PREFACE

This essay is purely linguistic in character and purpose.

In taking phonetic notes on Tagalog I noticed that the pronunciation of the speaker to whom I was listening, Mr. Alfredo Viola Santiago (at present a student of architectural engineering in the University of Illinois) presented certain features of accentuation not mentioned in the descriptions familiar to me. With the intention of briefly describing these features, I took down more extensive notes and asked Mr. Santiago to tell me in Tagalog the stories of “The Sun” and “The Northwind and the Sun,” used as models by the International Phonetic Association.

The data so obtained showed that the features of accentuation I had observed were in part distinctive (expressive of word-meaning), and, further, that certain other features, which were but imperfectly described in the treatises I knew (so especially the use of the “ligatures”), appeared in Mr. Santiago’s speech in a regular and intelligible manner. A more extensive study was thus indicated.

The results of this study were subject to two obvious limitations. The utterances I had transcribed were either translations or isolated sentences, and I could not determine to what extent the features of Mr. Santiago’s speech which I had observed were general in Tagalog.

The former of these limitations was fully overcome when I asked Mr. Santiago to tell me connected stories. In addition to fortunate endowments of a more general kind Mr. Santiago possesses, as I found, that vivacity of intellect and freedom from irrelevant prepossessions which we seek and so rarely find in people whose language we try to study. This latter quality may be due in part to the fact that, as Mr. Santiago’s education has been carried on entirely in Spanish and English, his speech-feeling for his mother-tongue has not been deflected by the linguistic, or rather pseudo-linguistic training of the schools, so familiar to us. However this may be, I cannot be grateful enough to Mr. Santiago (and I hope that the reader will join me in this feeling) for the intelligence, freshness, and imagination with which he has given us connected narratives in his native language,—stories he heard in childhood and experiences of his own and of his friends. It is to be hoped that some of these will be of interest to students of folk-lore (as, for instance, Nos. 9, 10, 11, the old Hindu fable in No. 4, and the Midas story, much changed, in No. 5); the texts are here given, however, only for their linguistic interest.

The second limitation could not be overcome. As there exists at present no adequate description of the dialectal differentiation of Tagalog, nor even an adequate description of any one form of the language, I can make no definite statement as to the relation of Mr. Santiago's speech to other forms of Tagalog.

What is here presented is, then, a specimen of the speech of an educated speaker from Mr. Santiago's home town, San Miguel na Matamés, Bulacán Province, Luzón. It would have been possible to include in the description the speech of at least one other educated Tagalog from a different region (uneducated speakers are unfortunately not within my reach), as well as such data as might be gathered from printed Tagalog books: I have refrained from this extension because, at the present state of our knowledge, a single clearly defined set of data is preferable to a necessarily incomplete attempt at describing the whole language in its local and literary variations.

Comparison of literary Tagalog (chiefly the translation of José Rizal's "Noli me Tangere" by Patricio Mariano, Manila, Morales, 1913¹) shows that Mr. Santiago's speech is not far removed from it. In most cases where my results deviate from the statements of the Spanish grammars, the evidence of printed books (and not infrequently the internal evidence of the grammars themselves) shows that the divergence is due not to dialectal differences but to the fact that the grammars are the product of linguistically untrained observers, who heard in terms of Spanish articulations and classified in those of Latin grammar.

This study presents, then, the first Tagalog texts in phonetic transcription and the first scientific analysis of the structure of the language². Although the nature of the problem forbade the use of any material other than that obtained from Mr. Santiago, I have examined all the treatises on Tagalog accessible to me. No experience could show more clearly than the reading of these books the necessity of linguistic and especially phonetic training for anyone who wishes to describe a language. Not one of the works in the following list³ contains an intelligible description of the pronunciation of Tagalog. The only general work of scientific value is the excellent second volume of P. Serrano Laktaw's dictionary. Much as one may admire the pioneer courage of Totanes and the originality of Minguella, these venerable men were as little able to describe a language as one untrained in botany is to describe a plant. Among the authors of monographs are several good names and one or two of the greatest in our science: nearly all of these authors mention the difficulty under which they labored for want of an adequate description of the language.

