

A HAPPY NEW YEAR
AND OTHER VERSES

C. E. DE LA POER BERESFORD

A HAPPY NEW YEAR
AND OTHER VERSES

C. E. DE LA POER BERESFORD

The Project Gutenberg eBook of A happy New Year, and other verses

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere in the United States and most other parts of the world at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.org. If you are not located in the United States, you will have to check the laws of the country where you are located before using this eBook.

Title: A happy New Year, and other verses

Author: Charles Edward de la Poer Beresford

Release date: February 15, 2021 [eBook #64565]

Most recently updated: October 18, 2024

Language: English

Other information and formats: www.gutenberg.org/ebooks/64565

Credits: Charlene Taylor, Chuck Greif and the Online Distributed Proofreading Team at <https://www.pgdp.net> (This file was produced from images generously made available by The Internet Archive/American Libraries.)

 START OF THE PROJECT GUTENBERG EBOOK A HAPPY NEW YEAR, AND OTHER VERSES ***

A HAPPY NEW YEAR

AND OTHER VERSES

A Happy New Year

AND OTHER VERSES

BY

C. E. DE LA POER BERESFORD

ETON COLLEGE

SPOTTISWOODE & CO., LTD.

1913

TO MY DEAR WIFE

OLD PLACE, 1913

My thanks are due to the Editors, "Blackwood's Magazine," "Country Life," "The Londonderry Sentinel," for their kindness in allowing me to reprint verses that have appeared in their publications.

Contents

	PAGE
A Happy New Year	1
Cradle Song	2
Queen Tamara's Castle	3
Ulster's Prayer	4
Dark Donegal	5
Hy-Brasail	7
Bálor of the Great Blows	9
The Garden	11
A Song of Spring	12
The Miráge on Kizil Koom	13
A Dream of Samarkánd	15
At Santa Sophia, Constantinople	21
The Hill Cities	22
Florence from San Miniato	23
The Thames	24
In Te, Domine, spero	26
To Miss X. de C. on her Birthday	27
Londonderry City Election, 1885	28
Londonderry City Election, 1913	29
To M. S.	30
The Song of Timùr the Lamè	31
Catullus, Carmina xxxi., l. 12 to end	32
Catullus, Carmina lxxvi. (Si qua recordanti)	33
The Fisherman's Dream	34
The Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers at Pieters', February, 1900	36
Senlac	39
Christmas-tide	46

A Happy New Year.

To the young, to the brave and the strong,
Before whom the future outspreads
As a board all light-handed to sweep,
The unknown, and the right and the wrong,
A Happy New Year!

To the good, to the tender and true,
Who have stood by our side on the path
Of life's follies and troubles and cares,
The path that we all must pursue,
A Happy New Year!

For the old, for the frail and the weak,
To whom mem'ry calls up in a dream
The never attained might have been,
We with love and affection bespeak
A Happy New Year!

Cradle Song.

(Imitated from the Russian.)

SLEEP! Babyónka,^[A] sleep!
By thy side Bábochka^[B] watches.
Round the house the wind blows high,
Soars the eagle in the sky,
Hark, I hear the woodcock cry.
Sleep, my darling, sleep!
O'er thy slumbers Saints are watching.

Sleep! Babyónka, sleep!
Bábochka will rock thy cradle.
Wind that rushes through the trees,
Eagle soaring o'er the breeze,
Woodcock whistling in the reeds,^[C]
Bring my darling sleep!
Babyónka dear, the Saints are watching.

Sleep! my darling, sleep!
Bábochka Babyónka watches.
Wind and eagle, woodcock brown,
All of them come rushing down
To the cot where baby slumbers.
They have brought Babyónka sleep.
O'er thy slumbers Saints are watching.

Queen Tamara's Castle.

(Translated from Lermontof.)

IN Dariel's rocky gorges deep,
Where Terek's water madly moves,
There is a castle on the steep,
The scene of Queen Tamára's loves.
She seemed to play an angel's part;
Black as a demon's was her heart.

The weary traveller from below
Looked on Tamára's window-glow,
And gazing on the twinkling light,
Went in to sup and pass the night.

But as the rays of rosy dawn
Gilded the mountains in the morn,
Silence fell on Tamára's halls,
And Terek's madly rushing wave
A mangled corpse bore to its grave.

Ulster's Prayer.

O GOD, who once in ages past
Savedst from the fierce Red Sea
And Ramses' chariots following fast
Thy sons who sang to Thee:
Turn Thee again, Lord of the Saints,
Unto our suppliant side,
Who humbly beg Thy help against
Those who Thy faith deride.

'Gainst those who that pure faith can turn
To dogma harsh and strict,
From which all who its errors spurn
Are cast off derelict;
We, as our fathers prayed before,
Fighting for faith and home,
Beseech Thee for Thy help once more
Against the wiles of Rome.

Dark Donegal.

THE ocean is dashing
Its waves o'er the strand
That shelters Sheep Haven
With hillocks of sand.
M'Swyne's Gun is winding
His horn o'er the lea,
Atlantic is grinding
The dust of the sea.

It cuts from the fields,
Lough, haven, and bay,
And dark Donegal yields
To its constant sword-play.^[D]
Through infinite inlets
It pours willy-nilly,
Into Ness and Mulroy,
Sheep Haven and Swilly.

Atlantic was born
Bluff, boisterous, coy;
It may storm at the Horn
When it coos at Mulroy.
The ocean is silent,
Or noisy or sullen;
It may sleep at Melmore,
Or rage at Rathmullan.

The ghosts of Saldanha^[E]
Still walk at Port Salon;
The bones of the Spaniards
Lie deep off the Aran.
In spite of these mem'ries,
Or because of them all,
The breeze carries gladness
Over dark Donegal.

Dunfanaghy, September 2, 1913.

Hy-Brasail.

NEAR where Horn its dark head
Rears o'er the deep ocean,
And the sea-birds whirl round
In a constant commotion,
Where loving Atlantic
Outstretches its arms,
Four islands romantic
Lie, lost in their charms.

