

The Project Gutenberg eBook of The Odes of Casimire, Translated by G. Hils

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere in the United States and most other parts of the world at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.org. If you are not located in the United States, you will have to check the laws of the country where you are located before using this eBook.

Title: The Odes of Casimire, Translated by G. Hils

Author: Maciej Kazimierz Sarbiewski

Commentator: Maren-Sofie Roestvig

Translator: G. Hils

Release date: April 12, 2008 [eBook #25055]

Language: English, Latin

Other information and formats: www.gutenberg.org/ebooks/25055

Credits: Produced by Louise Hope, David Starner, and the Online Distributed Proofreading Team.

 START OF THE PROJECT GUTENBERG EBOOK THE ODES OF
CASIMIRE, TRANSLATED BY G. HILS ***

This text uses utf-8 (unicode) file encoding. If the apostrophes and quotation marks in this paragraph appear as garbage, you may have an incompatible browser or unavailable fonts. First, make sure that the browser's "character set" or “file encoding” is set to Unicode (UTF-8). You may also need to change your browser's default font.

The Greek word παραφραστικῶς (paraphrastikôs) occurs three times in poem headers. There is no other Greek in the text.

Spelling and punctuation are unchanged unless otherwise noted. The Latin -que was variously written out in full or abbreviated; the abbreviated forms are shown as -q^{ue}. The original text used long “s” (ſ) consistently. In this e-text it is used only for titles and headers.

Typographical errors are marked with mouse-hover popups. Longer notes are at the end of the e-text.

Editor's Introduction
The Odes of Casimire Augustan Reprints
Transcriber's Notes

In addition to the ordinary page numbers, the printed text labeled the recto (odd) pages of the first five leaves of each 24-page quire. These will appear after the page numbers as A, A2, A3... Page numbers added by the transcriber are shown in [brackets].

The Augustan Reprint Society

MATHIAS CASIMIRE

SARBIEWSKI

The Odes of Casimire, Translated by G. Hils

(1646)

With an Introduction by Maren-Sofie Roestvig

Publication Number 44

Los Angeles
William Andrews Clark Memorial Library
University of California 1953

GENERAL EDITORS

RICHARD C. BOYS, University of Michigan
RALPH COHEN, University of California, Los Angeles
VINTON A. DEARING, University of California, Los Angeles
LAWRENCE CLARK POWELL, Clark Memorial Library

ASSISTANT EDITOR

W. EARL BRITTON, University of Michigan

ADVISORY EDITORS

EMMETT L. AVERY, State College of Washington

BENJAMIN BOYCE, Duke University
LOUIS BREDVOLD, University of Michigan
JOHN BUTT, King's College, University of Durham
JAMES L. CLIFFORD, Columbia University
ARTHUR FRIEDMAN, University of Chicago
EDWARD NILES HOOKER, University of California, Los Angeles
LOUIS A. LANDA, Princeton University
SAMUEL H. MONK, University of Minnesota
ERNEST C. MOSSNER, University of Texas
JAMES SUTHERLAND, University College, London
H. T. SWEDENBERG, JR., University of California, Los Angeles

CORRESPONDING SECRETARY

EDNA C. DAVIS, Clark Memorial Library

INTRODUCTION

Mathias Casimire Sarbiewski (1595-1640) was a Polish Jesuit whose neo-Latin Horatian odes and Biblical paraphrases gained immediate European acclaim upon their first publication in 1625 and 1628.¹ The fine lyric quality of Sarbiewski's poetry, and the fact that he often fused classical and Christian motifs, made a critic like Hugo Grotius actually prefer the "divine Casimire" to Horace himself, and his popularity among the English poets is evidenced by an impressive number of translations.

G. Hils's Odes of Casimire (1646), here reproduced by permission from the copy in the Henry E. Huntington Library, is the earliest English collection of translations from the verse of the Polish Horace. It is also the most important. Acknowledged translations of individual poems appeared in Henry Vaughan's Olor Iscanus (1651), Sir Edward Sherburne's Poems and Translations (1651), the Miscellany Poems and Translations by Oxford Hands (1685), Isaac Watts's Horae Lyricae (1706), Thomas Brown's Works (1707-8), and John Hughes's The Ecstasy. An Ode (1720). Unacknowledged paraphrases from Casimire include Abraham Cowley's "The Extasie,"² John Norris's "The Elevation,"³ and a number of Isaac Watts's pious and moral odes.⁴ Latin editions of Casimire's odes appeared in London in 1684, and in Cambridge in 1684 and 1689.

Another striking example of the direct influence of Casimire upon English poetry is presented by Edward Benlowes's Theophila (1652). This long-winded epic of the soul exhibits not only a general indebtedness in imagery and ideas, but also direct borrowings of whole lines from Hils's Odes of Casimire. One example will have to suffice:

Casimire, Ode IV, 44	Theophila , XIII, 68
Let th' Goth his strongest chaines prepare, The Scythians hence mee captive teare, My mind being free with you, I'll stare The Tyrants in the face....	Then let fierce Goths their strongest chains prepare; Grim Scythians me their slave declare; My soul being free, those tyrants in the face I'll stare.

Casimire's greatest achievement was in the field of the philosophic lyric, and in a number of cases he anticipated poetic techniques and motifs which later grew popular also with the English poets. Thus, long before Denham and Marvell, he practised the technique of investing the scenes of nature with a moral or spiritual significance. A comparison of Casimire's loco-descriptive first epode on the estate of the Duke of Bracciano with Denham's Cooper's Hill (1642) reveals that the Polish poet was the first to mix description with moral reflection, and to choose the gentle hills, the calmly flowing river, and a retired country life as symbols of the Horatian golden mean.

Some of Casimire's richest imagery is found in his paraphrases of Canticles, and particularly in Ode IV, 21. Parts of this ode provide a striking parallel to the famous fifth stanza of Marvell's "The Garden." In it Horace and Virgil meet with Solomon, the hortus conclusus of the Hebrew poet merging with the landscape of retirement as we find it in Virgil's eclogues or in Horace's second and sixteenth epodes. Much of Casimire's poetry, is indeed best understood as a conscious effort to apply the allegorical technique of Canticles to the classical beatus ille-themes,⁵ just as his thought presents an interesting combination of Stoic and Platonic ideas.

The Polish poet, who was a university professor and a doctor of theology, may easily have learned from the Hermetic writers how to combine these great classical traditions. There is direct proof of Casimire's familiarity with the Hermetic tradition in his Ode II, 5 ("E Rebus Humanis Excessus"), which is a paraphrase of Libellus I, sections 25 and 26.⁶ Since Henry Vaughan was familiar with Casimire's poetry, it is reasonable to suspect that Vaughan's own treatment of Hermetic motifs owed much to this influence. If one compares Vaughan's religious nature lyrics and Casimire's odes, a number of common poetical motifs are easily found, and so we are here again faced with the fact that themes which became popular in England in the mid-seventeenth century were anticipated in the Latin odes of Casimire.⁷

Hermetic ideas are also encountered in Casimire's third epode, which combines a Horatian Stoicism with a neo-Platonic or Hermetic interpretation of the classical landscape of retirement. An avowed reply to Horace's second epode, it expands the Horatian philosophy through the addition of three new themes: the theme of solitude, the theme of the Earthly Paradise, and the theme of Nature as a divine hieroglyph. Its presentation of the garden ecstasy of the retired beatus vir thus strikes the same note to which we know from Mildmay Fane's "To Retiredness" and Andrew Marvell's "The Garden." In slightly adapted form, these themes were to flourish in the poetry of the Countess of Winchilsea, Isaac Watts, John Hughes, and a number of early eighteenth-century nature poets.

In the Romantic period Casimire's fame was again revived. While still a young man, Coleridge planned a complete translation of Casimire's odes, but never finished more than the ode "Ad Lyræ." It was also Coleridge who said that with the exception of Lucretius and Statius he knew no Latin poet, ancient or modern, who could be said to equal Casimire in boldness of conception, opulence of fancy, or beauty of versification.⁸ A knowledge of the themes and techniques of this Latin poet should therefore be of interest to all students of English poetry.

Maren-Sofie Roestvig
University of Oslo

NOTES TO THE INTRODUCTION

1. For a complete bibliography, see Carlos Sommervogel, Bibliothèque de la Compagnie de Jésus (Bruxelles et Paris, 1896), VII, 627-646.

2. In the preface to The Ecstasy. An Ode (1720), John Hughes comments on Cowley's indebtedness, in "The Extasie," to Casimire.

3. Norris's indebtedness has been pointed out by Hoxie N. Fairchild, Religious Trends in English Poetry (New York, 1939-), I, 110, n. 21.

- 4. Compare Watts's "False Greatness," "'Tis Dangerous to Follow the Multitude," and "The Kingdom of the Wise Man" to Casimire's Ode IV, 34; IV, 10; and IV, 3.
- 5. By this term is understood the themes presented in Horace's second epode on the happy country life.
- 6. Hermes Trismegistus, Hermetica, ed. Walter Scott (Oxford, 1924-36), I, 129.
- 7. No study has as yet been made of Casimire's influence upon English literature, but I hope shortly to publish the results of my own investigation of this problem.
- 8. Coleridge prefaced his translation of the ode "Ad Lyræ" with this remark. See also Biographia Literaria, ed. John Shawcross (Oxford, 1907), II, 209. For further critical estimates, see Sir John Bowring, trans., Specimens of the Polish Poets (London, 1827), and Caecilius Metellus, pseud., "On the Life and Writings of Casimir," The Classical Journal, XXV (1822), 103-110.

THE O D E S OF

CASIMIRE

Translated by

G. H.

LONDON,

Printed by T. W. for Humphrey Moseley, at the fige of the Princes Armes in Pauls Church-yard, 1646.

In the original text, the Latin was printed on left-hand (even-numbered) pages, with English on facing pages. Not all translations are line for line. Note that poem numbering is consistently inverted: “Ode 25, Lib. 2” means Book 2, Ode 25. “Epi.” stands for both “Epode” and “Epigram”.

Contents

(list added by transcriber)

Liber 1:	Ode 1	Liber 4:	Ode 3	Epode	1
	Ode 2		Ode 10		2
	Ode 13		Ode 11		3
			Ode 12
Liber 2:	Ode 2		Ode 13	Epigram	4
	Ode 5		Ode 44		37
	Ode 7		Ode 15		40
	Ode 8		Ode 19		48
	Ode 19		Ode 21		51
	Ode 24		Ode 30		110
	Ode 25		Ode 32
			Ode 34
Liber 3:	Ode 4		Ode 35
	Ode 6
	Ode 12

Od. 1. Lib. 1.

Cum infestæ Thracum Copiae Pannoniâ excessissent.

 *Am minæ sævi cecidere belli:
Jam profanatis malè pulsa terris
t salus, & pax niveis revisit Oppida bigis:
im fides, & fas, & amæna præter austitas, læto volat arva curru:
im fluunt passim pretiosa largis*

Od. 1. Lib. 1.

When the hatefull forces of the Thracians departed out of Pannonia.

The threats of cruell Warre now cease;
In stead of them safety and peace Banish'd th'unhallowed earth, do please
'Returne in their white Waine;
Faith joyn'd with Truth, and Plenty too
O're pleasant fields doe nimbly goe;
The precious Ages past, doe flow

Sæcula rivis.
andidi soles veterisq^{ue} venæ ontibus nati revocantur Anni: randinat Gemmis, riguoq^{ue} Cælum Depluit Auro.
leq^{ue} veraci cecinisse plectro iter Octobreis, tua festa, pompas, risca Saturni rediisse sæcla, Approbat Orbis.
urei patrum niveiq^{ue} mores, xul & serâ procul usq^{ue} Thule, andor, & pulchro remeare virtus Audet Olympo.
actis, & fusi per aprica mellis arruli Campos secuêre rivi:
t superfuso tumuêre plenæ Nectare ripæ.
ætior vulgò seges inquietis luctuat culmis, titubantq^{ue} frugum beres Campi, nec avara sulcis Invidet æstas.
astor Erranteis comitatus Hædos rovocat raucas calamo cicadas:
lugiunt Colles, & anhela fessis Silva Iuvencis. ace subsultant juga, pace rident etrica rupes: leve separatos tium colleis amat, & sequestri Gaudia pagi.
æ Ceres flavis redimita culmis, lagne pacati moderator orbis, æ suis Æstas opulenta Circumfundit aristis.
applici Myrtus tibi servit umbrâ, erviunt Lauri: tibi celsa longè

With liberall streames againe.
 Cleare dayes, such yeares as were of old Recalled are, o'th' ancient mold,
 The Heavens hayle Pearles, and molten Gol
 Doth raine down-right in showres;
 Whilst I with my Prophetique string Thy Winter feativalls doe sing,
 The whole world doth with Ecchoes ring
 Old Saturn's age is ours.
 Our Fathers pure and golden rule Exil'd as farre as farthest Thule, Justice from bright Olympus schoole Comes boldly back againe.
 The streams which Milk and Honey yeild,
 Their passage cut through open field,
 And the full banks with Nectar swell'd
 Doe drowne the flowrie plaine.
 The glad Corne in the restles stalke
 Waves, and the fields as wee doe walke,
 So fruitfull reele, to any balke
 The Heat no spight doth owe.
 The Herdsmans Pipe to's wandring Goats,
 Provokes the Grashoppers hoarse notes;
 The tyred Herd with strayned throats,
 Makes Hills and Woods to low.
 The Mountaines leape, and rough Rocks smile
 For gentle Peace rejoyceth still Such solitary roomes to fill Hills set apart, 'lone Townes.
 Ceres with yellow Chaplet, and
 The Summer rich with eares doth stand,
 Great Prince of our appeased Land,
 Thee to encompassse round.
 The Myrtle begs with humble shade
 To serve thee and the Laurel's glade;

*uercus assurgit, tremuloq^{ue} pinus Vertice nutat.
 iderum præses, dominusq^{ue} terræ, ucidâ Romam speculatus aree, eгна tranquillet, Cupidoq^{ue} patrem Te velit orbi.
 aurus annosum tibi signet ævum:
 ata te norint, properentque parcæ escium carpi tibi destinatos Stamen in annos.
 uæq^{ue} formosos sedet inter igneis, edulam pro te miserata Romam irgo, quam circum glomerantur albis Astra choreis.
 urret effusas Latii querelas, irginum castas juvenumque voces urret, & votis procerum reclinem accommodet aurem.*

Ad Aurelium Lycum.

Ode 2. Lib. 1.

Jè plus æquo de adversâ fortunâ queratur.

*Indignas, Lyce, nœnias, Et mæstum gemitu pectus, & hispidis
 rontem nubibus expedi,
 Cum Sol non solito lumine riserit,
 t fortuna volubilis
 Fati difficilem jecerit aleam.*

The lofty Oake doth rise; Its head
 The trembling Pine doth bow;
 Hee that o're Starrs and earth hath powre, Beholding us, from his bright Towre, Calms all, and sets thee father o're
 The covetous world below.
 The Laurell signe long life to thee,
 Let Fates and destinies agree
 To twine thy thred, which cannot bee
 Cut 'till th' appointed time.
 May shee amidst those glorious fires,
 For thy sake, pittying our desires,
 'Bout whom the beauteous starrs inquires,
 And flowing measures swim;
 May shee, I say, our Country's grieve
 Cure, and the chast complaints releive
 Of all our youth, and willing eares
 Apply to th' praiers of all our Peeres.

To Aurelius Lycas.

Ode 2. Li. 1.

That hee would not complaine too muc of adverse fortune.

U Nmanly howlings, Lycuas, leave,
 Thy sad breast doe not vex, nor grieve;
 Thy rugged brow from cloudes set free,
 Although with usuall beames 'on thee
 The Sun not shines; or fortune late Hath throwne the hardest chance of Fate.
 With th' waves, that South windes tosse to day,

quod vexant hodiè Noti, Cras lambent hilares æquor Ætesia.
 læstum sol A hodiè caput, Cras lætum roseo promet ab æquore.
 lterno redeunt choro Risus & gemitus, & madidis propè
 icci cum Lacrymis joci.
 Nascuntur mediis gaudia luctibus, ic fatis placitum. suis Tempesta fluunt fata periculis.
 essos duxit heri boves,
 Dat magnis hodiè jura Quiritibus:
 t quæ bobus ademerat, Imponit Gabiis, & Curibus
 juga.
 lem Phosphorus aspicit Magnum quem tenuem viderat Hesperus.
 uod si seria ludicris Fortuna placeat texere; Rusticus
 esternam repetet casam, Ridentis populi non humilis jocus:
 t queis rexerat omnia, Findet laurigeris ligna securibus.
 uod si defuerit salix Fasces pauperibus subjiciet focis.

The cheerfull Easterne gales will play;
 The Sun that now hangs downe his head,
 With joy from blushing Thetis bed
 I'th' morne will rise. Laughter and woe Keepe time, and in their courses goe.
 Cleare merriment succeeds wet eyes,
 And joyes in mid'st of sorrows rise.
 Thus pleaseth it the Fates, that flow
 With various hazards here below.