² The entire syntax and much of the morphology, especially whatever relates to the accent-shifts in word-formation, will be found to be new. I have of course refrained from any and all historical surmises beyond the indication of unassimilated loan-words. The system of transcription used is, with a few deviations, that of the International Phonetic Association. [↑]

³ They were accessible to me chiefly through the courtesy of the Newberry Library in Chicago. [↑]

I. TEXTS IN PHONETIC TRANSCRIPTION

Translation

1. Aη ulòl na uηgò' at aη marúnoη na pagòη.

1. The foolish monkey and the

Mínsan an pagòn hában nalilígo sa ílog, ay nakàkíta syà nan isa η púno-η-ságin na lumúlútan at tinátañay nan ágos. Hiníla niya sa pasígan, dátapwat hindí nya madalà sa lúpa'. Dáhil díto ⁵tináwag nya an kaybígan niya η unğò' at iniyálay nyà an kapútol nan púno-η-ságin kun itátanim nyà an kanya η kapartè. Tumañò' an unğò' at hináte nilà sa gitnà' mulá sa magkábila η dúlo an púno nan ságin. Inañkìn nan unğò an kapútol na máy maña dáhon, dáhil sa panukálà nya na iyòn ay tütúbo na mabúti káy sa ¹⁰kapútol na wala η dáhon.

Once upon a time, when the turtle was swimming in the river, he saw a banana-tree adrift and being carried along by the current. He dragged it to the beach, but was not able to carry it up to the solid ground. Therefore he called his friend, the monkey, and offered him a half of the banana-tree, if he would plant his part for him. The monkey agreed, and they divided the banana-tree at the middle, half-way from either end. The monkey took the half which had leaves, because he thought it would grow better than the half which had none.

Nan makaraàn an ila η áraw, an púno nan unğò' ay namatà, yáman an sa pagòn ay tumúbo hangà sa magbúña. An maña ságin ay nahinòg, dátapwat hindí maakyàt nan pagòn. Dahil díto tináwag nyà an kanya η kaybíga η unğò' at iniyálay nya an ila η ¹⁵búña nan ságin kun àakyatin nyà an púno'. An unğò' ay umakyàt at kumáin nan makàkáya.

When a few days had passed, the monkey's tree died, while that of the turtle grew until it bore fruit. The bananas grew ripe, but the turtle could not climb for them. Therefore he called his friend, the monkey, and offered him some of the fruits of the banana, if he would climb the tree. The monkey climbed up and ate for all he was worth.

Sinábi nan pagòn: “Hulúgan mo akò.”

Said the turtle: “Throw me some.”

Dátapuwat isinagòt naṅ uṅgò':
"Balat màn at malinamnàm ay hindi kita hùhulúgan."

But the monkey answered: "Though sweet the skins, I'd throw you none."

²⁰Aṅ pagòṅ ay nagálit at nagsábug sya naṅ tinik sa palígid naṅ púno'.
Naṅ lumuksò aṅ uṅgò ay nátinik syà.
Pinagbintanan nyà aṅ pagòṅ at kanya ṅ hinánap úpaṅ parusáhan niyà.
Nàhúli nya aṅ pagòṅ sa kabilà naṅ isa ṅ toòd.

The turtle got angry and scattered spines round the foot of the tree.
When the monkey jumped down, he landed on the spines. He suspected the turtle and looked for him, in order to punish him. He found the turtle behind a stump.

Sinábi nya sa pagòṅ: "Kità ay áki ṅ parùrusáhan. Mamíli ²⁵ka sa dalawà.
Dikdikìn kità sa lusòṅ o lunúrin kità sa ílog?"

Said he to the turtle: "I am going to punish you. Choose between the two:
shall I bray you in a mortar or drown you in the river?"

