mean, literally, ‘to send out (distribute, give, put forward) justice, right,’ but the exact idiomatic value of the phrase remains to be determined. It is not in the Dicts., and unknown to my informants. We may take the possible values of the expression as three, viz.: 1. = =

= ‘to dispute, argue, contend with words.’ This seems the same expression as S. Ch. D.’s ‘to hold controversy,’ p. 1248.

(Perhaps also ‘to challenge, to be challenged to dispute.’) 2. = ‘to be defeated in argument, in dispute, to be silenced in dispute.’

3. = ‘To make observations to, to remonstrate with, to use plain speech to, to speak straight to, to rebuke, to reproach, to tell one the truth.’ (Cf. the entry in J.’s k’a kye-çe to abuse, to menace’ (p. 97b.)) This seems the sense required here and would be a logical development of the primary meaning of the expression: ‘to spread out the justice (right) of the case before someone,’ i.e. ‘to submit the truth about it.’

S. Ch. D. has s.v. = ‘using rough language, controversy, discussion, dispute.’ The other Dicts. lack this word.

It should be noted that in modern Tibetan there seems to be taking place a shifting of the meaning of gong. Instead of as ‘right, justice’ it seems to be understood by some modern Tibetans as ‘the arguing about right or justice’ as in a court of law, and hence simply as ‘dispute, argument, pleading.’ Example: ‘This is not the place to argue your rights,’ (or) , lit. ‘to hit out [73] () for the right,’ the verb meaning ‘to do (for verba loquendi) arguing ().’

dispute, bandy words with (don't be impudent to, "no words with me!") your mother, but (, 'rather, on the contrary, instead of this') listen to me.' The expression may be rendered as 'to flare up in answer (to a reproach), to retort angrily (after admonition), to snap, yap back.'

Here interpreted by my informants as ‘true, genuine priests or monks, monks who come up to the mark, worthy of the name,’ but not technically as ‘spiritual adviser’ as J. has it. Desg. s.v. _____, quotes only a form with _____ and gives it the meaning ‘doctor, a lamaistic title.’ Under _____, however, he has _____, ‘ad scientiam adjuvans, monastic dignity, teacher.’ S. Ch. D. adds ‘pious or holy friend, spiritual friend or adviser.’ Compare also J. for the semi-homonym .

see . [74]

see and .

see .

, 54. Here ‘speech’ in general, not ‘a speech,’ a slight extension of J.’s meanings, unless his use of the definite article in ‘the speech’ is a lapsus. The dicts. differ slightly and need co-ordination in details. About the meaning there can be no doubt as the word is here used in the series (hon.) , , , for ordinary , , , body, speech and mind, the so-called ‘three doors,’ .

see .

, 10. Here is the sense of ‘to preach, to explain, to give an exposition of, to expatiate on, to exhibit, to lecture on.’

see .

, 12. Inconceivable, unthinkable, unimaginable, not to be grasped by or in thought, beyond comprehension, realisation.

, 4. The repetition of the verb softens the meaning into ‘quietly thinking’ or from ‘to think,’ into ‘to muse, to ponder’, etc.

see . [75]

F. ADDITIONAL NOTES.

In l. 10 the might also be understood as ‘with a view to, for the purpose of, explaining, expounding.’ The translation should in that case rather run: With a view to expounding the profound (Buddhist) doctrine, they preached, explained, most fully, minutely, in full detail, Yoga and the other teachings (or the various kinds of Yoga) of the two stages of the road.... has then the force of: with regard, reference to; as far as ... is concerned.

In l. 17 the ‘till’ ought to be more emphatically rendered: until the very moment that, i.e. I shall not cease a moment before. Or else: till I reach the very heart of saintship. See J. S.v. .

In l. 49 ‘May all those’ is more correct than ‘May all of you,’ for, unlike in the three preceding verses which are addressed to his pupils, the author now utters a universal prayer addressed to mankind in general.

Note to p. 2. Waddell, Lāmaist Graces before Meat, J.R.A.S., 1894, p. 265, says that the libation is sprinkled with the tips of the fore and middle fingers. This is denied by my informants who maintain their statement as given on p. 2, above.

To p. 4. After the Introduction was in print I have seen a copy of the , ‘The Galdan Century of Gods,’ and had it copied for me. It is a small prayer-book to Tson k’a pa, who manifests in a hundred different forms, and it contains 18 four-lined stanzas of 9 syllables each, with the single exception of the stanza quoted in the Introduction, which contains five lines.