Hee who his Oxen tyr'd, did drive,
 Doth lawes to day, to th' City give:
 And the same yokes he tooke from those,
 Upon the Citizens impose.
 The day-starre great, that man doth see,
 Whom th' Evening saw in low degree.
 But if the things that serious are
 With Fortunes pastimes to compare Doth please you; See, this Country-man
 Betakes himselfe to's farme againe, Of's jeering neighbours th'only sport,
 And with those Axes which i'th' Court
 Hee ruled all with, Cleaves his wood,
 Whose Helves are made of Laurell good.
 And if a want of wood there growes,
 The Fasces on the fire he throwes.

Ad Tarquinium Lavinum.

Od. 13. lib. 1.

N On si ^A Sol semel occidit, Non rubris iterum surget ad Indiis;
ec si quos celeris rotæ Sors non exiguo proruit impetu,
on lapsos iterum levet, Arguto docilis ludere cum joco.

e spem projice, Tarquini: Cujus pænè retro lambere pulverem
t vestigia diceris, Cum fortuna levem verterit orbitam,
ffusam super & luto Fumantem poteris cernere purpuram.
unc & risibus abstine,
Neu turpi domino Lumina paveris:
eu calces nimium, memor Fortunæ geminam sæpe jaci pilam.

Ad Publium Memmium.

Ode 2. Lib. 2.

Vitæ humanæ brevitatem benefactis extendendam esse.

To Tarquinius Lavinus.

Ode 13. lib. 1.

A S if the Sun that once doth set,
From th' blushing East a new birth doth not get
As if that those whom Fortunes frowne
By the swift violence of her wheele, throwes down,
Shee would not raise again with ease,
So active in such nimble sports as these.
Despaire not (Sir) whose footsteps now Thou'rt said to kisse, and lick the dust of shooe,
Let Fortune her light wheele but turne,
And then Tarquinius, thou shalt soon discerne
From his proud height, him downward thrus His trampled robes smoking in mire and dust.
Thy jeeres and laughter then forbear,
His all-bespattred lookes thou shalt not feare,
Nor trample on, remembring how Fortune a double ball doth often throw.

To Publius Memmius.

Ode 2. Lib. 2.

That the shortnesse of mans life is to bee lengthened by good deeds.

*Qua tegit Canas modò bruma valleis, Sole vicinos jaculante monteis eteget rursum. Tibi cum nivosa Bruma senecta
 caput seris cecidit pruinis, cecidet nunquam. Cita fugit Æstas, fugit Autumnus, fugient propinqui Tempora veris:
 tibi frigus, capitiq^{ue} cani semper hærebunt, neq^{ue} multa Nardus nec parum gratum repetita dement Serta colorem.*

*ina quem nobis dederat juvenus:
 ina te nobis rapiet senectus:
 sed potes, Publi, geminare magnâ Sæcula famâ, quem sui raptum gemuêre cives.
 hic diu vixit. Sibi quisq^{ue} famam tribat Hæredem: rapiunt avaræ Cetera Lunæ.*

E Rebus Humanis Excessus.

Ode 5. Lib. 2.

I Humana linquo: tollite præpetem Nubesque ventique. Ut mihi devii Montes resedere, & volanti Regna procul, populosque vastos

*The Valleys, now, all clad in gray
 By Winter, when Sol darts his ray
 On neighbouring hills, hee'l naked lay,
 As heretofore.
 But when the winter of thy yeares
 With snow, within thy locks appears,
 When hoary frost shall dye thine haire,
 It parts no more.
 Summer, and Autumn's quickly gone, Th'approaching Spring will passe as soon:
 Gray hayres, and chilling cold alone
 With thee will stay.
 To thy ill colour, Nard distill'd,
 Nor the renew'd perfumes o'th' field
 Of flowres, can any vertue yeild,
 Or tak't away.
 Thee, whom thy youth hath giv'n to day
 At night old age will take away.
 Thy time to double, is, to lay
 A fame most bright.
 Whom snatch'd by death, his friends bemone,
 He hath liv'd long. Let every one Write Fames sole heire: that's free alone
 From th' rape of night.*

A Departure from things humane.

Ode 5. Lib. 2.

*Lift me up quickly on your wings, Ye Clouds, and Winds; I leave all earthly things;
 How Devious Hills give way to mee!*

*Abegit aer! jam radiantia elubra Divum, jam mihi regiæ Turres recessere, & relictæ in Exiguum tenuantur urbes;
Atasq^{ue} qua se cunque ferunt vaga specto Gentes. O lacrymabilis Incerta fortuna! ô fluentum Principia, interitusque rerum!*

*hic ducta primis oppida mœnibus linantur in Cælum: hic veteres ruunt Murique turresq^{ue}: hic supinas Pænè cinis sepelivit arces.
hic mite Cælum, sed rapidæ ruunt bella Gentes: hic placida sedent
In pace, sed latè quietos Dira lues populatur agros.*

hic pænè tellus tota micantibus ardet sub armis: stant acies adhuc Pendente fatorum sub ictu, Et dubio furor hæsitavit bella passu: parte aliâ recens in mista Mavors agmina mutuum Collisit in mortem, & Cadentum Cæde virum, Cumulisque latos sternit agros: hic Mareotica percura merces æquora navigant, Portusq^{ue} certatim frequentes

And the vast ayre brings under, as I fly, Kingdomes and populous states! see how
The Glyst'ring Temples of the Gods doe bow;
The glorious Tow'rs of Princes, and Forsaken townes, shrunke into nothing, stand:
And as I downward looke, I spy Whole Nations every where all scattred lye.

Oh the sad change that Fortune bring
The rise and fall of transitory things!
Here walled townes that threatned Heav'n,
Now old and ruin'd, with the earth lye even:

Here stately Pallaces, that thrust Their heads i'th'ayre, lye buried all in dust.

Here the Ayre Temp'rate is and mild,
But the fierce people rush to warres,
most wild:

Here in a joyfull peace they rest,
But Direfull Murraines their quiet fields lay wast.

Here the whole Land doth scorching
lye
Under the glittering Armes o' th' Enemy
Under the hovering stroke o' th' Fate:
The Armies yet both stand; and fury waites

With doubfull steps, upon the warre; Fresh courage here, the mingled troopes prepare.

Each against other fiercely run,
And mutually they worke destruction:

Centum operis populisque fervent.

*ec una Marti causa, nec unius unt Arma moris. Bellat Adultera Ridentis è vultu voluptas, Inq^{ue} Helena procus ardet orbis.
ic verba bellis vindicat: hic canis, eu vile furtum! Se mala comparant;
Rarum sub exemplo superbit, Nec sceleris scelus instar omne est.*

ous illinc belligerâ latet ib Classe pontus: Jam Thetis æneâ Mugire flammæ procellâ, & Attonitæ trepidare cautes, t ipsa circum littora percuti lajore fluctu. Sistite barbari, Ferroq^{ue} neu simplex, & igni & Naufragio geminate fatum.

The slaughtered heapes in reeking gore
With bloudy covering spread the fields all o're:
Here on safe Seas, as joyfull prize
Is strip'd away th' Ægyptian Merchandize,
Whilst the full Havens thick beset,
Doe furiously with fierce contention fre Mars hath his divers Causes, and His severall fashion'd weapons to command.
From the Adultresse smiling lookes Pleasure doth fight, and unto Warre provokes,
The doting world with Helen burnes.
This sordid man, oh base advantage!
turnes
Revenge of vvords to blowes; Mischiefe begets it selfe, from mischief growes.
Small sins by example higher dare, Nor doth all sin, alvvaies like sin
appeare.
There th'Easterne Sea lyes coverd o'r With vvarlike Fleets: Thetis begins to rore
With stormes of flaming Brasse, and here
Th' astonish'd Rocks all trembling stand with feare.
The troubled Sea vvith vvinds beset With stronger vvaves 'gainst the full shore doth beat.
Forbeare, cruell men to multiply With fire, Sword-vvrack your single destiny.

*arumnè Tellus in miseras patet nmensa mortes? hinc miserabili Quassata terrarum tumultu Stare pavent titubantq^{ue} regna, nâq^{ue} tandem funditus obruunt ives ruinâ. Stat tacitus cinis, Cui serus inscribat viator:
 Cum populo jacet hic & ipso um Rege Regnũ. Quid memorem super-ifusa totis æquora portubus Urbes inundare, & repenti Tecta Deúm sonuisse fluctu.*

*egumq^{ue} Turres, & pelago Casas imjam latentes? jam video procul Merceisq^{ue} differri, & natantem Oceano fluitare gazam.
 lterna rerum militat efficax
 i damna mundus. Cladibus instruit Bellisq^{ue} rixisq^{ue} & ruinis Sanguineam libitina scenam, uprema doxec stelligerum dies laudat Theatrum. Quid morer hactenus Viator aurarum & serenas Sole domos aditurus usque*

Is the large Earth too narrowv grovvv Such slaughters, such dire tragedies to ovvne?

Large Kingdomes there, brought und thrall
 With Tumult, stagger, and for feare doe fall;

Where in one Ruine wee may see
 The dying people all o'rewhelmed lye.
 The silent dust remaines, to let
 The weary Pilgrim this Inscription set (In after times, at hee goes by) King, Kingdome, People here entombed
 lye.

What should I name the raging Seas, Whole Havens over-flowing, and with these

I'th' sudden floud whole Cities drown'd
 The shaken Temples of the Gods that found?

Kings Pallaces what should I name Now sunke i'th' deepe, small Cottages i'th' same?

Vast wealth I see swept downe with t tyde
 Rich treasure in the Ocean floting glyde
 The active world t'each others harme Doth daily fight, and the pale Goddesses armes

The bloody scene with slaughters, warrs,
 With utter ruins, and with deadly jarrs;
 Thus there's no Exit of our woes,
 Till the last day the Theater shall close, Why stay I then, when goe I may—*humana mirer? tollite præpetem estina vatem, tollite nubila Qua solis & Lunæ Labores Cæruleo vehit æthra Campo.

udor? sequaces aut subeunt latus erunt; venti? Jamque iterum mihi Et regna decrevere, & immensæ Ante oculos periêre gentes;*

*uóque semper terra minor Globo im jamque cerni difficilis, suum Vanescit in punctum? ô refusum Numinis Oceanum! ô carentem ortalitatis portubus insulam!
clausa nullis marginibus freta!
Haurite anhelantem, & perenni Sarbivium glomerate fluctu.*

Ad Publium Memmium.

Od. 7. Lib. 2.

☞ Sset humanis aliquod levamen ☞ Cladibus, si res caderent eâdem uâ morâ surgunt; sed humant repentes Alta ruinæ.

To'a house enlightned by the Suns bright ray?

Shall I still dote on things humane?
Lift up your longing Priest, yee Clouds, oh deigne
Lift m'up where th'aire a splendour yeilds
Lights the sun's chariot through the azure fields.

Am I deceived? or doe I see
The following winds on their wings mounting me,
And now againe Great kingdoms ly Whole Nations perishing before mine eye?

The earth which alwayes lesse hath beene Then's Globe, and now, just now can scarce be seene,
Into it's point doth vanish, see!
Oh the brim'd Ocean of the Deitie!
Oh Glorious Island richly free
From the cold Harbours of mortality!
Yee boundlesse Seas, with endlesse flouds of rest
Girt round Sarbinus your panting Priest.

To Publius Memmius.

Ode 7. Lib. 2.

A Midst our losse it were some ease,
If things did fall, with the same sta and leisure
They rise; but sudden ruines seize *il diu felix stetit; inquieta rbium currunt hominumq^{ue} Fata:

otq^{ue} vix horis jacuêre, surgunt Regna quot annis.*

asibus longum dedit ille tempus, ui diem regnis satis eruendis ixit: elato populos habent mo-menta sub ictu.

arce crudeles, moriture Publi, npio divos onerare questu, ensa vicinis nimiùm vagari Funera tectis.

uæ tibi primùm dedit hora nasci, æc mori primùm dedit. Ille longùm ixit, æternum sibi qui merendo Vindicat ævum.

Ad Afterium.

Ode 8. lib 2.

A T nos inani pascit imagine Fortuna rerum. Ludimur Asteri, Umbris amicorum; & doloso Verba simul placuêre fuco,

On our most lofty things, and richest treasure.

Nothing long time hath happy been.
The restlesse Fates of peopled-Cities,
passe:

In a few hour's destroy'd w'have see:
In many yeares what never raised was.

He gave to Chance long time, that sai
One day's enough, whole Kingdomes t'overthrow:

Each moment holds a people swayd
Under a fatall and exalted blow.

Being neere thy death, then, Publius, spare
To load the Gods, with thy blasphemous plaints;

That Funeralls so frequent are,
Or death so much thy neighbours house haunts.

The houre, that first to thee gave life,
That thou should'st likewise dye, gave first to thee.

He hath liv'd long, who well doth strive
Sure alwaies of eternall life to bee.

To Afterius.

Ode 8. l. 2

VV *Are mock'd with 'baytes that fortune flings
And fed with th'empty husks of things: Shadowes, not friends we entertaine;*

es esse stulti credimus. at simul ors infidelem corripuit rotam, Gaudent recedenti Sodales Non eadem dare verba Divæ.

lerumq^{ue} falsis nominibus placent umana. Rari pollicitis data Aequamus: & minor loquaci Religio solet esse voto.

Ex facro Salomonis Epithal.

Ode 19. l. 2.

Similis est dilectus meus capreæ, hinnuloque cervorum.

✓ Itas sollicitæ me similis capræ, Quam vel nimbisoni sibilus Africi, el motum subitis murmur Etesiis Vano corripit impetu.

am seu prima metum bruma tremmentibus icussit foliis, sive Diespiter lisit resonis tela Cerauniis, Incertâ trepidat fugâ.

W'are pleas'd with the deceitfull train Of words, and thinke them deeds. But when Th'unconstant wheele shall turne agen
To th' parting Goddess, wee shall see Those friends the selfe-same word:
deny.
Things Humane under false names
please.
Our gifts match not our promises;
Religion, lesse to be doth use,
Then the large language of our vowes.

Out of Solomon's sacred Mariage Song.

Ode 19. Lib. 2.

THou shunnest me, like to a fearfull
Roe,
Which, as the stormy North-winds blow,
Or the rough noise o' th' suddaine Easterne blast,
Is snatch'd away with forcelesse hast
For th'early frost the trembling leaves doth fright,
Or else the Father of the light Hath hewne from th'ecchoing rocks his thundring darts,
Hee hastens with such doubtfull start:

t qui non ego te quærere desinam, lamatura retrò, Christe, Revertere: & ursus, cùm rapido fugeris impetu, Clamatura, Revertere.

seu te Libani terga virentia, tu formosa rubræ culta Bethuliæ, tu pinguis Solymæ, sive procul cavæ Cingunt rura Capharniæ;

indem sollicitæ pone modum fugæ. am non effugies, Te mihi sedulis ether excubiis prodet, & aureis Prodet Cynthia cornibus.

neglecta gemunt littora, te procul aspirat tacitis aura Pavoniis, noctis vigiles, te mihi vividis Signant sidera nutibus.

Diræ in Herodem.

Ode 24. l. 2.

DEvota sacræ progenies domus!
Fatale monstrum! prodigialium Monstrum parentum! seu Libyssa Marmaricis læ pavit antris,

But till I find thee, I'le not cease, nor rest,

But cry aloud, Returne, ô Christ:
And when with swifter speed thou fly'st away,

Returne againe, ô Christ, I'le say.
The tops of Lebanus, so green and gay,
The faire tilths of Bethulia, Encompasse thee, old Salem's fruitfull
Land,

Or else Capharnia low doth stand.
At length give o're thy sad and carefull flight:

Thou shalt not scape me, th'evening bright
With its so watchfull Centry, thee'l betray,

And th'Moone with golden hornes doth stray.
By th'grones of the neglected shores I'l find

Thee; and by th'sighs o'th' Westerne wind;
Thee the night's watch, the starrs that walke about
With lively signes will point thee out.

Diræ in Herodem.

Ode 24. Lib. 2.

THou Cursed off-spring of that sacre place!
Thou fatall monster of prodigious race!
A Libyan Lyonesse in some Affrick den

*tu te maligno sidere degener ardus maritâ tigride prodidit, Furoris hæredem paterni;
Sive gregis populator Afri*

udum sub alto destituit jugo; tu belluosis fluctibus exspuit Irata tempestas nocentem Alitibusq^{ue} ferisq^{ue} prædam;

io severas pectore marmora uxêre venas, marmora rupibus Decisa, quas Gætula cælebs Deucalio super arva iecit:

sed sede primum livida regiâ legæra fixit: Tisiphone dedit Sceptrum cruentandum feraq^{ue} Imposuit Diadema fronti; & egale nuper cum premeres ebur dsedit altis fulta curulibus, Et per Palæstinos Tyrannis Explicuit sua signa campos.

remensq^{ue} & atrum sanguine â manu lum coruscans secum Odiâ, & Minas, Cædemque & insanos tumultus, Funeraq^{ue} & populorum iniquas

Gave nourishment to thee, thou shame c men.

