The background of the lower half of the image is a vibrant magenta color. It is decorated with a complex, repeating pattern of white geometric shapes. These shapes include squares, triangles, circles, and lines, some of which are arranged to form larger, more intricate structures like a house-like shape in the center. The pattern is dense and covers the entire lower section of the image.

SUGGESTIONS.

THE characters in this little sketch should be played by prominent citizens of your town, if such can be prevailed upon to appear—the more elderly, staid, and incongruous in years and bearing, the better. Dignified professors, judges, doctors, lawyers, teachers, etc., should be prevailed upon to forget their present greatness, don the costumes and revive the scenes of their youth.

The dress may be left largely to individual taste. Short pantaloons, jumpers, long-sleeved tires, caps, broad-brimmed straw hats, heavy cowhide boots, are suggested for the gentlemen; while short dresses, the historic pantalette, sun-bonnets, tires, aprons, etc., are proposed for the ladies. The latter should have their hair braided or hanging in long curls. All should be neatly dressed in “ye olden time” costumes, except one or two, who may represent the tatterdemalion fraternity. One of these may be the bright boy of the class, the other the dullard, who stumbles through his lessons, loses his place, has a passion for catching flies, throwing spit-balls, etc. One boy may have a penchant for drawing pictures on his slate or the blackboard, in which his teacher and mates play a prominent part as models. One girl a proneness for chewing gum, another for large pickles; another thinks herself smart, but generally manages to give wrong answers. A few names have been suggested in the dialogue, but they may be easily varied. Where a name is not necessary, the author has used the word "Pupil," so that the parts may be distributed according to the number of performers.

The by-play that goes on among the scholars who are not reciting must be of such a nature that it will not attract the attention of the teacher unless it is a part of the programme.

The motion song can be introduced elsewhere in the dialogue if advisable.

As a rule, pupils should raise hands (at the same time saying "Huh! huh!" or snapping thumb and finger), and obtain permission before speaking; but where the dialogue becomes spirited, this rule may be broken.

An indefinite number can take part in this entertainment.

THE COUNTRY SCHOOL.

INTRODUCTION.

THE curtain should rise upon an introductory front scene depicting the pupils on their way to school, singly, or in groups of two or three, swinging book-bags or dinner-pails; one group of girls play bean-bag; a group of boys play marbles; one boy tries to fly a kite; some skip, others walk sedately, or jump rope, drive hoop, etc.

(Enter BOY, whittling.)

BOY. Say, Seth, old Hickory's coming! Got your hands all waxed, sonny? 'Cause you'll have to ketch it hot and heavy this morning. Teacher's awful mad about your stealing Squire Green's apples.

SETH CRANE (who has book-bag, etc.). Don't care. I ain't going to school to-day, anyway. I'm going to play hookey.

BOY. Did your ma say you might?

SETH. Bet your life she didn't. I'm not tied to my ma's apron strings, Bubby; I'm no baby!

BOY. Here he comes! Run, Seth, or he'll ketch you.

(SETH runs off. Teacher passes along saying "Good-morning" etc., to children.)

BOY. (still whittling, to group which comes up). Say, boys, Seth Crane's going to play hookey. Let's pay, him back for saying we stole Squire Green's apples, will you, and tell his mother? She's a daisy, though, ain't she?

SECOND BOY. Agreed! But who'll tell the old lady?

BOY. Let Daniel. He's teacher's pet anyway, and if he's late, nothing'll be said. Will you go, Dan?

DANIEL. Yes. The old lady'll give me some of her nice doughnuts. (Smacking lips, he runs off. Boys pass off in other direction, crying, "Save some for us, Dan," etc.)

The above merely serves to indicate the general nature of the dialogue that may be characteristically employed, the precise points to be made depending for their humorous value so entirely upon the identity of the actor in each case and their contradiction of his well-known character and dignity, that they must be left to the invention of the players. The dialogue, whatever its nature, should be accompanied by an incessant pantomimic action of characteristic boyish antics and practical jokes, made inexpressibly ludicrous by whiskers, bass voices, and other personal anachronisms.

At the close of this introductory part, and while the curtain is rising on the school scene, a large bell should be rung vigorously.

THE SCHOOLROOM.

SCENE.—The interior of the little red schoolhouse of our grandfathers. Teacher's desk at R., stove L., chair for committee man in front of stove, desks at back, leaving an open space in front for classes, etc. Blackboard and map at back. Blackboard down in R. corner, by teacher's desk, facing house. Door at back, C.

As pupils enter they courtesy to the teacher, and after hanging hats and bonnets on nails, take their seats. One pupil is granted the privilege of ringing the bell at the door, whereupon the rest enter. The school is then called to order and the roll is read. Each answers "here" or "present" to his name. When the name of "James Peters" is read there is no reply. At length one of the girls explains that he "had to stay to hum to mind the baby." Another scholar reports that "the reason Molly Jenkins didn't come was because she hadn't no shoes."

TEACHER. I see a few new scholars here. I will now take their names. What name do you call yourself, sir?

J. C. SMITH. I don't call myself any names! But Nappy Jones does, and ef he ever does it again (doubling up his fists and threatening the same, who returns the compliment), I'll lick him, see ef I don't! My name is Julius Caesar Smith, and don't you forget it.

TEACHER. How old are you, Julius Caesar?

J. C. S. I'm five years old next Christmas.

TEACHER. That will do. The next scholar.

J. CALL. I'm Jule Call, and my brother's name is Bill Call.

TEACHER. Your brother can speak for himself. It is very improper to say "Jule" and "Bill;" you should say Julius. Now, what is your name?

J. C. Julius Call, sir.

TEACHER. Next?

B. CALL. Bilious Call, sir.

TEACHER. What, sir!

B. C. Bilious Call. (In surprise.)

TEACHER. There is no such proper name as “Bilious.” Your name is probably William.

J. C. He’s my brother Bill anyway, and ef I’m Julius he’s Bilious, ain’t we?

TEACHER. Silence I want no impudence from any of my pupils. (JULIUS, silenced but not convinced, shakes his head and gesticulates to his friends, all of whom show him their sympathy with his views.) What is your name, my dear?