The farthest is Tory,
Rough, rocky and stern,
Inishbeg, Inishbofin,
Inishdoe, as you turn
Your rapt gaze to the west,
Orange, rose-red, or grey,
Stretch, three islands at rest
In the calm of the bay.

And beyond them, most blest
Of a realm without guile,
In the sunshine and rest
Lies Hy-Brasail, the isle
Of the angels and saints,
So lovely and dim,
Where the sea's white foam breaks
On its far distant rim.

The peasant who heard of
This wonderful isle
Set sail to the west
With a confident smile.
The dream of Hy-Brasail
Within his heart burned,
He was lost in the sea
And never returned.

Londonderry, September 10, 1913.

Bálor of the Great Blows.

HAVE ye read of the past in folios at Dublin
Of Firwolgs, and of Pechts, and of red-headed Danes,
And Fomors from Tory, who people went troublin',
Stealing woman and child, binding Irish in chains?

Well, 'tis of these wild times and Ulster romantic,
O'erspread by dark forests through which the elk called,
And of rude pagan tribes, some dwarf, some gigantic,
That I tell in this rhyme so poor and so bald.

In a deep gloomy glen near Muckish's mountain,
Where the mist rolls in clouds and the waterfalls foam,
From out of the cloud-rack, as out of a fountain;
Himself saw a quare sight as he rode his horse home.

In the glen at the mouth of a black souterrain
(Where Crocknárágagh looks down upon Tory,
The island where Bálór of the Great Blows did reign)
Shane O'Dugan beheld what I tell in my story.

A woman as lovely as dead Ethné the Fair,
With twelve ladies in waiting all clothed in gold,
The Chief, MacKineely, and a boy with red hair,
Came out the cave-dwelling and walked o'er the fold.

Now the red-pate is changed into Bálór the King,
All bent on the murder of brave MacKineely;
And although through the valley his daughter's shrieks ring,
He cuts off his head on the stone Clough-an-neely.

Fierce King Bálór would fain kill his young grandsons too,
But the Princess resolves with her children to fly,
And the eldest grows into a young farrier, who
Thrusts a red-heated iron in Bálór's one eye.

The wounded King calls to his one grandson, "Asthere!"
Whilst forth from the sore wound rushes water like oil,
From Falcarragh the whole way right up to Gweedore

FROM Falcarragh the whole way right up to Gweedore,
Till it forms a lough three times as deep as Lough Foyle!

The Garden.

I KNOW a garden sheltered from the north
And east by lichened walls and stately trees
Facing the south in rows are bursting forth
Masses of bright flowers, fertilised by bees;
In it from early morn, with spade and hoe,
A good man trenches, digs, and plants, that things may grow.

I would my mind were like that garden fair—
A fruitful soil touched by the spade of God!
No weeds of prejudice might grow up there,
No tares of ignorance disgrace the sod,
But Wisdom, glad of such a soil and ground,
Would plant her flowers therein—to scatter fragrance round.

A Song of Spring.

It was Spring, joyous Spring,
When each bud had just unfolden,
From its bursting calyx golden,
All the greenery of Spring,
When I heard the cuckoo sing,
Cuckoo! cuckoo! cuckoo!

It was Spring, joyous Spring,
When the shepherd on the wold,
Having tended well the fold,
Saw the meek-eyed ewes well-sheltered
'Gainst the hail and rain that pelted
On the downs, in the Spring!

It was Spring, joyous Spring,
And the black thorn and the white,
Breaking forth from out the night
And the dark of Winter's gloom,
Raced the chestnuts into bloom
With the leaves, in gentle Spring.

It was Spring, joyous Spring,
When from bush and bough and tree
Burst a song of joy to Thee,
Who hast made the lark that singeth,
And the earth whose produce bringeth
Forth in Spring:
When I heard the cuckoo sing,
Cuckoo! cuckoo! cuckoo!

April, 1896.

The Miráge on Kizil Koom.

WHERE the hot sun o'er Caspian's reedy shore
In a red ball of fire descends in gloom,
I trod the desert's silent, sandy floor,
Called by the Turkománs the Kizil Koom.

No grass, no flower relieves the rusty sheen,
Perhaps an antelope goes rushing through
The rare sage-brush; no water there is seen,
Save where the fell miráge distracts the view.

And that miráge! At first a little cloud,
From which green trees and silvery lakes arise,
Where white felucca sails deceive the crowd
Of weary travellers, and fool their eyes.

Ah! what art thou, miráge? What have I seen?
"I am the many things of which you dream"
"At morn of life, but never hold at e'en."
"I am the hopes with which your fancies teem!"

"I am the scholar's prize, the high degree;"
"The sword of steel at side, the fox's brush;"
"The little cross of bronze, the prized V.C.;"
"The thundering sound of steeds, the warrior's rush!"

"I am the heart's desire, the lover bold;"
I am the silken gown, the judge's chair
I am the battle won; the book well sold
Coronet; Ermine! Castle in the air!"

Ah! Kizil Koom, Red Sand, what more dost say
In thy miráge to travellers o'er thy floor?
"I teach content to those who through the way
Of life well spent have passed, and dream no more."

A Dream of Samarkánd.

BETWEEN the mountains of Alai
And Tian-Shan's heavenly chain
Lies the home of the Zagatai,
Fergána's fruitful plain.
First of the towns whose domes and wall
Deck that illustrious land
Stands the lame Timùr's capital,
His best-loved Samarkánd.

I stood inside a shattered room,
Stricken by earthquakes rife,
That Timùr raised above the tomb
Of Ming's fair daughter-wife.
Daughter of China's Bógdu-Khan,
Wife of the great Timùr,
Who 'twixt them ruled the vast inland
From Red Sea to Amùr.

Above an arch a double dome
Bites in the clear blue sky
(Bramanté's famous fane at Rome
Seems scarce so broad and high).
Above the dome a crescent bright
Watched sleepy Samarkánd,
Asleep to-day, but wide awake
When Timùr ruled the land.