Or mungrill Libard with a shee-Tiger, hurl'd

Thee, with a mischiefe, into th'hatefull world,

Heyre to the fury of thy Syre, and damn Or some wild Wolfe left thee a naked shame:

Under a huge hard rock: some angry storme,

From waves, with things so full of diver forme,

For birds and beasts, spew'd th'up a banefull prey;

The Marble quarry, 'mid'st the raging Sea,

It's rigid veynes, from thy rough bosom drew;

Marble, from those rocks hewne, Deucalion threw

Over Gætulian fields: Megara first Fix'd th'in thy regall seat, on thee accurst

Then Tisiphon the Scepter did bestow,
And set the Diadem on thy savage brow
And as thy princely Ivory, of late Thou proudly lean'dst upon, close by thee sate

With stately columnes prop'd, fell tyrannie,

Her Ensignes, who through Palestine le fly:

And her black sword with bloody trembling hand

Did brandish round, when straight at he command

trages, & indignum excidium retrò actantis ævi traxit, & inclyta Regnorum, inexhaustasque longis Cladibus evacuavit urbies.

lam & parentum dira gementium amenta, Questusque, & Gemitus retrò, Luctusque vicatim secuti, & Irriguis Lacrymæ catervis.

uòd si caducis decidit amnibus ræsagus imber, quid pluvias sequi Cunctantur ultrices procellæ, Et volucrum strepitu quadrigarum

icussus æther pigra tonitrua & nmugientûm fulmina nubium Compescit, indulgentque metæ Aëriis vaga tela pennis?

Hatreds, and strifes appear'd, murder and rage

The horrid ruine of the new-borne age, Shee drew along; Tumultuous madness, all

The slaughter'd peoples unjust funerall:
Each famous kingdome, inexhausted towne

In a large streame of bloud by her, o're-throwne.

Next followed Her, the complaints, and direfull grones

Of sighing parents, rob'd of their little ones,

Whole tydes of teares, sobs, and lamentings great

And mourning in each corner of the street.

But if this show'r, from this sad cause begun,

In too too narrow rivulets doth run;
Why doe revenging stormes so much delay

To back the rayne? what doth their fury stay?

Why doth the shaken sky with rustling noise

Of the Sun's chariot, bridle in the voice Of the slow thunder? why the lightning stop

From breaking through the clouds with hideous clap?

Those ayrie feather'd arrowes in the darke

That stray, why do they spare their cursed marke?

t nil trisulcis Acroceraunia ejecta flammis, nil Rhodopes jugum, Quassæve peccavêre Cautes Aemathiæ, risi forté dirum

ominatis marmora partibus udêre monstrum: rumpite, rumpite Montisque, facundasque Regum Fulmina præcipitate rupeis.

xspiret auras; occidat, occidat unestus, execrabilis, efferus Sector; crematuramque taxum Ipsè super cumulumque regni

immum cadaver fumet, & aëra ælumque diro liberet halitu Fatale monstrum, dissidentûm Ludibrium Furiarum, & Orci.

errumpe tractus impenetrabileis nava tellus, desuper arduâ Volvente saxorum ruinâ: Quam pelagus super, & refusis

is terque Nereus Syrtibus insonet. udimur. Ingens sidera verberat, Spumamque, limumque, & rapaceis Oceanus glomeravit undas:

Acroceraunia with his three-fork'd flame.
And that huge Hill the Thracian Queen gave name, Æmathia's craggy trembling rocks may passe Guiltlesse; they have not sin'd at all, alasse!
Unlesse their Marble, with a prodigious birth,
This direfull Monster teem'd, t'infest th earth:
Breake then the mountaines, break yee lightnings,
Throw headlong downe ye fruitfull rock of Kings.
May hee expire! oh may the murth'rer
fall!
Most execrable, cruell, tragicall!
Upon his kingdom's pile, and flaming yew
Let his high carkasse blaze; the ayre anew
May th' monster purge from his infectious breath,
The mocke of wrangling furies, and of death.
Oh breake your entayles, sluggish earth and downe
Let the high ruins of the rocks be throwne;
'Gainst which the waves o'th'raging Se may rore
And Nereus with his Quicksands Boiling o're:
Wee're heard. The climbing surges strik the stars

Im nutat æther, jam barathrum propé, istisque campi dissidiis hiant:

Jam fractus illabetur orbis Sacrilego capiti. i, profunda

Expiato pollue Tartara Irranni leto: solus & igneum Insume Cocytum, & frementem Sulphureis Acheronta ripis.

Ex sacro Salomonis Epithalamio.

*Fulcite me floribus, &c. diuro vos, filiæ Jerufalem, ne fulcitetis, &c.
Ecce iste venit, saliens in montibus, transiliens colles, &c.*

ODE 25. LIB. 2.

M*E stipate rosariis,
Me fulcite crocis, me violariis,
Ite vallate Cydoniis,
Me canis, sociæ, spargite liliis:
Iam visi mora Numinis Mî sacris animam torret in ignibus.*

And the big Ocean all her strength prepares;
Her foame, and slimy mud sh'hath heap'd together Devouring waves toss'd with the worst of weather:
The firmament doth shake, & Hell so neere Through the earths large chinks, which gapeth doth appear:
The shatt' red world now falls on's impious head,
Goe, Tyrant with thy death unpardoned, Even Hell it selfe pollute, possesse, alone,
Cocytus, and sulphureous Acheron.

*Out of Solomons sacred Marriage
Song, Cant. 2.*

*Stay me with flagons, &c.
I charge O yee daughters of Jerufalem, that yee stirre not up, nor wake, &c.
Behold hee commeth leaping upon the Mountaines &c.*

ODE 25. LIB. 2.

S*Tay mee with saffron, underneath set
Full banks of Roses, beds of violet; Refresh mee with the choicest fruit, and spread
The whitest Lillies round about my head:
For the delay of the seene-pow're divini*

os ô, vos ego filiæ Cælestis Solymæ; vos Galaditides, os ô per capreas ego Errantesq^{ue} jugis hinnuleos precor, antiqui genus Isaci, Quæ saltus Libani, quæ viridem vago armelum pede visitis, Nymphæ nobilium gloria montium:

e vexate tenacibus Acclinem violis: neu strepitu pedum, eu plausæ sonitu manus Pacem solliciti rumpite somnii:
onec sponsa suo leves Somnos ex oculis pollice terserit:
onec Lucifer aureus Rerum paciferum ruperit otium.

ummis ecce venit jugis Formosæ soboles matris, & unica ormosi soboles patris: Silvarumq^{ue} super colla comantium,
t intonsum Libani caput, Magnorumq^{ue} salit terga cacuminum, ac
roceras nemorum domos
Prono transiliens præterit impetu:

In sacred flames, consumes this breas of mine.
Yee Daughters of that holy Citie, yee!
Yee Sisters! I, 'tis I, that humbly pray
O, I, intreat you, by each Hind, and Roe
That straying o're the tops of Hills doe goe, Yee stock of ancient Isaac, yee that move
With nimble foot through Lebanus sweet grove,
O're Carmels fragrant top! yee Nymphs so faire
The glory of the noble Hills that are,
Molest not my beloved with your cries,
Amongst the twining Violets that lye:
Doe not with claps of hands, or noise of feet,
Awake her, from her carefull slumber yet:
Untill my Spouse, of her owne selfe, shall rise
And wipe away the soft sleep, from her eyes;
Untill the golden day-starre shall release
All things from silent rest, and gentle peace.
Behold from tops of yonder hills doth come
The blessed off-spring of's faire mothers womb,
The only issue of's bright father too,
On the thick tops o'th' groves doth leaping goe,
The unshorne head of Lebanus so hye Hee leaps, and the great backs of Mountaines by,

eloci similis capræ Qua visis humili in valle leonibus, er prærupta, per ardua Sublimi volucris fertur anhelitu.

Ad Egnatium Nollium.

Equo semper rectoque animo, adversus fortunæ inconstantiam standum esse.

Ode 4. Lib. 3.

*Ive te molli vehet aura vento, Sive non planis agitabit undis, ince Fortunam, dubiasque Nolli, Lude per artes.
iserit? vultum generosus aufer.
leverit? dulci refer ora risu:
olus, & semper tum esse quovis Disce tumultu.*

*se te clausus modereris urbem onsul aut Cæsar; quoties minantûm urba fatorum quatient serenam Pectoris arcem.
um leves visent tua tecta casus,*

The stately dwellings of the woods hee skips,
And down again with nimble foot hee trips:
Like to a frighted, and swift running
Roe.
Beholding Lions in a vale below,
With an amazed haste, and deep fetch'd breath
Through uncouth places runs t'escape his death.

To Egnatius Nollius.

That we ought to be of an even and upright mind, against the inconstancy of fortune.

Ode 4. Lib. 3.

ARt thou blow'n on, with gentle gale,
Or in rough waters forc'd to sayle?
Still conquer Fortune, make but sports
Of her, and her uncertain Arts.
Laughs shee? turne bravely away thy face.
Weeps shee? bring't back, with smiling
grace:
When shee's most busie, be thou than Retyr'd, and alwayes thine own man.
Thus close shut up, thine owne free state
Thou best mayst rule, chiefe Magistrate;
When the fierce Fates shall most molest,
The serene palace of thy brest.

When light mischance, thy fort, or thee

*ætus occurre: præeunte luctu austitas & pax subeunt eosdem Sæpe Penates.
 extra sors omnis gerit hoc sinistrum, uòd facit molleis: habet hoc sinistra rosperum, quem nunc ferit, imminenteis Durat in ictus.
 le qui longus fuit, esse magnus esinit mæror, facilem ferendo inge Fortunam; levis esse longo Discit ab usu.*

Ad Marcum Silicernium.

*Veras esse divitias, quæ à bonis animi petuntur.
 Ode 6. Lib. 3.*

¶ Unquam præcipiti credulus aleæ um Fatis avidas composui manus, t mecum taciti fædere prælii Aequâ pace quiescerent.

*uid Fortuna ferat crastina, nesciam,
 æres ipse neci. Quas dedit, auferet, on avellet opes, quæ procul extime Semotæ spatio jacent.*

Shall visit; meet it merrily:
 Good luck, and peace, in that house stay
 Where mourning, first, hath led the way.
 In dext'rous chance, this hurt we see,
 It makes us soft: Extremity—
 This, prosperous hath, wheresoe're it hits,
 It hardens, and for danger fits.

The griefe that hath been of such length,
 Doth 'bate its violence and strength.
 By bearing much, make fortune frees Shee learnes, by custome, light to be.

To Marcus Silicernius.

That thofe are the true riches which are fetch'd from the goods of the mind.

Ode 6. lib. 3.

A Rash believer of their ticklish play,
 With Fates, I ne're joyn'd greedy hands in hast.
 From the strict course of private jarres, that they
 With mee, in such an equall peace should rest.
 I know not what to morrow's fortune brings Heire to my selfe alone. The wealth she gave Lyes in my outmost roomes, 'mongst worst of things;

*uæ possunt adimi, non mea credidi;
unquam pauperior, si mens integer.
egnum, Marce, mei si benè de meis Vectigalia censibus—*

itra me numerem. Pars animi latet ignis, divitibus lætior Indiis, quo non ter spatio longiùs annuo Itur navibus, aut equis.

*ad mens assiduum visitur in diem ospes sæpe sui; non ebur, aut novas mercatura dapes, ipsa sui satis
Dives, si sibi cernitur.*

Ad Aurelium Fuscum.

Omnia humana Caduca, incertaque effe.

Ode 12. Lib. 3.

S I primum vacuis demere corticem ebus. Fusce, velis, cetera diffluunt ternæ more nivis, quæ modò nubium Leni tabuit halitu.

ormosis reseces fortia; displicent. externis trahimur; si malè Dardanis espondens Helenæ pectus amoribus Famosus videat Paris;

Which, without force, she may for taking have.

Things can be ta'ne away, I ne're thought mine;

Not poorer I, if mine owne selfe complea
I kingdome, Marcus, of my selfe I find
If the great custome of mine owne estate

—
Within me I could in just numbers cast.
A great part of my mind lyes close, more wide
Then the rich Indyees are, to which at most But thrice a yeare, we can but sayle or ride.

But my rich mind, oft to it selfe a guest,
By its owne selfe is daily visited;
Not 'bout to buy Toyes for a roome, or feast
If of its selfe it's seen, it's richly fed.

To Aurelius Fufcus.

That all humane things are fraile and uncertaine.

Ode 12. Lib. 3.

I F the first barke, Fuscus, thou would'st but pare
From empty things, the rest will flow,
And vanish quite like vernal snow;
Which melts away, with the mild breath o'th ayre.

Valour from beauty sever'd, slowly moves.
Meere outsides please: had Paris seene Faire Helens heart, how foule 't had beene,

*usquam per medii prælia Nerei entorumque minas splendida deferat
 raii furta thori sed benè mutuo Rerum consuluit jugo aturæ Dominus, quòd niveis nigra, ætis occuluit tristia. Qui bona erum de vario deliget agmine, Consulto sapiet Deo.*

Ad Cæfarem Pauſilipium.

Regnum ſapientis.

Ode 3. Lib. 4.

*Atè minaces horruimus Lethi ↪ Regnare Thracas. Latius imperat,
 Qui ſolus, exemptusque vulgo Certa ſui tenet arma voti.
 nbelle pectus parce fidelibus lunire parmis; neu latus aspero Lorica cinctu, neu decorum Arcus amet pharetraque collum.*

*n Cimber, an te lectus ab ultimis ictus Britannis ambiat, an Geta, Nil allabores; ipſe miles, Ipſe tibi pugil, ipſe Ductor.
 xile regnum, Pauſilipi, ſumus:*

How ill requiting to the Trojan Loves, Ne're, through the midſt of Nereus broyles, had hee
 Or the winds anger, borne away
 O'th' Grecian bed that beauteous prey.
 But Nature's Lord, the mutuall yoke, we ſee Of things hath ord'red well, that black with white,
 Sad things with joyfull cov'red lye.
 And from this various mixture, hee
 The beſt would chooſe, from Heav'n muſt learne the right.

To Cæſar Pauſilipius.

The kingdom of a wiſe man.

Ode 3. Lib. 4.

THe large-commanding Thracians wee Have fear'd. More large command hath hee,
 Who all alone himſelfe retyres,
 And keepes ſure guard o're his deſires.
 Thy unwarlike breſt, with ſhield of prooffe Forbear to fortifie; throw off
 From thy unpractic'd ſides the ſhirt
 Of Mayle, ſo hard about thee girt.
 Let not the Quiver and the bow
 Such homage to thy ſoft neck doe.
 Whether't bee Dane, or Pict, ta'ne out
 From fartheſt Brittaine, hems th'about
 Or Goth, ne're labour much to know Thine owne Commander, Champion too.
 Wee are—'tis true a kingdom ſmall;

*ad se obsequentem qui sibi subdidit,
Hic grande fecit, si suasset Ipse roget peragatque leges.*

*armata Regem non faciet cohors, non tincta vulgi purpura sanguine, Aut nobili stellatus auro Frontis apex, teretique gemmâ.
ex est, profanos qui domuit metus:
ui cùm stat unus, castra sibi facit;
Casumq^{ue} fortunamque pulchro Provocat assiduus duello.
non ille vultum fingit ad improbi secreta vulgi, non popularia Theatra, non illum trophæa, Non volucris movet aura plausu.
eatus, à quo non humilem gravis fortuna vocem, non tumidam levis Expressit umquam curiosus Dum tacitus premit ora fatis.*

*ad prima si quis vulnera non gemit, nullo peregit bella silentio:
Celare qui novit sinistros, Ille potest benè ferre casus.*

*le, & caducis se licet undiq^{ue} suspendat auris pontus, & in caput Unius & flammas, & undam, &
Vertat agens maria omnia Auster,
erum ruinas, mentis ab ardua sublimis aulâ, non sine gaudio Spectabit, & latè ruenti*

But, Pausilipius, hee that shall
His flatt'ring selfe, t' himselfe subdue,
A businesse great doth undergoe;
If his owne lawes hee can perswade,
And doth performe them being made,
An host, makes no Kings title good,
Nor Robes deepe dy'd in peoples blood.
A high brow set with starrs of gold,
Or Jems more glorious to behold.
Hee who hath tam'd all coward feares,
And his owne Guard himselfe prepares,
Who practic'd, in faire combate, first Dares Chance and Fortune do their worst;
That man's a King. Hee doth not faine
His lookes to th' votes o'th' vulgar straine,
The popular stage, and publike shewes
Ne're moves him, nor the ayre that blowes With swift applause; Hee's blest whose sprite,

Fall Fortune sad, or fall she light,
Hath ne're exprest, to th'standers by,
A low complaint, or haughty cry;
But, lest the curious Fates displease—
Hee should, holds modestly his peace.
At's first wounds, who nor grones, nor quakes,
A Conquest with his silence makes:
Hee that mischance knowes how to hide,
The worst of ills, can best abide.
Hee, though the Sea should every where Hang up its waves i'th' flitting ayre;
And the rough winds on him, should presse
Flames mix'd with billowes, nay whole Sea

From the high Court of's lofty mind
I'th' midst o'th' ruine, sport can find;
Sets to his neck to th' falling skye,

*Subjiciens sua collo cælo fundum decoro vulnere fulciet;
iterq^{ue} cæli fragmina, lugubre Telluris insistet sepulchrum, ac Incolumis morientis ævi eres, ab alto prospiciet, magis æc magnæ quam sint quæ pedibus premit,
Quàm quæ relinquet; jam tum Olympi*

Non dubius moriturus hospes. uò cùm volentem fata reduxerint, il interest, an morbus, an hosticus Impellat ensis, quò supremum Urget itur. Semel advehemur

uam navigamus semper in insulam eu lata magnis stravimus æquora Regis carinis; seu Quirites, Exiguâ vehimur phaselo.

lo beatum margine me meus xponat asser. Cur ego sistere Aeterno reformidens quietus Littore, si peritura linquam?