Aṅ marúnoṅ na pagòṅ ay nagumpisà naṅ pagsisigàw at hinilìṅ nya sa uṅgò' na, kuṅ maàáre', ay dikdikìn siya sa lusòṅ.

The clever turtle began to shout and begged the monkey, if it were possible, to bray him in a mortar.

Dátapwat isinagòt naṅ uṅgò':
"Ibígay kò sa iyò aṅ parúsa na hindi mo gustò."

But the monkey answered: "I shall give you the punishment you don't want."

³⁰At inihágis nya sa ílog aṅ pagòṅ.

And he threw the turtle into the river.

Nan dumápo an pagòn sa túbig ay nagsisigàw sya at sinábi nyà sa unghò': "Salámat, kaybígan. Itò an áki n tiráhan!"

When the turtle arrived in the water, he set up a shout and said to the monkey: "Thank you, friend! This is my home."

Note. p. 16, l. 2 an pagòn hában nalilígo' is unusual and no doubt traditional for hában an pagòn ay nalilígo'. Similarly, p. 16, l. 18 Balat màn at malinamnàm ... is traditional (proverbial) for modern Káhit na malinamnàm an maña balàt.

2. An pagtatakbúhan nan usà at nan susò'.

2. The race of the deer and the snail.

Isà n usà n naninain sa gúbat ay nakátagpò nan isa n susò' na gumàgapan sa dáhon nan búho'. An usà ay naghintò nan paninain at pinagmasdàn nyà an mabágal na paggapan nan susò'.

A deer, grazing in the jungle, came upon a snail that was creeping over the leaf of a bamboo-plant. The deer ceased from his grazing and watched the slow creeping of the snail.

Makaraan an ila n sandalì' ay sinábi nyà sa susò': "Ano n hina mo n lumákad! Bákit hindí ka magáral na lumákad nan matúlin? Gáya ko, akù

When a few moments had passed, he said to the snail: "How slowly you walk! Why don't you learn to walk faster? Look at me,—I am often y paráti η nàhàhábul naη maηa áso, dátapwat aη matúlin ko η pagtakbò ay sya η naglílìgtàs sa ákin ¹⁰naη áki η búhay. Dátapwat gáya mò, kuη ikàw ay habúlin naη káhit anò η kaáway, papáno aη maηyàyári sa iyo η búhay? Pího η ikàw ay màpàpatày.”

pursued by dogs, but my swift running is what saves my life. But look at you,—if you should be pursued by any foe, what will ever save your life? Surely you will get killed.”

Pagkárinig naη susò’ sa maηa salità η itò ay tiniñnàn nya aη usà at kanya η pinagarálan aη maínam nya η paηaηatawàn, ¹⁵aη kanya η mahahába η paà, at aη malalakàs nya η lamàn. Iníbig nya na siya màn ay gaya rìn naη usà úpaη siyà ay makatakò naη matúlin. Dátapwat kanyà η inakálà’ na, kuη pilítin nya na sya y tumakbò, ay hindí sya màhùhulè naη malakì sa usà.

When the snail had heard these words, he looked at the deer and scanned his fine physique, his long legs, and his strong muscles. He wished that he too might be like the deer, so that he could run fast. However, he thought that if he forced himself to run, he should not remain far behind the deer.

Sa gayòn ay isinagot nyà sa usà: “Ikàw ay mapaηmatà. ²⁰Hindí mo hinìhinálà’ kuη anò aη magágawa naη isa η may matíbay na paggustò. Hinàhámon kità na makipagtakbúhan sa ákin mula ríto haηgàη sa ílog na nása bandà η kalunúran mulà ríto.”

Accordingly he answered the deer: “You are overweening. You do not suspect what can be done by one who has a strong will. I challenge you to race with me from here to the river that lies west of here.”

An usà ay tumáwa nan malakàs at isinagòt sa susò': "Bákit mo inakála n tatalúnin mo akò? Sigúro n ikàw ay magdàdáya'!"	The deer laughed loudly and answered the snail: "How can you think you will defeat me? I suppose you are going to cheat."