Z. S. Zenobia Snellings, may it please you, sir. (Makes low courtesy.)

TEACHER. Are you a native of this place?

Z. S. Yes, sir—part of the year.

TEACHER. Part of the year! What do you mean?

Z. S. Vacations I spend with Aunt Nancy at _____. (Supply a neighboring town.)

(Interruption in the shape of DANIEL WEBSTER TOMKINS, who rushes in out of breath and trips over the threshold, upsetting lunch basket, revealing contents.)

D. W. T. Has bell rang?

TEACHER (severely pointing to the door). Try that again, Daniel.

D. W. T. I got enough of it that time. Let some other feller try it. (Rubbing knees and elbows.)

TEACHER. Sit down, sir.

D. W. T. Wait till I pick up some of these cold wittles round here.

TEACHER (resuming). Next, what shall I call you?

V. M. W. Venus Matildy Weeks. I'm her sister. (Pointing.)

TEACHER. Her name's Snellings and yours Weeks; how's that?

V. M. W. Well, we didn't used to be any relation, but we married her mother—me and my father.

TEACHER. Oh, I see a second marriage. Who are you? (Silence.) I mean the boy with red hair. (Boys nudge and girls giggle.)

C. C. F. (rising slowly.) C-C-C-Christopher C-C-C-Colum-b-b-b-bus F-F-Fitts. I st-st-st-stutter! (Sitting.)

TEACHER. Ah! do you?

C. C. F. (rising slowly.) Ye-ye-yes, sir! s-s-s-s-sometimes. (Sitting.)

TEACHER. Next!

B. F. S. (drawling). My father knows you. He used ter go to school with you. Says you and him played hookey one day and tumbled inter the mill-pond—and—he! he! ye both got a flogging!—My name's Benjamin Franklin Squeers, like my father's. (Scholars titter.)

TEACHER. That will do, Benjamin Franklin. Your father evidently had some one else in mind. The class may sing the multiplication table. (Class sing "Five times one are five," etc., to the tune of Yankee Doodle.)

TEACHER. You may now all take your books and slates. The infant class may pass out on the floor. You may look at the words on the board and get ready to read them. (Class forms a semicircle in front of teacher's desk or board. Teacher writes the following on board:)

1. Herod the tetrarch.
2. This is a worm; do not tread on it.
3. This is the heir; come, let us kill him.

FIRST BOY (reads slowly). He—rode—the—Don't know that word.

TEACHER. Didn't I tell you to study while I was writing?

BOY. Yes, sir. (Crying.)

TEACHER. Then go on.

BOY. Boo-hoo! I can't read it.

TEACHER. Try it again immediately.

BOY. He (boo-hoo!) rode—the—tater—cart! (Weeps profusely.)

TEACHER. Next scholar read it.

GIRL. Herod—the—the—the (is prompted by someone) the tetrarch.

TEACHER. Very good. Next boy, the second sentence.

BOY. This—is—a—warm—This—is—a—warm—doughnut—tread on it.

TEACHER (presenting dunce cap). Put that on and stand in the corner. (Boy scuffs to corner, where he spends his time throwing spitballs and eating doughnuts, thrown him by pupils when the teacher is not looking.) Next read. (Boy steps up to ask teacher about an example.)

GIRL (prompted by one of the boys). Thith ith a wurrum. Be—careful—not—to—tread—on—it (again prompted), or it will bite you.

TEACHER (to boy). You have multiplied wrong. Let me see: five times nine are forty-five, put down the five and carry the four, etc. (Class push and pull, but straighten into line when the teacher looks up). Next read.

BOY. This—is—the—hair—comb. Let—us—kill—him!

TEACHER. I am ashamed of you. Does c-o-m-e spell comb? (Sends boy with slate to his seat.) Hands up—those who can tell me what it does spell. Well, John?

JOHN. It spells come.

TEACHER. Right. You may read it.

JOHN. This—is—the—hair. Come—let—us—kill—him. Ow-oo-oo!
(Dancing round.)

TEACHER. Well, John! What's the matter?

JOHN. Somebody pulled my hair!

TEACHER (severely). Who pulled John's hair?

PUPIL. I did; I couldn't help it. (Hanging head.)

TEACHER. Couldn't help pulling hair! That is a likely story. You may pass to the foot.

PUPIL. No, I couldn't. I went to raise my hand and his hair was right in the way. (Scuffs to foot.)

TEACHER. I will try you on one more sentence, and if you cannot read that properly you must take your seats and study. (Writes: "Stephen says that the girls are knitting.") Next read.

PUPIL. Step-hen! (Hands of class go up.)

TEACHER. Wrong! Next! (Is interrupted by boy who wants a drink. Two boys are appointed to get a bucket of water and pass it to the others in tin cups.)

NEXT PUPIL. Stephen—says—that—the—girls—are—kissing. (Boys laugh.)

GIRL (indignantly). He didn't read that right!

TEACHER. Very well. You may read it.

GIRL (still unmollified). Stephen says that girls are kittens.

(Teacher sends class to seats in disgrace to study their lesson.)

BOY (in seat). Teacher, how many is five less one?

TEACHER. Think that out yourself. If there were five crows in Squire Green's field and you should shoot one, how many would there be left?

BOY. Only one.

TEACHER. What? Think again.

BOY. The other four would fly off, wouldn't they?

GIRL (raising hand). How many scruples are there in a drachm?

TEACHER. Jonathan, tell Maria how many scruples there are in a drachm.

JONATHAN. Don't know, only that ma said as how pa took his dram every morning without any scruples. I guess some drams don't have no scruples.

TEACHER. Both of you refer to your tables.

GIRL (raising hand). Teacher, why does an elephant have a trunk?

BOY (raising hand). So's't he'd be an elephant, of course!

TEACHER. I will now hear the class in history. (They pass out to places, the boys trying to get a drink on the way.) The first scholar may tell me something about Christopher Columbus.