Ad Q. Delliam.

Non tam populari exemplo, quâm potius rationis ductu vitam esse instituendam.

Ode 10. Lib. 4.

LLI, si populo duce

And props the world most valiantly:
To the now gasping Age safe heyre,
Leans on the Earth's sad sepulchre,
Whence, 'midst the fragments of the skye,
Hee sees most clearly from on hye,
How much more great those things appeare, Hee treads on, then indeed they are,
Being then prepar'd, and ready drest
To dye Olympus certaine guest.

Where, when by th' Fates hee's gladly brought,

Whether disease, it matter's not,
Or enemies sword, doth thrust him on,
When his last journey he must run.

To th' Port wee are but once brought in
To which w'have alwayes sayling bin:
Whether, as mighty Princes, wee
In gallant ships have spread the Sea;
Or, as the common sort of men,
In smaller Barks, have carryed been.

May my poore bottome to that brinke
Mee happy bring; why should I shrink—
Safe on th' Aeternall shore to stand,
If with such trash I can shake hand?

To Q. Dellius.

That our life ought not to bee instituted so much by popular example, as by the guiding of reason.

Ode 10. Lib. 4.

EE erre (my Dellius) if wee take

Vita degenerem carpimus
 orbitam,
 Erramus, procul arduis Virtus se nimium seposuit jugis.
 luc quò via tritior, Hoc est certa minùs. Longus inutili
 rror nectitur ordine:
 Et mores populum, non ratio trahit.
 asu vivitur, & viam Non metam premimus, quàm præeuntium er vestigia civium Insanæ strepitus plebis, & improbæ
 oces invidiæ vocant.
 Exemplis trahimur & trahimus retrò,
 oli nemo sibi est malus, Nulli vita sua est: dum vaga postero
 abam turba premit gradu, Sunt primi exitio sæpè sequentibus.
 le Parnassus & integer Plebeiis Helicon cætibus eripit ablimem; undè vagantium Errores animorum, & malè desidis ulgi damna patent. juvat Ex alto intrepidum colle jacentià espectare pericula, & Cantum non propriis vivere casibus.

That baser path of life, the people make;
 W In highest and remotest Hills
 Vertue sequesters up her selfe, and dwells
 There where the way more beaten lyes, Lesse certaine, and more slipp'ry alwayes
 'tis.
 From fruitlesse order, errorrs grow;
 Custome, not reason, drawes the people now.
 Men live by Chance, our time we spend I'th' way, like Truants, and forget the end Where 'mid'st the throng of passers by,
 The noyse of the mad rout, the hatefull cr
 Of envy, calls, wee're drawne amaine
 B'example; others wee draw back againe.
 No man is ill to himselfe alone,
 Nor no mans life is onely call'd his owne Whil'st that the rambling rout treads o're
 With after steps, the heeles of them before They that goe formost are design'd
 A mischiefè oft to those that come behind

 Pernassus, and chaste Helicon Sublimes and takes mee from the vulgar throng:
 From whence, the false mistakes I view
 And wandering mindes of the too slothfull crew;
 And from on hye I fearelesse see,
 With sport, the dangers that below me lye
 Thus warily with joy I live,
 And by, other mens mischances I can thrive.

Ad Sigismundum Lætum.

gloriæ inanis despicientiam & silentium commendat.

Ode 11. l. 4.

Æte, quid cassis sequimur fugacem loriam telis? fugit illa Mauri lore, vel Parthi, regeritque ab ipso Vulnera tergo.
ospes unius negat esse tecti arrulus vulgi favor: hîc inani ure rumores legit, inde veris Falsa remiscet.
hîc velut nidum positurus hæsit, loxx ubi vano vacuum tumultu ectus illusit, tacitis in altum Subsilit alis, æra laus sciri fugit. ipse pulcher æ suâ Titan prohibet videri uce: qui totus potuit latere, Major habetur.
ui premit sacram taciturnitate ectoris gazam; benè non silenti utus in vulgo benè suspicaci Regnat in aulâ.
ræterit mutas benè cymba ripas;
uæ simul raucis strepuère saxis, latus cautam sapiens memento Avertere proram.

Ad Ianum Libinium.

To Sigismundus Lætus.

Hee Commends the despising of vaine-glory, and silence.

Od. 11. Lib. 4.

Why fleeting glory follow wee,
Lætus, with weapons all in vaine?
When like a Moore, or Parthian, shee Flyes at her backe with wounded Trayne.

The Talking-peoples love, denyes
Under one roofo a guest to fix:
With's empty care, one takes up lyes,
And them with truths, doth subt'ly mix,
Another sticks, and thinkes to build
His nest: but when he plainly sees
His empty breast with noise beguild, Aloft with silent wings, hee flees.
True praise would not be knowne; the Sun
Forbids from being seen below
By his own light: and hee that can Ecclipse himselfe, doth brighter show.
Hee that in silence, of his mind
The sacred Treasury containes;
Safety i'th' vulgar noyse doth find:
In's doubtfull Court, and wisely raignes.
Still banks thy Pinnacle well may passe.
But when with hoarse rocks they do roare
Remember wisely to forecast
And turn't aside with wary Oare.

To Ianus Libinius.

Solitudinem fuam excusat.

Ode 12. Lib 4.

Quid me latentem sub tenui lare Dudum moretur, cùm mihi civium

Amica certatim patescant Atria, sæpe rogas Libini.

le plenus, extra quid cupiam? meo i memet ipsum clausus ab ostio,
In se recedentis reviso

Scenam animi vacuumq^{ue} relustro

itæ theatrum, sollicitus mei spectator, an quæ fabula prodii Matura procedam, & supremo Numinis excipienda plausu.

mnes recenset numen, & approbat et culpat actus: quo mea iudice

Si scena non levè peracta est, Sim populo sine teste felix.

di loquacis compita gloriæ lebeia: quam cùm fama faventibus

Evexit auris, sæpe misso

Invidiæ stimulata telo, ut invidentûm territa vocibus, arûm obstinatis & malè fortibus Dimittit alis. Illa nudam

Plangit humum, lacerosq^{ue} saxis

ffligit artus. Me meliùs tegat rivata virtus, & popularia

Numquam volaturum per ora

Hee excuses his retyrednesse.

Ode 12. Lib. 4.

W Hat 'tis detaines me here, and why—
I hide my selfe from every eye.

How in so poore a house I spend
My houres, y'have often ask'd me, friend;
When the free Courts of free-borne men, Fall out, which first shall let me in.
I enjoy my selfe, what need I more?
Of every sense I lock the dore;
And close shut up, a taske I find
In the retyring house o'th' mind:

The Theatre of my life I view
My owne spectator and iudge too—
Whether the tale I first begun
In well digested Acts I've spun;
In every scene, if every clause
Goes neatly off, with heav'ns applause:
Each Action scan'd, is there set free
Or sentenc'd by authoritie—
If there, with well Done I escape,
I'me blest without the peoples clap.
I hate the common road of praise,
Or what the gaping vulgar raise,
Which with a pleasant gale a while Fame hurries, but doth soone beguile:
Now Envie's sting it feeles, ere long
Th' Artillery of some spightfull tongue:
Thus chac'd, with weak'ned wings it dyes;
Or torne, on the bare ground it lyes.
A private fame, a meane house, where I live conceal'd from popular ayre,
Best fits my mind, and shelters me:

Celet iners sine laude tectum. emota laudem si meruit, vetat audire virtus. tutius invidi Longinqua miramur: propinquis Lævus amat comes ire Livor.

Ad Cæsarem Pauſilippium.

Adverſa conſtanti animo ferenda eſſe.

Ode 13. Lib. 4.

S *I quæ flent mala lugubres Auferrent oculi, Sidoniisego lercarer benè lacrymas Gemmis, aut teretum merce monilium,
t ceu rore seges viret, Sic crescunt riguis tristia fletibus.
rget lacryma lacrymam;
Fecundusq^{ue} sui se numerat Dolor.
uem fortuna semel virum Udo degenerem lumine viderit, lum sæpè ferit; mala Terrentur tacito fatæ silentio.
e te, ne tua fleveris Quæ tu, care, vocas, Pausilipi, mala,
uam pellunt lacrymæ, foveant Sortem: dura negant cedere mollibus.
iccas si videat genas,
Duræ cedit hebes sors patientiæ.*

*Vertue t'her owne praise deafe should be.
Our emulation, things a farre off command, But Envy haunts things that are neere at hand.*

To Cæſar Pauſilippius.

That adverſity is to bee endured with a conſtant mind.

Ode 13. l. 4.

I *F mournfull eyes could but prevent
The evils they so much lament Sidonian Pearles, or Gems more rare,
Would be too cheap for ev'ry teare.
But moyst'ned woes grow fresh, and new,
As Come besprinkled with the dew.
Teare followes teare, and fruitfull grieve
Hath from it selfe, its owne reliefe.
The man whom Fortune doth espy
With drooping spirit, and moyst'ned eye,
Shee, often strikes; ill Fate, amaine Runs Scarr'd no notice being ta'ne.
Bewayle not then thy selfe, deare friend,
Or evils that on thee attend;
What they expell, teares cherish oft;
Hard things deny to yeild to soft.
Mischance is conquered, when she spies
A valiant patience with dry eyes.*

Ad Crispum Lævinium.

Rogatus cur læpè per viam caneret, respondet.

Ode 44. ^B Lib 4.

Um meam nullis humeros onustus arcinis tecum patriam reviso ætus, & parvo mihi cumque dives Canto viator.
siles mæstùm: tibi cura Musas emit, & multi grave pondus auri.
uæque te quondam male fida rerum Turba relinquet.
ives est qui nil habet; illa tantùm uæ potest certâ retinere dextrâ, æque fert secum vaga quò, migrare Jussit egestas.
uid mihi, qui nil cupiam, deesse ossit? umbro si placet una Pindi illis: ô sacrum nemus, ô jocosa Rura Camæna!
uæ meos poscet via cunq^{ue} gressus, elphici mecum, mea regna, colles is, & fessum comitante circum-Sistitis umbrâ.
le Gothus sævis religet catenis, le Scythes captum rapiat; solutâ lente, vobiscum potero tremendos Visere Reges.

To Crispus Lævinius.

Being asked why hee sung so often as hee travailed, hee answers.

Ode 44. ^B Lib. 4.

AS cheerefully I walke with thee,
My shoulders from all burdens free.
Our native soyle again to see
Rich to my selfe I sing,

Whil'st care strikes thee, and thy Muse dumb,
The heavy weight of thy vast summe,
Or what estate in time to come
The faithlesse rout may bring.
Hee's rich that nothing hath; Hee that In's certaine hand holds his estate,
That makes himselfe his constant mate
Where need commands him go;
What can I want, that nought desire?
Then Pindus vale, I reach no higher:
O sacred Grove! O pleasant quire
In those coole shades below!
What paths soe're my steps invite Ye Delphian hills, my sole delight
Doe goe with mee; in weary plight,
And veyle me with good grace.
Let th'Goth his strongest chaines prepare,
The Scythian hence mee captive teare,
My mind being free with you, I'le stare
The Tyrants in the face.

Ad Munatium.

Nihil in rebus humanis non tædio plenum esse.

Ode 15. Lib. 4.

N *Il est, Munati, nil, iterum canam, mortale, nil est, immedicabilis Immune tædi. Clarus olim Sol proavis atavisque nobis, arum salubris, nec maculâ reus amnatur unâ; quicquid in arduo Immortale mortales Olympo Vidimus, invidiæ caducâ

uscamus umbrâ. non placet incolis ui Sol avitis exoritur jugis;
Aut prisca quæ dudum paternam Luna ferit radiis fenestram.

ælo quotannis, & patriis leves ligramus arvis; hunc tepidæ vocant Brumæ Batavorum, huic aprici Ausoniæ placuere soles.

rustrâ; fideles si dominum retrò forbi sequuntur, nec tacitus Dolor Absistit, aut Veiente curru, Aut Venetâ comes ire cymbâ.

indemque nobis exulibus placent elicta; certam cui posuit domum*

To Munatius.

That nothing in humane affaires is not full of tediousness.

Ode 15. l. 4.

N *othing Munatius, nothing I sing't
again,
That's mortall, nothing from th' uncured paine
Of tediousnesse is free. The Sun
Which bright to our forefathers shone
To us, but little healthfull, doth appeare,
And though not guilty of one spott, not cleare:
Whatsoe're immortall thing we see
In high Olympus, silly wee Doe over-cast with Envy's shade; here one
From his owne native Hills the rising Sun.
Disclaimes; or th'ancient Moone, that strikes
Her beames through's fathers glasse, dislikes.
Each yeare we change our ayre, and soyle, s light;
Him, Hollands warmer Climate doth invite:
Another differs, and doth cry
Ausonia's clearer Suns please mee.
In vaine all this, if faithfull sicknesses Wait close behind; if secret griefes ne're
cease,
All's one, whether in Chariot
Thou goest, or in Venetian boat.
Poore exiles! then, things left doe please us most,*

*virtus agresti dives in otio se ipsa claudit finibus in suis Plerumque, & insonti quietum
In paleâ solium reclinat.*

Ad Iefum Opt. Max.

Ex facro Salomonis
Epithalamio.

Indica mihi quem diligit anima mea, ubi pascas, ubi cubes in meridie.

Ode 19. Lib. 4.

D Icebas abiens: Sponsa vale; simul icisti liquidis nubila passibus.
Longam ducis, Jesu,
In desiderio moram.

rdet iam medio summa dies polo, im parcit segeti messor, & algidas Pastor cum grege valleis, Et picta volucres petunt.

t te quæ tacitis destinet otiis Jesu regio? quis mihi te locus Cæcis invidet umbris, Aut spissâ nemorum coma?

Who a sure building can from vertue boast,
To him the smoke of's father's Hall
Doth never hurt his eyes at all.
Vertue oft-times, rich in a rustick ease
Confines her selfe to her owne private blisse
And in the guiltlesse straw, her throne
With great delight can leane upon.

Out of Solomon's sacred Marriage
Song.

CHAP. 1. 7.

Tell mee (ô thou whom my soule loveth where thou feedest, where thou makest thy flocks to rest at noone, &c.

παραφραστικῶ

Od. 19. Lib. 4.

Thou said'st, farewell my Spouse, & went'st away
 More fleet then Clouds with liquid paces stray:
 Oh what a longing, Jesu thus
 With thy delay thou mak'st in us?
 'Tis now high noone, the scorching Sun dot burne I'th' mid'st o'th' pole, the mower spares the corne,
 The Shepheard, with his flocks, is glad—
 And painted birds, to seeke coole shade
 But Jesu! where art thou? what region's blest
 By holding thee so long in silent rest?
 What darksome shade denyes my love?

circum quo jaceas cespitem languidus, quis ventus gracili præflet anhelitu, Quis rivus tibi grato Somnum prætereat sono;

h! nè te nimio murmure suscitent ostrea diluerent flumina lacrymæ, Et suspiria crudis Miscerentur Etesiis.

Ex sacro Salomonis Epithalamio.

n dilectus meus loquitur mihi: Surge, propera amica mea, columba mea, formosa mea, & veni. Iam enim hiems transiit, imber abiit & recessit. &c.

Ode 21. Lib. 4.

☞ *Allor? an Elysii lævâ de parte Sereni
Me mea vita vocat!
urge soror, pulchris innectito lora columbis;
Pulchrior ipsa super*

*Or with thick boughs what shady Grove?
Knew I on what green Turfe thou dost repose Thy fainting limbs; what wind with soft breath blowes'
What streame, with bubbling, passing by Disturbs thy sleep, or wakens thee;
Oh! lest the too much noise should raise thee, I Would let fall streams of teares should qualifie;
My warmer sighes thou mix'd should'st find
With the cold blasts o'th' Easterne win*

Out of Salomon's sacred marriage song.