Sure, such a tomb was never raised
By widower to wife!
Nor Akhbar brave nor Shah Jehán
Did thus weld bricks to life.
The Tâj, in marble shining bright
By Agra's sun-baked walls,
Must yield the palm for sheer delight
To Bibi-Khánim's halls.

The sun shines through the double dome,

Lighting its inner skin,
It shows the remnant of the stair
That upwards led within,
From which the muezzin, climbing slow,
To shout the evening prayer,
Could see the Rigistán below,
Shir-Dár and Tilla-Kare.

I seemed to see the cliffs at Kesh,
Whence came the great Amìr,
From whose red rift the Zarafshán
Sends forth its waters clear.
I seemed to see the Tatar horde,
Under Toktámish brave,
Beaten and drowning in the ford
That crosses Kubán's wave.

I saw the Mogul army move
To conquer Hindostán;
Its serried, strong divisions prove
The master mind of man.
Ninety-two thousand fretting steeds
Rush down from hill to plain;
Timùr descends the khud by ropes,
Five times let down again.

The Mongols march upon Attock
And cross the rivers five,
Timùr joins forces at Multán
With all his sons alive;
His armies then invest Batnir,
They come to Delhi's towers,
Mahmud Sultán gives battle there,
Timùr his standard lowers.

Asia, from Irtish to Ormuz
O'er-run by Timùr's bands,
Irán, Turán and Ind had felt

The weight of Mongol hands.
Aleppo taken by the horde,
Timùr fresh laurels culls,
And covers Baghdad's reeking sword
With pyramids of skulls.

Now on Angóra's fateful plain
The "Lightning" Bayazet
Urges his Turks to fight, in vain,
'Gainst Mongol and kismet.
'Twas told that Bayazet was caged
Just like a timid deer,
But Timùr never warfare waged
On captives of his spear.

From all these scenes of lust and blood
I turn to Samarkánd,
Where Zarafshán's refreshing flood
Gives life unto the land.
Here Timùr mosque and palace built
Around a sheltered pool,
Set in a field with arbours gilt,
And called it Khân-i-Gùl.

Thousands of guests were bid to share
The great Amìr's largesse,
The Guilds and Trades were gathered there,
The wronged received redress.
Here, in his coat of mail of steel,
Timùr, 'midst his sepoy,
From Russ, and France, and far Castille,
Received the Grand Envoys.

Six grandsons of the Great Amìr
Wed brides of princely rank,
Nine times the brides their dresses change,
Nine times their handmaids thank.
Each time each bride is fresh arrayed,

Full as the sun and moon are seen

Fall to the ground in showers
Rubies and diamonds, which the maid
Keeps as her bridal flowers!

I see Timùr, one boot, one glove,
And with his lint-white hair,
Delighted on his chess-board move
Fifty-six pieces fair.
The blood-red ruby in his ear
Trembles before my view,
But when his rage the stone shakes there,
'Fore God! the world shakes too.

At last the Mogul Emperor
Invades far-off Cathay,
He starts, the tired conqueror,
Marching ten miles a day,
Crosses Syr-Dária's solid stream,
And stops at Otrár, when
He sees the blade of Àzrael gleam
At three-score years and ten.

Come with me to the Gùr-Amir,
Within whose simple walls
Over a six-foot block of jade
A horsehair standard falls.
Beneath the dark and polished stone
Descends a bare brick stair,
Leading to Tamerlane's own tomb,
Nor pomp nor state is there.

Beneath the fluted, darkened dome,
Where dimly seen in gloom,
Surrounded by an Arab text,
Hangs Timùr's tattered plume,
Outside the simple marble rail
Engraved with Timùr's name,
The passing pilgrim cannot fail
To muse on Timùr's fame

TO muse on Timur's name.

At Santa Sophia, Constantinople.

(A Fragment.)

THERE is the altar, there is the wall,
Disfigured by Méhemet's hand:
We should raise the Cross of Christ in the hall
Where the Turkish banners stand;
And the tones of "Te Deum," quenched in blood,
Should resound again in the land.

The Hill Cities.

ALL along the line of mountains
That begin at Narni's towers,
Stand the grey and brown hill cities,
'Midst the sunshine and the showers.
Each a tower of strength itself,
Well walled and machicolated,
Or for Ghibelline or Guelph,
Each 'twixt each interpolated;
Now for Kaiser, now for Pope,
Narni, Terni, and Spoleto.
From its crag or hilly slope
Tremi faces Montefalco,
By Topino sits Foligno,
Assisi of the stony street,
Almost at its base is Spello
Where the chalk and limestone meet.
Here the rain-clouds veil the mountain,
Here the sunbeams chase the sleet,
And the rivers fill the fountain
Grey in proud Perugia's street.

Perugia, April, 1912.

Florence from San Miniato.

BENEATH my feet the smokeless city fair:
Duomo and Giotto's noble tower arise
Like sentinels o'er Florence! In the air
Something, not mist, but silvery vapour, lies.

Up a steep hill climbs famous Fiésole
From out the dark woods of Domenico,
Close to Arno's bank is Santa Crocé,
Where lies at rest great Michael Angelo.

And through the landscape, winding softly there,
Arno betwixt his buttressed banks doth run
Solemn and silent, steely bright and fair,
Towards Carrara's rocks, and setting sun.

The Thames.

I LOVE thy banks the best, O silent Thames,
At morning time,
When fogs steal o'er them, and with ruddy flames
The still weak sun
Bursts, now and then, at moments through the mist
And sudden flies,
Leaving the landscape which his beams have kissed,
Cold and forlorn;
And then, again returning to the fight,
The God of morn
Dispels the clouds, and bathes in trembling light
Thy banks so gay.
Or struggling with the clouds, now here, now there,
O'erpowers them, and ushers in the day.

