The Judgement of Valhalla

BY GILBERT FRANKAU

THE DESERTER

“I’m sorry I done it, Major.”
We bandaged the livid face;
And led him out, ere the wan sun rose,
To die his death of disgrace.

The bolt-heads locked to the cartridge;
The rifles steadied to rest,
As cold stock nestled at colder cheek
And foresight lined on the breast.

“Fire!” called the Sergeant-Major.
The muzzles flamed as he spoke:
And the shameless soul of a nameless man
Went up in the cordite-smoke.

THE EYE AND THE TRUTH

Up from the fret of the earth-world, through the Seven Circles of Flame,
With the seven holes in Its tunic for sign of the death-in-shame,
To the little gate of Valhalla the coward-spirit came.

Cold, It crouched in the man-strong wind that sweeps Valhalla's floor;
Weak, It pawed and scratched on the wood; and howled, like a dog, at the Door
Which is shut to the souls who are sped in shame, for ever and evermore:

For It snuffed the Meat of the Banquet-boards where the Threefold Killers sit,
Where the Free Beer foams to the tankard-rim, and the Endless Smokes are lit....
And It saw the Nakéd Eye come out above the lintel-slit.

And now It quailed at Nakéd Eye which judges the naked dead;
And now It snarled at Nakéd Truth that broodeth overhead;
And now It looked to the earth below where the gun-flames flickered red.

It muttered words It had learned on earth, the words of a black-coat priest
Who had bade It pray to a pulpit god—but ever Eye's Wrath increased;
And It knew that Its words were empty words, and It whined like a homeless beast:

Till, black above the lintel-slit, the Nakéd Eye went out;
Till, loud across the Killer-Feasts, It heard the Killer-Shout—
The three-fold song of them that slew, and died ... and had no doubt.

THE SONG OF THE RED-EDGED STEEL

*Below your black priest's heaven,
Above his tinselled hell,
Beyond the Circles Seven,
The Red-Steel Killers dwell—
The men who drave, to blade-ring home, behind the marching shell.*

We knew not good nor evil,
Save only right of blade;
Yet neither god nor devil
Could hold us from our trade,
When once we watched the barrage lift, and splendidly afraid

Came scrambling out of cover,
And staggered up the hill....
The bullets whistled over;
Our sudden dead lay still;
And the mad machine-gun chatter drove us fighting-wild to kill.

Then the death-light lit our faces,
And the death-mist floated red
O'er the crimson cratered places
Where his outposts crouched in dread....
And we stabbed or clubbed them as they crouched; and shot them as they fled;

And floundered, torn and bleeding,
Over trenches, through the wire,
With the shrapnel-barrage leading
To the prey of our desire—
To the men who rose to meet us from the blood-soaked battle-mire;

Met them; gave and asked no quarter;
But, where we saw the Gray,
Plunged the edged steel of slaughter,
Stabbed home, and wrenched away....
Till red wrists tired of killing-work, and none were left to slay.

Now — while his fresh battalions

THE SONG OF THE CRASHING WING

*Higher than tinselled heaven,
Lower than angels dare,
Loop to the fray, swoop on their prey,
The Killers of the Air.*

We scorned the Galilean,
We mocked at Kingdom-Come:
The old gods knew our pæan—
Our dawn-loud engine-hum:

The old red gods of slaughter,
The gods before the Jew!
We heard their cruel laughter,
Shrill round us, as we flew:

When, deaf to earth and pity,
Blind to the guns beneath,
We loosed upon the city
Our downward-plunging death.

The Sun-God watched our fighting;
No Christian priest could tame
Our deathly stuttered fighting:—
The whirled drum, spitting flame;

The roar, of blades behind her;
The banking plane up-tossed;
The swerve that sought to blind her;
Masked faces, glimpsed and lost;

The joy-stick wrenched to guide her;
The swift and saving zoom,
What time the shape beside her
Went spinning to its doom.

No angel-wings might follow
Where, poised behind the fray,
We snied our Lord Apollo

we spied our Lord Apollo

Stoop down to mark his prey—

The hidden counter-forces;

The guns upon the road;

The tethered transport-horses,

Stampeding, as we showed—

Dun hawks of death, loud-roaring—

A moment to their eyes:

And slew; and passed far-soaring;

And dwindled up the skies.

But e'en Apollo's pinions

Had faltered where we ran,

Low through his veiled dominions,

To lead the charging van!

The tree-tops slathered under;

The Red-Steel Killers knew,

Hard overhead, the thunder

And backwash of her screw;

The blurred clouds raced above her;

The blurred fields streaked below,

Where waited, crouched to cover,

The foremost of our foe;

Banking, we saw his furrows

Leap at us, open wide:

Hell-raked the man-packed burrows;

And crashed—and crashing, died.

It heard the song of the Dead in Air, as It huddled against the gate;

And once again the Eye peered down—red-rimmed with scorn and hate

For the shameless soul of the nameless one who had neither foe nor mate.

And Eye was shut. But Nakéd Truth bent down to mock the Thing:—

“Thou hast heard the Song of the Red-edged Steel, and the Song of the

THE SONG OF THE GUNNER-DEAD

*In Thor's own red Valhalla,
Which priest may not unbar;
But only Nakéd Truth and Eye,
Last arbiters of War;
Feast, by stark right of courage,
The Killers from Afar.*

We put no trust in heaven,
We had no fear of hell;
But lined, and ranged, and timed to clock,
Our barrage-curtains fell,
When guns gave tongue and breech-blocks swung
And palms rammed home the shell.

The Red-Steel ranks edged forward,
And vanished in our smoke;
Back from his churning craters,
The Gray Man reeled and broke;
While, fast as sweat could lay and set,
Our rocking muzzles spoke.

We blew him from the village;
We chased him through the wood:
Till, tiny on the crest-line
Where once his trenches stood,
We watched the wag of sending flag
That told our work was good:

Till, red behind the branches,
The death-sun sank to blood;
And the Red-Steel Killers rested....
But we, by swamp and flood,
Through mirk and night—his shells for light—
Blaspheming, choked with mud,

Roped to the tilting axles,
Man-handled up the crest;

And wrenched our plunging gun-teams
Foam-flecked from jowl to breast,
Downwards, and on, where trench-lights shone—
For we, we might not rest!

Shell-deafened; soaked and sleepless;
Short-handed; under fire;
Days upon nights unending,
We wrought, and dared not tire—
With whip and bit from dump to pit,
From pit to trench with wire.

The Killers in the Open,
The Killers down the Wind,
They saw the Gray Man eye to eye—
But we, we fought him blind,
Nor knew whence came the screaming flame
That killed us, miles behind.