My beloved spake and said unto mee, rise up my love, my Dove, my faire one, and come away; for loe the winter is past, the raine is over and gone: the flowers appeare on the earth, the time of singing of birds is come, and the voice of the Turtle is heard in our Land. The fig tree putteth forth, &c.

Ode 21. Lib. 4.

DO I mistake? or from Elyzium cleare
My life's call doe I heare?
Sister arise, and harness thy sweet paire
Of Doves, thy selfe more faire;
Mount and drive hither, here let thy Chariot
stop,

cande rotas, Libaniq^{ue} levem de vertice currum,
Has, age flecte domos.
d tua decidu fugiunt vestigia nimbi, Turbidus imber abiit:
sa sub innocuis mitescunt fulmina plantis, Ipsa virescit hiems.
iterea sacris aperit se scena viretis Sub pedibusq^{ue} tibi ltera floret humus, alterq^{ue} vagantia lætus Sidera pascit ager.
ic etiam trepidi pendent è rupibus hædi, Præcípitesq^{ue} capræ;
innuleique suis, passim dum flumina tranant, Luxuriantur aquis.
Leo cum Pardo viridis de colle Saniri
Mitis uterque regi, umque suo passim ludunt in montibus agno Exsuperantque juga.
lurimus hos circum tacito pede labitur amnis, Pumicibusque cavis
er violas lapsæ per declives hyacinthos, Exspatiantur aquæ.
enè fluunt rivi, muscosis lenè susurrus Murmurat è scopulis.
i vitrio pisces saliunt hilares crystallo,
Dulcè queruntur aves.

From Libanus hye top;
 At thy approach the falling showres doe fly, Tempestuous stormes passe by,
 The lightning's quench'd under thy harmlesse feet,
 Winter turnes Spring to see't.

While in the sacred Green, a bow're we see Doth spread it selfe for thee.
 The Earth new Turff's it selfe for thee to tread,
 The straying starrs fresh fields make glad.
 Here with their dams, of Kids th'amazed flocks
 Hang on steep sides of Rocks;
 Here as they swim, the wanton Hinds do pla
 In the coole streames all day.

The Lion with the Libard downe is l'ed
 Tame and well governed;
 Each with his Lamb about the Mountaines skip,
 O're Hills they lightly trip.
 By these a spacious brooke doth slowly glide,
 Which with a spreading tyde
 Through bending Lilyes, banks of Violets
 From th'hollow Pumice sweats.
 The rivers gently flow, and a still sound
 From mossie Rocks doth bound.
 The sporting fish dance in the christall Mayne,
 The Birds sweetly complaine,

ec verò, si mæsta placent saletia cælo

Flebile murmur abest: am sibi dum vestro regemunt ex orbe palumbes,

Huc sonus ille venit. ic dum se viduo solatur Carmine turtur,

Gaudia nostra placent. etera non desunt, pronis vindemia pendet

Officiosa botris, îc etiam vulgò violas, albentia vulgó

*Ungue ligustra leges:
sa tibi, leti succos oblita priores, Mitia poma cadent:
sæ maturâ labentur ab arbore ficus,*

Percutientq^{ue} sinum. itereâ falcem vindemia nescit, aratrum

Saucia nescit humus. sæ sponte virent segetes, innoxius ipse

Messibus albet ager. ræbent Hospitium platani: præbet formosos

Graminis herba toros. ædua Pãchæos sudant opobalsama nimbos;

Et genialis odor spirat quoties, nutantibus hinc atque illinc

Ingruit aura comit. urge; quid indignos ducis per tædia soles?

The ayre, if dolefull comforts please, doth ring

With mournfull murmuring.
For when the Doves eccho each others cry
That sound doth hither fly.
As they with widowed notes themselves do
please,
Just so, our joyes increase.

No want appeares; th'officious Vine doth stand
With bending clusters to our hand.
Here, thou shalt pick sweet Violets, and ther Fresh Lillyes all the yeare:
The Apple ripe drops from its stalke to thee,
From tast of death made free.
The luscious fruit from the full Figtree shall Into thy bosome fall.

Meane while, the Vine no pruning knife dot know,

The wounded earth no plow.
The Corne growes green alone, and th'unhu land

Doth white with harvest stand.
The grasse affords a stately bed, the Plane Spreads thee to entertaine.
Arabian mists sweat from the gummy tree
Of Balme, and all for thee;
Which through the ayre, a rich perfume doe throw,
Fann'd with each neighb'ring bough.

Arise my Sister deare, why dost thou stay,
And spend th'unwilling day?

Surge, age, cara soror. cce tuis ipsæ iam circum fræna columbæ Ingemuêre moris. uc age, formosas formosior ipsa columbas Hospita flecte furor.

Ad Ianufsium Skuminum.

Cum coniugi charissimæ iusta perfolveret.

παραφραστικῶς.

Ode 30. Lib. 4.

*I tibi pollicitum numen, si fata fuissent Æternos fere conjugis annos; ire per assiduos (procerum fortissime) fletus Ereptam quererêre, Janussi.
uem Pietas quem non moveat non tristibus unquam Arx animi concussa procellis t pudor, & proni niveo de pectore sensus,
Et Regina modestia morum, ut bona sedulitas, aut non incauta futuri Præsagæ solertia montis?
rovida sed longam magnis virtutibus ævum Non audent promittere fata:
ec possunt, si quæ maturavére, profanis*

*Behold thy harness'd Doves, at thy delay Doe sigh, come, drive away.
Put on, and hither drive thy beauteous paire
Of Doves, thy selfe more faire.*

To Ianufius Skuminus.

When hee performed the Funerall obsequies of his most deare Wife.

παραφραστικῶς.

Ode 30. Lib. 4.

*What though the Gods have promis'd she shall bee
Enfranchis'd to Eternity?
Yet (valiant Sir) so great a losse still cries
For a just tribute from your eyes;
View but her pious mind, that tow're of stat
Not shaken by sad stownes of Fate,
Her humble innocent soule, her guiltlesse
feare,
Her modesty chiefe Regent there;
The prudent thrift of her presaging mind
Her constant zeale, pure and refin'd;
And who can then forbear t'embalme her Hearse
With the daily precious dew of teares?
Tis not in Fate to promise length of dayes,
To things of such esteeme and praise;
Nor can the starrs suffer so ripe a birth
To be long sullied with dull earth.*

Astra diu committere terris. unc adeò parces longis onerare querelis Depositum repentia magnum, igentes animi gazas, & robur, & aureo Incoctum benè pectus honesto.

*ic Tanaquil, sic quæ cunctantem Claudia rexit Virgineâ cervice Cybellen, uæque maritali successit Thessala fato,
Et Latiis vaga Clælia ripis; nte diem raptæ vivunt post funera, vatum
Perpetuos in carmine fastos.
la quidẽ non, si surdos ad carmina Manes Orpheâ testudine vincam, ductas adamante fores, & ahenea rumpat Elysiï pomæria muri, eddaturq^{ue} tibi. Stat nulli janua voto, Nullis exorata Poëtis.
unt tamen exiles insigni in limine rimæ Quà possint arcana videri, æc ego si nullos fallunt insomnia maneis,
Aut vidi, aut vidisse putavi rrantem campo in magno, quem gemmea circum
Perspicuis stant mænia portis:*

Load not the Heavens then with unjust complaints,
For taking back one of their Saints.
The courage of her richly temp' red breast
Made her for them a fitter guest:
Such jewells of her mind sparkle about her
The starres themselves can't shine without her.
Thus Tanaquil; thus Claudia's virgin band
Steer'd the unwilling Barke to land.
Thus shee, that durst her Husbands fate abide,
And Cloelia over Tiber's tyde;
Too early crop'd, survive in Poesie,
And keepe perpetuall jubilie.

'Tis not in Art to fetch her back againe,
Or charme the spirits with Orpheus straine,
To breake the bars of Adamant or scale
The Rampiers of th' Elysian wall,
No Orisons prevaile, sent from the breast
Of great Apollo's choisest Priest.

Yet in the arched entrance chinks there bee,
Which may befriend the covetous eye;
Through these to th'hidden mysteries I peep
And (if the spirits nor dream, nor sleep
I saw, or else me thoughts, I there had seene
Her, wandring o're a Spacious Greene, With walls of Diamond, gates of purest glasse,
No Chrystall more transparent was:
Each blade of grasse was gold, each tree wa there,

uro prata virent; arbor crinitur in aurum;

*Crispantur violaria gemmis, uæ nec Apellæus liquor, nec pulchra trigoni Assimulent mendacia vitri.
entum ibi formosis in vallibus Heroïnæ
Aeternum Pæana frequentant.
tant virides campo stellæ, madidisque corusca Connivent sibi sidera flammis.
la inter medias parvo comitata nepote Et roseo vivacior ore, at ovans, grandemq^{ue} sibi, grandemque nepoti Nectebat de flore coronam.*

*etera me vetuit magni caligo sereni Mortali percurrere visu.
ectu plura velis; satis est, cui fata dederunt
Aeternis mutasse caduca.*

Ad Albertum Turfcium.

De fuis fomniis & lyricis.

Ode 32. Lib. 4.

rsci, seu brevior mihi

A golden Periwig did weare.

The swelling banks of Violets did curle Themselves with Gems, and Orient Pearle;

The glorious nothing, of the Trigon glasse—
And all Apelles Art, which passe.

Through the sweet vales a Quire of Damsels sing

Eternall Pæans to their King.

The stars with sparkling light stand round I see,

Twinkling to their shrill melodie.

Her and her tender darling, then I spy,

I'th' mid'st of that blest company;

With looks more fresh and sweet, then are the Roses

Of which her Garlands shee composes

—

Two flowry Chaplets, which with Gems set round

Her owne and Nephew's temples crown'd.

But here a veyle was drawne, I must not pri
Nor search too farre with mortall eye, Nor would you more. It may suffice that she Hath chang'd fraile flesh for blest Eternitie.

To Albertus Turfcius.

Of his Dreames, and Lyrics.

Ode 32. Lib. 4.

VV Hether a shorter sleep, or whether

*Seu pernox oculos composuit sopor, Pennas Somnia lævibus Affigunt humeris; jamque virentia atus prata superuolo, Quà se cumque novum mollè tumentibus
 ampis explicuit nemus, Herbosæque patet scena superbiæ:
 Iox & nubibus altior, Mistus flumineis ales oloribus;
 ivos despicio lacus,
 Et dulci volucrem carmine mentior.
 im tunc nubila, jam mihi Blandis dissiliunt fulmina cantibus;
 t quæ plurima circuit
 Collum, puniceâ vincior Iride.
 lem jam vigil, & meus,
 Non ingrata simul somnia dispuli, ùm ter mobilibus lyram Percussi digitis, immemor & ducis
 il sectator Horatii, Sublimis liquidum nitor in aëra;
 t nunc littera, nunc vagas Siccis trajiciens passibus insulas,
 il mortale mei gero, &
 Jam nil sollicito debeo ponderi.*

A long one (Turscius) joyns mine eyes together
 In my soft dreames, me thinks, I see
 To my light shoulders wings set on, and I
 With joy transported, upward soare,
 The flowry Meddowes, and the pastures o're;
 Where the greene Grove its coole shade yeilds
 To th'stately grasse plotts, and ripe swelling fields:
 Straight, 'mid'st the river Swans, up hyer
 A winged fowle above the cloudes I'aspire;
 The lively Lakes below, I sleight,
 And with sweet straines a bird I counterfeit.
 See, now me thinkes, the cloudes in throngs
 The lightning leaps too, at my ravishing songs;
 Iris about my neck hangs round,
 And with her divers colour'd bow, I'me bound.
 Being now my selfe, and newly wak'd,
 My not unwelcome dreames, just now off shak'd;
 Thrice o're my Lute, I scarce had run
 With nible finger neat division;
 Remembring Horace, Thee, my guide,
 When my high Genius through th'ayre doth ride;
 Now o're the scatt'red Islands, then O're Seas, with dry feet passing back again;
 Nothing that's mortall of mee, now
 I beare, and nought to my dull bulke I owe.

Tursci, sæpè tamen mones Olim ne veteri clarior Icaro peris fabula casibus Mutem Parrhasii nomina Balthiri.
 rustra; nam memor Icari, Addo stultitiæ consilium brevi:
 nam, seu dormio, me torus;
 Seu scribo, stabili sella tenet situ.

Ad Quintum Tiberinum.

Ode 34. Lib. 4.

D Iuitem numquam, Tiberine, dices,
 uius Eois potiora glebis ura, fortunæ sine fæce pulcher Rivus inaurat;
 uem per insigneis geniale ceras gemma claravit; vaga quem per urbes
 uem per & gentes radiante vexit Gloria curru.
 auper est, qui se caret; & superbè se se librans, sua rura latam addit in lancem, socioq^{ue} fallens Pondus in auro, eteris parvus, sibi magnus uni, se se nescit, pretioque falsa lebis attollit, propriaq^{ue} se mi-ratur in umbrâ.
 plendidam verâ sine luce gazam, argidum plenâ sine laude nomen litte; te solo, Tiberine, disces

Yet Turscius thou hast often told,
 And warn'd mee, lest then Icarus of old
 By a true fall indeed, I make A lowder tale, and change the name o'th'Lake.
 In vaine: Remembring Him, I had A care, and counsell, to my folly, add:
 For when I sleep, in bed I lye,
 And if I write, my secure chaire holds mee.

To Quintus Tiberinus.

Ode 34. Lib. 4.

T Hou shalt not Tiberinus, call Him rich, whose every Acre shall Outvie the Easterne glebe, whose field
 Faire Fortune's clearest streame doth gild.

 Nor him, whose birth, and pedigree
 Is fam'd abroad by's Heraldrie;
 Hee who by fleeting glory's hurld
 In his rich Chariot through the world:

 He's poore that wants himselfe, yet weighs Proudly himselfe; in this scale layes
 His lands, in th'other broad one, by,
 The false weight of his gold doth lye,
 Great to himselfe, to others small,
 That never knowes himselfe at all,
 As the false people raise him higher,
 Himselfe in's shadow hee'l admire.
 The fairest Gemme without true light,
 Without true praise great titles, flight:
 Blest Tiberinus, and most free

Esse beatus.

Ad Paulum Collovium.

Ode 35. Lib. 4.

*Am pridem tepido veris anhelitu Afflarunt reduces arva Favonii;
Jam se florida vernis Pingunt prata coloribus:*

tratus frugiferis Vilia C puppibus rato præter abit rura silentio, Quamvis proximus omni Collis personet alite;

*uamvis & viridi pastor ab aggere icat gramineâ carmina fistulâ.
Et qui navita debet Plenis otia carbasis.*

*Equat Palladiis, Paulle, laboribus interpone vices. Cras simul aureo Sol arriserit ore
Summorum juga montium,* *candemus viridis terga Luciscii, uâ celsâ tegitur plurimus ilice,

Et se prætereuntûm Audit murmura fontium.*

hinc è medio tota videbitur obis Vilna C jugo; tota videbitur Quæ Vilnam sinuosis

In thy selfe alone thoul't learne to bee.

To Paulus Collovius.

Ode 35. Lib. 4.

THe Westerne winds, with the warm breath o'th' Spring, Returne, and o're our fields their soft gales fling;

The flowry-garnish'd Meadows by,
With freshest colours painted lye.
The River, which the gainfull ships so throng,
With welcome silence gently glides along,
Although the neighbouring Hill doth ring
With the shrill notes of birds that sing;
Although the Swaine, on the green bank tha sits

Old Sonnets with his Oaten Pipe repeats,
Although the Seaman doth not faile
At length to strike his full blowne sayle
To thy Palladian labours interpose Such changes Paullus; when the Sun forth
showes

And with his golden presence smiles
On the hye tops of highest Hills, Wee'l mount the back of green Luciscus, where Hee's thickest set with tallest Okes, and heare

The bubbling noise of streames that flow
From Fountaines that close by him goe Thence from the midst o'th'hill all Vilna C shall
Our prospect be; our eye shall lower fall—

Ambit Vilia flexibus.

hinc picta procul quæ radiantibus ulgent fana tholis, & geminam super

Despectabimus arcem, Magni regna Palæmonis.

t longo faciles Pacis in otio æ tollunt populi! nam tria tertio Surrexêre sub anno Priscis templa Quiritibus;

t quâ conspicuis se Gediminia ictant saxa jugis, & Capitolium, Et quæ tecta superbis Intrant nubila turribus.