I love thy banks again, O merry Thames,
Ambient and gay,
When lowing herds graze in thy meads, or lie
With whisk of tail
In the long grass, half hidden by the glazed
And heated air,
And chew the cud half-silent or half-dazed.
How deadly still
Is the full tide of noon, when beasts and birds
Alike repose,
And from the sullen shade not e'en a bee
Or dragon-fly
Breaks the hour's silence! Then the cirrus clouds,
Wind-chas'd and heavy, roll or stagger by.

I love thy banks at all times, silver Thames,
But certes the least
When huge waves suddenly immerse their sides,
And from the East,
With sound of harp, or flute, and megaphones,
Young men and maids
On steamers Allah's Holy Name invoke

In raucous tones
No Moslem knows, and call me curious names,
And drink, and smoke
Not nargiléhs, but strong cigars, whose whiff
Borne on the air,
Shocks my olfactory nerves, and makes me sick,
Sick of them all, the Thames, the whole affair!

In Te, Domine, spero.

'Tis said that as the sinner dies
 Around him hover shadowy forms,
Reflecting in his glassy eyes
 Some cloudy visions in Death's storms.

When on the hard-fought battle plain
 Gushes forth hot the bright red blood
From out the bullet wound's blue stain,
 With throbs that show the arterial flood;

The shadowy forms may still be near
 Just where his body stains the sod,
As sure of death but void of fear
 The man commends his soul to God.

The half-forgotten youthful days,
 His father's voice, his mother's tears,
Come back to him as whilst he prays
 Dark Azraël's rustling wings he hears.

Lost and forgotten, far from home
 (The stretcher-bearers pass him by)
He dies alone: no, not alone,
 The shadowy forms are watching nigh.

So ends the sinner. As he dies
 The shadowy forms (his own good deeds)
Are wafted onward to the skies
 To plead for him in heavenly meads.

To Miss X. de C. on her Birthday.

O'ER this your natal day may angels watch and love preside,
Your path with flowers be strewn and all betide
To make your ways below, in joy begun,
Run on through smiling fields till life be done.

Londonderry City Election, 1885.

Chas. E. Lewis, Q.C. (C.) 1824.

Justin McCarthy (P.) 1795.

To the black North, to Derry fair, a great “Historian” came,
Backed by the strength of all his clan, by Parnell’s mighty name,
His was the task, by wiles or force, to wrest the Virgin Crown
From the proud city by the Foyle, of siege’s great renown.
In vain the Separatist force, for naught their trumpets blown,
Derry has shown that she prefers a “history” of her own!

Coblentz, December 1885.

Londonderry City Election, 1913.

Hogg (N.) 2699.

Colonel Pakenham (C.) 2642.

Flow, Foyle, full of tears, not water, on to the main,
Past the wreck of the Boom, past Culmore, past MacGilligan,
Take to the ocean, wind-swept and wave-tossed,
Our story of pain.

Close gates, so heavy and ancient, brave Prentice boys,
Shut out the sea, shut off England, shut out the Union.
Shut out all links with our Empire, our trade and communion,
Our hopes and our joys!

Blow, black from the North, cold wind from Malin Head!
Take to our comrades in Leinster, in Connacht, in Munster,
The tale of our struggle, our work, our disaster
Our honour is dead.

January 31, 1913.

To M. S.

(A Fragment.)

SAPPHO, your wild songs to the wind,
 The wild west wind,
Recall an island to my mind,
 All mist-enshrined,
Girt round with waves that break with force,
 Fearful, yet kind.

Sappho, your sad songs to the sea,
 The southern sea,
Bring back sweet mem'ries of the waves,
 The waves to me,
And wild swans flying o'er the white
 Sands, by the sea.

Sappho, the finest of your songs,
 "Hark to the rain!"
Sends shivering through and through my heart
 Its sad refrain,
Just as a broken lute-string strikes
 A soul in pain!

The Song of Timùr the Lame.

(Imitated from the Persian)

LISTEN to me, my nightingale,
My darling, my light, and my rose!
I am sick of war and carnage,
I long for peace and repose.
My scimeter's flash in the light
Is not so bright as thy glances,
And the beams 'neath thine eyelids bright
Shame the flash of my spearmen's lances.

Catullus, Carmina xxxi., l. 12 to end.

“Salve, o venusta Sirmio, atque hero gaude,
Gaudete vos, O Lydiae lacus undae,
Ridete quicquid est domi cachinnorum.”

“Hail, lovely Sirmio, and rejoice in me,
Rejoice, O tumbling Lydian waves, and see
In all my home peal out the laughter free!”

Catullus, Carmina lxxvi. (Si qua recordanti).

“If pleasure can to man have come
From his good deeds already done,
From sacred faith, from plight maintained,
From compact never yet profaned;
All these remain in store for thee
And fruits of thy lost love shall be.
Catullus, for long years to come
Thy breast shall be their only home!”

* * * *

O gods, if ye can pity me
Or mortal agony can see,
If only once I have been pure,
Tear out this cursed plague impure,
Which creeping through my frame at rest
Has chased all gladness from my breast.

* * * *

Just gods! for sake of my own weal
I pray you that this wound may heal!

The Fisherman's Dream.

WHERE the light clouds o'er Etna's summit sleep
And the dread winged Harpies vigil keep,
Dark as the polished stone the blue wave falls,
Weaving a canopy o'er Neptune's halls.

Over his work the tired fisher nods
And in his dreams beholds the ancient gods.
Whilst gentle sleep his wearied senses numbs,
Swift in his trance fair Aphrodite comes;
Light falls her footstep on the billowy wave,
Softly she smiles upon her willing slave;
Blue as the ether in the heights above,
Radiant her eyes, all beaming o'er with love;
Pink as the coral in the ocean foam,
Parted, her lips invite him to her home;
And like the algae in the deep sea trove
Wavy her tresses in the zephyrs move;
Whilst her soft whispers all his fears allay,
Thus love's fair goddess beckons him away.