FIRST GIRL. Christopher was once a little boy like me—no, I mean he was a little girl like me—no, I don't!—well, he went to school like me anyway. His mother's name was Geneva.

BOY. Hoh! It wasn't either. That was his father's name.

ANOTHER GIRL. Teacher, wasn't Geneva where he was born?

TEACHER. Yes, Mary, go on.

MARY. Somebody bought him a yacht or a steamer, I believe, and one Friday he sailed over here to America and asked us if we had been discovered yet, and we told him "No." "All right," he said, "you have." So he took some of our Indians home with him to tell the king that they had been discovered, and we named the United States after him.

TEACHER. That is right in the main. One or two points I might take exceptions to. The next may take George Washington and tell us about him. (Is interrupted by a boy in seat who raises his hand and asks how many days there are in a year.) Who can tell Julius how many days in a year?

VENUS. Three hundred and sixty-five days and a fourth.

BOY. What d'ye mean by "a fourth"?

DANIEL. Fourth of July, of course!

TEACHER. We will hear the next scholar.

PUPIL. George was born in Washington, D.C., and was named for that city.

C. C. FITTS. W-w-what d-d-does d-d-d-D.C. m-mean?

PUPIL. Down South, don't it, teacher?

TEACHER. Go on with your recitation. You ask too many questions.

PUPIL. His mother's maiden name was Miss Hatchet—and his father's maiden name was George.

TEACHER. Next, go on.

SECOND PUPIL. When Washington wasn't fighting he lived on the top of Mount Vernon, and his tomb is in one side of the mountain.

TEACHER. What day is celebrated as his birthday?

ALL (eagerly). The Twenty-second of February!

TEACHER. Why should his birthday be celebrated any more than mine?

(Thoughtful silence.)

GIRL (raising hand triumphantly). Because he never told a lie!

TEACHER. You may take your seat until you can be more respectful to your elders.

SCHOLAR (at back of room, or near door). Say, teacher, there's somebody knocking at the door. I guess it's the committee!

TEACHER. Class, toe the line! Scholars, if any one of you gets out of order while the committee is here I'll flog you! Do you understand?

CHORUS. Yes, sir!

TEACHER. Martha Washington Hibbs, you may open the door.

(Enter MRS. CRANE with her son by the ear.)

MRS. CRANE. I've brought him, Mr. Snodgrass! Neow, Seth Crane, you miserable little truant you, jest go and set deown in that ere seat and behave yourself as ef you hed some bringing-up, or you'll get it when you get home—and you sha'n't go out to play for a week. Do you hear?

SETH (boo-hooing). 'Tain't my seat! It belongs to a gerrul! My seat's over there.

MRS. CRANE. You go set deown, or I'll put ye deown. (SETH sits.) Neow, Mr. Snodgrass, I jest want you tu make my son behave, and ef he don't, I want yeou to flog him!—not enough to hurt him, for he's a very delicate child, and I wouldn't hev the dear boy hurt for nothing; but easy like, just enough to make him mind. (Wiping her eyes.) He is a most affectionate boy—Seth, dear, go right to studying (to SETH, who growls, "I won't")—and more easily led than driven. But he's so nervous! I'm afraid he'll never live to grow up. Whenever you see him whispering or playing in school, Mr. Snodgrass, you may be sure it's all nervousness. He was a-goin' to play truant to-day, because he thinks you don't like him! What a be-u-tiful school you have—sech handsome-looking boys and girls.

TEACHER (offering chair). Yes, a very fine school for these parts. Won't you be seated?

MRS. CRANE. Mercy sakes alive! no. My punkin pies'll be burned to cinders, all on account o' that vagabond a-settin' there and grinnin' (shaking a warning finger at him)—ef I don't give you a wallop when you get hum!—Call reound, Mr. Snodgrass, and git some o' eour new apple juice. Jeremiah'll be glad tu hev ye. Good-mornin'.

TEACHER. I thank you, ma'am. I will with pleasure. Good-morning.

(Exit MRS. CRANE, with a card reading "BACK SHORTLY" pinned on her back by some mischievous scholar.)

BOY (in seat). What does c-u-t-i-c-l-e mean?

TEACHER. What have you all over your hands and face?

BOY. Freckles.

TEACHER. Well, that is not what I was thinking of Christopher!

C. C. FITTS. I g-g-guess it's d-d-dirt!

TEACHER. There's a dictionary somewhere in the schoolhouse. You may hunt it up and look for that word. (The two boys, appearing tired and discouraged, start on their quest, looking in the most unlikely places, even on the nails where pupils' garments are hung. The quest should be a quiet one, the fun lying in its utter hopelessness.)

BOY (in seat). I don't understand this question. (Reads.) A milkman spilled a pint of milk out of an eight-gallon can, how much milk was left?

SECOND BOY (in seat). Hoh! that's easy. There wasn't none left.

TEACHER. Explain.

SECOND BOY. 'Cause the rest was water.

TEACHER (resuming). The next may tell me about some Bible character. Who was Esau?

PUPIL. Esau lived six hundred years before Christ. He wrote fables for a living, and sold the copyright of them for a bottle of potash.

GIRL (raising hand). I thought it was Æsop that wrote fables.

BOY (raising hand). And didn't Esau sell his birthright, or was it copyright?

BOY (in seat, raising hand). It says in my book that some of the stars are bigger'n the earth; 'tain't true, is it?

TEACHER. Certainly. Why not?

BOY. 'Cause why don't they keep the rain off, then?

C. C. FITTS. 'C-c-cause they're round and the r-r-r-rain s-s-slides off onto us!

(Other hands are raised.)

GIRL. What's the capital of Turkey?

TEACHER. Can you answer that, John?

JOHN (who has been inattentive). It hasn't any capital. Pa says it's bankrupt.

BOY. If you multiply forty-two apples by six pounds of beef the answer'll be mince pies, won't it?

TEACHER (to scholars in seats). Class, can two concrete numbers be multiplied together?

CHORUS. No, sir!