*uget magna, Quies: exiguus labor
i majus modico provenit otio.
Hinc & terga virentûm Latè prospice collium.*

*uæ nunc mobilibus nutat Etesiis, ægni cana stetit sub nive populus:
Qui nunc defluit, altà Hæsit sub glacie latex:*

*ui nunc purpureis floret ager rosis, nmoto sterilis delituit gelu:
Verno quæ strepit ales, Hiberno tacuit die.*

rgò rumpe moras, & solidum gravi

On Vilia's cooler streames, that wind,
And with embraces Vilna bind.

From thence, farre off, the Temples wee'l behold,

And radiant Scutcheons all adorn'd with gold;

Then wee'l looke o're that double towre,
Th'extent of great Palæmon's pow're.

How in a settled peace, and kingdoms rest
The easie people raise themselves, so blest!

Three Temples in three yeares w'have seen

To th'Citizens have reared been;
Where Gediminian Rocks themselves extoll
With their plaine tops, and then the Capitol, Those buildings, whose proud turrets stretch

Themselves to th'Cloudes, and stars doe reach:

Great things to greater growth doe thus increase,

And with least paines, improve themselves by peace.

Here, tops of Hills, themselves behold,
In all their flowry pride unfold.

The Poplar now that shakes, when th'East winds blow

Stood cloth'd in gray, under the ling'ring snow:

The Springs that now so nimbly rise,
Were all of late lock'd up, in Ice:

The fields that now with blushing Roses spread,

Lay barren, and in hardest frost all hid:

The birds which chirping sit i'th'Spring;
When Winter comes, forget to sing.

uræ deme diem, quem tibi candidus Spondet vesper, & albis Cras Horæ revehent equis.

Breake off delayes then, and from grievous care
A constant day, set by; which th'ev'ning fai
Doth promise, and the next dayes Sun
With his white Steeds will freely run.

ad Paulum Iordanum Vrfinum Bracciani Ducem.

Bracciani agri amœnitatem commendat, ad quam per ferias Septembres secesserat Româ.

To Paulus Iordanus Vrfinus, Duke of Bracciano.

Hee commends the pleasantnesse of the Countrey, where in the feasts of September, he retyred from Rome.

Ode 1. Lib. Epod.

Iuc ô quietis apta Musis otia, Levesque Ludorum chori;
uc feriantûm Phæbe Musarum pater, Huc hospitales Gratiaë;
uc delicatis ite permisti Jocis Non inverecundi Sales:
îc otiosi mite Bracciani solum Vago coronemus pede.

*lemens supino clivus assurgit jugo, Cælumq^{ue} paulatim subit, t solida subter terga scopulorum arduo Securus inessu premit:
rcisq^{ue} jactat inter alta turrium*

Ode 1. Lib. Epod.

Apppeare ye spritefull Quire with choices sports,
All pastime fit for Phæbus Courts;
And Thou great Master of the Revels, joyne
The Graces, to thy Daughters nine; Witt pure and quaint, with rich conceits and free
From all obscæne scurrilitie:
Here free from care, nimbly let's dance a round
Upon Bracciano's softer ground.
A gentle Cliffe from a steep Hill doth rise
That even to Heaven, mounts by degrees,
And safe, with uncouth passage, leanes upon
The solid backs, of Rocks and stone:
Whence 'mid'st the Bulwark'd Forts, we may descry

Insigne propugnacula, imenda quondam Cæsarum turmis ducum, Timenda magno Borgiæ, ùm per minantùm militum aratos globos Metuenda jaceret fulmima, geretque profugum Cæsarem, & quassum metu;
Adusque promissum Nihil.
Îc ille magnus frænat Etruscas opes Ursinus Heroum decus, æres avitæ laudis, & princeps caput Magnæq^{ue} laus Oenotriæ.
ircùm coruscis scena quercetis viret, Cælumque verrit frondibus, ioque colles vestit, & patentibus Sese theatris explicat.

dmota muris ponè Nympharum domus Aprica præbet littora: ipamque Baccho jungit, & vallum
propè.
Lentis flagellat fluctibus.
lajore nusquam stagna Neptuno
sonant,
Aut æstuantis Larii, ut qui severo tangit Albanus lacu Inenabilem Styga:
ut quæ procellis gaudet, & magno fremet Superba ponto Julia:

A displayd Banner from on hye,
 Which to th' Imperiall force a terrour was,
 A terrour to great Borgias,
 When through the brasen troops of's threatning foes,
 His fearfull thunder-bolts he throwes, Pursuing routed Cæsar, whom he brought
 To that he promis'd him, to nought.

Great Ursin here puts reynes toth' Tuscan pow're
 The grace of Heroes and the flow're; Heire to his father's worth, chiefe guide and stay
 And praise of great Oenotria.
 A Bow're growes green, set round with trembling Oakes
 Which fanns the Heavens with gentle strokes.
 It clothes the Hills, and spreads it selfe all over
 To th' open Theaters a cover.
 Close joyn'd to th' walls, the Nymphs coole Arbour stands,
 Which to the Sunny shore commands;
 By these a banke of Vines, which th' neighbour Trench
 With milder waves doth daily drench.
 Nowhere the Lakes with fuller Sea doth roare,
 Either of Larius that boyles o're,
 Or rough Albanus whose troubled waves do mix
 With the unnavigable Styx:
 Not stormy Julia, when her swelling pride
 Most rageth in her highest tyde:

ec major usquam spumat, & rupes truci

*Benacus assultat salo. itonsa curvo monte circumstant
juga, Mitesque despectant aquas.
ivosus illinc terga Romanus movet, Cæloque diducit minas:
linc caducis ilicem quassat comis Sublime Cymini caput: rudumque Boream frangit impotentibus Depræliaturum Notis, errisque latè regnat, & cæli minis Opponit hibernum latus.*

*mica sternit interim lacum quies, Fluctusque fluctu nititur, t ipsa secum pigra luctatur Thetis, Aquæque collidunt aquis:
uas vel carinâ, vel citata turgido Findit phaselus linteo:
innâque latè vitreum cogens pecus Velente lino truditur, etâque piscem ducit, & raris procul Lacum coronat retibus.*

*inc alta lucet divitis Pollæ domus, Hinc pinguis Anguilaria:
rebonianas hinc amica vineas Vadosa plangunt æquora:
inc delicati fundus Aurelî nitet, Lymphæ salutaris pater:
ndâque morbos arcet, & vivacibus*

Benacus doth not raise more froth, when he Assaults the rocks with fiercest Sea.

With rugged tops the bending mountaines
round

Upon the slow calme streames looke downe.

Romanus here his snowy back up-reares.

And drawes downe envy from the starres.

The lofty head of Cyminus here shakes

The Oke with trembling leaves which quakes,

And holds off Boreas, when his rawer blasts

'Gainst the weake Southerne winds he casts,

Commands the Country farre, and out he sei

His Winter sides against Heavens threats.

Meane while a pleasant calme doth smooth

the Lake,

The waves 'gainst one another breake,

Mild Thetis selfe, with her own selfe finds sport,

And waters doe the waters court:

Through which a ship doth cut, with pleasar gales,

Or nimble Barke with swelling sayles:

The large-fin'd Chrystall cattell as they goe

Are forced whether they will or no

With ready dragnet; then with lines of haire

They round the Lake, or Nets more rare.

Rich Polla's stately house there shines, and

here

Full stored Fish-ponds doe appeare:

The friendly Foords which toward the Sea doe lye

Water Trebonian Vineyards by;

Lucem fluentis eluit.

t quà superbum fontibus nomen dedit

*Suumque Flora marginem, ivis perennes decidunt saxis aquæ, Camposque decursu lavant, atremque longè Tybrin, & regem
sonant,*

*Romæque servitum fluunt. incera circùm regna naturæ nitent;
Et artis immunes loci:
adhucque virgo sulcus, & montes adhuc*

Molleis inexperti manus, Ieramque Bacchus Tethyn, & Bacchum Thetis,

*Et pinguis invitat Ceres.
inc ille lætus surgit, & tenacibus Inserpit ulmis Evius, doque cornu turget, & fluentibus Crinem racemis impedit.
on Lesbos illi, non odorati magis Vineta rident Massici, ut quæ Falernis educata solibus Sublucet uvæ purpura.*

*æd nec Falisci glaream malit soli, Nec pinguis uber Rhætiae;
ec flava tantùm culta felicitis Cypri,*

Here neat Aurelius farme looks gay, chiefe
Lord

And Master of that healthfull Foord, Whose water cures diseases, whose quick springs

Doe purge out all infectious things.
Where Flora makes the banks, and gives the name

To Fountaines, proud of so much fame;
From lively stones perpetuall waters flow,
And wash the fields wheresoe're they goe
Their father Tyber, and their King they foun
And flow to Rome, with homage bound.

Nature doth purely there advance each part,
Not any place is help'd by Art:
As yet the virgin furrow, th'Hills yet stand Untouch'd, by any tender hand.
Chast Tethys, Bacchus courts, Thetis doth woo
Bacchus againe, and Ceres too.

Hence Evius cheerfull rises, and doth twine
With th'Elme, that closely clings toth'
Vine,
With's plenteous horne he swells, his locks hang by—

With flowing Clusters tangled lye.
Not Lesbos him, nor the sweet smelling
grace,

Of rich Campania's fruitfull race Delights; the purple Grape not so faire
showes,

In the Falernian sun that growes.
Hee'l not preferre Faliscus sandy ground,
Nor Rhætia, that doth so abound;
The yellow Tilths of happy Cyprus, hee

*Graiámve dilexit Rhodon: uantùm suis superbit, & sese suis Miratur in canalibus.
ircùm beatis imperat campis Ceres.
Lateque rura possidet:
t arva flavo messium fluctu tument, Motuque culmorum natant.*

*inube rarus inquinat cælum vapor, Aut tensa nimbis vellera:
ut è Boreis bella ventorum plagis, Raucusque silvarum fragor uditur usquam: non protervis insonant Exercitati Syrtibus, uris & Austris contumaces Africi, Et perduellibus Notis.*

*intùm serenus Vesper, & tenerrima Etesiarum flamina.
Ibique soles, & serena lucidis Aspirat aura montibus:
uramque cælo provehunt Horæ facem,
Et Phæbus Horarum pater eculiari luce colles irrigat, Pronaque perfundit die.*

*amis tepentes ingruunt Favonii Jocantis auræ sibilo, t temperatis provocant suspiriis, Leniq^{ue} somnum murmure.
t non loquaces interim nidi tacent, Matresque nidorum vagæ.*

Ne're lov'd so much, nor Rhodos by:
As in his owne — in his owne channells hee
Hugging himselfe, doth proudly lye.
Sole Empresse Ceres of the fertile lands Whose large possessions shee commands
The fields with yellow waves doe ebbe and flow,
The ripe eares swim, when winds doe blow.

No vapour, here, Heavens cleared face doth staine,
No cloudy fleece stretch'd out with raine
The Northerne blasts are still, and all at peace,
And the hoarse noise o'th' woods doth
cease:

The stubborne Africke winds that use to stra
About th'unruly sandy Sea,
Are all hush'd up, and no Alarum sound
To th' other winds, entrenched round;
Onely the Evening faire, a gentle gale
Of winds that each year never faile:
The bright Sun darting through th'enlightne
Ayre

His beames, doth guild the Moutaines
cleare,
The houres drive on heav'ns torch, that shin
so bright,
And Phæbus father of the light—
With a peculiar influence bedewes
The Hills all o're, when night ensues.
The warme Favonian winds with whistling gale
Doe merrily the boughs assaile,
And with their temperate breath, and gentle noise,
Sweet pleasing slumbers softly raise.

ad aut maritis turtur in ramis gemit, Et saxa rumpit questibus, ut læta latè cantibus mulcet loca Famosa pellex Thraciæ.

*Ilvisq^{ue} coram plorat, & crudelibus Accusat agris Terea:
uacumque mæsta vocibus dicunt aves, Respondet argutum nemus, ffatur alnum quercus, ornum populus,
Affatur ilex ilicem,
t se vicissim collocuta redditis Arbusta solantur sonis.*

*hic ô Quiritûm ductor, huc Oenotriæ
O magne regnator plagæ Jordanæ, tandem plenus urbis & fori, Rerumque magnarum satur, pone curis temet, & domesticis Furare pectus otii.
hic vel tuarum lene tranabis vadum Opacus umbris arborum, iosque colleis inter, & tuas procul Perambulabis ilices:
hic cum Decembri campus, & prima nive
Vicina canescent juga;*

The prateling Nests meane while no silence keep,

Their wandring guests ne're sleep.
To's mate, the Turtle 'mong'st the branches grones,
And with complaints breakes hardest stones,

The Nightingale, the pleasant Groves about Refresheth, with her warbling note, Bewayles her losse to th'woods, i'th' cruell fields

'Gainst Tereus her cryes shee yeilds:
And what the mournfull birds doe so complaine,

The shrill woods answer back againe.
The Oke, the Alder tells; the Poplar tree
The Ash; and that, the Elme stands by.
The Groves rejoyce with th'Eccho they afford

And tell them backe—ev'n word for word
Jordanus here, hither thy selfe command,
Great Ruler of th'Oenotrian land.

Withdraw thy selfe from cares, from all resort

So cloy'd with' Citie, and with Court,
So full of great affaires, at length thy breast Convey to thy domestick rest.

Here thou may'st passe thy Foord, in gloom shade,

On each side, by thine owne trees made,
And here between thy Mounts, with tall Oke
set,

A large walke thou shalt get:
Or in December, when the fields looke
white,

And th'Hills, with the earlyest snow doth light;

*unc impeditas mollibus plagis feras, Silvamq^{ue} præcinges metu:
unc incitato capream rumpes equo, Teloque deprendes aprum;
ictaq^{ue} cervos collocabis spiculo, Furesq^{ue} terrebis lupos.*

*uid si Latinæ laus Alexander plagæ, Sacraque sidus purpuræ, cum paterno feriabitur solo, Seseq^{ue} curis eximet;
iique cives, hospitesq^{ue} civium Toto fruemur gaudio.*

Ad fontem Sonam.

In patrio fundo, dum Româ rediiffet.

Ode 2. Lib. Epod.

*¶ Ons innocenti lucidus magis vitro Purâque purior nive, agi voluptas, una Nympharum sitis, Ocelle natalis soli.
ongis viarum languidus laboribus Et mole curarum gravis huscis ab usque gentibus redux, tibi Accline prosterno latus:*

Sometime th'entangled game, with twining nett

I'th' wood, with feare thou shalt besett:
Sometimes with courser fleet, pursue full sore,

The Buck thou mayst, sometimes the Bore;
With thy thrown dart the red Deer thou shalt stick.

And th'frighted ravenous Wolves shalt strick,

And if that Starre o'th' sacred dignity
The glory of all Italy,
Will also from his cares, himselfe make free
And keepe his Festivals with thee;
Each Citizen of thine, and every guest
With the compleatest joy is blest.

To the Fountaine Sona,

When hee returned.

Ode 2. Lib. Epod.

O Fount more cleare then spotlesse glasse
More pure, then purest snow e're was,

The Nymphs desire, and Countries grace,
Thou joy of this my Native place.

Tyr'd with a tedious journey, I,
And press'd with cares that grievous lye,
From the farre Tuscan Land made free

Thus low I bow my selfe to thee:
Oh, if thou canst, vouchsafe to bee

ermitte siccus, quà potes, premi; cavâ

Permitte libari manu.

ic te quietum nulla perturbet pecus,

Ramusvè lapsus arbore:

ic dum loquaci prata garritu secas,

Et lætus audiri salis;

ssibilantes populetorum comæ

Ingrata ponant murmura ibi, lyræq^{ue} Vatis: haud frustrâ sacer

Nam si quid Urbanus probat, lim fluenti leuè Blandusiæ nihil

Aut Sirmioni debeas.

Press'd, and with hollow palme drawne dry.

So let thy peace no wandring beast

Disturb, no broken bough, thy rest:

So when thou cutt'st with prattling noise

The Meads, and leap'st, men heare thy voice;

May th'whistling leaves of Poplar trees

With their unwelcome murmurs cease—

To thee, and thy Priests Lute: if nought

Urban approves, in vaine is thought

T' Blandusia thou canst nothing owe;

Nor to milde flowing Sirmio.

Palinodia

Ad secundam libri Epodon

Odam Q. Horatii Flacci.

Laus otii Religiosi.

Ode 3. Lib. Epod.

A T ille, Flacce, nunc erit beator Qui mole curarum procul

aterna liquit rura, litigantium

Solutus omni jurgio;

ec solis æstum frugibus timet suis,

Nec sidus hiberni Jovis,

ixasq^{ue} vitat, & scelestæ curiæ

Rapacioris limina.

rgo aut profanis hactenus negotiis

Amissa plorat sidera;

A Palinode

To the second Ode of the booke of Epodes of Q. H. Flaccus.

The praise of a Religious Recreation.

Ode 3. Lib. Epod.

B Ut, Flaccus, now more happy he appeares,

Who, with the burthen of his cares, Farre off hath left his father's ground, set free

*From the fierce wrangling Lawyer's fee;
No scorching heat, nor blasts of Winter Jove*

*Doth hurt his fruit, or him can move:
Hee shuns all strifes, and never doth resort*

The sinfull gates o'th' greedy Court.