This little book is the one mentioned in the Hor chos byuñ (Huth’s translation, p. 387—see note 5—, and text p. 246). Huth gives as Sk. equivalent for the title: Tushitadevaçatikā. Galdan (Tushita) is here the heaven of that name, not the famous monastery. The stanza we are discussing is also mentioned in the same passage. Its name is (The unfathomable love verse). This Dmigs brtse ma is of considerable theological importance. I possess a commentary on it [76] written by , the seventh Dalai Lama. Grünwedel, in the list of Dalai Lamas on p. 206 of his ‘Mythologie,’ etc., writes and Rockhill, in 'Tibet, a ... sketch derived from Chinese sources,' J.R.A.S., Vol. XXIII, new series, 1891, p. 287, .

Since, I have also found that this same stanza, with a modification, occurs on the title page of Sarat Chandra Das' edition of the (Bibl. Ind.). The stanza as there given consists of six lines, by the addition of an initial line to ,

i.e. the Thunderbolt-bearer, Vajradhara.

In another little work, the

, 'The illuminator of body, speech and mind concerning the order of inviting, lustrating, making obeisance to and worshipping (Tson k'a pa),' the stanza occurs once more, again in a different form.

There, p. 9*b*, the prayer is as in our Introduction, but lacks the third line (

, etc.) and ends with . Also, instead of in the second line, this text writes .

I am informed that the prayer occurs also in many other books with modifications, and that when it is used in connection with or 'lustration' rites the closing words after are changed into , 'we baptise thee.'

To p. 17. S. Ch. D., p. 490 b, s.v. mentions a medicinal root used against the plague, called (without zhabs-kyu), but transcribed lcags kyu.

To p. 23. Huth, Hor chos byuñ, trs., p.117, renders [ZZ] as ḍāka, also on p. 118 (see note 4). On p. 231 (see note 1) he suggests that should be understood as ḍākinī = , not as Sk. ḍāka. The dge rgan understands all these three passages as referring to (female) ḍākinīs. Though according to Grünwedel ('Mythologie,' p. 153) in Sk. mythology a male ḍāka exists (a Tantra deity), in Tibet the is always feminine, and a male species or individual does not exist according to my informants. This statement needs testing of course. Grünwedel (loc. cit.) thinks that these female ḍākinīs are original Tibetan spirits or goddesses. The female 's are mentioned indifferently with or without the final . Macdonell in his Sk. Dict. only mentions the feminine form of the word. In the ritual book "The six cut off pieces" (i.e. chapters, divisions, into which the description of the tormā offering is divided) we find the apostrophe: , "O, wisdom fairy, supernatural (= not-human) mother," so defining the sex. In Tibetan the form must accordingly not be understood as a masculine form of , but as its abbreviated form only. This without prejudice to the question whether in special Tantric texts a male god Ḍāka, , does occur.

S. Ch. D. has for an entry giving the meanings 'god, bird, arrow.' Here the word has a poetical or metaphorical meaning based on its etymology, 'sky-goer', but no mythological value. He adds under 'a class, mainly of female spirits.' But the form in cannot be masculine. In Tibet there is a class of people called , both male and female, whose name may be translated as oracles, [78]shamans or mediums. They are deemed to be obsessed by 's who speak through them whilst they themselves are in a state of trance or obsession. Their name is in Lhasa and other greater towns, and amongst the more educated; but the country-people and the lower orders have a special name for these mediums if they are women and call them or . In Sikkhim the word is general in this sense. In Sikkhim the designation for a male medium of this sort is and not as in Tibet.

Whilst investigating the question of Khandomas from the standpoint of colloquial Tibetan I stumbled unexpectedly on the following interesting piece of information, throwing a vivid sidelight on some current beliefs and practices of modern Tibet.