BOY. I don't see anything concrete about apples, or beef either.

GIRL. Does the Isthmus of Panama connect the north and south pole?

TEACHER. Look at your map and see.

GIRL. Does s-l-o-u-g-h spell slough?

TEACHER. Yes.

GIRL. Then c-o-u-g-h spells cow, doesn't it?

TEACHER. No, that spells cough.

GIRL. B-o-u-g-h spells buff, then, and p-l-o-u-g-h, pluff?

TEACHER. No, bough and plough are the words you have spelled.

GIRL. Then does d-o-u-g-h spell dow, or duff, or doff?

TEACHER. It spells neither; your last word is dough.

GIRL. Is r-o-u-g-h row, or row, or roff? [o as in mow, o as in how]

TEACHER. None of them. It is rough.

GIRL (in despair). Well, how can you tell?

SCHOLAR (near door). Teacher, I just seen the committee, Squire Small, coming down the hill past Squire Green's barn. (Laughing.) He tried to jump the wall and tumbled over it. I guess his rheumatiz caught him.

TEACHER (hastily). This class may take their seats. (Rap at door.) All who are out of their seats may return to them. Remember what I said about disorder. Heads erect. Remember your manners. Maria Sophrony, the door. (Enter COMMITTEE-MAN; all rise.)

CHORUS (drawling). Good-morning—Mr. Committee-man!

COM. Good-mornin', boys and gals! Good-mornin', Mr. Snodgrass. (Shakes hands.) Thought I'd jest drap in to examine ye, bein' the deestric committee, an' see how the edification was gettin' on. I spose ye hev 'ritin' an' riffentick an' readin' every day?

(A boy begins to draw a caricature of the visitor on black board at back.)

TEACHER. Oh, yes, yes, every day,—that is, we shall after we get fully started; but it's rather early in the term to examine, isn't it?

COM. No!—no!—an' histery, an' filoserpy, an' quotations, an' flirtations, an' kerdrilles, an' all them things.

TEACHER. Yes, yes; that is, most of them.

COM. (severely). Most on 'em, Mr. Snodgrass? Don't ye hev 'em all?

TEACHER. Oh, yes! all you would approve of.

COM. Wal, s'pose ye call out a class and let me examine 'em. (Takes off coat and seats himself, placing his hat on floor.)

TEACHER. What will you have, geography or spelling?

COM. Wal, yeou jest hand me a spellin'-book an' I'll put 'em through a course o' sprouts on that.

TEACHER. First class in spelling, rise and take places. (A general scramble for places.)

FIRST PUPIL. Teacher, I'm head. I got above him yesterday.

SECOND PUPIL. He didn't. I spelled catalepsy first and got above him.
(Trying to pass.)

TEACHER. Thomas Henry, take the head; the other two may go to the foot.
(Both go down and scramble for the foot.)

THIRD PUPIL. Thomas Henry pinched me.

TEACHER. He may go to the foot also.

THIRD PUPIL (dancing on one foot, holding the other in his hands). Ow! he trod on my foot.

THOMAS HENRY. He shouldn't have such big feet. I couldn't stop to go round.

TEACHER. Thomas Henry, you may stop after school and I'll remind you of a little promise I made a while ago. (ONE and TWO rejoice in dumb show over THOMAS HENRY'S downfall.) Julius, stand erect. Mary, take that gum out of your mouth. Bring that apple to me. All, toe the line. Attention!

COM. Neow, scholars, there is one thing I'm very pertickler 'bout, and that is pronouncé-ation. I want every one on ye tu be keerful on that one p'int. The fust word is charitable.

HEAD PUPIL (slowly). C-h-a-i-r, char—i-t, it—charit—t-a, ta—charita—b-u-l, ble—charitable.

COM. (examining book closely). Wrong! Next!

SECOND PUPIL (with spirit). C-h-a-i-r spells chair, and t-a-b-l-e spells table, and i-t spells it; therefore, c-h-a-i-r-i-t-t-a-b-l-e spells charitable.

COM. (doubtfully). Wal, that's putty straight reasonin', an' I reckon you're right, though 'tain't jest like the book. Take your place. Next, merlasses.

THIRD PUPIL. M-e-r, mer.

FOURTH PUPIL (raising hand). 'Tain't merlasses; it's it molasses.

COM. (examining book). I reckon I've seen more merlasses than you ever seen an' oughter know what it is by this time. Merlasses, I said, an' merlasses it shall be.

THIRD PUPIL. Please, sir, I can't spell it.

COM. Why not?

THIRD PUPIL. I ain't got no book.

COM. Where is your book?

THIRD PUPIL. I dropped it into a mud-puddle on the way to school, and the lesson come out.

COM. Next.

FOURTH PUPIL. M-o-l-a-s-s-e-s, molasses.

COM. That don't sound jest right, but you've got the book on your side, so I s'pose it's all right. Take yer place! (NUMBER FOUR is tripped by NUMBER THREE.) Neow I'd like tu see a leetle writin'. The next may take the word "squanders" and put it in a sentence on the blackboard.

(NUMBER FIVE writes in a legible schoolboy hand, "The boy squanders round a good deal." FIFTH PUPIL reads what he has written.)

COM. Very good. The next may take "cornice" in the same way. (After a good deal of erasing he writes: "I will meat you on the cornice." SIXTH PUPIL reads what he has written.)

COM. The next ken take "lionized," and the next "spinster."

SEVENTH PUPIL (writes and reads). "Daniel was lionized in the lions' den."

EIGHTH PUPIL (writes and reads). "Seth Crane is a spinster."

COM. Wall, I hed an idee that a spinster was allus a woman. (Scratching his head.)

EIGHTH PUPIL. My book says that er means one who, and anyway baker means one who bakes, and builder means one who builds—and—

FIRST PUPIL. Does Quaker mean one who quakes?

COM. That ain't to the p'int, as I ken see!

EIGHTH PUPIL. Well, a spinster is one who spins, ain't it?

COM. Mebbe, mebbe! But heow ken ye say that of Seth Crane, that never did a useful thing in his life?