Yet, when the triple rockets
Flew skyward, blazed and paled,
For sign the lines were broken;
When the Red Steel naught availed;
When, through the smoke, on shield and spoke
His rifle bullets hailed;

When we waited, dazed and hopeless,
Till the layer's eye could trace
Helmets, bobbing just above us
Like mad jockeys in a race....
Then—loaded, laid, and unafraid,
We met him face to face;

Jerked the trigger; felt the trunnions
Rock and quiver; saw the flail
Of our zero-fuses blast him;
Saw his gapping ranks turn tail;
Heard the charging-cheer behind us ...
And dropped dead across the trail

VALHALLA'S VERDICT

It heard the Song of the Gunner-Dead die out to a sullen roar:
But Nakéd Truth said never a word; and Eye peered down no more.
For Eye had seen; and Truth had judged ... and It might not pass the Door!

And now, like a dog in the dark, It shrank from the voice of a man It knew:

“There are empty seats at the Banquet-board, but there’s never a seat for you;
For they will not drink with a coward soul, the stark red men who slew.

There’s meat and to spare, at the Killer-Feasts where Thor’s swung hammer
twirls;
There’s beer and enough, in the Free Canteen where the Endless Smoke
upcurls;
There are lips and lips, for the Killer-Men, in the Hall of the Dancing-Girls.

There’s a place for any that passes clean—but for you there’s never a place:
The Endless Smoke would blacken your lips, and the Girls would spit in your face;
And the Beer and the Meat go sour on your guts—for you died the death of disgrace.

We were pals on earth: but by God’s brave Son and the bomb that I reached too late,
I damn the day and I blast the hour when first I called you mate;
And I’d sell my soul for one of my feet, to hack you from the gate—

To hack you hence to the lukewarm hells that the priest-made ovens heat,
Or the faked-pearl heaven of pulpit gods, where the sheep-faced angels bleat
And the halo’s rim is as hard to the head as the gilded floor to the feet.”

It heard the stumps of Its one-time mate go waddling back to the Feast.
And, once and again, It whined for the Meat; ere It slunk, like a tonguelashed beast

Aimée

WIFE AND COUNTRY

Dear, let me thank you for this:

That you made me remember, in fight,
England—all mine at your kiss,
At the touch of your hands in the night:
England—your giving's delight.

MOTHER AND MATE

Lightly she slept, that splendid mother mine
Who faced death, undismayed, two hopeless years....
("Think of me sometimes, son, but not with tears
Lest my soul grieve," she writes. Oh, this divine Unselfishness!) ...

Her favourite print smiled down—
The stippled Cupid, Bartolozzi-brown—
Upon my sorrow. Fire-gleams, fitful, played
Among her playthings—Toby mugs and jade....

And then I dreamed that—suddenly, strangely clear—
A voice I knew not, faltered at my ear:
"Courage!" ... Your own dear voice, loved since, and known!

And now that she sleeps well, come times her voice
Whispers in day-dreams: "Courage, son! Rejoice
That, leaving you, I left you not alone."

MEETING

I came from the City of Fear,
From the scarred brown land of pain,
Back into life again ...
And I thought, as the leave-boat rolled
Under the veering stars—
Wind a-shriek in her spars—
Shivering there, and cold,
Of music, of warmth, and of wine—
To be mine
For a whole short week ...
And I thought, adrowse in the train,
Of London, suddenly near;
And of how—small doubt—I should find
There, as of old,
Some woman—foolishly kind:
Fingers to hold,
A cheek,
A mouth to kiss—and forget,
Forget in a little while,
Forget
When I came again
To the scarred brown land of pain,
To the sodden things and the vile,
And the tedious battle-fret.

My dear,
I cannot forget!
Not even here
In this City of Fear.

I remember the poise of your head,
And your look, and the words you said
When we met,
And the waxen bloom at your breast,
And the sable fur that caressed
Your smooth white wrists, and your hands ...
Remember them yet,

MUSIC AND WINE

When the ink has dried on the pen,
When the sword returns to its sheath;
When the world of women and men,
And the waters around and beneath,
Char and shrivel and burn—
What will God give in return?...
Has He better to offer in heaven above
Than wine and music, laughter and love?

Laughter, music and wine,
The promise of love in your eyes ...
Sleeping, I dream them mine;
Waking, my spirit cries—
Here in the mud and the rain—
“God, give me London again!
I would lose all earth and the heavens above
For just one banquet of laughter and love.”

When my flesh returns to its earth,
When my pen is dust as my sword;
If one thing I wrought find worth
In the eyes of our kindly Lord,
I will only ask of His grace
That He grant us a lowly place
Where his warriors toast Him, in heaven above,
With wine and music, laughter and love.

THE GAMBLE

If man backs horses, plays cards or dice,
Or bets on an ivory ball,
He knows the rules, and he reckons the price—
Be it one half-crown, or his all.
(And it isn't sense, and it isn't pluck,
To double the stakes when you're out of luck!)

If he plays—with his life for a limit—here,
It's an even-money game:
He can lay on the Red—which is Conquered Fear,
Or the Black—which is Utter Shame.
(And there isn't much choice between Reds and Blacks,
For Death throws "zero" whichever he backs.)

So that whether man plays for the red gold's wealth
Where the little ball clicks and spins,
Or hazards his life in the black night's stealth
When machine-gun fire begins—
It's a limited gamble; and each of us knows
What he stands to lose ere the tables close.

But woman's gamble—(there's only one:
And it takes some pluck to play,
When the rules are broke ere the game's begun;
When, lose or win, you must pay!)—
Is a double wager on human kind,
A limitless risk—and she goes it blind.

For she stakes, at love, on a single throw,
Pride, Honour, Scruples and Fears,
And dreams no lover can hope to know,
And the gold of the after-years.
(And all for a man; and there's no man lives
Who is worth the odds that a woman gives.)

So that since you hazarded this for me
On the day love's die was cast,

NINON AND ROSES

Here, in a land where hardly a rose is,
    Silkiest blossoms of brodered flowers
Brush my cheek as each tired eye closes,
    Haunt my sleep through the desolate hours.

Roses never of nature's making,
    Roses loved for a rose-red night,
Roses visioned at dawn-light's breaking
    Veiling a bosom as roses white!

Why does the ghost of you linger and stay with me—
    Ghost of the rose-buds that perfumed our bed,
Ghost of a rose-girl who blossomed to play with me—
    Here in a land where the roses are dead?

Day-time and night-time the death-flower blazes,
    Saffron at gun-lip and orange and red,
Here where June's rose-tree lies shattered as May's is,
    Here where I dream of the nights that are dead—

Nights that were sweet with the scent and the touch of you,
    Rose-girl in ninon with buds at your breast,
Rose-girl who promised and granted so much of you,
    All that was tender and all that was best.