The abbot of the Saskya monastery is held to be the reincarnation of Padmasambhava. As the latter was the great 'binder,' that is subduer, of all spirits, witches, goblins and other creatures of that ilk, the Saskya abbot has in some way become the official head and master of all Tibetan witches. Belief in witches is rife all over Tibet, and any woman is liable to be declared one. The process is very simple. If a great Lama receives obeisance from the multitude he presents the devotees in return with a 'protection-knot' (), a narrow strip of cloth which he puts round their necks. He ties a knot in it muttering some mantram over it, hence the name. Ordinary laymen receive a white strip, tapas or those who have their hair cut short (probably because they look like tapas) get a yellow or red strip, but if a woman approaches whom the Lama by his magic knowledge recognizes as a witch, she receives a black strip. From that moment she is irrevocably a witch and no protestation can help her out of the situation. In the Saskya monastery an annual feast or ceremony is celebrated in which all witches must appear personally, and the magic then displayed is so tremendously powerful that all women who are secretly endowed with the powers of witchcraft without the people knowing it, are irresistibly compelled to attend the meeting. They simply cannot help it, and so stories are told of witches working in the fields, milking cows, or otherwise engaged, being drawn away from their work and appearing in the assembly with their milk-pail, or spindle, or [79] whatever utensil they were using at the time at any work, when they were forced to quit it and to come to Saskya. In the meeting they are then officially proclaimed witches and forced to pledge allegiance and obedience to the Saskya monastery and its head. Then the profitable and practical side of the transaction becomes manifest, for henceforth they have to pay an annual, heavy witch-tax, and in cases known to Karma himself, who came across them when living in Tibet, this tax amounted to one (see Bell, p. 104) or about Rs. 120 a year. On the other hand they are now protected by the authority of the monastery as long as they pay the tax, though they have to pledge themselves not to use their powers for evil. Then they receive the official title of , though they are known to the people as , witch. But this latter word is a term of abuse or contempt. The meaning of the two terms, however, is the same. The entries in the dicts. s.v. and (and other spellings) need proper testing in the light of the above. These witches are supposed not to live up to a great age but to die young, because the monastery calls them out of life to become protecting spirits of the monastery in the invisible spheres. When a bamo dies, her daughter, if she has any, inherits the office or quality of the mother. These bamos, during life, follow the ordinary occupations of women: buying, selling, working or marrying, and their bamo-hood seems to be no drawback, in itself, to their matrimonial prospects. I heard of the case of a bamo who was the wife of a very wealthy man. But the tax, far in excess of any levied on ordinary people, must be regularly paid. If the bamo does not pay her tax, the monastery calls her soul and she dies. In the gompa for every accredited there is a or stuffed effigy, puppet, of which I have not been able to get a full description. Probably a stuffed doll or body, with a mask and garment, perhaps only a stick to hold the mask and garment up, like in a puppet-show. Each such puppet becomes the dwelling-place of the soul of a dead bamo when she dies, and in order to see to it that after death she may not do harm whilst roaming about, the puppet is bound in chains. Horrible to say, however, sometimes these chains are found broken by the guardians, and this is a sure sign that the imprisoned soul has escaped from the puppet [80]which was its dwelling-place and that it may have started on a pilgrimage of evil works. As soon as it is found that such an imprisoned witch-soul has escaped, solemn notice is at once sent out to all Tibet to the effect that a bamo-soul has broken loose from Saskya, and the various local Lamas all through the country warn their flocks that a bamo is at large and enjoin them to be careful not to fall a victim to the wandering witch. So, for instance, they are told not to go about alone after dark, not to entertain strangers, and the like, for the bamo may assume any disguise, and any man may fall a prey to the snares of a beautiful strange woman, as any woman might be allured by an unknown man. The late Lama Sherabgyamtsho in Ghoom, whose name is so well known to all students of Tibetan, used very often to make solemn announcements of this nature and warn the Ghoom people that a bamo had escaped from Saskya.

A most fitting ending to this story is perhaps to be made by quoting the old Buddhist formula "Thus I have heard," but there is no doubt that the word acquires an interesting new meaning through this curious tale.

There is a belief prevalent in Tibet that in every woman a touch of bamo-hood is latent (some philosophers, also outside Tibet, seem to think the same!), but in the night of the 29th day of the twelfth Tibetan month, this seed of evil will manifest most fully. The male Tibetans, however, seem not to take any precautions or perform any rites to counteract the sinister influence of this date. Evidently it is a male Tibetan who first set up this theory, and it might be the same fellow who is the author of the following proverb which bears on our subject and on the words we are dealing with. It runs:

.....

Amongst a hundred women (at most) one khando!
Amongst a hundred men (at most) one sorcerer!

That is—khando being here used in the good sense of fairy—: Amongst many women there is scarcely one extremely good, but amongst many men there is scarcely one extremely bad. In fact, in Tibet, all women are suspected of having just a little seed of evil (of the witch) in them. And so the term of reproach is not as in Europe ‘Old Adam’ but rather ‘Old Eve.’

As far as the above story is concerned, it should not be forgotten that it is only a popular version of an interesting phase of religious practice, but Tibetan casuistry and theology are as a rule so subtle and well-systematised that a more [81]theoretical exposition of the doctrines and practices alluded to might throw considerably more, if not other and new, light on the subject.

To p. 25. The quotation, s.v. _____, l. 16: _____, etc., is from a little tract, a prayer to Padmasambhava, entitled _____, ‘the quick mind-fulfiller.’

To p. 25. Cf. Lewin, pp. 133–134, no. 97–10, _____ (_____), ridiculous; zhed-ked, laughter, ridicule.

To p. 26. _____ Bell, voc., to blush; Lewin, p. 77 (64–5), ridiculous. See his example.