But either doth bewayle those dayes and nights,

Lost by him in prophane delights;

*ut in reductâ sede dispersum gregem
 Errantis animi colligit, ostquam beatæ lucra conscientiæ Quadrante libravit suo.
 lem, propinquâ nocte, stellatas vigil Cùm vesper accendit faces,
 t gaudet immortale mirari jubar, Terrâque majores globos,
 t per cadenteis intueri lacrymas Rimosa lucis atria, uæ Christe tecum, virgo quæ tecum colat Perennis hæres sæculi!*

*olvuntur aureis interim stellæ rotis,
 Pigrumque relinquunt exulem, er ora cujus uberes eunt aquæ, Somnos quod avertat graveis.
 t quando lotum Gangis aut Indi fretis
 Jam Phæbus attollit caput, lentis profundus, & sui totus minor Irata flectit numina:*

*el cum sereno fulserit dies Jove, Aprilibusque feriis,
 ssueta cælo lumina, in terras vocat Lateq^{ue} prospectum jacet, amposq^{ue} lustrat, & relucens suâ Miratur in scenâ Deum.*

Or else retyr'd, strives to collect and find
 The dispers'd flock of's wandring mind;
 Having first fairly pois'd the recompence
 And gaines of a good conscience.

At evening, when the harbinger of night
 The torches of the sky doth light, How he admires th'immortall rayes breake forth,
 And their bright Orbes, more large then earth;
 How through his trickling teares, he heips h fight,
 Unto the open Courts of light,
 Which with thy selfe, ô Christ, thy selfe in pray'r

He' Adores, t'Eternall life an heire!
 The Starres with golden wheeles, are hurried by,
 And let their prostrate exile lye,
 Over whose face, the plenteous teares doe
 stray,
 Which chase all drowsie sleepe away;
 Assoone as Phæbus head begins t'appare,
 Lately in Indus streames made cleare, From depth of soule, lesse then himselfe he lies,

And bends the angry pow'rs with cries:
 Or when the Sun shines cleare, the aire serene,

And Aprill Festivals begin,
 His eyes, so us'd to Heaven, he downe doth throw,

On a large prospect here below:
 He viewes the fields, and wondring stands t see

In's shade the shining Deitie.

n omnis inquit, herba non morantibus

*In astra luctatur comis: emota cælo lacrymantur, & piis Liquuntur arva fletibus;
igustra canis, & rosæ rubentibus Repunt in auras brachiis;
strisque panda nescio quid pallido Loquuntur ore lilia, t serò blandis ingemunt suspiriis, Et manè rorant lacrymis.*

*gône solus, solus in terris piger Tenace figor pondere?
ic & propinquas allocutus arbores, Et multa coram fontibus ivisque fatus, quærit Auctorem Deum
Formosa per vestigia.*

*uod si levandas mentis in curas vigil Ruris suburbani domus, uales Lucisci, vel Nemecini Lares, Udumvè Besdani nemus udeis adornet rusticâ mensas dape Siccos sub Augusti dies;
im tunc sub ipsum limen, aut domesticâ Lenis sub umbrâ populi, xpectat omnis hospitem suum penses,
Et concha sinceri salis,*

See how (saies he) each herb with restlesse leaves

To th' starres doth strive and upward heaves:
Remov'd from heaven they weep, the field
appeares
All o're dissolv'd in pious teares:
The white-flowr'd Woodbine, and the blushing Rose

Branch into th'aire with twining boughs;
The pale-fac'd Lilly on the bending stalke,
To th' starres I know not what doth talke;
At night with fawning sighes they' expresse their fears

And in the morning drop downe teares.
Am I alone, wretch that I am, fast bound And held with heavy weight, to th' ground?
Thus spake he to the neighbouring trees, thu he

To th' Fountaines talk'd, and streames ran by,
And after, seekes the great Creator out
By these faire traces of his foot.
But if a lightsome Country house that's free
From care, such as Luciscu's bee,
Or Nemicini's, if Besdan's fruitfull field
Can Grace to his rude table yeild,
To his plaine board with country dainties set
In August's dry and parching heat;

Even at his dore, under a private shade
By a thick pleasant Poplar made,
Provision of all sorts, expect their guest,
A shell with salt, pure and the best,
New bread, for which, 'midst the thin bryar:
the Mayd

*ressiq^{ue} meta lactis, & purus calix, Et hospitalis amphora,
 t fraga, raris verna quæ dumis legit, Jucunda panis præmia.
 on me scari tunc, non Lucrinorum gravis Sagina mulorum juvet:
 æd cereus palumbus, aut turtur niger;
 Aut anser amnis accola,
 t eruditam quæ fugit gulam faba, Lætumque nec simplex olus,
 t quæ suprema colligitur, ac gravi Patella nil debet foro.
 ost hæc vel inter læta quercetis
 juga,
 Vel inter amneis juverit itare tristeis post meridiem Notos Sub æsculo vel ilice;
 igrumvè littus, aut opaca lubricis Tranare stagna lintribus, ictâque fruge ludibundum ducere Tremente piscem lineâ.*

*emugit ingens interim tauris nemus, Umbrosa balant flumina;
 t aut in antris garriunt acanthides, Aut in rubis luscinia.
 inc per rubeta pastor errantes capras Vocante cogit fistulâ:
 linc herili messor è campo redux Alterna plaudit carmina;*

Picks Strawberries, and's gladly payd.
 Cheese newly press'd, close by, the friendly
 Cann

With Cup cleane wash'd, doth ready stan

With me the Lucrine dainties will not down
 The Scare, nor Mullet that's well growne;
 But the Ring-dove plump, the Turtle dun doth looke,

Or Swan, the sojourner o'th' brooke,
 A messe of Beanes which shuns the curious pallet,

The cheerfull and not simple sallet;
 Clusters of grapes last gathered, that misse
 And nothing owe to th'weighty presse.

Then after noone he takes a kind of pride
 To th'Hills to walke, or River side,
 And 'midst the pleasant Okes, a shade doth find,

T'avoyd the blasts o'th' Southern wind;
 To th'darksome shore, by the deep poole he goes,

And through, with nimble Boat he rowes; Sometimes the sporting fish, his baite thrown in,

Hee plucks up with his trembling line.
 Meane while th' spacious woods with ecchoing note

Doe answer to the Bulls wide throat,
 The shady rivers bleat; the Nightingale
 I'th' bushes chirps her dolefull tale.
 With's hastning pipe the sheapheard drives away

His flocke, which through the thickets
 stray:
 To which as from the field they passe along,
 Each mower sings by course, his song;

t pressa sectos plastra per sulcos gemunt Ruptura ruris horrea.
t nec tacemus ponè considendum Dulcis manus sodalium;
ec infacetâ sermo differtur morâ,
Sed innocentibus jocis, [ultoq^{ue} tinctus, sed verecundo sale, Innoxium trahit diem.
æc si videret fenerator Alphius, Olim futurus rusticus, uam collocarat Idibus pecuniam, Nollet Kalendis ponere.

Epig. 4. Ex Lib. Ep.

Veniat delectus meus in hortum suum. Cant. 5.

*U*lcher Amor sumpsit rudis instrumenta coloni, Et sua deposuit tela suasque faces:
t manibus stivam rapuit; castique laboris
Ad sua ruricolâs junxit aratra boves.
icet, ut facili subvertit vomere corda, Castaque virginibus Gratia crevit agris;

O're yeilding furrowes, carts full press'd with corne
 Groane, and are like to breake the barne.
 Our worke once done, we doe not silent sit,
 When knots of our good fellowes meet;
 Nor is our talke prolong'd with rude delay;
 In harmlesse jests we spend the day;
 Jests dip'd in so much salt, which rubbing shall Onely make fresh our cheeks, not gall.
 If that rich churle, this had but seen, when hee
 A Country man began to be,
 The money which i'th' Ides hee scraped in Next month hee'd not put out agen.

Epig. 4.

Let my beloved come into his Garden.
Cant. 5.

*L*Ove takes the tooles of a rude Country clowne,
 His owne Artill'ry, and his torch layes down;
 With staffe in's hand, Oxen to th'Plow he se
 For tillage, and such honest labour fit; Straight, as he turn'd up hearts with easie share,
 And grace i'th' virgin-furrowes did
 appeare,
 'Mongst thousand others, one flower, quoth
 he, is mist:

*los, ait, unus abest: sunt cetera millia florum;
Ut nullus possit, Christe, deesse, Veni.*

Qualis est Dilectus tuus? ex
Cant. 5.

Ex Lib. Epig. 37.

Qualis erat, tuus ille? tuus pulcherrimus ille?
Dicebat nuper barbara turba mihi.
rripio dextrâ pennam, lævaque tabellam, Et noto, Christe, tuo quicquid in orbe noto.
ingo rosas, aurum, gemmas, viridaria, silvas,
Arva, lacus, celeri sidera pingo manu;
t tabulam monstrans, Noster pulcherrimus, inquam, Qualis erat, vultis discere? talis erat.

Epig. 40. Lib. Ep.

Veni de Libano sponfa.

[T fugis, & fugiens clamas, quid sponsa moraris?
Non fugis, ut fugias: ut capiare, fugis,

That none may wanting be, come thou,
O Christ.

Who is thy Beloved? Out of Cant. 5.
Lib. Epig. 37.

WHat is that Spouse of thine? that faires
Hee?
The barb'rous people said, of late, to mee
A Pen I tooke, and in a Tablet drew Whatsoe're, O Christ, in thy blest orbe I view.
Roses, and Gold I paint, Gems, Groves,
Corne-land,
Green Gardens, Lakes, and Stars with nimble hand;
Would you needs learne, what might my fairest bee?
Looke o're this tablet, pray, O such was Hee.

Epig. 40.

THou run'st, & running cry'st, why dost thou stay
My Spouse? thou would'st be ta'ne, not get away.

Ex lib. Epi. 48.

—— Lilia manu præferenti.

I Æc, quæ virgineis nituntur lilia culmis,
Undè verecundas explicuêre comas?
on generant similes Pæstana rosaria flores,
Nec simili Pharius messe superbit ager:
on hæc purpureis mater Corcyra viretis,
Nec parit æquoreis pulsa Carystos aquis.
ùm nullas habeant natales lilia terras,
Qui neget è castâ lilia nata manu?

Ex Lib. Ep. 51.

Iohanni de Lugo, dum post morbum ad intermissam de œenitentiâ doctrinam rediret.

I Ertur inornatis nuper Metanæa capillis Flesse, repentinâ cùm raperêre febri:
ertur & indomito frænos laxasse dolori,
Et lacrymis madidos exhibuisse sinus:

Ep. 48.

To —— bearing Lillyes in her hand.

T Hese Lillyes which on virgin stalks doe bend,
From whence do they their chaster leaves extend?
The Pæstan beds such flowres did ne're bring forth,
Nor Pharian fields e're gloried in such worth:
Alcinous purple banks, ne're teem'd with these,
Nor rich Carystos watred by the Seas.
Since then these flow'res no native place do know,
Who can deny from her chaste hand they grow.

Ex. Lib. Ep. 51.

To Iohan de Lugo, when after a long sicknesse, he returned to his intermitted Lecture of Repentance.

W Ith hairs unkemb'd Repentance late did mourn,
When with so feirce a Feaver thou wert torne:
Shee's said, to let loose raynes t'untamed griefe, To'afoord her moyst'ned bosome, no reliefe,

*um rursus domito repetis tua pulpita morbo, Fertur inornatas disposuisse
 comas:
 t domitos hilari risu frænasse dolores,
 Et lacrymis vacuos explicuisse sinus.
 uis, Pater, incolumi de te non gaudeat, ipsæ
 Si gaudent Lacrymæ, ridet & ipse Dolor?*

Christi in Cruce vox. Ep. 110.

SITIO.

A *H sitio, clamas, Princeps pulcherrime rerum:
 Non habeo pro te dulcia vina, siti.
 tamen, ah sitio, clamas: dabo pocula, Sponse:
 Heu mihi! sed misto pocula felle dabo.
 æc mi Sponse, bibe: quæris cui fortè propines?
 Ad me pro mundi, Christe, salute bibe.*

But when th'desks agen, thy sicknesse tam' Thou mountd'st, she's said her careless haire t'have kemb'd T'have bridled in her conquer'd griefe, and smile,
 Of teares, her open'd bosome to beguile.
 Who cannot then be glad, thou being safe?
 When teares rejoyce, and griefe it selfe doth laugh.

The voyce of Chrift upon the Crosse.

I THIRST.

A *Las I thirst, great King, thou loude dost grone,
 I have no pleasant Wine for Thee, thirst on.
 Yet oh I thirst, thou cry'st: a Cup to thee Woes mee! I'le give: but mix'd with gall' must be.
 Drink this, my Spouse: perhaps thou'lt ask t whom?
 To me, O Christ, to th'health o'th'world let't come.*

FINIS.

*Imprimatur, Na. Brent.
 Feb. 10. 1645.*

PUBLICATIONS OF THE AUGUSTAN REPRINT SOCIETY

Many of the listed titles are available from Project Gutenberg. Where possible, links are included.

FIRST YEAR (1946-1947)

Numbers 1-6 out of print.

Titles:

1. Richard Blackmore's Essay upon Wit (1716), and Addison's Freeholder No. 45 (1716).
2. Anon., Essay on Wit (1748), together with Characters by Flecknoe, and Joseph Warton's Adventurer Nos. 127 and 133.
3. Anon., Letter to A. H. Esq.; concerning the Stage (1698), and Richard Willis' Occasional Paper No. IX (1698).
4. Samuel Cobb's Of Poetry and Discourse on Criticism (1707).
5. Samuel Wesley's Epistle to a Friend Concerning Poetry (1700) and Essay on Heroic Poetry (1693).
6. Anon., Representation of the Impiety and Immorality of the Stage (1704) and anon., Some Thoughts Concerning the Stage (1704).

SECOND YEAR (1947-1948)

- 7. John Gay's The Present State of Wit (1711); and a section on Wit from The English Theophrastus (1702).
- 8. Rapin's De Carmine Pastoralis, translated by Creech (1684).
- 9. T. Hanmer's (?) Some Remarks on the Tragedy of Hamlet (1736).
- 10. Corbyn Morris' Essay towards Fixing the True Standards of Wit, etc. (1744).
- 11. Thomas Purney's Discourse on the Pastoral (1717).
- 12. Essays on the Stage, selected, with an Introduction by Joseph Wood Krutch.

THIRD YEAR (1948-1949)

- 13. Sir John Falstaff (pseud.), The Theatre (1720).
- 14. Edward Moore's The Gamester (1753).
- 15. John Oldmixon's Reflections on Dr. Swift's Letter to Harley (1712); and Arthur Mainwaring's The British Academy (1712).
- 16. Nevil Payne's Fatal Jealousy (1673).
- 17. Nicholas Rowe's Some Account of the Life of Mr. William Shakespeare (1709).
- 18. "Of Genius," in The Occasional Paper, Vol. III, No. 10 (1719); and Aaron Hill's Preface to The Creation (1720).

FOURTH YEAR (1949-1950)

- 19. Susanna Centlivre's The Busie Body (1709).
- 20. Lewis Theobald's Preface to The Works of Shakespeare (1734).
21. Critical Remarks on Sir Charles Grandison, Clarissa, and Pamela (1754).
- 22. Samuel Johnson's The Vanity of Human Wishes (1749) and Two Rambler papers (1750).
- 23. John Dryden's His Majesties Declaration Defended (1681).
- 24. Pierre Nicole's An Essay on True and Apparent Beauty in Which from Settled Principles is Rendered the Grounds for Choosing and Rejecting Epigrams, translated by J. V. Cunningham.

FIFTH YEAR (1950-1951)

- 25. Thomas Baker's The Fine Lady's Airs (1709).
- 26. Charles Macklin's The Man of the World (1792).
- 27. Frances Reynolds' An Enquiry Concerning the Principles of Taste, and of the Origin of Our Ideas of Beauty, etc. (1785).
- 28. John Evelyn's An Apologie for the Royal Party (1659); and A Panegyric to Charles the Second (1661).
- 29. Daniel Defoe's A Vindication of the Press (1718).
- 30. Essays on Taste from John Gilbert Cooper's Letters Concerning Taste, 3rd edition (1757), & John Armstrong's Miscellanies (1770).

SIXTH YEAR (1951-1952)

- 31. Thomas Gray's An Elegy Wrote in a Country Church Yard (1751); and The Eton College Manuscript.
- 32. Prefaces to Fiction; Georges de Scudéry's Preface to Ibrahim (1674), etc.
- 33. Henry Gally's A Critical Essay on Characteristic-Writings (1725).
34. Thomas Tyers' A Biographical Sketch of Dr. Samuel Johnson (1785).
- 35. James Boswell, Andrew Erskine, and George Dempster. Critical Strictures on the New Tragedy of Elvira, Written by Mr. David Malloch (1763).
- 36. Joseph Harris's The City Bride (1696).