"Come with me, fisher, leave thy dreary toil,
Fly from thy cares to Candia's blessed soil;
'Neath Ida's mount far from the sun's fierce rays,
In a cool grot we'll pass the sweltering days,
And when the moon shines on the silver sea,
Drawn by my doves thou'lt float along with me;
Hid in my cave shalt taste all love's delights,
Whilst joyous days succeed the tranquil nights."

Ah! shun her glances, danger lurketh there:
Thus did her charms full often slaves ensnare.
So young Adonis, who ne'er loved before,
Fleeing her wiles, fell to the tusked boar,
And Mars, the vengeful, direful, God of War,
By Vulcan's net trapped, all Olympus saw!
Rather let Juno, who befriends pure loves,
Drive from thy side the siren and her doves.

Think of thy home in Baïa's beauteous bay,
Where sits thy wife, thy children joyous play,
And of the taper by the Virgin's shrine
Lit as a safeguard for their weal and thine.

Frightened he wakes, he starts, he rubs his eyes,
Chased by the light the feckless phantom flies:
Vanished the temptress, all his senses seem
Once more his own; but Santos! what a dream!

Ashbrook, 1885.

The Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers at Pieters', February, 1900.

I stood on the glacis at Pieters'
And read there the word "Inniskilling,"
Written red in the blood of soldiers as brave
As e'er took Her Majesty's shilling.
I stood 'midst the ghosts of our children,
Whose corpses beneath me were lying;
And it seemed that I heard o'er the wind of the velt
Their voices come solemnly sighing.

They were taught from boyhood, these heroes,
To fear neither rifle nor cannon;
They were taught first by Perry M'Clintock,
Bob Ellis and fiery Buchanan.
They rushed like the stream from the mountain,
Or the wind o'er the Lakes of Fermanagh,
And they fell like the leaves in the cold autumn blast,
Or the drops pouring over the fountain.

Ah! Mother of God! but I see them
Stagger. Thackeray! Davidson! more!
And who is the next, thrusting on thro' the smoke?
It is he! 'Tis ma bouchal asthore!
His eye has the look of the eagle,
His shout tops the musketry's roar,
Ah! now he'll be in with the bay'net:
No, he falls!—He is shot by a Boer.

We think of you children of Ulster,
All unknown, yet so splendidly brave;
And although the remains of our dear ones
Lie senseless and cold in the grave,
Their mem'ries live now and for ever,
Though their bones turn to dust 'neath the sod;
For the spirit and soul of the soldier
Rise like sweet-smelling incense to God.

As I glanced over kopje and stone

On the scene of this terrible drama,
Past my eyes, other scenes, from the distant black North,
Rolled on like a vast panorama.
Such sights ere he gasped his last breath
Perhaps appeared to the brave Fusilier,
As at Thackeray's word he rushed forward to death
With a bound and a heart-stirring cheer!

The dark clouds hang over a valley,
The brown water rushes down foaming,
The light from the cabin-door shines like a spark
On the hill in the mists of the gloaming.
The heather waves sweet in the wind
That sweeps o'er the steep slopes of Sâwel;
The crooked-beaked eagle swoops down on the hind,
Whilst the cock-grouse lies low for a marvel.

For thus, as we come to the entrance
Of that lane that knows of no turning,
Whether bullets are hissing, or rotten decks breaking,
Or fever our wasted frame burning,
The sights and the sounds of the home that we love
O'er our minds come back hurriedly streaming,
And we see in our dreams our long lost ones above,
As Azraël's death-blade is gleaming.

* * * *

I stood 'midst the ghosts of our children,
Whose corpses beneath me were lying;
And it seemed that I heard o'er the wind of the velt
Their voices come solemnly sighing.

Petersburg, October, 1901.

Senlac.

GUILLAUME, fils naturel d'Arlette,
Fit jurer une fois à Bayeux
A Harold, le blond comte anglais,
Sur les plus précieuses reliques
Et aussi devant tous ses preux
Toute loyauté et feauté.
Harold jura qu'il l'aiderait
A prendre à lui la succession
(Enfin, donc, quand le temps viendrait)
Du roi saxon le fainéant,
Qu'il se mettrait de son côté
Et de ses forces il l'aiderait.

Édouard le Confesseur mourut
En grande odeur de sainteté,
Le Comte Harold vite accourut
(Mil soixante-six, et cinq janvier).
Lui roi d'Angleterre fut élu
Et par Ealdred couronné.
Contre lui bientôt guerre à mort
Northumberland a déclaré;
Ne voulant point tenter cette guerre,
Qui lui allait à contre-cœur,
Du Comte Edwin et Comte Morkère
Harold épousa la jeune sœur.

Guillaume, tout furieux, à Rouen
Prépare vite une expédition,
Appelle à lui le grand Lanfranc,
Evesque lombard, et Hildebrand,
Assemble une armée de Français,
Flamands, Italiens et Bretons,
Et des gens de tous les païs
De Pouille, et de Sicile, Normands.
Je dis moult barons, moult canaille,
Des hommes sans nom et sans carrière,
Les longues lances, la vieille féraïlle,

Sous le grand drapeau de Saint-Pierre.

Faut savoir que cette compagnie,
Ou plutôt bande d'aventuriers,
Dont oncques ne virent France de leur vie,
Furent bels et bons nommés Français,
Tandis que Danois et Saxons
Qu'Harold noblement commandait,
Ceux de Sussesse et Saint-Edmond,
Reçurent pour eux le nom d'Anglais.
Les Français traversèrent La Manche
Et descendirent en Angleterre
Près d'Hastings, pendant qu'à l'arme blanche
Harold tua Tostique, son frère.

Parlons donc de l'armée anglaise.
Victorieuse à Stamford-le-Pont,
Elle poussa fortement vers le camp
Ou plutôt position française.
S'arrêtant à deux lieues de là,
Harold envoya des espions,
Qui lui rapportèrent la nouvelle
"Plus prêtres que soldats entre Normands."
Rit bien et long le roi anglais:
"Ceux que vous vîtes si bien rasés
Ne sont ni prêtres ni gens mal-nés,
Ce sont de vaillans Chevaliers."