²⁵Isinagòt nan susò', na hindi siya magdàdáya', at, úpan máy-roo n tumiñin sa kanilà at magiñ hukòm sa kanila n pagtatakbúhan, ay sinábi nyà na tumáwag silà nan isà sa maña kayibígan nilà, na sya n magígiñ hukòm.	The snail answered that he was not going to cheat, and, so that there might be someone to watch them and be judge over their race, he suggested that they call one of their friends to be judge.

An usà ay pumáyag, at tináwag nilà an isa n kálaw, úpan ³⁰Siya n magiñ hukòm.	The deer agreed, and they called an owl to be judge.

Nan magumpisà silà nan pagtakbò ay malakì an nagiñ pagkáhuli nan susò'. Sa kanyà n pagtakbò an usà ay nakàraan nan isa n mayábuñ na damúhan. Naghintú sya úpan mañináin, yáman malakì an pagkáuna nya sa susò'. Binálak nyà na pagkátanaw ³⁵nya na dumáratin an susò' ay táakbo syà n mulì'. Dátapuwat, nan sya y makapañináin, ay sinumpòn sya nan katàmáran. Natúlug sya sa panukálà na màgìgisiñ syà bágo dumatìn an susò'.	When they began to run, the snail was soon left far behind. On his course the deer came upon a flourishing grass-field. He stopped to graze, since his start over the snail was so great. He planned that when he saw the snail coming, he would start running again. However, when he had done feeding, he was attacked by laziness. He went to sleep, with the thought that he would wake up before the snail arrived.

Dátapwat, hábaŋ sya y natùtúlog, ay nakaraàn aŋ susò'. Naŋ mágisiŋ syà ay malálim nà sa hápon. Tumakbo syà naŋ úbus-lakàs ⁴⁰patúŋu sa ílog, at doòn ay sinalúboŋ sya naŋ susò' at naŋ kanila ŋ hukòm na kálaw.

However, while he was asleep, the snail passed by. When he awoke, it was already late in the afternoon. He ran with all his might to the river, and there he was met by the snail and their judge, the owl.

“Ikàw ay talúnan,” winíka pagdáka naŋ kanila ŋ hukòm.

“You are defeated,” said their judge at once.

3. Isà ŋ Biyàrnes-Sànto.

3. A Good Friday.

Si Hwàn at aŋ kanyà ŋ kaybíga ŋ si Pédro ay namámaŋká sa ílug patúŋo sa báya-ŋ-Balíwag. Sa baŋkà' ay máy-roon silà ŋ isà ŋ laráwan naŋ Krísto na kanila ŋ iniháhatid sa páre', úpaŋ ⁵magámit sa pagdadáus naŋ isa ŋ Pitù ŋ Wíka'. Si Hwàn ay sinìsiglàn naŋ tákot.

Juan and his friend Pedro were canoeing on the river toward the town Baliwag. In their canoe they had an image of Christ which they were conveying to a priest to be used in the celebration of a Good Friday Mass. Juan was filled with terror.

Sinábi nya kay Pédro: “An táwu nátin sa ban̄kà’ ay tadtàd nan̄ sùgat at hindí humíhin̄. Sa akálà ko y patày an̄ táo η iyàn. Baká táyu an̄ pagbintaṇàn nan̄ pári η áti η paghàhatdàn ¹⁰sa kanyà.”

Said he to Pedro: “This man of ours in the canoe is all chopped up with wounds and no longer breathing. I think this man is a corpse. I am afraid we shall be suspected by the priest to whom we are delivering him.”

Isinagòt ni Pédro: “Sàsabíhin nátin sa kanyà na, nan̄ màlúlan sa áti η ban̄kà’ an̄ táo η itò y ganyan nà an̄ kanya η anyò’. Táyu y marámi η tagapagpatotoò, kanyá hwag kà η matákot.”

Pedro answered: “We shall tell him that when this man was loaded into our canoe, he was already in this condition. We have many witnesses, so don’t be afraid.”