Growl of the guns cannot shatter the dream of you,
    Banish the thought of one exquisite hour,
Or the scent of your hair in the dawn, or the gleam of you
    White as white roses through roses a-flower.

PARTING

Times more than once, all ways about the world,
Have I clasped hands; waved sorrowful good-bye;
Watched far cliffs fading, till my sea-wake swirled
To mingle bluely with a landless sky:
Then—even as the sea-drowned cliffs behind—
Felt sorrow drowning into memory;
And heard, in every thrill of every wind,
New voices welcoming across the sea.

Until it seemed nor land nor love had power
To hold my heart in any firm duress:
Grieving, I sorrowed but a little hour;
Loving, I knew desire's sure faithfulness:
Until, by many a love dissatisfied,
Of each mistrustful and to each untrue,
I found—as one who, having long denied,
Finds faith at last—this greater Love, in you.

Parting? We are not parted, woman mine!
Though hands have clasped, though lips have kissed good-bye;
Though towns glide past, and fields, and fields of brine—
My body takes the warrior-way, not I.
I am still with you; you, with me; one heart;
One equal union, soul to certain soul:
Time cannot sever us, nor sorrow part,
Nor any sea, who keep our vision whole.

How can I grieve, who know your spirit near;
Who watch with newly understanding eyes
This England of your giving, newly dear,
Sink where my sea-wake swirls to darkling skies?
Lilac, her cliffs have faded into mist....
Yet still I hold them white in memory,
Feeling, against these lips your lips have kissed,
The home-wind thrilling down an English sea.

The Other Side

THE OTHER SIDE

Just got your letter and the poems. Thanks.
You always were a brainy sort of chap:
Though pretty useless as a subaltern—
Too much imagination, not enough
Of that rare quality, sound commonsense
And so you've managed to get on the Staff:
Influence, I suppose: a Captain, too!
How do tabs suit you? Are they blue or green?

About your book. I've read it carefully,
So has Macfaddyen (you remember him,
The light-haired chap who joined us after Loos?);
And candidly, we don't think much of it.
The piece about the horses isn't bad;
But all the rest, excuse the word, are tripe—
The same old tripe we've read a thousand times.

My grief, but we're fed up to the back-teeth
With war-books, war-verse, all the eye-wash stuff
That seems to please the idiots at home.
You know the kind of thing, or used to know:
"Heroes who laugh while Fritz is strafing them"—
(I don't remember that you found it fun,
The day they shelled us out of Blouwpoot Farm!)
"After the fight. Our cheery wounded. Note
The smile of victory: it won't come off"—
(Of course they smile; so'd you, if you'd escaped,
And saw three months of hospital ahead....
They don't smile, much, when they're shipped back to France!)
"Out for the Great Adventure"—(twenty-five
Fat, smirking wasters in some O.T.C.,
Who just avoided the Conscription Act!)
"A strenuous woman-worker for the Cause"—
(Miss Trixie Toogood of the Gaiety,
Who helped to pauperize a few Beligues
In the great cause of self-advertisement!) ...

Lord knows, the newspapers are bad enough;
But they've got some excuse—the censorship—
Helping to keep their readers' spirits up—
Giving the public what it wants: (besides,
One mustn't blame the press, the press has done
More than its share to help us win this war—
More than some other people I could name):
But what's the good of war-books, if they fail
To give civilian-readers an idea
Of what life is like in the firing-line?...

You might have done that much; from you, at least,
I thought we'd get an inkling of the truth.
But no; you rant and rattle, beat your drum,
And blow your two-penny trumpet like the rest:
“Red battle's glory,” “honour's utmost task,”
“Gay jesting faces of undaunted boys,” ...
The same old Boys'-Own-Paper balderdash!

Mind you, I don't deny that they exist,
These abstract virtues which you gas about—
(We shouldn't stop out here long, otherwise!)—
Honour and humour, and that sort of thing;
(Though heaven knows where you found the glory-touch,
Unless you picked it up at G.H.Q.);
But if you'd commonsense, you'd understand
That humour's just the Saxon cloak for fear,
Our English substitute for “Vive la France,”
Or else a trick to keep the folk at home
From being scared to death—as we are scared;
That honour ... damn it, honour's the one thing
No soldier yaps about, except of course
A soldier-poet—three-and-sixpence net.

Honest to God, it makes me sick and tired
To think that you, who lived a year with us,
Should be content to write such tommy-rot.
I feel as though I'd sent a runner back

With news that we were being strafed like Hell ...
And he'd reported: "Everything O. K."
Something's the matter: either you can't see,
Or else you see, and cannot write—that's worse.

Hang it, you can't have clean forgotten things
You went to bed with, woke with, smelt and felt,
All those long months of boredom streaked with fear:
Mud, cold, fatigue, sweat, nerve-strain, sleeplessness,
And men's excreta viscid in the rain,
And stiff-legged horses lying by the road,
Their bloated bellies shimmering, green with flies....

Have you forgotten? you who dine to-night
In comfort at the Carlton or Savoy.
(Lord, but I'd like a dart at that myself—
Oysters, crême something, sole vin blanc, a bird,
And one cold bottle of the very best—
A girl to share it: afterwards, a show—
Lee White and Alfred Lester, Nelson Keys;
Supper to follow.

... Our Brigade's in rest—
The usual farm. I've got the only bed.
The men are fairly comfy—three good barns.
Thank God, they didn't have to bivouac
After this last month in the Salient.) ...

You have forgotten; or you couldn't write
This sort of stuff—all cant, no guts in it,
Hardly a single picture true to life.

Well, here's a picture for you: Montauban—
Last year—the flattened village on our left—
On our right flank, the razed Briqueterie,
Their five-nines pounding bits to dustier bits—
Behind, a cratered slope, with batteries
Crashing and flashing, violet in the dusk,

And prematuring every now and then—
In front, the ragged Bois de Bernafay,
Bosche whizz-bangs bursting white among its trees.

You had been doing F.O.O. that day;
(The Staff knows why we had an F.O.O.:
One couldn't flag-wag through Trônes Wood; the wires
Went down as fast as one could put them up;
And messages by runner took three hours.)
I got the wind up rather: you were late,
And they'd been shelling like the very deuce.
However, back you came. I see you now,
Staggering into "mess"—a broken trench,
Two chalk-walls roofed with corrugated iron,
And, round the traverse, Driver Noakes's stove
Stinking and smoking while we ate our grub.
Your face was blue-white, streaked with dirt; your eyes
Had shrunk into your head, as though afraid
To watch more horrors; you were sodden-wet
With greasy coal-black mud—and other things.
Sweating and shivering, speechless, there you stood.
I gave you whisky, made you talk. You said:
"Major, another signaller's been killed."
"Who?"