EIGHTH PUPIL. I should think that any fellar that spins a top 'ud be a spinster.

COM. Wal, you've got me there, youngster. I reckon ye're right. Next, tell me the meaning of excruciating.

GIRL (glibly). Excruciating means that natural and peculiar prohibition of undulatory and molecular attraction which encompasses the plausibility of capillary promulgation and gelatinous hyperbole, while giving an enallage of paradigms.

COM. That's a likely gal. You'll make a good housekeeper one of these days. Ef my wife hed sech a mem'ry as that, I shouldn't carry her letters in my pocket tu weeks before mailin' 'em.

SAME PUPIL. Yes, sir; thank you, sir. But I don't quite understand what it means by "encompassing the plausibility of capillary promulgation"!

COM. Oh—ahem!—that is very simple—ahem! ahem! in fact it is simplicity itself. It means—it means—well, I don't want to overtax your young brain, my dear, so I will not explain now; but one of these days, when you are as wise as me and your teacher, you will understand all these profound thoughts. Hain't that so, Mr. Snodgrass? Next, terbacker.

SEVENTH PUPIL. T-e-r, ter—b-a-c-k, back—terback—k-e-r, ker—terbacker. A poisonous leaf with niggertine in it; and ef the niggertine gets into the cistern, it'll kill a man quicker'n a dog.

FIRST PUPIL. I don't believe it's a poison. My brother smokes and he ain't dead; 'nd my father's fifty years old 'nd he's smoked for most forty years 'nd he ain't dead yet.

FOURTH PUPIL. Pooh! That's nothing. Ef your father hedn't smoked, he mighter been a hundred by this time.

EIGHTH PUPIL. My grandfather's ninety years old and he's smoked too!

FOURTH PUPIL. Well, and ef my grandfather was alive he'd be a hundred and fifty years old! So that don't prove nothing.

THIRD PUPIL. Tobacco ain't no poisoner nor pickles, anyhow. (Groan from the girls.) I went into the store t'other day to get some pickles for ma, and a feller—he was one o' them city chaps that sells things—and he said, “You ain't going to eat them sour green things, are you?” and I said, “No, I hain't; why?” And he told me of a girl seventeen years old who eat pickuls and died! (Horried look on girls' faces.) And they opened her stummick and them pickuls had turned everything in it tu glass!! (Confusion and whispering among the girls. They indignantly shake their heads and say, “I don't believe it,” etc., etc.)

COM. Order! (Pounding table.) Order! The next may explain “phenomena.”

GIRL (glibly). Phenomena is that immaculate preponderance of preternatural possibility as to make an exaggerated conception of auxiliary precedents, and oleaginous metamorphosis into an indivisible synthetical analysis.

COM. That's putty good. You hev exceeded my suspicions and I am disguised that yu should du so well. This is the most supernatural class I ever seen. Mr. Snodgrass, I congratterlate you on sech ambiguous pupils. Gee there now and take yer seats. (Class pass to seats.) Neow yeou ain't got no little song you can sing, hev ye?

CHORUS. Yes, yes, our Motion Song!

COM. Wal, I wouldn't mind hearing it, Mr. Snodgrass, ef it's conwenient.

TEACHER. You may all put away your books.

BOY (laughing). He! he! he!

TEACHER. Robert, stand! Explain what you were laughing at.

ROBERT (half laughing and half crying). Nappy Jones says that Seth Green's striped stockings make him look like a barber's pole!

COM. (laughing). Wal, he's only a leetle shaver, anyhow! Ain't that so, Seth?

SETH. Yes sir! (Doubling up fists and threatening N. JONES.) You jest wait till I ketch you after school! (Said in an undertone.)

TEACHER. Robert, go out in the shed and chop to-morrow's wood. I'll excuse you the rest of the morning. (Exit ROBERT.)

SETH. Teacher, can I help him?

TEACHER. Yes. (Exit SETH, who grimaces at JONES as he goes out.)

(The TEACHER now takes tuning-fork and gives the pitch. The new scholars, without creating any disturbance, can make ludicrous attempts to take the movements with the others. As the singing begins the COMMITTEE-MAN rises, whereupon a boy immediately takes his hat from the floor and puts it in the chair he has just vacated.)

RECREATION SONG.

TUNE. _____ "When Johnny comes marching home again." _____

MOTIONS. (1.) School rise and stand erect. (2.) Raise hands ready to strike. (3.) Clap hands in correct time. (4.) Turn round twice while repeating this line. (5.) Tread, left and right foot. (6.) Right arm across waist, left at side. (7.) Touch right hand to forehead, like military salute. (8.) Keep marching time with feet. (9.) Raise hands, palms out, spread fingers. (10.) Hands on hips, elbows out, look sideways at each other. (11.) Make a low bow. (12.) Hop lightly on each foot. (13.) Let arms hang and swing. (14.) Fold arms, grow sleepy. (15.) Drop heads. (16.) Glide into seats, sing slowly and softly, nodding heads, and diminishing tone gradually to last note, finally resting arms on the desks and supporting heads asleep. After a moment of dead silence, teacher may strike bell suddenly, when all must raise heads (17.) and hands as if frightened and go on (all seated). (18.) Rub eyes with knuckles. (19.) Take books hurriedly. (20.) Turn leaves quickly with thumbs. (21.) Throw heads from side to side with careless good-nature. The last line of every verse should be repeated.