De Conches, de Toarz, Montgomméri
A l'extrême gauche étaient rangés;
A droite, de Fergert, Améri
Poitevins et Bretons commandaient;
Au centre, l'Evesque de Bayeux,
Grand et majestueux Odon;
Puis Guillaume, avec tous ses preux;
Ainsi se rangèrent les Normands.
Brave Taillefer, le Menestrel,
Le premier coup de sabre donnant,

Le premier tomba de sa selle,
Chantant la chanson de Roland.

Fils-Osbert et Montgomméri
Attaquèrent sur la droite anglaise,
Avec Boulogne et Berri,
En partant de la gauche française.
De l'autre flanc, Alain Fergert,
Barons de Maine et d'Améri
Se ruèrent sur la haute terre
Retranchée de gros pilotis,
Où l'étendard au dragon d'or
Flottait dessus les écussons
Plantés en ligne, et juste derrière
Brillaient les hâches-d'armes des Saxons.

Les hommes de Boulogne et de Poix
Suivaient le Baron d'Améri
Et donnèrent rudement maintes fois
Sur la ligne des gros pilotis.
Mais sous les coups terribles des hâches
Et testes et bras tombaient par terre;
A vrai dire n'y avait point de lâches,
Car corps-à-corps se fit la guerre.
Tout de même dans le vaste fossé
Bien des chevaliers sans chevaux
De coups de hâche furent assommés,
En tâchant de sortir de l'eau!

Troublés, et même un peu confus,
Les écuyers aux destriers,
Voyant ainsi tuer les preux,
S'écriaient: "Fuyez donc, fuyez!"
Mais le dur évêque de Bayeux
Arriva bientôt au galop,
"Holà!" dit-il; "splendeur de Dieu!
Faites face à l'ennemi, salops!"
Donc piquant fort des éperons

Et frappant fortement de sa masse,
Poussant toujours son cheval blanc,
Le brave évêque se faisait place.

Le terrible combat rageait
Du matin jusques après-midi;
Les Normands tous criaient, "Dex aie!"
Les Saxons criaient fort aussi.
Vu que les flêches de nos archers
N'atteignirent point à l'ennemi,
Tous derrière leurs remparts courbés,
Guillaume à ses gens commanda
De tirer haut dans l'air les flêches.
Arriva donc comme il pensa,
Même sans pratiquer de brèche!

Le roi Harold et Gyrt, son frère,
Ensemble bravement se battaient
En haut du grand rempart de terre
De gros pilotis couronné.
Une flêche, qui semble tomber du ciel
Et dans sa chute descendante vire,
Atteignit Harold près de l'œil.
Le roi tout hardiment retire
De la blessure le bois cassé.
Il tombe, se tenant à demi
Evanoui sur son bouclier.
L'ange gardien des Saxons frémit!

Sur toute la ligne des Français
Se fit un mouvement en arrière;
C'était le moment des Anglais,
Qui sautèrent par-dessus barrière.
Ils criaient hautement en revanche,
"A quoi bon, imbéciles, de fuir?
A moins de sauter par La Manche
Vous ne reverrez point Saint-Cyr."
Arrive Sieur de Montgomméri,

“Frappez, François! à nous le jour;
Frappez! frappez! frappez!” il crie:
Les coups Normands redoublent d’ardeur!

Les Saxons, eux aussi frappent fort,
Poussés sur Senlac-la-Colline,
Se battaient toujours corps-à-corps,
Quoique prévoyant leur ruine.
L’on vit d’Auviler et d’Onbac,
Saint-Clair, Fils-Ernest, Mortemer,
Poussant les premiers vers Senlac,
Fils-Ernest tombant mort à terre.
Harold trois fois blessé est mort
Et Gyrt est tué par Guillaume,
Chancelle le fameux dragon d’or,
Et tombe, le symbole du royaume.

Fut ainsi que tomba le sort!
Guillaume rendit grâces à Dieu,
Pleura la perte de ses deux frères,
Remercia encore ses preux.
Il donna au Grand Dieu la gloire
Et fit planter les léopards
Qui flottèrent avec la victoire
Où gisait sale le dragon d’or.
D’Harold parmi tous les blessés
Fut impossible de connaître corps,
Mais Edith la Belle a trouvé
Son amant vivant, hélas! mort.

J’ai tâché, chers et bons amis,
En réduisant ce rondelai
En termes tout simples, où il s’agit
De coups de lance, et coups d’épée,
De faire à tout le monde comprendre,
Marins, soldats, hommes, femmes, enfance,
Qu’il faut garder et pas rendre
Notre souveraine indépendance!

Une île n'est jamais à l'abri
D'un coup de main bien préparé:
Donc, sans négliger votre marine,
Veillez toujours sur votre armée.

Christmas-tide.

SILENTLY the snowflakes fall
O'er the black and hardened ground;
Radiant crystals form a pall,
Stretching far and wide around.

From the Ice-King's glitt'ring halls
Bitterly the north wind blows;
Heap the logs within your walls,
All the doors and windows close.

Many a hundred years ago,
On this very Christmas Day,
In a manger mean and low
Christ, the son of Mary, lay.

Let our ways this Christmas-tide
Follow in His steps above!
Poor he lived and poor he died,
All His doctrine was of love.

Ours to soothe the aching heart,
Ours to charity bestow,
Ours His knowledge to impart
To the suffering ones below!

May that charity ne'er fail,
May those good deeds never cease,
Till our bark shall lower sail
In the haven where is peace!

PRINTED BY
SPOTTISWOODE AND CO. LTD., ETON
COLCHESTER AND LONDON

FOOTNOTES:

[A] Babyónka, baby.

 END OF THE PROJECT GUTENBERG EBOOK A HAPPY NEW
YEAR, AND OTHER VERSES ***

Updated editions will replace the previous one—the old editions will be renamed.