    "Gunner Andrews, blast them. O my Christ!
His head—split open—when his brains oozed out,
They looked like bloody sweetbreads, in the muck."

And you're the chap who writes this claptrap verse!

Lord, if I'd half your brains, I'd write a book:
None of your sentimental platitudes,
But something real, vital; that should strip
The glamour from this outrage we call war,
Shewing it naked, hideous, stupid, vile—
One vast abomination. So that they
Who, coming after, till the ransomed fields
Where our lean corpses rotted in the ooze,

Reading my written words, should understand
This stark stupendous horror, visualize
The unutterable foulness of it all....
I'd shew them, not your glamorous "glorious game,"
Which men play "jesting" "for their honour's sake"—
(A kind of Military Tournament,
With just a hint of danger—bound in cloth!)—
But War,—as war is now, and always was:
A dirty, loathsome, servile murder-job:—
Men, lousy, sleepless, ulcerous, afraid,
Toiling their hearts out in the pulling slime
That wrenches gum-boot down from bleeding heel
And cakes in itching arm-pits, navel, ears:
Men stunned to brainlessness, and gibbering:
Men driving men to death and worse than death:
Men maimed and blinded: men against machines—
Flesh versus iron, concrete, flame and wire:
Men choking out their souls in poison-gas:
Men squelched into the slime by trampling feet:
Men, disembowelled by guns five miles away,
Cursing, with their last breath, the living God
Because he made them, in His image, men....
So—were your talent mine—I'd write of war
For those who, coming after, know it not.

And if posterity should ask of me
What high, what base emotions keyed weak flesh
To face such torments, I would answer: "You!
Not for themselves, O daughters, grandsons, sons,
Your tortured forebears wrought this miracle;
Not for themselves, accomplished utterly
This loathliest task of murderous servitude;
But just because they realized that thus,
And only thus, by sacrifice, might they Secure a world worth living in—for you." ...

Good-night, my soldier-poet. Dormez bien!

“One of Them”

Being in Some Respects a Sequel to “One of Us”

I.

*Wherein the bard—released from War's confusions—
Preludes with egotistical allusions.*

Six years ago—or is it six-and-twenty?
    (How vast the gulf from those ecstatic days!)—
When the whole earth snored on in slothful plenty (Tho' poets cashed small pittance for their lays);
When war appeared less real than G. A. Henty,
    And Oxo's snaky signs were yet ablaze;
When all seemed peaceful as the press of Cadbury,
And no one dreamed of bombs, or bet a Bradbury;

Or e'er stern Mars had roped us in his tether,
    Ere British guns had thundered at Le Câteau:
We fitted out—my Muse and I together—
    And launched adown the galley-slips of Chatto
A barque of verse, full-rigged for halcyon weather,
    Which many a critic judged to take the gâteau:
(Though some there were, high pundits of disparity,
Who wept at our unscholarly vulgarity).

We have sailed far since then; crossed our horizon;
    Published our loves and travels in a novel
(A tale, men say, that Peckham's flapper cries on,
    So that both Boots and Smith's before us grovel);
And eaten ration bully-beef—with flies on;
    And sheltered gratefully in many a hovel,
What time we sang of guns and gore and trenches—
Instead of oysters, tango-teas and wenches.

For times have changed since we wrote "One of Us":
    Et nos mutamus—more or less—in illis.
Muse finds herself in urbe somewhat rus;
    And I—if I disport with Amaryllis—
Where once my motor flashed, prefer a 'bus;
    And shuddering note how vast the supper-bill is;
And signing, sigh in secret for the calm,

Chaste, cheap seclusion of my Chiltern farm.

Yes, Muse and I are tired, and super-serious:
Her damask cheek is lined a bit, and wrinkled.
We are grown old, and London's late nights weary us:
While the gold wine that erst in ice-pail tinkled,
Her doctor finds extremely deleterious;
And mine forbids me red lips, passion-crinkled:
So now we cultivate domestic habits
Amongst our pigs, our poultry, and our rabbits.

Yet sometimes, as we trench our stubborn soil,
Or feed our sows, or strow the peat-moss litter,
Or set the morrow's chicken-mash to boil,
Or wander out where our young turkeys twitter,
Or read by mellow candle-light—since oil
Is dear and scarce; or talk—a little bitter
Because we find that Food Control Committees
Are all composed of men brought up in cities;

Sometimes, in this five-acre paradise
Whither my nerve-racked spirit fled the battle
Deferring to sound Harley Street advice—
A silver badge its only martial chattel,
I hear a voice, loud as the market price
That butchers bid for Rhondda's missing cattle,
Voice of my Muse, still vibrant with old passion,
Telling how poetry is now the fashion.

"Look you," she cries, "the Wheels are turning, turning.
Though Pegasus long since wore out his pinions,
Somehow his shod hooves keep the bread-mills churning.
Shrill, night and day, sing Marsh Georgian minions:
Each sinking sun sets some new Noyes a-burning,
Each rising moon reveals fresh hordes of Binyons;
Who batten fat on unsuspecting editors,
And—unlike you—contrive to pay their creditors.

"Deaf, far-off! You agricultural brutes!

Poet, forsooth! you agricultural brute!
Have you no soul above the weight of porkers?
Was it for this I hearkened to your suit,
Gave you my metres and my rhymes—some, corks?
Up, Gilbert! rummage out your rusty lute:
Polish it blacker than your black Minorcas:
And let its notes once more, in refluent stanzas,
Dower the Income-tax with glad Bonanzas.”

So she; and—since I loathe to disappoint
The least illusion of the equal sex—
Let Byron’s oil once more these locks anoint,
Once more let honour meet these Cox-drawn cheques ...
Though well I know that times are spare of joint,
And satire’s song less like to please than vex;
Now small beer, Smallwood, raids and strikes and rations,
Have near eclipsed the gaiety of nations:

Still, let me sing. Yet not as once I sung:
Love, fear, and death have chastened, sobered, saddened,
One who knew life’s full burden-time too young;
Whom never youth’s unhampered freedom gladdened,
But only envy and ambition stung,
And fickle passions—in love’s semblance maddened;
So that he needs must tumble now, poor clown,
On this Pindaric stage for half-a-crown:

Yet one who, ’spite a past that shocked St. Tony
And paid recording angels overtime,
Still holds his own at sonnet or canzone.
As some shall know who follow this, my rhyme—
Some few: for gladly would I lay a pony,
Or larger sum, against a ten-cent dime,
That most of those who read this metred tract’ll
Not know a spondee from a pterodactyl.