To p. 30. S. Ch. D., Dict., has _____ (hidden on p. 34, out of alphabetical order) as ‘a Tibetan of mixed breed, i.e. born of a Chinese father and a Tibetan mother.’ Waddell, Lhasa and its Mysteries, p. 214, the same explanation. A special enquiry into this point, however, yielded a different result. One of my informants was a Tibetan woman from Lhasa who had herself married a Chinaman there, and so ought to know. The half-breeds referred to by S. Ch. D. and Waddell are called ‘baizhin,’ spelling uncertain, given as _____ and _____, said to be a Chinese word. However, another explanation of that same word was given, as a man not in the pay of, not taking wages from, another. Not necessarily rich or of high position, but independent. Perhaps something like crofter. This latter explanation is, however, contradicted by Karma who has relations amongst the baizhins in Tibet.

In a Tibetan mixed marriage such as we are here considering the custom is to call the elder son _____ after the Chinese manner, instead of using the Tibetan word. This is _____ in Tsang and _____ in Lhasa. The latter is pronounced, and sometimes written, _____ and even sometimes pronounced chö-cho, as if written _____.

But in the above case _____ means really 'elder brother.' A girl, born in such a marriage, is similarly called _____, Chinese, instead of _____, Tibetan.

[82] These terms do not mean half-blood. Whether _____ is used for the eldest daughter alone or for all the daughters of the marriage I could not ascertain.

It is said that every Chinaman, however humble, becomes at once a personage of importance when in Tibet, and demands to be addressed at least as _____, Mister, Sir (as every European becomes automatically a Sahib in India), and feels quite insulted if addressed by the more familiar _____ as a liberty taken with his dignity. A Chinaman from Tibet, however, denied this. I remember once travelling in the Sunda country with my Javanese writer who met several people on the road whom he knew and whom he saluted as 'little brother' or 'elder brother.' I was puzzled at his belonging to so big a family, but found the solution of the riddle when I understood that this fraternity was not one of consanguinity at all. So 'elder sister' amongst Tibetans means only Madam, Lady, or a polite word of address to any woman of more than low status in life. In German Mütterchen for any old woman of simple status.

To pp. 35–37. The expression occurring in the little prayer-book _____ can hardly mean 'a field (= heaven, world) which Kuntuzangpo has adorned' (beautified, decorated, embellished), in the sense in which one may decorate a house or room, with beautiful pictures, furniture, etc. It must surely be understood as 'the heaven blazing with the glory of Kuntuzangpo's presence in it,' a heaven resplendent with his glory. In other words, he adorns it by his mere being there, but not as the result of some activity expressed by a transitive verb. The world is adorned, but has not been decorated or beautified. I wonder if the agentive case _____ may be understood as in English expressions like: 'happy through him,' 'blazing with diamonds,' 'laughing for joy,' and the like.

To p. 40. See the unusual explanation of _____ in S. Ch. D., s.v. _____ III, where he translates _____ as 'it may be said.' The dge rgan, however, paraphrases the expression here as _____ or _____, or _____, which gives [83]it another meaning, namely: 'so it has been said,' 'so is the teaching,' 'that is what has been taught.' In this sense the previous words are a direct quotation and the _____ cannot be translated as 'it may be said that.'

To p. 40. In the note to _____, for _____, non- attachment and indifference only in connection with a negative.

To p. 44. _____. See Graham Sandberg, Tibet and the Tibetans, p. 268, who renders this word, as a technical term denoting the first of the four stages of meditation, according to Milaraspa, as 'contemplation' or 'concentration.' The second word, denoting a mental action unconnected with visual experience, does not seem appropriate. As in English 'view' has both a physical and a mental meaning, so in Tibetan _____, as a verb, has mental connotations. J. has the word as sbst. 'mystical contemplation.' The Sk. equivalent, _____, is likewise both physical and mental in meaning. Whereas J. and S. Ch. D. have a sbst. _____ 'the act of looking,' and 'a look,' Desg. has it as 'sight' (visus, vue, "etc.").

To p. 58. See Jäschke's note on maṇḍa and maṇḍala, s.v. _____, p. 11 b. His remark may have a bearing on the question of ḍāka and ḍākinī, discussed above. See next note.

To pp. 59 and 60. My informants, though ignorant about the detail of five and nine cushions, do know of a custom requiring the man of higher social position, greater age, more prestige, to be seated on a higher seat as a sign of respect. The difference of height, however, is in the seat itself, not effected by the placing of a number of cushions on seats of equal height.

To _____ still the two following words: _____, saddle cloth, and _____, second sheet, upper sheet, covering sheet over the _____. The _____ is usually thick and rough but the _____ thin and of finer texture, like in European [84]beds the bed sheet over the mattress. The _____ is for softness and the _____ for cleanliness, like the loose covers of armchairs and sofas in Western countries.