Creating the works from print editions not protected by U.S. copyright law means that no one owns a United States copyright in these works, so the Foundation (and you!) can copy and distribute it in the United States without permission and without paying copyright royalties. Special rules, set forth in the General Terms of Use part of this license, apply to copying and distributing Project Gutenberg™ electronic works to protect the PROJECT GUTENBERG™ concept and trademark. Project Gutenberg is a registered trademark, and may not be used if you charge for an eBook, except by following the terms of the trademark license, including paying royalties for use of the Project Gutenberg trademark. If you do not charge anything for copies of this eBook, complying with the trademark license is very easy. You may use this eBook for nearly any purpose such as creation of derivative works, reports, performances and research. Project Gutenberg eBooks may be modified and printed and given away—you may do practically ANYTHING in the United States with eBooks not protected by U.S. copyright law. Redistribution is subject to the trademark license, especially commercial redistribution.

START: FULL LICENSE

THE FULL PROJECT GUTENBERG™ LICENSE

PLEASE READ THIS BEFORE YOU DISTRIBUTE OR USE THIS WORK

To protect the Project Gutenberg™ mission of promoting the free distribution of electronic works, by using or distributing this work (or any other work associated in any way with the phrase “Project Gutenberg”), you agree to comply with all the terms of the Full Project Gutenberg License available with this file or online at www.gutenberg.org/license.

Section 1. General Terms of Use and Redistributing Project Gutenberg electronic works

1.A. By reading or using any part of this Project Gutenberg electronic work, you indicate that you have read, understand, agree to and accept all the terms of this license and intellectual property (trademark/copyright) agreement. If you do not agree to abide by all the terms of this agreement, you must cease using and return or destroy all copies of Project Gutenberg electronic works in your possession. If you paid a fee for obtaining a copy of or access to a Project Gutenberg electronic work and you do not agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement, you may obtain a refund from the person or entity to whom you paid the fee as set forth in paragraph 1.E.8.

1.B. “Project Gutenberg” is a registered trademark. It may only be used on or associated in any way with an electronic work by people who agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement. There are a few things that you can do with most Project Gutenberg electronic works even without complying with the full terms of this agreement. See paragraph 1.C below. There are a lot of things you can do with Project Gutenberg electronic works if you follow the terms of this agreement and help preserve free future access to Project Gutenberg electronic works. See paragraph 1.E below.

1.C. The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation (“the Foundation” or PGLAF), owns a compilation copyright in the collection of Project Gutenberg electronic works. Nearly all the individual works in the collection are in the public domain in the United States. If an individual work is unprotected by copyright law in the United States and you are located in the United States, we do not claim a right to prevent you from copying, distributing, performing, displaying or creating derivative works based on the work as long as all references to Project Gutenberg are removed. Of course, we hope that you will support the Project Gutenberg mission of promoting free access to electronic works by freely sharing Project Gutenberg works in compliance with the terms of this agreement for keeping the Project Gutenberg name associated with the work. You can easily comply with the terms of this agreement by keeping this work in the same format with its attached full Project Gutenberg License when you share it without charge with others.

1.D. The copyright laws of the place where you are located also govern what you can do with this work. Copyright laws in most countries are in a constant state of change. If you are outside the United States, check the laws of your country in addition to the terms of this agreement before downloading, copying, displaying, performing, distributing or creating derivative works based on this work or any other Project Gutenberg work. The Foundation makes no representations concerning the copyright status of any work in any country other than the United States.

1.E. Unless you have removed all references to Project Gutenberg:

1.E.1. The following sentence, with active links to, or other immediate access to, the full Project Gutenberg License must appear prominently whenever any copy of a Project Gutenberg work (any work on which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” appears, or with which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” is associated) is accessed, displayed, performed, viewed, copied or distributed:

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere in the United States and most other parts of the world at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg™ License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.org. If you are not located in the United States, you will have to check the laws of the country where you are located before using this eBook.

1.E.2. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is derived from texts not protected by U.S. copyright law (does not contain a notice indicating that it is posted with permission of the copyright holder), the work can be copied and distributed to anyone in the United States without paying any fees or charges. If you are redistributing or providing access to a work with the phrase “Project Gutenberg” associated with or appearing on the work, you must comply either with the requirements of paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 or obtain permission for the use of the work and the Project Gutenberg trademark as set forth in paragraphs 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.3. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is posted with the permission of the copyright holder, your use and distribution must comply with both paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 and any additional terms imposed by the copyright holder. Additional terms will be linked to the Project Gutenberg License for all works posted with the permission of the copyright holder found at the beginning of this work.

1.E.4. Do not unlink or detach or remove the full Project Gutenberg License terms from this work, or any files containing a part of this work or any other work associated with Project Gutenberg.

1.E.5. Do not copy, display, perform, distribute or redistribute this electronic work, or any part of this electronic work, without prominently displaying the sentence set forth in paragraph 1.E.1 with active links or immediate access to the full terms of the Project Gutenberg License.

1.E.6. You may convert to and distribute this work in any binary, compressed, marked up, nonproprietary or proprietary form, including any word processing or hypertext form. However, if you provide access to or distribute copies of a Project Gutenberg work in a format other than “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other format used in the official version posted on the official Project Gutenberg website (www.gutenberg.org), you must, at no additional cost, fee or expense to the user, provide a copy, a means of exporting a copy, or a means of obtaining a copy upon request, of the work in its original “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other form. Any alternate format must include the full Project Gutenberg License as specified in paragraph 1.E.1.

