EXPLANATORY NOTES

Soy bean sauce and ginger are universally used in China for seasoning. Soy bean sauce in many instances takes the place of salt.

Mushrooms, water chestnuts and bamboo shoots are the distinctive vegetables used in many of the Chinese dishes.

All of these supplies may be obtained in New York City at the Chinese Grocery, Quong Yuen Shing and Company, Thirty-Two Mott Street, Chinatown; The Cathay Tea Garden, One hundred Sixty-Four East Eighty-Sixth Street; Yoeng's Restaurant, Broadway and Forty-Eighth Street or the College Inn, Broadway near One hundred Twenty-Fourth Street.

Peanut oil, or lard are used in China for frying and cooking. Where the recipes call for "vegetable oil or lard" any shortening or drippings may be used, including Crisco, Best Foods Shortening Mazola and Wesson Oil.

The ingredients noted in each recipe are enough to serve six portions.

TEA

1 teaspoon of tea leaves

6 cups of boiling water

Scald out a crockery teapot. While it is warm put into it a teaspoonful of tea leaves. Pour on fresh boiling water. Steep from three to five minutes before serving.

EGG-FLOWERS SOUP

1 quart chicken broth

½ cup finely chopped water chestnuts

2 eggs

pepper and salt

Pour half cupful of finely chopped water chestnuts into a quart of boiling chicken broth. Cook for about five minutes. Beat up two eggs, yolks and whites together. Pour egg into chicken broth and stir well and slowly until it forms small flowers. Add pepper and salt to taste.

CHINESE RICE

The proper way to cook rice is to wash the rice clean, add water, measuring one inch above the rice surface.

Let it come to a boil, then turn the gas low, let the rice simmer until it is cooked dry. Do not open the lid during cooking. When the rice is correctly cooked, every grain stands by itself.

Chop up some left-over meat, or ham or bacon, and an onion. Brown all together in a frying pan, with a little oil or fat. Add rice, fry all together again until rice and meat become brown.

including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit www.gutenberg.org/donate.

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: www.gutenberg.org/donate.

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg electronic works

Professor Michael S. Hart was the originator of the Project Gutenberg concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For forty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as not protected by copyright in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.

Most people start at our website which has the main PG search facility:
www.gutenberg.org.

This website includes information about Project Gutenberg, including how to make donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, how to help produce our new eBooks, and how to subscribe to our email newsletter to hear about new eBooks.