To p. 62. Huth, Hor chos byuñ, trs. 117, note 4, reconstitutes the name Blo bzañ grags pai dpal into Sk. Matibhadrakīrtiṣṭī. In Tibetan mantrams, however, where Tson k'a pa's name is given in its Sk. form, Sumati is used and not Matibhadra. See also p. 5 of the Introduction, supra.

To p. 64. The word _____ (p. 3 and additional note to p. 4) should have been discussed there. Desg. alone has the meaning of the word as in our text: unthinkable, unimaginable. According to oral information, synonymous with _____, l. 12, see p. 74, supra.

The elaborate entries in J. and S. Ch. D. under this word and under _____ need investigation.

The word _____ has also a special meaning, not in the dictionaries, in connection with any action done 'in thought,' _____ (as in English 'I am with you in thought'). But Tibetans can not only be present in thought but they can give presents 'in thought,' and do all sorts of things 'in thought,' when there is no physical possibility of doing so in the flesh. So the good story is told of a lazy Lama who, to get rid of the crowd, said: "And now I give my hand-blessing to you all 'in thought,'" whereupon a disappointed and angry pilgrim answered: "Well, then I give you my butter-offerings, which I have brought with me, also 'in thought.'"

To p. 65. The dictionaries spelt _____ but the dge rgan says that _____ also occurs. Desg. has an alternative spelling _____, but this seems a misprint for _____. In Tibetan books I have only seen _____ but the dge rgan is sure that the two spellings, _____ and _____ (but not _____), occur as well. [85]

To the text. When the larger part of this booklet was in print I acquired an additional copy of the text, which proved to be different from the two editions used by me. It is of the same size and style as edition A, but printed from other blocks. We call it C. The copy is a poor one, badly printed from worn-out blocks. A collation brought no news of importance. The reading _____ in l. 16, however, is confirmed by this edition. Its only new reading is _____ for _____ in l. 46. This reading does not seem so satisfactory as the one we have followed. The full result of the collation is given below. Indistinct readings are marked with a note of interrogation.

C. l. 13.	?	for
l. 18.		”
l. 24.		”
l. 29.		”
l. 30.	?	”
l. 41.		? ”
l. 44.		”
l. 46.		”
l. 50.		”
l. 51.		”
Colophon.		”
”		” desunt.

The variants of ll. 30, 41, 50 and 51 are evidently due to deterioration of the blocks.
There is no in this edition. [\[86\]](#)

[Contents]

ERRATA.

- p. 7: first variant, bottom, read: .
- p. 8: l. 20 of text, insert asterisk after .
- p. 9: second variant, bottom, read: .
- p. 14, l. 13: teacher (or: teachers).
- p. 14, l. 14: his (or: their).
- p. 25, l. 1: for render read: repay.
- p. 27, l. 20: for render read: repay.
- p. 27, l. 27, 28: eliminate the commas outside the brackets.
- p. 36, l. 4: for Smuck read: Schmuck.
- p. 65, l. 24: for Lhasa read: Lhasa.
- p. 76, l. 24: for read: .
- p. 76. l. 25: for baptise read: lustrate.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PREFATORY NOTE.	iii
ABBREVIATIONS.	v
MINOR TIBETAN TEXTS. Primarily Lexicographically Treated.	1
I. THE SONG OF THE EASTERN SNOW MOUNTAIN.	1
A. INTRODUCTION.	1
B. TEXT.	7
C. THE VARIANTS.	10
D. TRANSLATION. The Song of the Eastern Snow Mountain.	14
E. GLOSSARY AND NOTES. (Lexicographical, Syntactical and Material.)	16
F. ADDITIONAL NOTES.	75
ERRATA.	86

COLOPHON

Availability

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.org.

This eBook is produced by the Online Distributed Proofreading Team at www.pgdp.net.

The scans used to prepare this book are available from The Internet Archive (copy 1).

Metadata

Title:	Minor Tibetan Texts: The Song of the Eastern Snow-Mountain
Author:	Johan van Manen (1877–1943)	Info
Language:	English
Original publication date:	1919

Encoding

Numerous missing periods and tshegs have been supplied. This is probably an issue with the available scan-sets from which this ebook has been prepared and not necessarily an issue in the original book.

Revision History

2021-11-08 Started.

External References

This Project Gutenberg eBook contains external references. These links may not work for you.

