THE OLD MAN'S STORY.

LONDON: DEAN & SON, 11, Ludgate Hill.

THE OLD MAN'S STORY.

THERE lived in the village of C. a kind-hearted old man, who was generally called "Uncle John." The children loved to hear his stories, and, many a Wednesday afternoon, sat upon the grass at his feet, while he told about what he used to do when he was a boy. One of these stories of his I will tell to you.

"When I was about as high as you are now," said Uncle John, "I was very fond of playing with gunpowder. All my odd half-pence were carefully saved, to buy the materials for making such fire-works as boys are able to do. I did this secretly, for my mother would never allow me to do so. It happened one day that a gentleman came to visit my father, and among other things, he asked me if I had ever read a little book which he named. When I replied I had not, he gave me some money, saying, 'I should like to have you buy and read it.'

" 'I wish he had given it to me to buy gunpowder,' said I to myself as soon as he had gone; for I well knew that no one was aware that I had the money in my possession.

"It then occurred to me that I could still do with it as I pleased; and I bought a quantity of gunpowder. As I was returning home with it, I met a boy of about my own age, with whom I often played.

" 'Come, Harry,' said I, 'I've got a fine lot of powder, and I want you to come with me this afternoon, and we'll have real sport.'

" 'Oh! I cannot,' said Henry.

" 'Why not? It is Saturday, and there is no school this afternoon.'

" 'Yes, I know that,' he replied; 'but the truth is, John, my mother has such fears that I shall get killed or hurt, that I've promised never to play with powder again.'

" 'Oh! dear!' cried I, 'this is always the way. Now, I do think you might just this afternoon come and help me, for there's no fun in playing alone. Come, you shall have half the powder for your own.'

" 'Let me see it,' said Henry.

"I opened the brown paper, and showed him the quantity I had bought.

" 'Oh! this is capital!' cried he; 'yes, I'll come just this once.'

“We met in the afternoon, and began to make squibs and crackers. We had made a few, when Henry proposed that we should get some fire and amuse ourselves by throwing powder into it, a few grains at a time. Henry went for the fire, while I went on with my work. I did not perceive that in the paper which held the powder, there was a large hole, and that I was losing my treasure, as it run through to the ground. Irritated by this accident, I threw away the paper, and sat down to wait for Henry’s return. He came to me in a few moments.

“ ‘We must make haste, John,’ said he, ‘for here comes a great troop of girls, and your sister Mary and our Lucy are among them. If they see us, they’ll run home as fast as they can, to tell tales of us.’

“ ‘Well, then,’ I answered, ‘come, help me scrape up this powder, which is all on the grass here, and we’ll hide away the whole of it, till they are gone.’ We knelt down, and began to take the powder in our hands.

“ ‘John,’ said Henry, ‘I’ll get up the powder, and you go hide away those squibs among the bushes; and make haste; do, for I hear the girls, and they’ll be here in a minute.’

“I caught up the bundle of squibs, and was running with them towards a cluster of bushes, when I heard a loud cry from Henry, and turning quickly,

I saw the powder flashing into his eyes; and in a moment, he had fallen forward into the flame.

“As I darted forward, the party of girls, pale and trembling, appeared among the trees, and I shouted loudly for help. But how can I describe poor Henry, as he lay upon the ground; his beautiful face blackened with the powder, and so shockingly torn and mangled, that it bore no resemblance to that of a human being.

“ ‘Is he hurt? Is he dead?’ said the little girls, pressing around me.

“ ‘Who is he? oh! who is he?’ cried Lucy, throwing herself by his side, ‘it is not Henry, our Henry!—you will not say so?’ said she, looking in my face. I could only answer by cries and tears. Lucy raised her poor brother in her arms. Her face was perfectly calm, and cold, while the rest of the children were drowned in tears, and seemed not to think of doing anything to obtain help. In a few minutes several men, who had been alarmed by the noise, came running toward us. Without asking questions, they took up the body gently, and we followed them towards the house of his mother, whose last wishes I had tempted Henry to slight.

“As we approached the door, we saw the poor widow sitting quietly at work in her neat little parlour. I cannot tell you, my children,” said the old man, drawing his hand before his eyes, “how her sweet face changed, as the dreadful sight met her eyes; but the same grave where they laid poor Henry was opened twice in two weeks, and his mother was placed by his side. Little Lucy was left all alone in the world, till I persuaded my mother to take her to our home, and let me be her brother, in place of the one she had lost. And I have spent my life in trying to make poor Lucy happy. And now, my dear children, you know why I so often urge you to obey your parents, and be willing to do as they wish. May none of you learn the importance of this, by so painful a lesson as was mine.”

Section 2. Information about the Mission of Project Gutenberg

Project Gutenberg is synonymous with the free distribution of electronic works in formats readable by the widest variety of computers including obsolete, old, middle-aged and new computers. It exists because of the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and donations from people in all walks of life.

Volunteers and financial support to provide volunteers with the assistance they need are critical to reaching Project Gutenberg's goals and ensuring that the Project Gutenberg collection will remain freely available for generations to come. In 2001, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation was created to provide a secure and permanent future for Project Gutenberg and future generations. To learn more about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and how your efforts and donations can help, see Sections 3 and 4 and the Foundation information page at www.gutenberg.org.

Section 3. Information about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation is a non-profit 501(c)(3) educational corporation organized under the laws of the state of Mississippi and granted tax exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Foundation's EIN or federal tax identification number is 64-6221541. Contributions to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation are tax deductible to the full extent permitted by U.S. federal laws and your state's laws.

The Foundation's business office is located at 41 Watchung Plaza #516, Montclair NJ 07042, USA, +1 (862) 621-9288. Email contact links and up to date contact information can be found at the Foundation's website and official page at www.gutenberg.org/contact

Section 4. Information about Donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

Project Gutenberg™ depends upon and cannot survive without widespread public support and donations to carry out its mission of increasing the number of public domain and licensed works that can be freely distributed in machine-readable form accessible by the widest array of equipment including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit www.gutenberg.org/donate.

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: www.gutenberg.org/donate.

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg electronic works

Professor Michael S. Hart was the originator of the Project Gutenberg concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For forty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as not protected by copyright in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.

Most people start at our website which has the main PG search facility:
www.gutenberg.org.

This website includes information about Project Gutenberg, including how to make donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, how to help produce our new eBooks, and how to subscribe to our email newsletter to hear about new eBooks.