II.

*Explains—a task few modern penmen shirk—
The sociology of this great work.*

God bless Democracy, George Bernard Shaw,
And William Dunn, our sanest, saintliest hatter!
God bless that great anomaly, the Law;
Aye, may our knights on hoarded tea wax fatter!
God bless Sir Arthur Yapp's unfailing jaw,
Lord Lansdowne's pen, and brave Horatio's chatter!
And—lest in England Bolos quite prevail—
God bless King Northcliffe and his "Daily Mail!"

Long live the old Press—"Times," "D. T.," "Spectator"!
Long live the New—"Age," "Europe," "Statesman," "Witness"!
Long live each acti temporis laudator!
Long live Lloyd George in unmolested Pitt-ness!
Long live "The Nation," facile demonstrator
Of everybody's—save its own—unfitness!
Long live Valera, Carson, Devlin, Plunkett!
Long live the lads who fight, the cads who funk it!

Long live our German banks, sub duce Plender!
Long may our railways rule our bounding sea!
Long may impatient Cuthberts paw their fender,
What time their patient Phyllis pours their tea!
Long life to each investor and each spender!
Long live the Staff! Long live the A.S.E.!
So long as England's in the melting-pot,
A prudent bard must sing, "Long live the lot!"

For who shall say—at close of Armageddon,
When the world's finished beggaring its neighbour,
When the last shell's been fired, the last pig fed on—
If we'll be ruled by Capital or Labour:
If a Welsh harp shall twang part-songs of Seddon,
While Simon pipes a compromising tabor:
Or whether every stalwart War-Loan-lender's son

---

Will find his Empire dividends signed “Henson”?

Not I: not all the better men who fought
While dilutees preserved their precious skin:
Not those great early dead, whose single thought
Ran—“England: Germany: we’ve got to win.”
Poor simple souls, of H. G. Wells untaught,
They never realized their next-of-kin
Would read how they had died to make life cheerier
For the dear blacks in Briningized Nigeria.

Public, forgive your fool; if now and then—
Black bubbles on the verse’s stream—appear
Thoughts of our worn, unlettered fighting-men;
If sometimes, through the grease-paint’s gay veneer,
Truth shews—a wrinkled hag. The traitor pen
Forgets how blood is cheap and paper dear:
And I’m no more the blithe, nut-loving squirrel
Who frisked it in the consulship of Birrell.

Which is, perchance, the reason why my mind
Turns oft to those dear days, now dead as mutton;
When Haldane’s soul with Bethmann-Hollweg dined;
And no one ploughed up golf-greens, sown by Sutton,
To bed the humble tuber’s sprouting rind;
Or dashed off shorthand billets-doux in Dutton,
Or changed a blear-eyed pauper to a swell man
In six short weeks of concentrated Pelman:

Why now—sad minstrel in un-Sandoned sack-cloth—
I sing the twilight of the times I knew.
No more our glaring footlights blurr a back-cloth
Woven of misery and hung askew;
For Time, stern judge of Us, has donned his black cloth,
And to the Mob delivered up the Few ...
Unless, of course, the Mob’s but swapped its Peers
For a worse dynasty—of profiteers.

God knows we had our faults — good blindness — wide

God knows, we had our faults—greed, blindness, pride.
God also knows we had a dashed good time.
Were they the worse for that—our boys who died,
By earth and air and sea in every clime?
God knows! But if ghost-feet still strut and side
About their clubs, if ghost-eyes read this rhyme,
I think they'd like their vanished epoch's swan-song
To be a merry tune, and not a wan song.

So clear the stage, and ring the curtain up!
Once more—ere Empires yield to Leagues of Nations,
And bayonets to Socialistic gup—
Let Beauty, in diaphanous creations,
Ogle the stalls, and subsequently sup
Off iced champagne and ortolan collations....
Whereafter, if my pen won't bring me pelf,
Damned if I don't turn Socialist myself!

III.

*Sets forth, despite the Law's dull interference,
A lady's birth, age, family, and appearance.*

Arms have I sung full oft, both steel and white ones;
Guns have I sung till I can sing no more;
Men have I sung, both common and polite ones:
Yet never sang one heroine before.
Come, then, my ghost-girls, dark, fair, plump, and slight ones,
Come in the finest, flimsiest frocks ye wore....
Alas, not one of you quite fills the bill—
A life-size model for my Lady Jill.

Pardon, then, Magda, Gladys, Nancy, Florence,
Doris, Patricia, Mollie, Celandine,
Nor hold your erstwhile suitor in abhorrence
Because, from one, he takes eyes subtly green;
From other, hands a Sargent or a Lawrence
Had envied for his canvas; here, the sheen
Of gold hair, auburn-shot, in whose abundance,
What time Jill dreamed, young Cupids watched the sun dance;

There a smooth throat, an arched, attractive ankle,
Soft cheek, curved back in bloom to close-set ear,
Red mouth full-lipped, a voice whose love-tones rankle
Still in this heart of mine,—a voice so dear
That ... But no more! In fear this rhyming prank'll
Offend some damozel whom I revere,
I state: Jill's just an ordinary blonde,
Fair, frail, flirtatious, rather fast than fond.

You know the type—aristo-plutocratic,
Out of blue blood by hard North Country cash;
A self-assertive sire; a dam, lymphatic
(Since rarely strawberry leaves and sovereigns clash);
Their sole son, daring in the diplomatic
(Thumping his Underwood while kingdoms crash);
Their daughter ... Is there a man alive can swear

Exactly what she did or did not dare?

For Jill was one of those astounding females,
Born in a chaster, pre-Edwardian day;
When lone Lucindas dared not dine nor tea males
For dread lest scandal dub them “coryphée”;
When none drank deep of D’Abernonian dream-ales,
But quietly our Empire went its way,
Nor realised that subalterns on horses
Monopolized the brain-power of its Forces:

One who was yet a span from flapperhood,
Still puzzling o’er the simplest of equations;
What time in robe of saffron Phoebus stood,
And all our Lanes were gay with green carnations,
And private hansoms sought the Johnian Wood,
And the shrill cycle-bell’s first tintillations
Resounded from the dawning to the dark
In a Rolls-Royceless, Peter Panless Park:

One who attained the pig-tail’s ribboned dowry,
And helped to pass a Kipling tambourine,
When first from lands of wattle, maple, Maori,
Men came at summons of a dying Queen:
One who, at Auteuil, Dresden, and Rathgowrie,
Acquired that polish reft of which, I ween,
It is not possible for our Dianas
To emulate a modern grande dame’s manners:

One on whose head the ostrich-feathers nodded
In Alexandrine courts—and chez Bassano;
In whose young ears, song’s angels disembodied.
Rang the last notes of Melbourne’s own soprano;
Whose lithe feet, Moykoff-shod, the grouse-moors plodded,
Or danced the new Machiché Brasiliano,
In times before, unchaperoned of skinny ma,
Suburbia’s daughters sought the darkling kinema:

To put the matter briefly—One of Them

to put the matter briefly—One of them.