Corrections

The following corrections have been applied to the text:

Page	Source	Correction	Edit distance
Passim.	[Not in source]	.	1
v , 19 , 29 , 43 , 57 , 61 , 61	[Not in source]	,	1
4 , 22 , 23 , 26 , 27 , 30 , 36 , 45 , 50 , 54 , 63 , 68 , 81	[Not in source]		1
7			1
7			1
9			1
11			1
11 , 38	.	,	1
11	authorised	authorized	1
11			1
12 , 48	.	[Deleted]	1
16	□□□□□□□	□□□□□□□□	1 / 0
17	fishing	fishing	1 / 0
18	neccessarily	necessarily	1
19 , 63	[Not in source]	)	1
20 , 23 , 31 , 31 , 34 , 43 , 46 , 54 ,	[Not in source]	'	1

66 , 72 , 72
21	colloquial	colloquial	1 / 0
21	).	.	2
24	ruchslos	ruchlos	1
26 , 30 , 59 , 61 , 75	,	,	2
27	[Not in source]		3 / 2
28	Dailalamas	Dalailamas	2
31 , 58 , 73	[Not in source]	'	1
32	(	[Deleted]	1
36	Smuck	Schmuck	2
36	□□□□□□□□□□	□□□□□□□□□□	1 / 0
36	Skr.	Sk.	1
37	-	[Deleted]	1
38			1
38			1
42	-		1
44	See	see	1
55	nishprapañca	nishprapañca	1 / 0
55	apañca	apañca	1 / 0
55 , 56	aprapañca	aprapañca	1 / 0
57	?	'	1
58	,	[Deleted]	1
61	[Not in source]	.'s	3
62	gives	give	1
65 , 78	Lhasa	Lhasa	1
68	'*	*'	2
68	□□□□□□□□	□□□□□□□□□□	2 / 0
72	'	[Deleted]	1
73	[Not in source]	'.	2
77 , 84	dge-rgan	dge rgan	1
77	Tantrik	Tantric	1

80	dwelling place- and	dwelling-place and	2
80			1

Abbreviations

Overview of abbreviations used.

Abbreviation Expansion

J.A.S.B.	[Expansion not available]
J.'s	Jäschke's
N.B.	Nota Bene
N.S.	New Series
S. Ch. D.'s	Sarat Chandra Das'
s.v.	[Expansion not available]
S.v.	[Expansion not available]

 END OF THE PROJECT GUTENBERG EBOOK MINOR TIBETAN TEXTS: 1. THE SONG OF THE EASTERN SNOW-MOUNTAIN ***

Updated editions will replace the previous one—the old editions will be renamed.

Creating the works from print editions not protected by U.S. copyright law means that no one owns a United States copyright in these works, so the Foundation (and you!) can copy and distribute it in the United States without permission and without paying copyright royalties. Special rules, set forth in the General Terms of Use part of this license, apply to copying and distributing Project Gutenberg™ electronic works to protect the PROJECT GUTENBERG™ concept and trademark. Project Gutenberg is a registered trademark, and may not be used if you charge for an eBook, except by following the terms of the trademark license, including paying royalties for use of the Project Gutenberg trademark. If you do not charge anything for copies of this eBook, complying with the trademark license is very easy. You may use this eBook for nearly any purpose such as creation of derivative works, reports, performances and research. Project Gutenberg eBooks may be modified and printed and given away—you may do practically ANYTHING in the United States with eBooks not protected by U.S. copyright law. Redistribution is subject to the trademark license, especially commercial redistribution.

START: FULL LICENSE

THE FULL PROJECT GUTENBERG™ LICENSE

PLEASE READ THIS BEFORE YOU DISTRIBUTE OR USE THIS WORK

To protect the Project Gutenberg™ mission of promoting the free distribution of electronic works, by using or distributing this work (or any other work associated in any way with the phrase “Project Gutenberg”), you agree to comply with all the terms of the Full Project Gutenberg License available with this file or online at www.gutenberg.org/license.

Section 1. General Terms of Use and Redistributing Project Gutenberg electronic works

1.A. By reading or using any part of this Project Gutenberg electronic work, you indicate that you have read, understand, agree to and accept all the terms of this license and intellectual property (trademark/copyright) agreement. If you do not agree to abide by all the terms of this agreement, you must cease using and return or destroy all copies of Project Gutenberg electronic works in your possession. If you paid a fee for obtaining a copy of or access to a Project Gutenberg electronic work and you do not agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement, you may obtain a refund from the person or entity to whom you paid the fee as set forth in paragraph 1.E.8.

1.B. “Project Gutenberg” is a registered trademark. It may only be used on or associated in any way with an electronic work by people who agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement. There are a few things that you can do with most Project Gutenberg electronic works even without complying with the full terms of this agreement. See paragraph 1.C below. There are a lot of things you can do with Project Gutenberg electronic works if you follow the terms of this agreement and help preserve free future access to Project Gutenberg electronic works. See paragraph 1.E below.