¹⁵Pinagsabíhan silà nan̄ páre’ na pumaroòn sila sa simbáhan kinàbukásan nan̄ hápon, úpan̄ makinìg nan̄ sèrmon.

When they reached the priest they gave him the image. The priest told them to come to church the next day in the afternoon to hear the sermon.

Si Hwàn ay siniglà η mulí nan̄ tákot, sapagkàt hindí nya màpagkúro kun̄ bákit íbig nan̄ páre’ na silà ay pása simbáhan. Paráti sya η nakárinig nan̄ maṇa táo η kinumbidà sa simbáhan ²⁰at doòn ay hinúli nan̄ gwàrdya-sibìl. Dátapuwat hindí sya nagwíka nan̄ anu màn kay Pédro, sapagkàt nàkíkita nya na itò y walà η tákot.

Juan was again filled with terror, for he could not make out why the priest wanted them to go to the church. He had often heard of men being summoned to the church and there seized by the gendarmes. However, he did not say anything to Pedro, for he saw that the latter had no fear.

Kinàbukásan naŋ hápun ay naparoòn sila sa simbáhan, at doòn ay nàkíta nilà aŋ isa ŋ Krísto ŋ nàpàpákù sa krùs.

On the next day in the afternoon they went to church, and there they saw a Christ nailed to the cross.

²⁵Winíkà ni Hwàn: “Aŋ táu ŋ yaòn, kuŋ iyò ŋ natàtandaàn, ay sya náti ŋ inihatìd sa páre’. Mabúti táyo y dumoòn sa isa ŋ lugàr na hindí maáabut naŋ matà naŋ páre’.”

Said Juan: “That man, if you remember, is the one we delivered to the priest. We had better go to some place out of sight of the priest.”

Kanyá silà ŋ dalawà ay naparoòn sa ilálim naŋ pùlpito, úpaŋ doòn nilà pakiŋgàn aŋ sèrmon. Nagumpisà aŋ Syéti-Palábras, ³⁰at aŋ pári ay dumáratin nà sa bandà ŋ hulì naŋ kanya ŋ sèrmon.

So the two of them went under the pulpit, to hear the sermon from there. The Good Friday Mass began, and the priest was already getting to the last part of his sermon.

Winíkà naŋ pári sa kanya ŋ sèrmon: “Magsísi kayò sa inyù ŋ maŋa kasalánan, malulupit na táo. Masdàn ninyò aŋ maŋa súgat na hiníwa ninyù sa katawàn naŋ áti ŋ Mànanákop.”

In his sermon the priest said: “Repent ye of your sins, cruel people! Behold the wounds which you struck in the body of our Savior!”

Pagkárinig nitò ni Hwàn ay sya y siniglà ŋ mulí naŋ tákot, ³⁵sapagkàt inakálà nya na siya y nàpàpagbintaŋàn.

When Juan heard this, he was again filled with terror, for he thought that he had fallen under suspicion.

A year passed, the closing of the schools arrived, the students returned to their home towns, and the three friends, Pedro, Juan, and Andrés met in the town where Pedro had been brought up, to spend the vacation there.

The priest said that, if they divided the one egg, it would do them no good, for it would not slacken their hunger. Therefore the priest suggested that only one of them should eat the remaining egg, and in his selfishness he suggested that whichever of them was best at speaking Latin should eat the egg all by himself. He thought that the soldier did not know Latin, and the doctor alone would be his opponent, and his knowledge he held in contempt.

The physician handed the egg to the soldier, and the priest and he waited for what the soldier would say.

The latter did not know what to say, for he really did not know a single iota of Latin. In his cogitation he remembered that once, when he went to church to hear the Good Friday Mass, he heard from the priest that the meaning of the words “Consummatum est” was “It is all over now.” So he poured the egg into his mouth and, when he had

After they had finished talking, the child at once looked for his brothers and sisters and told them what he had heard. They all wept, because their parents had not told them that they were a burden to their life. They thought that, if they had known this, they would have done anything whatever to help them gain a living. However, they agreed that they would go along, if they were asked to go walking, and would allow themselves to be led astray.