Bear witness, Muses Nine, how most unworthy
Is my gold nib to touch their garment's hem.

Say, Byron (for as bard I still prefer thee
To all whose pallid minor stars be-gem

These Gotha nights) would not such task deter thee
From the rhymed octave—sometime known as Whistlecraft—
In which, poor ass, I ply this weekly thistlecraft?

Oίμοι! that I can never be a poet

Modelled on spoon-fed college Adonäises,
Whose metres reek of Porson, Jebb, and Jowett,
Whose very thoughts derive from donnish dāises.

Alas! for us who, writing life, must know it—

Its sights, its scents, its ladies, lords, and Lāises.
Alas! for my refusal to disseminate—
Even in verse—the scholarly-effeminate.

And oh! ten thousand times alas, should Jill

Be recognised in these Parnassian pages.

Woe for the libel action, and the bill

Which he must face who in the law engages.

And ah! thank Heaven for a metric skill

That shields this head from Justice Darling's rages ...
Safeguarded by thy last experience, G. Moore,
I maiden-name my lady—Lewis-Seymour.

IV.

*In which the author, contrary to custom,
Goes for the gloves—as Sohrab went for Rustum.*

I have discovered, after much perusal
Of Cannan, George Mackenzie, Walpole, Bennett,
A Law whose discipline brooks no refusal,—
A neo-rheo-literary tenet
Which runs: “In art, forbear to pick and choose. All
That happens, happens. Wherefore, up and pen it!
Let the scribe’s tale be casual and cursory;
End where you like—but start us in the nursery.”

And so I fain had traced, through many a canto,
My heroine; all dimples in her cot;
Bored with her lessons; laughing at the panto.;
Immersed in “Fauntleroy” or Walter Scott:
But, since green herbs from memory’s campo santo
Provide no flavouring for satire’s pot,
For seething, bubbling cauldron such as this is,
I’ll skip the skipping-rope and jump to kisses.

---

’Tis such a night as only London knew
In the full seasons of our heart’s content—
When, like some fairy pageant in review,
Love, Pleasure, Luxury together blent,
Made life not all too boring for the Few;
And Unemployment, fix’t at ten per cent.,
Furnished—by all means of charity bazaars—
Right many a dame with perquisites and “pars.”

London, in London’s June! Above, the starshine:
Below, against the rails of Berkeley Square,
The patient lights of brougham, or rarer car, shine—
Waiting stiff-shirted squires and ladies fair:
Music from high French windows that afar shine

MUSIC, FROM HIGH FRENCH WINDOWS THAT ATAR SHINE,
Thrills, till a dancer well might curse and swear,
And call himself a “dashed unlucky fella”
To miss the Lewis-Seymour’s Cinderella.

Within those halls, where plush-breeched flunkeys stand,
What sounds, what scents, what visions of delight!
How—to the bluest Blue Hungarian band—
Youth whirls away the unreturning night!
How—perfumed as the blooms of Samarcand—
The dying flow’rets whisper, “Carlton White!”
But, oh! to weary war-time ration-hunters,
How like a dream, this stand-up supper—Gunter’s!

For here, in reach of every slender hand which is Scarce languidly outstretched to porcelain plate,
Are dainties drawn from each vale, stream, or strand which is
Most famed for fruit or fish or fowl or cate:
Creamed strawberries; thin, lavish-buttered sandwiches
Of livered geese (that now squawk Hymns of Hate),
Of priceless hams and tongues and caviar; ices;
And sugared sweets in myriad strange devices....

Yet sweeter far than all these sweet things, Jill is:
Queen of my verse and this “Young People’s Dance”:
Fairer than fairest of Mayfairy fillies!
Sweet, is the smile that lights a countenance
Bright as moon-dappled, pink-tipped lotus-lilies;
Sweet, are her jade-green eyes that gleam and glance—
And give no hint of yester-tea-time’s flare-up
When stern mamma forbade her bind her hair up.

Jill’s hair! How beautiful it is; the tresses
Warm-golden, soft as cygnet’s earliest downing.
Jill’s foot! How slim the arch the flounce caresses.
Jill’s brow! How pure; how yet uncreased in frowning.
(My Muse! How easily the jade impresses
On this base coin a stamp of pseudo-Browning.)
Jill’s youth! Jill’s dream! These luxuries that lay her!

Jill's youth: Jill's dreams: these luxuries that lap her!...
Don't they present a most alluring flapper?

So thinks, at least, this lad in evening raiment—
Shoes, shirt-front, collar, waistcoat-buttons, glowing;
This sub. of other days—when soldier's payment
Scarcely sufficed each monthly mess-bill's owing,
And triple stars full fifteen years delay meant;
He, who presents the goblet, over-flowing
With icy rubies to its crinkled brim,
And asks if Jill won't "sit this out" with him....

And there it hangs, word-carven, my last image.
(Browning again! now Keats!) O hapless pair,
Loth lover and bold maiden of a dim age—
Lost to us now, and dead, but still most fair.
O Attic shapes! Arcadian girlhood's slim age,
And silken youth with brilliantined hair!
What climaxes must I not sacrifice,
Who write this epic at a weekly price?

For—as long melodies are sweet, but sweeter
Poems in short instalments, such as mine—
Seven full days, teased puppet of this metre,
Must thy parched tongue await that roseate wine;
Seven full nights, fond boy, must thou entreat her;
Whilst mantle to her cheeks, incarnadine,
Youth's beauty, beauty's youth—and readers vex't
Know, need know, nothing more till Tuesday next.

*Brings life to week-old statues; makes them prance
To love's light tune—and ends the Seymours' dance.*

Pale shapes I locked in memory's studio,
Your draperies stir. From vein to marble vein
The life-blood leaps. Eyes gleam, and pulses glow.
Once more my octaves rap their old refrain
To re-create the weekly puppet-show.
Fond boy, to work! My Jill's herself again,
And answers your entreaty—sideways glancing—
“Perhaps I will. It's jolly hot for dancing.”