1.C. The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation (“the Foundation” or PGLAF), owns a compilation copyright in the collection of Project Gutenberg electronic works. Nearly all the individual works in the collection are in the public domain in the United States. If an individual work is unprotected by copyright law in the United States and you are located in the United States, we do not claim a right to prevent you from copying, distributing, performing, displaying or creating derivative works based on the work as long as all references to Project Gutenberg are removed. Of course, we hope that you will support the Project Gutenberg mission of promoting free access to electronic works by freely sharing Project Gutenberg works in compliance with the terms of this agreement for keeping the Project Gutenberg name associated with the work. You can easily comply with the terms of this agreement by keeping this work in the same format with its attached full Project Gutenberg License when you share it without charge with others.

1.D. The copyright laws of the place where you are located also govern what you can do with this work. Copyright laws in most countries are in a constant state of change. If you are outside the United States, check the laws of your country in addition to the terms of this agreement before downloading, copying, displaying, performing, distributing or creating derivative works based on this work or any other Project Gutenberg work. The Foundation makes no representations concerning the copyright status of any work in any country other than the United States.

1.E. Unless you have removed all references to Project Gutenberg:

1.E.1. The following sentence, with active links to, or other immediate access to, the full Project Gutenberg License must appear prominently whenever any copy of a Project Gutenberg work (any work on which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” appears, or with which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” is associated) is accessed, displayed, performed, viewed, copied or distributed:

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere in the United States and most other parts of the world at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg™ License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.org. If you are not located in the United States, you will have to check the laws of the country where you are located before using this eBook.

1.E.2. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is derived from texts not protected by U.S. copyright law (does not contain a notice indicating that it is posted with permission of the copyright holder), the work can be copied and distributed to anyone in the United States without paying any fees or charges. If you are redistributing or providing access to a work with the phrase “Project Gutenberg” associated with or appearing on the work, you must comply either with the requirements of paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 or obtain permission for the use of the work and the Project Gutenberg trademark as set forth in paragraphs 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.3. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is posted with the permission of the copyright holder, your use and distribution must comply with both paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 and any additional terms imposed by the copyright holder. Additional terms will be linked to the Project Gutenberg License for all works posted with the permission of the copyright holder found at the beginning of this work.

1.E.4. Do not unlink or detach or remove the full Project Gutenberg License terms from this work, or any files containing a part of this work or any other work associated with Project Gutenberg.

1.E.5. Do not copy, display, perform, distribute or redistribute this electronic work, or any part of this electronic work, without prominently displaying the sentence set forth in paragraph 1.E.1 with active links or immediate access to the full terms of the Project Gutenberg License.

1.E.6. You may convert to and distribute this work in any binary, compressed, marked up, nonproprietary or proprietary form, including any word processing or hypertext form. However, if you provide access to or distribute copies of a Project Gutenberg work in a format other than “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other format used in the official version posted on the official Project Gutenberg website (www.gutenberg.org), you must, at no additional cost, fee or expense to the user, provide a copy, a means of exporting a copy, or a means of obtaining a copy upon request, of the work in its original “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other form. Any alternate format must include the full Project Gutenberg License as specified in paragraph 1.E.1.

1.E.7. Do not charge a fee for access to, viewing, displaying, performing, copying or distributing any Project Gutenberg works unless you comply with paragraph 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.8. You may charge a reasonable fee for copies of or providing access to or distributing Project Gutenberg electronic works provided that:

- You pay a royalty fee of 20% of the gross profits you derive from the use of Project Gutenberg works calculated using the method you already use to calculate your applicable taxes. The fee is owed to the owner of the Project Gutenberg trademark, but he has agreed to donate royalties under this paragraph to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation. Royalty payments must be paid within 60 days following each date on which you prepare (or are legally required to prepare) your periodic tax returns. Royalty payments should be clearly marked as such and sent to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation at the address specified in Section 4, “Information about donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation.”

- You provide a full refund of any money paid by a user who notifies you in writing (or by e-mail) within 30 days of receipt that s/he does not agree to the terms of the full Project Gutenberg™ License. You must require such a user to return or destroy all copies of the works possessed in a physical medium and discontinue all use of and all access to other copies of Project Gutenberg™ works.
- You provide, in accordance with paragraph 1.F.3, a full refund of any money paid for a work or a replacement copy, if a defect in the electronic work is discovered and reported to you within 90 days of receipt of the work.
- You comply with all other terms of this agreement for free distribution of Project Gutenberg™ works.

1.E.9. If you wish to charge a fee or distribute a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work or group of works on different terms than are set forth in this agreement, you must obtain permission in writing from the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the manager of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark. Contact the Foundation as set forth in Section 3 below.

1.F.