SEVENTH YEAR (1952-1953)

- 37. Thomas Morrison's A Pindarick Ode on Painting (1767).
38. John Phillips' A Satyr Against Hypocrites (1655).
39. Thomas Warton's A History of English Poetry.
40. Edward Bysshe's The Art of English Poetry (1708).
41. Bernard Mandeville's "A Letter to Dion" (1732).
42. Prefaces to Four Seventeenth-Century Romances.

Additional Notes

Variant Spellings

Introduction: The editor's name, printed "Roestvig", is more correctly Røstvig.

Latin: The use of œ and æ in words such as "moestus" is in the original. Accents are variously acute ´, grave ` or circumflex ^, with no apparent difference in meaning. Some do not even mark long syllables.

English: Variation between -w- and -vv- is in the original.

Typography: In both languages, poem titles were randomly Italic or Roman. Italicization (or de-italicization) of 's in possessives is also random.

Long s (ſ)

At the beginning of p. 10 there appears to have been an accident with the Italic type trays. Almost all long s's (ſ) on p. 10 (signature 5v), and many on p. 12 (signature 6v), are misprinted as f, except in the -st- and -ss- ligatures. Misprints are shown in red, correct forms in blue; the page thumbnails are linked to larger views. Note the one f-for-f error on page 12.

10 Od. Casimiri.
Mœstum fol hodiè caput,
Cras latum roſeo promet ab equore;
Alternò redeunt choro
Rifus & gemitus, & madidis propè
Sicci cum Lacrymis joci.
Naſcuntur mediis gaudia luctibus,
Sic fatiſ placitum. ſuis Tempeſtiva ſiunt fata periculis.
Feſſos duxit heri boves,
Dat magnis hodiè jura Quiritibus:
Et quæ bobus ademerat, Imponit Gabiis, & Curibus iuga.
Idem Phosphorus aſpicit
Magnum quem tenuem viderat Heſperus.
Quod ſi feria ludieris
Fortuna placeat texere; Ruſticus
Heſternam repeteſ caſam,
Ridentis populi non humilis jocus:
Et queſ rexerat omnia,
F. ndos laurigeris ligna ſecuribus.

12 Od. Caſimiri.
Quod ſi deſuerit ſalix Faſces pauperibus ſubjiciet focis.
Ad Tarquinium Lavinum.
Od. 13. lib. 1.
Non ſi Sol ſemel occidit,
Non rubris iterum ſurget ad Indiis;
Nec ſi quos celeris rota Sors non exiguo promiſit impetu,
Non lapſos iterum levet,
Arguto docilis ludere cum joco.
Ne ſpem projice, Tarquini:
Cujus panè retro lambere pulverem
Et veſtigia diceris,
Cum fortuna levem verterit orbitam,
Effuſam ſuper & luſo
Fumantem poteris cernere purpuram.
Tunc & riſibus abſtine,
Neu turpi domino Lumina paveris:
Neu calces nimium, memor Fortuna geminam ſepe jaci pilam.

"Ode 44, Lib. 4."

The printed number is retained, though it is almost certainly an error for "14" (between 13 and 15). The error may have been carried over from the source text.

Vilna : Vilia

In Ode 35 of Lib. 4, "Vilna" is the city (modern Vilnius, Wilna in Polish), "Vilia" the river (modern Vilia).

Page Numbering

Page numbers 95-96 are repeated, and the setback in numbering continues to the end of the text. The folio numbers (in duodecimo, or sets of 24 pages) remain correct.

 END OF THE PROJECT GUTENBERG EBOOK THE ODES OF CASIMIRE, TRANSLATED BY G. HILS ***

Updated editions will replace the previous one—the old editions will be renamed.

Creating the works from print editions not protected by U.S. copyright law means that no one owns a United States copyright in these works, so the Foundation (and you!) can copy and distribute it in the United States without permission and without paying copyright royalties. Special rules, set forth in the General Terms of Use part of this license, apply to copying and distributing Project Gutenberg™ electronic works to protect the PROJECT GUTENBERG™ concept and trademark. Project Gutenberg is a registered trademark, and may not be used if you charge for an eBook, except by following the terms of the trademark license, including paying royalties for use of the Project Gutenberg trademark. If you do not charge anything for copies of this eBook, complying with the trademark license is very easy. You may use this eBook for nearly any purpose such as creation of derivative works, reports, performances and research. Project Gutenberg eBooks may be modified and printed and given away—you may do practically ANYTHING in the United States with eBooks not protected by U.S. copyright law. Redistribution is subject to the trademark license, especially commercial redistribution.

START: FULL LICENSE

THE FULL PROJECT GUTENBERG™ LICENSE

PLEASE READ THIS BEFORE YOU DISTRIBUTE OR USE THIS WORK

To protect the Project Gutenberg™ mission of promoting the free distribution of electronic works, by using or distributing this work (or any other work associated in any way with the phrase “Project Gutenberg”), you agree to comply with all the terms of the Full Project Gutenberg License available with this file or online at www.gutenberg.org/license.

Section 1. General Terms of Use and Redistributing Project Gutenberg electronic works

1.A. By reading or using any part of this Project Gutenberg electronic work, you indicate that you have read, understand, agree to and accept all the terms of this license and intellectual property (trademark/copyright) agreement. If you do not agree to abide by all the terms of this agreement, you must cease using and return or destroy all copies of Project Gutenberg electronic works in your possession. If you paid a fee for obtaining a copy of or access to a Project Gutenberg electronic work and you do not agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement, you may obtain a refund from the person or entity to whom you paid the fee as set forth in paragraph 1.E.8.

1.B. “Project Gutenberg” is a registered trademark. It may only be used on or associated in any way with an electronic work by people who agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement. There are a few things that you can do with most Project Gutenberg electronic works even without complying with the full terms of this agreement. See paragraph 1.C below. There are a lot of things you can do with Project Gutenberg electronic works if you follow the terms of this agreement and help preserve free future access to Project Gutenberg electronic works. See paragraph 1.E below.

1.C. The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation (“the Foundation” or PGLAF), owns a compilation copyright in the collection of Project Gutenberg electronic works. Nearly all the individual works in the collection are in the public domain in the United States. If an individual work is unprotected by copyright law in the United States and you are located in the United States, we do not claim a right to prevent you from copying, distributing, performing, displaying or creating derivative works based on the work as long as all references to Project Gutenberg are removed. Of course, we hope that you will support the Project Gutenberg mission of promoting free access to electronic works by freely sharing Project Gutenberg works in compliance with the terms of this agreement for keeping the Project Gutenberg name associated with the work. You can easily comply with the terms of this agreement by keeping this work in the same format with its attached full Project Gutenberg License when you share it without charge with others.

1.D. The copyright laws of the place where you are located also govern what you can do with this work. Copyright laws in most countries are in a constant state of change. If you are outside the United States, check the laws of your country in addition to the terms of this agreement before downloading, copying, displaying, performing, distributing or creating derivative works based on this work or any other Project Gutenberg work. The Foundation makes no representations concerning the copyright status of any work in any country other than the United States.

1.E. Unless you have removed all references to Project Gutenberg:

1.E.1. The following sentence, with active links to, or other immediate access to, the full Project Gutenberg License must appear prominently whenever any copy of a Project Gutenberg work (any work on which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” appears, or with which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” is associated) is accessed, displayed, performed, viewed, copied or distributed:

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere in the United States and most other parts of the world at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg™ License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.org. If you are not located in the United States, you will have to check the laws of the country where you are located before using this eBook.

1.E.2. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is derived from texts not protected by U.S. copyright law (does not contain a notice indicating that it is posted with permission of the copyright holder), the work can be copied and distributed to anyone in the United States without paying any fees or charges. If you are redistributing or providing access to a work with the phrase “Project Gutenberg” associated with or appearing on the work, you must comply either with the requirements of paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 or obtain permission for the use of the work and the Project Gutenberg trademark as set forth in paragraphs 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.3. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is posted with the permission of the copyright holder, your use and distribution must comply with both paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 and any additional terms imposed by the copyright holder. Additional terms will be linked to the Project Gutenberg License for all works posted with the permission of the copyright holder found at the beginning of this work.

1.E.4. Do not unlink or detach or remove the full Project Gutenberg License terms from this work, or any files containing a part of this work or any other work associated with Project Gutenberg.

1.E.5. Do not copy, display, perform, distribute or redistribute this electronic work, or any part of this electronic work, without prominently displaying the sentence set forth in paragraph 1.E.1 with active links or immediate access to the full terms of the Project Gutenberg License.

1.E.6. You may convert to and distribute this work in any binary, compressed, marked up, nonproprietary or proprietary form, including any word processing or hypertext form. However, if you provide access to or distribute copies of a Project Gutenberg work in a format other than “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other format used in the official version posted on the official Project Gutenberg website (www.gutenberg.org), you must, at no additional cost, fee or expense to the user, provide a copy, a means of exporting a copy, or a means of obtaining a copy upon request, of the work in its original “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other form. Any alternate format must include the full Project Gutenberg License as specified in paragraph 1.E.1.

1.E.7. Do not charge a fee for access to, viewing, displaying, performing, copying or distributing any Project Gutenberg works unless you comply with paragraph 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.8. You may charge a reasonable fee for copies of or providing access to or distributing Project Gutenberg electronic works provided that:

- You pay a royalty fee of 20% of the gross profits you derive from the use of Project Gutenberg works calculated using the method you already use to calculate your applicable taxes. The fee is owed to the owner of the Project Gutenberg trademark, but he has agreed to donate royalties under this paragraph to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation. Royalty payments must be paid within 60 days following each date on which you prepare (or are legally required to prepare) your periodic tax returns. Royalty payments should be clearly marked as such and sent to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation at the address specified in Section 4, “Information about donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation.”
- You provide a full refund of any money paid by a user who notifies you in writing (or by e-mail) within 30 days of receipt that s/he does not agree to the terms of the full Project Gutenberg™ License. You must require such a user to return or destroy all copies of the works possessed in a physical medium and discontinue all use of and all access to other copies of Project Gutenberg™ works.
- You provide, in accordance with paragraph 1.F.3, a full refund of any money paid for a work or a replacement copy, if a defect in the electronic work is discovered and reported to you within 90 days of receipt of the work.

- You comply with all other terms of this agreement for free distribution of Project Gutenberg™ works.

1.E.9. If you wish to charge a fee or distribute a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work or group of works on different terms than are set forth in this agreement, you must obtain permission in writing from the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the manager of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark. Contact the Foundation as set forth in Section 3 below.

1.F.

1.F.1. Project Gutenberg volunteers and employees expend considerable effort to identify, do copyright research on, transcribe and proofread works not protected by U.S. copyright law in creating the Project Gutenberg™ collection. Despite these efforts, Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, and the medium on which they may be stored, may contain “Defects,” such as, but not limited to, incomplete, inaccurate or corrupt data, transcription errors, a copyright or other intellectual property infringement, a defective or damaged disk or other medium, a computer virus, or computer codes that damage or cannot be read by your equipment.

1.F.2. LIMITED WARRANTY, DISCLAIMER OF DAMAGES - Except for the “Right of Replacement or Refund” described in paragraph 1.F.3, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the owner of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark, and any other party distributing a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work under this agreement, disclaim all liability to you for damages, costs and expenses, including legal fees. YOU AGREE THAT YOU HAVE NO REMEDIES FOR NEGLIGENCE, STRICT LIABILITY, BREACH OF WARRANTY OR BREACH OF CONTRACT EXCEPT THOSE PROVIDED IN PARAGRAPH 1.F.3. YOU AGREE THAT THE FOUNDATION, THE TRADEMARK OWNER, AND ANY DISTRIBUTOR UNDER THIS AGREEMENT WILL NOT BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR ACTUAL, DIRECT, INDIRECT, CONSEQUENTIAL, PUNITIVE OR INCIDENTAL DAMAGES

EVEN IF YOU GIVE NOTICE OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGE.

1.F.3. LIMITED RIGHT OF REPLACEMENT OR REFUND - If you discover a defect in this electronic work within 90 days of receiving it, you can receive a refund of the money (if any) you paid for it by sending a written explanation to the person you received the work from. If you received the work on a physical medium, you must return the medium with your written explanation. The person or entity that provided you with the defective work may elect to provide a replacement copy in lieu of a refund. If you received the work electronically, the person or entity providing it to you may choose to give you a second opportunity to receive the work electronically in lieu of a refund. If the second copy is also defective, you may demand a refund in writing without further opportunities to fix the problem.

1.F.4. Except for the limited right of replacement or refund set forth in paragraph 1.F.3, this work is provided to you 'AS-IS', WITH NO OTHER WARRANTIES OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR ANY PURPOSE.

1.F.5. Some states do not allow disclaimers of certain implied warranties or the exclusion or limitation of certain types of damages. If any disclaimer or limitation set forth in this agreement violates the law of the state applicable to this agreement, the agreement shall be interpreted to make the maximum disclaimer or limitation permitted by the applicable state law. The invalidity or unenforceability of any provision of this agreement shall not void the remaining provisions.

1.F.6. INDEMNITY - You agree to indemnify and hold the Foundation, the trademark owner, any agent or employee of the Foundation, anyone providing copies of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works in accordance with this agreement, and any volunteers associated with the production, promotion and distribution of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, harmless from all liability, costs and expenses, including legal fees, that arise directly or indirectly from any of the following which you do or cause to occur: (a) distribution of this or any Project Gutenberg work, (b) alteration, modification, or additions or deletions to any Project Gutenberg work, and (c) any Defect you cause.

Section 2. Information about the Mission of Project Gutenberg

Project Gutenberg is synonymous with the free distribution of electronic works in formats readable by the widest variety of computers including obsolete, old, middle-aged and new computers. It exists because of the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and donations from people in all walks of life.

Volunteers and financial support to provide volunteers with the assistance they need are critical to reaching Project Gutenberg's goals and ensuring that the Project Gutenberg collection will remain freely available for generations to come. In 2001, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation was created to provide a secure and permanent future for Project Gutenberg and future generations. To learn more about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and how your efforts and donations can help, see Sections 3 and 4 and the Foundation information page at www.gutenberg.org.

Section 3. Information about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation is a non-profit 501(c)(3) educational corporation organized under the laws of the state of Mississippi and granted tax exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Foundation's EIN or federal tax identification number is 64-6221541. Contributions to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation are tax deductible to the full extent permitted by U.S. federal laws and your state's laws.

The Foundation's business office is located at 41 Watchung Plaza #516, Montclair NJ 07042, USA, +1 (862) 621-9288. Email contact links and up to date contact information can be found at the Foundation's website and official page at www.gutenberg.org/contact

Section 4. Information about Donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

Project Gutenberg™ depends upon and cannot survive without widespread public support and donations to carry out its mission of increasing the number of public domain and licensed works that can be freely distributed in machine-readable form accessible by the widest array of equipment including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit www.gutenberg.org/donate.

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: www.gutenberg.org/donate.

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg electronic works

Professor Michael S. Hart was the originator of the Project Gutenberg concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For forty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as not protected by copyright in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.

Most people start at our website which has the main PG search facility: www.gutenberg.org.

This website includes information about Project Gutenberg, including how to make donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, how to help produce our new eBooks, and how to subscribe to our email newsletter to hear about new eBooks.

*Massum fol hodiè caput, Cras latum rofeo promet ab equore:
Alternò redeunt choro
Rifus & gemitus, & madidis propè
Sicci cum Lacrymis joci.
Nascuntur mediis gaudia luctibus,
Sic fatis placitum. suis Tempestiva fluant fata periculis.
Fessos duxit heri boves,
Dat magnis hodiè jura Quiritibus :
Et qua bobus ademerat, Imponit Gabiis, & Curibus jùga.
Idem Phosphorus aspicit
Magnum quem tenuem viderat Hesperus.
Quod si feria ludieris
Fortuna placeat texere ; Rusticus
Hesternam repeses casam,
Ridentis populi non humilis jocus :
Et quis rexerat omnia,
F. ndet laurigeris ligna securibus.*

back

Quod si desuerit salix

Fasces pauperibus subjiciet focis.

Ad Tarquinium Lavinum.

Od. 13. lib. 1.

N*on si Sol semel occidis,
Non rubris iterum surget ad Indis;*

Nec si quos celeris rota

Sors non exiguo proruit impetu,

Non lapsos iterum leves,

Arguto docilis ludere cum joco.

Ne spem projice, Tarquini:

Cujus panem retro lambere pulverem

Et vestigia diceris,

Cum fortuna levem verterit orbitam,

Effusam super & luto

Fumantem poteris cernere purpuram.

Tunc & risibus abstine,

Ne turpi domino Lumina paveris:

Ne calces nimium, memor

Fortuna geminam saepe jacti pilam.

back