So they twain pass—smart sub. and flapper stately—
From the high halls of Gunter's prank't refecton.
And out across the waxèd boards, where lately
Twirled the swift waltz to La Poupée's “Selection.”
And on, past couples gossiping sedately;
And on, past couples screened against detection;
To a dim-shaded, fairy-lighted alcove,
Fit haunt for single maid and single tall cove:—

Such as—in land of Taj Mahal and mugger,
Where girls book weeks ahead their supper dances—
Screens some pale flirt, some lad who yearns to hug her,
From the brown khitmatghar's averted glances.
(Who knows thy secrets, darkling Kala-juggah—
The orbs downcast, the fingers' coy advances,
The swiftly stifled sob that hooks the stripling—
Save I, Victoria Cross, and Rudyard Kipling!)

And there, beneath the new-sponged potted palm-tree,
That mid-day brought and morning shall remove—
Mayfair's own wind-unruffled, ever-calm tree,
Whose drooping branches shield Mayfairies' love—
She lisps of Waller parts, and thy dead charm, Tree
(Twin stars now shining in the “flies” above!);
While he admits he has or hasn't seen them ...

Till a shy sudden silence falls between them,
A cloud across the sun of lightling banter.

O Jill, my gold-spoon cake-and-Moët miss!
Hast thou not dreamed, since thy first tam-o'-shanter,
Of soldier boy, of dance-night such as this?
Faintly they catch the polka's throb, the canter
Of homing hansom-cab where lovers kiss:
And "Oh," thinks he, "what eyes, what lips, what hair, too!"
And "Oh," thinks she "the ninny doesn't dare to."

Voiceless, they sit: but now her eyes, upturning,
Seek his: and now, beneath the lashes' veil,
Leaps a quick flame to set youth's pulses burning;
And now she feels her resolution fail:
And now gains strength anew the curious yearning
For love's adventure: now, her fingers frail
Tighten about the kerchief's lacy tissue:
And now, at last, he says, "Jill, I must kiss you."

"Bobbie, you mustn't." "Jill—just one." Her shoulder
Stiffens; resists the half-encircling arm.
Hands fend away the hand that seeks to hold her.
Lips murmur. Lashes flutter in alarm.
"No, Bobbie. No." My foolish boy, be bolder;
The moment's fear is half the moment's charm....
Alas! His missed and amateurish peck
Grazes the ear-lobe; lands upon the neck.

Readers, both kissed and kissless, chide not; pity
These withered fruits from Jill's dead seas of dreaming.
Think—or in France, or in this barraged city,
How many a dear one owes his brass hat's gleaming,
How many a husband thanks his safe Committee,
To some fond woman's sound strategic scheming!
Ponder—can crafts which men from want to plenty ship,
Be steered without an arduous apprenticeship?

Reader! Nor blame my Jill if she disguises

Ponder! nor blame my Jill if she disguises
Love's disappointment in disapprobation.
If, Artemis in judgment now, she rises—
The outraged goddess, armed for flagellation—
And, with a voice whose every note comprises
Disgust, revolt, pain, virtue, indignation,
Drives from her father's chaste, offended portals
The meekest of apologising mortals.

And blame not me, her bard—whose verses weave her
This coronal of memory's budding-hours,
Who loved her long ago, yet now must leave her
Lorn 'mid the dance's débris, and the flowers
Which fade as day-dreams of that first deceiver—
Because, while War yet ravens and devours,
While still the blind guns thunder out in Flanders,
I sing the type which cozens and philanders.

For, young as Spring and old as Cleopatra,
Certain as Nature's self, this type endureth:
On Skindles' lawn, in jungles of Sumatra,
She blooms—a wax-white weed that no rake cureth:
From Westminster to wats of Pura Chatra,
Her false lips smile, her gladsome optic lureth:
WAAC's may be WREN's; wars, peace; to-day's full Colonel,
To-morrow's clerk ... but Jill is sempiternal.

VI.

*Continues—symptomatically terse—
This first of serials in doggerel verse.*

O Jill, my peerless, perfumed, powdered darling;
Quintessence of all fairies I've adored
In London's lanes, by Devon Budleigh's farling,
At Berkeley's, Kettner's, Ritz's, Carlton's board;
Jill whose white hands ne'er knew roughhouse-work's gnarling;
Whose clothes not twenty Coxes could afford!
How shall man sing the seasoned cee-sprung carriage
In which you rolled from that first kiss to marriage?

What days they were! What noon-times and what twilights!
The whole wide earth seemed fashioned for your pleasure;
Its very heavens, gold-and-crystal skylights
Whereunder you picked orchid blooms at leisure.
For others, shadowed gloom; for you, the high lights—
The pomp, the pride, the dance's twanging measure ...
And if one begged: "Take coin," you'd say, "and toss it her.
Poor thing! That skirt was never cut by Rossiter."

Dear, rotten days! And yet, a Jack grows wistful
At thoughts of all the Jills whom he remembers,
In times when he had boodle by the fist-full
And fires of youth—where now are only embers.

Jack's Jills! Why, Muse possesses quite a list full,
May's Jill, and June's Jill, August's, and September's ...
Yet dares no more than skim each light adventure
Which followed on flirtationship's indenture.

For there's a tide in the affairs of flappers,
Of those, at least, that West End mothers breed—
(Your Wapping matron's more inclined to slap hers:
A vulgar trick—yet one which serves some need!)—
A spring-time blood-tide, mounting to young nappers,
Heady as wine, a mischief-making mead,

1.E.2. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is derived from texts not protected by U.S. copyright law (does not contain a notice indicating that it is posted with permission of the copyright holder), the work can be copied and distributed to anyone in the United States without paying any fees or charges. If you are redistributing or providing access to a work with the phrase “Project Gutenberg” associated with or appearing on the work, you must comply either with the requirements of paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 or obtain permission for the use of the work and the Project Gutenberg trademark as set forth in paragraphs 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.3. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is posted with the permission of the copyright holder, your use and distribution must comply with both paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 and any additional terms imposed by the copyright holder. Additional terms will be linked to the Project Gutenberg License for all works posted with the permission of the copyright holder found at the beginning of this work.

1.E.4. Do not unlink or detach or remove the full Project Gutenberg License terms from this work, or any files containing a part of this work or any other work associated with Project Gutenberg.

1.E.5. Do not copy, display, perform, distribute or redistribute this electronic work, or any part of this electronic work, without prominently displaying the sentence set forth in paragraph 1.E.1 with active links or immediate access to the full terms of the Project Gutenberg License.

1.E.6. You may convert to and distribute this work in any binary, compressed, marked up, nonproprietary or proprietary form, including any word processing or hypertext form. However, if you provide access to or distribute copies of a Project Gutenberg work in a format other than “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other format used in the official version posted on the official Project Gutenberg website (www.gutenberg.org), you must, at no additional cost, fee or expense to the user, provide a copy, a means of exporting a copy, or a means of obtaining a copy upon request, of the work in its original “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other form. Any alternate format must include the full Project Gutenberg License as specified in paragraph 1.E.1.