- (1.) With shoulders erect and toes turned out,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
Now let us in unison gayly shout,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
- (2.) With hands upraised as we sing the rhyme,
(3.) We strike them together to keep the time,
||: (4.) And we'll wheel quite round while singing our motion song. :||
- (5.) Now left and right we'll march along,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
We fill the air with our merry song,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
- (6.) We carry our muskets like heroes of old,
(7.) Saluting our captain so brave and so bold,
||: (8.) And we march, march, march while singing our motion song. :||
- (9.) Our fingers and thumbs are eight and two,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
There's plenty of work for them to do,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
- (10.) With elbows akimbo and looks so shy,

(11.) We bow to our partners so gracefully,
||: (12.) And we hop and dance while singing our motion song. :||

(13.) As back and forth our arms we throw,
Heigh-ho! Heigh-ho!
It's pretty hard work now, you may know,
Heigh-ho! Heigh-ho!
(14.) For trying our best our eyes open to keep,
(15.) We drop all our heads as if going to sleep,
||: (16.) And we nod, nod, nod, while singing our motion song. :||

(17.) What terrible noise is that we hear?
Dear me! Dear me!
(18.) We've all been snoozing, that's quite clear.
Dear me! Dear me!
(19.) So let us take books and be ready for work,
(20.) For we are not willing our lessons to shirk,
||: (21.) Though it's jolly good fun, when singing our motion song. :||

COM. Very good, children, very good. Yew hev a very well behaved school, Mr. Snodgrass. (Sits down on his hat, crushing it all out of shape. Pupils all laugh. COM. picks it up and points at it indignantly. TEACHER apologizes in pantomime. COM. resentfully turns and starts to set it on the stove, but burns himself in so doing. Pupils laugh. COM. shakes his fist at them and exit[s] angrily.)

BOY (raising hand). Teacher, Matildy Weeks keeps laughing at me.

TEACHER. You shouldn't look at her, then.

BOY. She'll laugh to some other feller ef I don't. (Grins.)

(GIRL near CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS FITTS laughs aloud.)

TEACHER. Mehitable, was that you laughed?

MEHIT. Yes, sir. I couldn't help it. (Laughs.) Christopher Columbus asked me if I loved carrots. (All look at C. C., who is vainly trying to hide an immense carrot by putting it in his pocket.)

TEACHER. Bring that this way, sir.

C. C. F. (presenting the carrot). Y-y-you c-c-c-can h-h-have it! I d-d-d-don't want it!

TEACHER. I think the best punishment I can give you, Christopher, for your disobedience is to make you eat it before the class.

CHRIS. (in dismay). I d-d-didn't b-b-b-b-b-bring it t-t-to eat m-m-myself. The d-d-doctor s-s-s-said I m-m-mustn't eat one more c-c-c-c-carrot. If I d-d-did I would d-d-die! I d-d-don't want to d-d-die! (Crying.)

TEACHER. I'll let you off on one condition, and that is that you'll bring a cabbage to-morrow morning to go with it.

CHRIS. Y-yes, s-sir. I'll bring t-t-t-two! (Is sent to seat, rejoicing.)

BOY. Is Squire Small's cane a piece of the North Pole?

TEACHER. Joseph, when will you ever learn anything? If you studied your lessons you never would ask such a question.

JOSEPH. I didn't see nothing 'bout Squire Small's cane in my book.

TEACHER. I told you to prepare a composition for to-day. How many are ready? (No response for a second; then boy near JONES points at him and says, "Nappy Jones has." JONES shakes his head and pretends that he hasn't, until called out by the teacher, when he produces from his pocket a strip of paper about two yards long which he proceeds to unroll. The top is tied with a strip of bright-colored calico in imitation of graduation essays. He makes an awkward bow to the audience and reads:)

COMPOSITION ON BOYS.

(I didn't want ter write this compersition, but pa said I must 'cause he wants me ter be a lawyer one of these days. This is a hard world fur boys, anyway. It doesn't make no diffrence what a boy does or says, he's sure ter get inter trouble.)

'Tain't so with girls. Everything girls does is right. I wish't I was a girl. I'm the only boy in our family, 'nd it's a awful responsibility to be the only boy. I've got three sisters, but they're all girls. Sis and Tom Golder took me to the city t'other day, and we took our dinner at a bang-up hotel, I tell you. When the waiter arsked me ef I'd hev the bill of fare I said, "Thank you," jest as perlite as I knew how, but it made Sis mad b'cause I told him "Only a little piece, please." How'd I know what it was, when they hev sech outlandish names fur things! Tom larfed and larfed; but I told the waiter he mustn't mind him; he was my sister's feller, and I guessed he warn't used ter city ways; but he was all right and as rich as a Jew. Everybody but Sis at that was hotel seemed good-natured. The waiter was orful jolly, too. I pointed out to him a sickly-looking chap—Tom said he was a dude—at an opposite table and told him that dude was eating the bouquet, and how that feller larft! He said it was only celery, and wouldn't I like some, but I told him, "No, thank you, I'd ruther hev my greens cooked." On the way home Sis took off her hat and put it on the seat in front of her, without saying anything to me about it. Ov course when I sot down that hat was right under me and feather 'nd all was jambed flatter'n a pancake. Tom larfed, but Sis didn't. He said he guessed I thort I was a-sittin' on the style. When I got home I felt's if I'd been a-settin' on a hornet's nest. Pa's the most onreasonable man I ever seen! He told me one day not ter pick another flower outer the garding without leave; so next time I was jest as keerful as I could be 'nd picked 'em all with leaves. Perhaps you won't believe it, but I got a thrashing fur that. Then one dark night, as pa and me went out ter the barn, pa run against a post, and he said he wished that darned post was in the lower regions; but I told him he'd better not wish it there, fur he might run into it again. But what's the use o' trying to help your relations? I hed to go to bed a week right after supper, jest fur that. But I'd ruther do that than hev ma talk to me, she's so orful sober about it. She finished up a long talk last Sunday night with, "I hev tried to give you every advantage, Napoleon, and this is how you treat me;" and I said, "Of course I wouldn't take advantage of my ma," 'nd I vum ef she didn't tell pa of that. It's orful discouraging to be a boy. I sha'n't try very much longer. I shall be glad when I'm a lawyer, 'cause then I can be as wicked as I want to. (Bows and returns to seat.)

(School then sings "Auld Lang Syne," and having been dismissed by TEACHER, exeunt with characteristic noise.)

CURTAIN.

 END OF THE PROJECT GUTENBERG EBOOK THE COUNTRY SCHOOL: AN ENTERTAINMENT IN TWO SCENES ***

Updated editions will replace the previous one—the old editions will be renamed.

