PRICE ONE PENNY.

TOM CARELESS,

Good people all I pray give ear
Unto the tale I tell;
'Tis form'd to gratify your mind,
And to instruct you well.

To caution men of riper years,
And to admonish youth;
Fiction may fill th' improving page,
And use the voice of truth.

Tom Careless was a merry lad;
(And who will mirth despise?)
But he like many other wits,
More merry was than wise.

Tom was a working carpenter,
Yet while he plied his trade,
His tongue mov'd faster than his hands,
And less was done than said.

He told his tale, he crack'd his joke,
He was a perfect droll;
And of each jovial drinking set,
Was both the life and soul.

On such a character as this,
Some did with envy gaze;
While others wiser, saw much more
To pity than to praise.

For Tom with all his merriment,
That made such mighty rout,

Had taken vice and folly in,
And quite shut wisdom out.

He neither look'd, nor car'd, beyond
The present passing hour!
Alas! now see his sky o'ercast,
And storms begin to lour.

A burning fever seiz'd his frame!
Look how he pants for breath;
And in his vitals feels transfixt
Th' envenomed dart of death.

He feels and shudders at the stroke,
He turns but keeps his pain;
He looks with eager eyes for help,
But human help is vain.

Now conscience from her slumber wakes,
And with a dismal cry,
Proclaims the vices of his life,
And summons him to die.

To die! to leave the present world,
To yield his vital breath!
To close his eyes on life, and tread
The dark, dark vale of death!

To see th' uplifted stroke that must
His soul and body sever!
And then to lose the light of life
For ever and for ever!

'Twas more than human strength could bear
The agonizing strife,
Sunk his distracted spirits down
Close to the verge of life.

Then his fellow-workmen came,
With Careless to condole;

Who talk'd of former scenes of mirth,
To cheer his troubl'd soul.

But, ah! when conscience sorely smarts—
Whose spirit can endure?
When GOD inflicts the mighty wound—
What mortal hand can cure?

Outstretch'd, his flesh all trembling lies,
He heaves a mournful sigh;
Attempts to raise his aching head,
And ope' his languid eye.

On the companions of his life,
He casts a dismal look;
And, lab'ring with conflicting thoughts,
Thus the sad silence broke:—

“Ah! ye do well to see a wretch,
Whose peace and health are fled;
Ye knew him once in festive scenes,
Now on his dying bed.

But, O, for ever from my mind
Hide ev'ry guilty joy;
Oor they've polluted all my life,
And will my soul destroy.

In sickness, pain, decay, and death,
What agonies ye bring!
All pointed with the envenom'd barb,
Of sin's eternal sting.

—But have ye no sweet hope to give?
No comfort to supply?
Must I still languish and despair,
And then—ah! must I die?

How can my naked spirit stand
Before a righteous GOD?

Who, who, shall hide me from his eye,
Or shield me from his rod?

O what a load of guilt I feel!
My anguish who can tell?
My sins will shut me out of heav'n,
And sink me down to hell.

By all the mis'ries which I feel,
By all the wrath I dread;
By heav'ns just veng'ance soon to fall
On my devoted head;

I charge you to forsake your sins,
And to the SAVIOUR fly:
O may he bless you while you live,
And save you when you die.

But as for me, can mercy come,
Call'd for with parting breath?"—
He said—and straight his quiv'ring lips,
For ever clos'd in death!

THE History of Will Worthy and Nancy Wilmot.

IN vain the living soul may strive
For happiness below;
This world no solid joy can give,
Nor lasting peace bestow.

Will Worthy was a sprightly lad
As ever trod the mead;
He thought no cares could make him sad,
While pleasure took the lead.

Dex'trous at all the rustic games,
He oft his strength display'd,
Now the swift race his breast inflames,
By emulation sway'd.

At every country fair and wake,
Will was the wonder there:
Fair females crowded for his sake,
And strove his smiles to share.

Sweet Nancy Wilmot of the vale,
Won William's roving heart;
To her he told love's tender tale,
Now nothing could them part.

To church they went, the knot was tied,
The day was spent in glee;
Inviting all to them allied,
To join their jollity.