1.F.1. Project Gutenberg volunteers and employees expend considerable effort to identify, do copyright research on, transcribe and proofread works not protected by U.S. copyright law in creating the Project Gutenberg™ collection. Despite these efforts, Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, and the medium on which they may be stored, may contain “Defects,” such as, but not limited to, incomplete, inaccurate or corrupt data, transcription errors, a copyright or other intellectual property infringement, a defective or damaged disk or other medium, a computer virus, or computer codes that damage or cannot be read by your equipment.

1.F.2. LIMITED WARRANTY, DISCLAIMER OF DAMAGES -

Except for the “Right of Replacement or Refund” described in paragraph 1.F.3, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the owner of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark, and any other party distributing a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work under this agreement, disclaim all liability to you for damages, costs and expenses, including legal fees. YOU AGREE THAT YOU HAVE NO REMEDIES FOR NEGLIGENCE, STRICT LIABILITY, BREACH OF WARRANTY OR BREACH OF CONTRACT EXCEPT THOSE PROVIDED IN PARAGRAPH 1.F.3. YOU AGREE THAT THE FOUNDATION, THE TRADEMARK OWNER, AND ANY DISTRIBUTOR UNDER THIS AGREEMENT WILL NOT BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR ACTUAL, DIRECT, INDIRECT, CONSEQUENTIAL, PUNITIVE OR INCIDENTAL DAMAGES EVEN IF YOU GIVE NOTICE OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGE.

1.F.3. LIMITED RIGHT OF REPLACEMENT OR REFUND - If you discover a defect in this electronic work within 90 days of receiving it, you can receive a refund of the money (if any) you paid for it by sending a written explanation to the person you received the work from. If you received the work on a physical medium, you must return the medium with your written explanation. The person or entity that provided you with the defective work may elect to provide a replacement copy in lieu of a refund. If you received the work electronically, the person or entity providing it to you may choose to give you a second opportunity to receive the work electronically in lieu of a refund. If the second copy is also defective, you may demand a refund in writing without further opportunities to fix the problem.

1.F.4. Except for the limited right of replacement or refund set forth in paragraph 1.F.3, this work is provided to you 'AS-IS', WITH NO OTHER WARRANTIES OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR ANY PURPOSE.

1.F.5. Some states do not allow disclaimers of certain implied warranties or the exclusion or limitation of certain types of damages. If any disclaimer or limitation set forth in this agreement violates the law of the state applicable to this agreement, the agreement shall be interpreted to make the maximum disclaimer or limitation permitted by the applicable state law. The invalidity or unenforceability of any provision of this agreement shall not void the remaining provisions.

1.F.6. INDEMNITY - You agree to indemnify and hold the Foundation, the trademark owner, any agent or employee of the Foundation, anyone providing copies of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works in accordance with this agreement, and any volunteers associated with the production, promotion and distribution of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, harmless from all liability, costs and expenses, including legal fees, that arise directly or indirectly from any of the following which you do or cause to occur: (a) distribution of this or any Project Gutenberg work, (b) alteration, modification, or additions or deletions to any Project Gutenberg work, and (c) any Defect you cause.

Section 2. Information about the Mission of Project Gutenberg

Project Gutenberg is synonymous with the free distribution of electronic works in formats readable by the widest variety of computers including obsolete, old, middle-aged and new computers. It exists because of the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and donations from people in all walks of life.

Volunteers and financial support to provide volunteers with the assistance they need are critical to reaching Project Gutenberg's goals and ensuring that the Project Gutenberg collection will remain freely available for generations to come. In 2001, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation was created to provide a secure and permanent future for Project Gutenberg and future generations. To learn more about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and how your efforts and donations can help, see Sections 3 and 4 and the Foundation information page at www.gutenberg.org.

Section 3. Information about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation is a non-profit 501(c)(3) educational corporation organized under the laws of the state of Mississippi and granted tax exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Foundation's EIN or federal tax identification number is 64-6221541. Contributions to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation are tax deductible to the full extent permitted by U.S. federal laws and your state's laws.

The Foundation's business office is located at 41 Watchung Plaza #516, Montclair NJ 07042, USA, +1 (862) 621-9288. Email contact links and up to date contact information can be found at the Foundation's website and official page at www.gutenberg.org/contact

Section 4. Information about Donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

Project Gutenberg™ depends upon and cannot survive without widespread public support and donations to carry out its mission of increasing the number of public domain and licensed works that can be freely distributed in machine-readable form accessible by the widest array of equipment including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit www.gutenberg.org/donate.

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: www.gutenberg.org/donate.

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg electronic works

Professor Michael S. Hart was the originator of the Project Gutenberg concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For forty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as not protected by copyright in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.

Most people start at our website which has the main PG search facility:
www.gutenberg.org.

This website includes information about Project Gutenberg, including how to make donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, how to help produce our new eBooks, and how to subscribe to our email newsletter to hear about new eBooks.