Creating the works from print editions not protected by U.S. copyright law means that no one owns a United States copyright in these works, so the Foundation (and you!) can copy and distribute it in the United States without permission and without paying copyright royalties. Special rules, set forth in the General Terms of Use part of this license, apply to copying and distributing Project Gutenberg™ electronic works to protect the PROJECT GUTENBERG™ concept and trademark. Project Gutenberg is a registered trademark, and may not be used if you charge for an eBook, except by following the terms of the trademark license, including paying royalties for use of the Project Gutenberg trademark. If you do not charge anything for copies of this eBook, complying with the trademark license is very easy. You may use this eBook for nearly any purpose such as creation of derivative works, reports, performances and research. Project Gutenberg eBooks may be modified and printed and given away—you may do practically ANYTHING in the United States with eBooks not protected by U.S. copyright law. Redistribution is subject to the trademark license, especially commercial redistribution.

START: FULL LICENSE

THE FULL PROJECT GUTENBERG™ LICENSE

PLEASE READ THIS BEFORE YOU DISTRIBUTE OR USE THIS WORK

To protect the Project Gutenberg™ mission of promoting the free distribution of electronic works, by using or distributing this work (or any other work associated in any way with the phrase “Project Gutenberg”), you agree to comply with all the terms of the Full Project Gutenberg License available with this file or online at www.gutenberg.org/license.

Section 1. General Terms of Use and Redistributing Project Gutenberg electronic works

1.A. By reading or using any part of this Project Gutenberg electronic work, you indicate that you have read, understand, agree to and accept all the terms of this license and intellectual property (trademark/copyright) agreement. If you do not agree to abide by all the terms of this agreement, you must cease using and return or destroy all copies of Project Gutenberg electronic works in your possession. If you paid a fee for obtaining a copy of or access to a Project Gutenberg electronic work and you do not agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement, you may obtain a refund from the person or entity to whom you paid the fee as set forth in paragraph 1.E.8.

1.B. “Project Gutenberg” is a registered trademark. It may only be used on or associated in any way with an electronic work by people who agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement. There are a few things that you can do with most Project Gutenberg electronic works even without complying with the full terms of this agreement. See paragraph 1.C below. There are a lot of things you can do with Project Gutenberg electronic works if you follow the terms of this agreement and help preserve free future access to Project Gutenberg electronic works. See paragraph 1.E below.

1.C. The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation (“the Foundation” or PGLAF), owns a compilation copyright in the collection of Project Gutenberg electronic works. Nearly all the individual works in the collection are in the public domain in the United States. If an individual work is unprotected by copyright law in the United States and you are located in the United States, we do not claim a right to prevent you from copying, distributing, performing, displaying or creating derivative works based on the work as long as all references to Project Gutenberg are removed. Of course, we hope that you will support the Project Gutenberg mission of promoting free access to electronic works by freely sharing Project Gutenberg works in compliance with the terms of this agreement for keeping the Project Gutenberg name associated with the work. You can easily comply with the terms of this agreement by keeping this work in the same format with its attached full Project Gutenberg License when you share it without charge with others.

1.D. The copyright laws of the place where you are located also govern what you can do with this work. Copyright laws in most countries are in a constant state of change. If you are outside the United States, check the laws of your country in addition to the terms of this agreement before downloading, copying, displaying, performing, distributing or creating derivative works based on this work or any other Project Gutenberg work. The Foundation makes no representations concerning the copyright status of any work in any country other than the United States.

1.E. Unless you have removed all references to Project Gutenberg:

1.E.1. The following sentence, with active links to, or other immediate access to, the full Project Gutenberg License must appear prominently whenever any copy of a Project Gutenberg work (any work on which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” appears, or with which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” is associated) is accessed, displayed, performed, viewed, copied or distributed:

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere in the United States and most other parts of the world at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg™ License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.org. If you are not located in the United States, you will have to check the laws of the country where you are located before using this eBook.

1.E.2. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is derived from texts not protected by U.S. copyright law (does not contain a notice indicating that it is posted with permission of the copyright holder), the work can be copied and distributed to anyone in the United States without paying any fees or charges. If you are redistributing or providing access to a work with the phrase “Project Gutenberg” associated with or appearing on the work, you must comply either with the requirements of paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 or obtain permission for the use of the work and the Project Gutenberg trademark as set forth in paragraphs 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.3. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is posted with the permission of the copyright holder, your use and distribution must comply with both paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 and any additional terms imposed by the copyright holder. Additional terms will be linked to the Project Gutenberg License for all works posted with the permission of the copyright holder found at the beginning of this work.

1.E.4. Do not unlink or detach or remove the full Project Gutenberg License terms from this work, or any files containing a part of this work or any other work associated with Project Gutenberg.

1.E.5. Do not copy, display, perform, distribute or redistribute this electronic work, or any part of this electronic work, without prominently displaying the sentence set forth in paragraph 1.E.1 with active links or immediate access to the full terms of the Project Gutenberg License.

1.E.6. You may convert to and distribute this work in any binary, compressed, marked up, nonproprietary or proprietary form, including any word processing or hypertext form. However, if you provide access to or distribute copies of a Project Gutenberg work in a format other than “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other format used in the official version posted on the official Project Gutenberg website (www.gutenberg.org), you must, at no additional cost, fee or expense to the user, provide a copy, a means of exporting a copy, or a means of obtaining a copy upon request, of the work in its original “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other form. Any alternate format must include the full Project Gutenberg License as specified in paragraph 1.E.1.