Therefore the giant said to him: “If you will carry this bag of money of mine to my wife and tell her to buy some shoes and to bring them to me, I shall pay you much money.”

He said further that he could not walk without shoes, and therefore he should hurry. Taking the bag of money, the child promised to return at once. However, when he had gone some distance, he called his hidden brothers and sisters, and when they were assembled, he suggested that they go home. But his brothers and sisters answered that they did not know the way home. He however answered that they should follow the stones and bread he had dropped on the way.

vampire and therefore did not know whether it was really to be feared.

A vampire is a being of great power. It changes its body into various forms. At some times it has a body like a human being, but black, at others it is a large dog or pig. It eats people, especially children. But its favorite food, by far, and that which it most commonly eats, is the child yet unborn and still in its mother's womb. Therefore the pregnant women in the town had great fear. They did not allow their husbands to sleep, for watching at their side. A vampire is hard to kill with knife or gun, because it has but one place which one must hit or wound in order to kill it, and this place is secret. The only thing it flees from is garlic, which therefore is much used in driving off vampires.

A surprising thing, however, about this vampire was its habit of keeping

In some places in the Philippines the people have a firm belief in sorcerers. According to their belief a sorcerer is a person of great power, and this power comes from a demon or else is inherited from one's power one must first become friends with a demon and serve it. However, there are some also who believe that

The kulam is that seized, inherited, or given by the demon, and it is the source of the possessor's power. The appearance of the kulam is not always the same. Sometimes it is a stone or a small doll of ugly appearance. In the dark this kulam glows like a firefly, but this glow disappears when the kulam desires it.
The kulam and the person, man or woman, who possesses it, do not separate even for a moment, and even when bathing the sorcerer carries his kulam. Therefore, curious people, when they wish to find out whether a person whom they suspect is really a sorcerer or not, watch him at his bath. If the sorcerer is not careful and has no suspicion that he is being watched, the watcher sometimes succeeds in seeing the kulam.

The bowel-movement of the animal does not stop, and after a few hours, no matter how fat the animal, it becomes skin and bone. left him without a word. He sought out the brother of the wounded man and told him not to heed his brother's wounds, for tomorrow they would go away and be transferred to the sorcerer, for it was the latter whom he had reached in the body of his brother. On the next day the doctor went to the man whom he had cured with the knife and was much pleased when he found him well and without the marks of wounds in his face. A few days later they heard that a sorcerer in the neighboring town was in a serious condition, owing to the unceasing flow of blood from some wounds in his face.

There are also, however, some sorcerers who are quick and have not been caught by physicians. The physician, too, must be skilful and quick. Anyone at all can cure a person who has been bewitched, since there is no other method of cure than that of inflicting pain on the body of the bewitched person. The danger, however, is great, since, if the one who is attempting the cure is not quick, owing to lack of practice, the sorcerer will be able to get away. In this event it is the

One of two brothers was bewitched by his rival in courtship. There was no witch-doctor within call. In his great pity for him, the older brother decided to cure him, even though he had had no practice. He was not practised, to be sure, but he had often heard from physicians the manner of cure. One evening, when he thought that the sorcerer was inside his brother's body, he quickly seized a bolo, and, stepping up to his brother, cut him without care. On the next day, instead of his finding his brother well and unwounded, the latter was a corpse. The sorcerer had got away.

The games of football in the United States and in the Philippines are very different. Instead of the players belonging to two contending sides, as in American football, in "sipa" the players form but one party. In sipa the aim of the players is not to defeat an opponent, but to prevent the ball or sipa from falling to the ground.
 The ball used is also very different. It is made of split rattan woven into the shape of a sphere. The inside is hollow and the eyes of the weave are large. Therefore the sipa, unlike the ball used in baseball, is light.