1.E.7. Do not charge a fee for access to, viewing, displaying, performing, copying or distributing any Project Gutenberg works unless you comply with paragraph 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.8. You may charge a reasonable fee for copies of or providing access to or distributing Project Gutenberg electronic works provided that:

- You pay a royalty fee of 20% of the gross profits you derive from the use of Project Gutenberg works calculated using the method you already use to calculate your applicable taxes. The fee is owed to the owner of the Project Gutenberg trademark, but he has agreed to donate royalties under this paragraph to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation. Royalty payments must be paid within 60 days following each date on which you prepare (or are legally required to prepare) your periodic tax returns. Royalty payments should be clearly marked as such and sent to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation at the address specified in Section 4, “Information about donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation.”
- You provide a full refund of any money paid by a user who notifies you in writing (or by e-mail) within 30 days of receipt that s/he does not agree to the terms of the full Project Gutenberg™ License. You must require such a user to return or destroy all copies of the works possessed in a physical medium and discontinue all use of and all access to other copies of Project Gutenberg™ works.
- You provide, in accordance with paragraph 1.F.3, a full refund of any money paid for a work or a replacement copy, if a defect in the electronic work is discovered and reported to you within 90 days of receipt of the work.

- You comply with all other terms of this agreement for free distribution of Project Gutenberg™ works.

1.E.9. If you wish to charge a fee or distribute a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work or group of works on different terms than are set forth in this agreement, you must obtain permission in writing from the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the manager of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark. Contact the Foundation as set forth in Section 3 below.

1.F.

1.F.1. Project Gutenberg volunteers and employees expend considerable effort to identify, do copyright research on, transcribe and proofread works not protected by U.S. copyright law in creating the Project Gutenberg™ collection. Despite these efforts, Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, and the medium on which they may be stored, may contain “Defects,” such as, but not limited to, incomplete, inaccurate or corrupt data, transcription errors, a copyright or other intellectual property infringement, a defective or damaged disk or other medium, a computer virus, or computer codes that damage or cannot be read by your equipment.

1.F.2. LIMITED WARRANTY, DISCLAIMER OF DAMAGES - Except for the “Right of Replacement or Refund” described in paragraph 1.F.3, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the owner of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark, and any other party distributing a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work under this agreement, disclaim all liability to you for damages, costs and expenses, including legal fees. YOU AGREE THAT YOU HAVE NO REMEDIES FOR NEGLIGENCE, STRICT LIABILITY, BREACH OF WARRANTY OR BREACH OF CONTRACT EXCEPT THOSE PROVIDED IN PARAGRAPH 1.F.3. YOU AGREE THAT THE FOUNDATION, THE TRADEMARK OWNER, AND ANY DISTRIBUTOR UNDER THIS AGREEMENT WILL NOT BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR ACTUAL, DIRECT, INDIRECT, CONSEQUENTIAL, PUNITIVE OR INCIDENTAL DAMAGES

EVEN IF YOU GIVE NOTICE OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGE.

1.F.3. LIMITED RIGHT OF REPLACEMENT OR REFUND - If you discover a defect in this electronic work within 90 days of receiving it, you can receive a refund of the money (if any) you paid for it by sending a written explanation to the person you received the work from. If you received the work on a physical medium, you must return the medium with your written explanation. The person or entity that provided you with the defective work may elect to provide a replacement copy in lieu of a refund. If you received the work electronically, the person or entity providing it to you may choose to give you a second opportunity to receive the work electronically in lieu of a refund. If the second copy is also defective, you may demand a refund in writing without further opportunities to fix the problem.

1.F.4. Except for the limited right of replacement or refund set forth in paragraph 1.F.3, this work is provided to you 'AS-IS', WITH NO OTHER WARRANTIES OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR ANY PURPOSE.

1.F.5. Some states do not allow disclaimers of certain implied warranties or the exclusion or limitation of certain types of damages. If any disclaimer or limitation set forth in this agreement violates the law of the state applicable to this agreement, the agreement shall be interpreted to make the maximum disclaimer or limitation permitted by the applicable state law. The invalidity or unenforceability of any provision of this agreement shall not void the remaining provisions.

1.F.6. INDEMNITY - You agree to indemnify and hold the Foundation, the trademark owner, any agent or employee of the Foundation, anyone providing copies of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works in accordance with this agreement, and any volunteers associated with the production, promotion and distribution of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, harmless from all liability, costs and expenses, including legal fees, that arise directly or indirectly from any of the following which you do or cause to occur: (a) distribution of this or any Project Gutenberg work, (b) alteration, modification, or additions or deletions to any Project Gutenberg work, and (c) any Defect you cause.

Section 2. Information about the Mission of Project Gutenberg

Project Gutenberg is synonymous with the free distribution of electronic works in formats readable by the widest variety of computers including obsolete, old, middle-aged and new computers. It exists because of the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and donations from people in all walks of life.

Volunteers and financial support to provide volunteers with the assistance they need are critical to reaching Project Gutenberg's goals and ensuring that the Project Gutenberg collection will remain freely available for generations to come. In 2001, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation was created to provide a secure and permanent future for Project Gutenberg and future generations. To learn more about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and how your efforts and donations can help, see Sections 3 and 4 and the Foundation information page at www.gutenberg.org.

Section 3. Information about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation is a non-profit 501(c)(3) educational corporation organized under the laws of the state of Mississippi and granted tax exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Foundation's EIN or federal tax identification number is 64-6221541. Contributions to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation are tax deductible to the full extent permitted by U.S. federal laws and your state's laws.

The Foundation's business office is located at 41 Watchung Plaza #516, Montclair NJ 07042, USA, +1 (862) 621-9288. Email contact links and up to date contact information can be found at the Foundation's website and official page at www.gutenberg.org/contact

Section 4. Information about Donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

Project Gutenberg™ depends upon and cannot survive without widespread public support and donations to carry out its mission of increasing the number of public domain and licensed works that can be freely distributed in machine-readable form accessible by the widest array of equipment including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit www.gutenberg.org/donate.

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: www.gutenberg.org/donate.

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg electronic works

Professor Michael S. Hart was the originator of the Project Gutenberg concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For forty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as not protected by copyright in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.

Most people start at our website which has the main PG search facility: www.gutenberg.org.

This website includes information about Project Gutenberg, including how to make donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, how to help produce our new eBooks, and how to subscribe to our email newsletter to hear about new eBooks.