1.E.7. Do not charge a fee for access to, viewing, displaying, performing, copying or distributing any Project Gutenberg works unless you comply with paragraph 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.8. You may charge a reasonable fee for copies of or providing access to or distributing Project Gutenberg electronic works provided that:

- You pay a royalty fee of 20% of the gross profits you derive from the use of Project Gutenberg works calculated using the method you already use to calculate your applicable taxes. The fee is owed to the owner of the Project Gutenberg trademark, but he has agreed to donate royalties under this paragraph to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation. Royalty payments must be paid within 60 days following each date on which you prepare (or are legally required to prepare) your periodic tax returns. Royalty payments should be clearly marked as such and sent to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation at the address specified in Section 4, "Information about donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation."
- You provide a full refund of any money paid by a user who notifies you in writing (or by e-mail) within 30 days of receipt that s/he does not agree to the terms of the full Project Gutenberg™ License. You must require such a user to return or destroy all copies of the works possessed in a physical medium and discontinue all use of and all access to other copies of Project Gutenberg™ works.
- You provide, in accordance with paragraph 1.F.3, a full refund of any money paid for a work or a replacement copy, if a defect in the electronic work is discovered and reported to you within 90 days of receipt of the work.
- You comply with all other terms of this agreement for free distribution of Project Gutenberg™ works.

1.E.9. If you wish to charge a fee or distribute a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work or group of works on different terms than are set forth in this agreement, you must obtain permission in writing from the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the manager of the Project

Gutenberg™ trademark. Contact the Foundation as set forth in Section 3 below.

1.F.

1.F.1. Project Gutenberg volunteers and employees expend considerable effort to identify, do copyright research on, transcribe and proofread works not protected by U.S. copyright law in creating the Project Gutenberg™ collection. Despite these efforts, Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, and the medium on which they may be stored, may contain “Defects,” such as, but not limited to, incomplete, inaccurate or corrupt data, transcription errors, a copyright or other intellectual property infringement, a defective or damaged disk or other medium, a computer virus, or computer codes that damage or cannot be read by your equipment.

1.F.2. LIMITED WARRANTY, DISCLAIMER OF DAMAGES - Except for the “Right of Replacement or Refund” described in paragraph 1.F.3, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the owner of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark, and any other party distributing a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work under this agreement, disclaim all liability to you for damages, costs and expenses, including legal fees. YOU AGREE THAT YOU HAVE NO REMEDIES FOR NEGLIGENCE, STRICT LIABILITY, BREACH OF WARRANTY OR BREACH OF CONTRACT EXCEPT THOSE PROVIDED IN PARAGRAPH 1.F.3. YOU AGREE THAT THE FOUNDATION, THE TRADEMARK OWNER, AND ANY DISTRIBUTOR UNDER THIS AGREEMENT WILL NOT BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR ACTUAL, DIRECT, INDIRECT, CONSEQUENTIAL, PUNITIVE OR INCIDENTAL DAMAGES EVEN IF YOU GIVE NOTICE OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGE.

1.F.3. LIMITED RIGHT OF REPLACEMENT OR REFUND - If you discover a defect in this electronic work within 90 days of receiving it, you can receive a refund of the money (if any) you paid for it by sending a written explanation to the person you received the work from. If you received the work on a physical medium, you must return the medium with your written explanation. The person or entity that provided you with the defective work may elect to provide a replacement copy in lieu of a refund. If you received the work electronically, the person or entity providing it to you may choose to give you a second opportunity to receive the work electronically in lieu of a refund. If the second copy is also defective, you may demand a refund in writing without further opportunities to fix the problem.

1.F.4. Except for the limited right of replacement or refund set forth in paragraph 1.F.3, this work is provided to you 'AS-IS', WITH NO OTHER WARRANTIES OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR ANY PURPOSE.

1.F.5. Some states do not allow disclaimers of certain implied warranties or the exclusion or limitation of certain types of damages. If any disclaimer or limitation set forth in this agreement violates the law of the state applicable to this agreement, the agreement shall be interpreted to make the maximum disclaimer or limitation permitted by the applicable state law. The invalidity or unenforceability of any provision of this agreement shall not void the remaining provisions.

1.F.6. INDEMNITY - You agree to indemnify and hold the Foundation, the trademark owner, any agent or employee of the Foundation, anyone providing copies of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works in accordance with this agreement, and any volunteers associated with the production, promotion and distribution of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, harmless from all liability, costs and expenses, including legal fees, that arise directly or indirectly from any of the following which you do or cause to occur: (a) distribution of this or any Project Gutenberg work, (b) alteration, modification, or additions or deletions to any Project Gutenberg work, and (c) any Defect you cause.

Section 2. Information about the Mission of Project Gutenberg

Project Gutenberg is synonymous with the free distribution of electronic works in formats readable by the widest variety of computers including obsolete, old, middle-aged and new computers. It exists because of the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and donations from people in all walks of life.

Volunteers and financial support to provide volunteers with the assistance they need are critical to reaching Project Gutenberg's goals and ensuring that the Project Gutenberg collection will remain freely available for generations to come. In 2001, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation was created to provide a secure and permanent future for Project Gutenberg and future generations. To learn more about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and how your efforts and donations can help, see Sections 3 and 4 and the Foundation information page at www.gutenberg.org.

Section 3. Information about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation is a non-profit 501(c)(3) educational corporation organized under the laws of the state of Mississippi and granted tax exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Foundation's EIN or federal tax identification number is 64-6221541. Contributions to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation are tax deductible to the full extent permitted by U.S. federal laws and your state's laws.

The Foundation's business office is located at 41 Watchung Plaza #516, Montclair NJ 07042, USA, +1 (862) 621-9288. Email contact links and up to date contact information can be found at the Foundation's website and official page at www.gutenberg.org/contact

Section 4. Information about Donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

Project Gutenberg™ depends upon and cannot survive without widespread public support and donations to carry out its mission of increasing the number of public domain and licensed works that can be freely distributed in machine-readable form accessible by the widest array of equipment including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit www.gutenberg.org/donate.

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: www.gutenberg.org/donate.

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg electronic works

Professor Michael S. Hart was the originator of the Project Gutenberg concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For forty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as not protected by copyright in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.

Most people start at our website which has the main PG search facility:
www.gutenberg.org.

This website includes information about Project Gutenberg, including how to make donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, how to help produce our new eBooks, and how to subscribe to our email newsletter to hear about new eBooks.