The self-same eve, when on the green,
Will danc'd with Nance his bride;
Lo! what a sad reverse of scene,
She fainted—droop'd—and died!!!

Dismay and horror seiz'd each soul,
When this sad news was known,
For her the passing-bell did toll,
ETERNITY her home.

Like the weak grass, or tender flow'r,
Or vapour's empty breath;
Sweet Nancy wither'd in an hour,
Cut down by sudden death.

William bewail'd her early fate,
A prey to woe and grief;
Pensive, forlorn, and wan he sat,
And would have no relief.

The question "if her soul was safe?"
Gave poignancy to woe;
Should hell have follow'd sudden death,
"Would she not thither go?"

From brooding on her doubtful lot,
Now fix'd for ever sure;
His mind now turn'd its every thought,
To his sick soul and cure.

"How shall I flee from wrath to come,
Where hide my guilty head?
Should I next go to my long home,
Where shall I be?" he said.

He bade adieu to sinful joy,
And trac'd the moral page;
The fine clad sentiment could cloy,
But not his grief assuage.

No, he had tried all these in vain,
All “empty, void, and waste;”
They serv’d but to increase his pain,
Involving ruin fast.

Thus, baffled, wearied, and distress’d,
He did a Bible see;
There found a prayer for one oppress’d,
“LORD, undertake for me.”

To church on Sundays he had been,
As others come and go;
But ne’er by faith had JESUS seen,
Or heard what CHRIST could do.

Until, with circumcised ear,
He when at church one day,
Found mercy to his soul draw near,
Which to his heart did say:

“Come unto me, thou weary soul,
Laden with num’rous sins;
No case so bad that can controul
My grace where it begins.

Why so disquieted art thou,
With sins, and fears, and care?
Lo th’ accepted time is now,
Tho’ lost, do not despair.

Lost in yourself, in CHRIST there’s hope,
And never till you’re lost,
Relinquish ev’ry other prop,
And then you’ll prize him most.

’Twas such he came to seek and save,
And could he come in vain?
And if no other hope you have,
You need no more complain.”

The sermon ended, Will went home,
Stepp'd up and lock'd his door;
Fell on his knees before GOD's throne,
And mercy did implore.

Mercy he found, and after liv'd
Daily on CHRIST by faith;
To Jesus liv'd while he surviv'd,
Triumphant was in death.

FINIS.

Section 2. Information about the Mission of Project Gutenberg

Project Gutenberg is synonymous with the free distribution of electronic works in formats readable by the widest variety of computers including obsolete, old, middle-aged and new computers. It exists because of the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and donations from people in all walks of life.

Volunteers and financial support to provide volunteers with the assistance they need are critical to reaching Project Gutenberg's goals and ensuring that the Project Gutenberg collection will remain freely available for generations to come. In 2001, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation was created to provide a secure and permanent future for Project Gutenberg and future generations. To learn more about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and how your efforts and donations can help, see Sections 3 and 4 and the Foundation information page at www.gutenberg.org.

Section 3. Information about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation is a non-profit 501(c)(3) educational corporation organized under the laws of the state of Mississippi and granted tax exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Foundation's EIN or federal tax identification number is 64-6221541. Contributions to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation are tax deductible to the full extent permitted by U.S. federal laws and your state's laws.

The Foundation's business office is located at 41 Watchung Plaza #516, Montclair NJ 07042, USA, +1 (862) 621-9288. Email contact links and up to date contact information can be found at the Foundation's website and official page at www.gutenberg.org/contact

Section 4. Information about Donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

Project Gutenberg™ depends upon and cannot survive without widespread public support and donations to carry out its mission of increasing the number of public domain and licensed works that can be freely distributed in machine-readable form accessible by the widest array of equipment including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit www.gutenberg.org/donate.

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: www.gutenberg.org/donate.

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg electronic works

Professor Michael S. Hart was the originator of the Project Gutenberg concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For forty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as not protected by copyright in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.

Most people start at our website which has the main PG search facility:
www.gutenberg.org.

This website includes information about Project Gutenberg, including how to make donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, how to help produce our new eBooks, and how to subscribe to our email newsletter to hear about new eBooks.