1.E.7. Do not charge a fee for access to, viewing, displaying, performing, copying or distributing any Project Gutenberg works unless you comply with paragraph 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.8. You may charge a reasonable fee for copies of or providing access to or distributing Project Gutenberg electronic works provided that:

- You pay a royalty fee of 20% of the gross profits you derive from the use of Project Gutenberg works calculated using the method you already use to calculate your applicable taxes. The fee is owed to the owner of the Project Gutenberg trademark, but he has agreed to donate royalties under this paragraph to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation. Royalty payments must be paid within 60 days following each date on which you prepare (or are legally required to prepare) your periodic tax returns. Royalty payments should be clearly marked as such and sent to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation at the address specified in Section 4, “Information about donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation.”
- You provide a full refund of any money paid by a user who notifies you in writing (or by e-mail) within 30 days of receipt that s/he does not agree to the terms of the full Project Gutenberg™ License. You must require such a user to return or destroy all copies of the works possessed in a physical medium and discontinue all use of and all access to other copies of Project Gutenberg™ works.
- You provide, in accordance with paragraph 1.F.3, a full refund of any money paid for a work or a replacement copy, if a defect in the electronic work is discovered and reported to you within 90 days of receipt of the work.

- You comply with all other terms of this agreement for free distribution of Project Gutenberg™ works.

1.E.9. If you wish to charge a fee or distribute a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work or group of works on different terms than are set forth in this agreement, you must obtain permission in writing from the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the manager of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark. Contact the Foundation as set forth in Section 3 below.

1.F.

1.F.1. Project Gutenberg volunteers and employees expend considerable effort to identify, do copyright research on, transcribe and proofread works not protected by U.S. copyright law in creating the Project Gutenberg™ collection. Despite these efforts, Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, and the medium on which they may be stored, may contain “Defects,” such as, but not limited to, incomplete, inaccurate or corrupt data, transcription errors, a copyright or other intellectual property infringement, a defective or damaged disk or other medium, a computer virus, or computer codes that damage or cannot be read by your equipment.

1.F.2. LIMITED WARRANTY, DISCLAIMER OF DAMAGES - Except for the “Right of Replacement or Refund” described in paragraph 1.F.3, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the owner of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark, and any other party distributing a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work under this agreement, disclaim all liability to you for damages, costs and expenses, including legal fees. YOU AGREE THAT YOU HAVE NO REMEDIES FOR NEGLIGENCE, STRICT LIABILITY, BREACH OF WARRANTY OR BREACH OF CONTRACT EXCEPT THOSE PROVIDED IN PARAGRAPH 1.F.3. YOU AGREE THAT THE FOUNDATION, THE TRADEMARK OWNER, AND ANY DISTRIBUTOR UNDER THIS AGREEMENT WILL NOT BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR ACTUAL, DIRECT, INDIRECT, CONSEQUENTIAL, PUNITIVE OR INCIDENTAL DAMAGES

EVEN IF YOU GIVE NOTICE OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGE.

1.F.3. LIMITED RIGHT OF REPLACEMENT OR REFUND - If you discover a defect in this electronic work within 90 days of receiving it, you can receive a refund of the money (if any) you paid for it by sending a written explanation to the person you received the work from. If you received the work on a physical medium, you must return the medium with your written explanation. The person or entity that provided you with the defective work may elect to provide a replacement copy in lieu of a refund. If you received the work electronically, the person or entity providing it to you may choose to give you a second opportunity to receive the work electronically in lieu of a refund. If the second copy is also defective, you may demand a refund in writing without further opportunities to fix the problem.

1.F.4. Except for the limited right of replacement or refund set forth in paragraph 1.F.3, this work is provided to you 'AS-IS', WITH NO OTHER WARRANTIES OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR ANY PURPOSE.

1.F.5. Some states do not allow disclaimers of certain implied warranties or the exclusion or limitation of certain types of damages. If any disclaimer or limitation set forth in this agreement violates the law of the state applicable to this agreement, the agreement shall be interpreted to make the maximum disclaimer or limitation permitted by the applicable state law. The invalidity or unenforceability of any provision of this agreement shall not void the remaining provisions.

1.F.6. INDEMNITY - You agree to indemnify and hold the Foundation, the trademark owner, any agent or employee of the Foundation, anyone providing copies of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works in accordance with this agreement, and any volunteers associated with the production, promotion and distribution of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, harmless from all liability, costs and expenses, including legal fees, that arise directly or indirectly from any of the following which you do or cause to occur: (a) distribution of this or any Project Gutenberg work, (b) alteration, modification, or additions or deletions to any Project Gutenberg work, and (c) any Defect you cause.

Section 2. Information about the Mission of Project Gutenberg

Project Gutenberg is synonymous with the free distribution of electronic works in formats readable by the widest variety of computers including obsolete, old, middle-aged and new computers. It exists because of the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and donations from people in all walks of life.

Volunteers and financial support to provide volunteers with the assistance they need are critical to reaching Project Gutenberg's goals and ensuring that the Project Gutenberg collection will remain freely available for generations to come. In 2001, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation was created to provide a secure and permanent future for Project Gutenberg and future generations. To learn more about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and how your efforts and donations can help, see Sections 3 and 4 and the Foundation information page at www.gutenberg.org.

Section 3. Information about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation is a non-profit 501(c)(3) educational corporation organized under the laws of the state of Mississippi and granted tax exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Foundation's EIN or federal tax identification number is 64-6221541. Contributions to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation are tax deductible to the full extent permitted by U.S. federal laws and your state's laws.

The Foundation's business office is located at 41 Watchung Plaza #516, Montclair NJ 07042, USA, +1 (862) 621-9288. Email contact links and up to date contact information can be found at the Foundation's website and official page at www.gutenberg.org/contact

Section 4. Information about Donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

Project Gutenberg™ depends upon and cannot survive without widespread public support and donations to carry out its mission of increasing the number of public domain and licensed works that can be freely distributed in machine-readable form accessible by the widest array of equipment including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit www.gutenberg.org/donate.

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: www.gutenberg.org/donate.

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg electronic works

Professor Michael S. Hart was the originator of the Project Gutenberg concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For forty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as not protected by copyright in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.

Most people start at our website which has the main PG search facility: www.gutenberg.org.

This website includes information about Project Gutenberg, including how to make donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, how to help produce our new eBooks, and how to subscribe to our email newsletter to hear about new eBooks.