The number of players is from two to twenty. When they are many, they stand in a circle. To begin the game, one of the party throws the sipa ball up into the air and toward one of the players, usually toward one opposite him. The one to whom the ball is tossed returns it to the one who threw it to him, not with his hand, but with his foot.

When the players are skilful, they direct the ball to each one of the party, so that each one of them is alert and ready for the coming of the ball. Each one is careful not to let the ball fall to the ground. Often the players display various manners of sending the ball. The graceful bendings of the legs forward and backward, the quick and light leaps, the gentle and light kicking of the ball, and the sending of the ball in every possible direction, are features which give beauty to the game of sipa. Sometimes the shoulder, the elbow, the knee, or the hand is used in returning the ball.

He had the gendarmes called, and on the evening of that very Sunday he had all the houses in the town entered and searched, so as to catch Kiko. But they did not catch Kiko. That same afternoon Kiko told some of his intimate friends what he had done, and they were all astonished. When this had happened Patupat’s wrath against Mariano greatly increased, and after a few days he again entered a charge against Mariano. This time he made a different accusation. He complained to the court that Mariano was a Mason, because he did not come to church, did not confess, and did not kiss the priest’s hand. The Masons are enemies of the Catholic Church and, in consequence, were enemies also of the government in the therefore he suggested that Mariano

Juan was a carpenter who had for neighbor a Chinaman who also was a carpenter. This Chinaman was a skilled carpenter and his cleverness showed itself in his skilful use of the plane. One day he bought a piece of wood forty feet in length. This he proceeded to smoothe. He tried to see if he could obtain shavings without a break for the whole length of the wood. What with the excellence of his tools and his skill at carpentry, this feat went off as if there was nothing to it. Every time he pushed his plane he obtained a shaving without a break, forty feet in length. In order to show this his skill to his neighbor, the Tagalog carpenter, he sent him one shaving every day.

Juan was skilled in the use of the daras, and he was able to smoothe boards by the use of the daras alone. Any piece of wood which he had chopped smooth with the daras did not require the use of the plane; but the pieces he chopped off were only short splinters, not suited to show his skill, and he could not send them to the Chinaman.

When the Chinaman’s hair was completely cut, the onlookers were greatly astonished, for the Chinaman’s hair was as if cut by the shears of a skilful barber. The Chinaman too, when he saw in the looking-glass that his head was unhurt, was greatly astonished and did not stop praising Juan’s skill in the use of the daras.

were great, yet there were also some disadvantages which he obtained had become very nervous. The sounds of falling bodies, noises, and the barking of dogs at night, did not allow him to sleep. These noises often made him start up with a jump from his sleep. Especially when the barking of a dog, for instance, woke him up, he jumped high up from his bed, and before he recovered his wits he was running at full speed. He could exercise no care about his involuntary jumping up and usually went way up to the ceiling, and, since this was low, his body got full of bruises and his head full of bumps from striking against the ceiling.

Likewise in his unintentional running whenever he woke up with a start, his whole body got knocked again and again against the walls of his house.

17. Aṅ alíla ṅ unḡò'.

17. The pet monkey.

Siy Andrès ay máy-roo η isa η alíla η unḡò na kanya η lubhà η minámahàl, sapagkàt aη unḡu η itò y nagbíbigay sa kanya naη ³⁵malakì η serbísyo.

Kuη gabì ipinaglálátag sya naη banìg naη unḡo η itò; kuη umága ay iniháhandà' aη kanya η paηhilámos, at aη ano mà η kanya η iyútos ay sinúsunod naη unḡò'.

Andrés had a pet monkey which he prized very highly, because this monkey gave him much service. At night the monkey spread out his sleeping-mat for him; in the morning it handed him his water for washing, and whatever order he gave was obeyed by the monkey.

Gabì-gabì aη unḡu η itò y natùtúlog sa ilálim naη kátri η tinùtulúgan naη kanya η paηinoòn. Itò y hindi gustò naη kanya ⁴⁰η paηinoòn, sapagkàt, dahilàn sa kanya η malakì η kabuluhàn, ay íbig ni Andrès na syà y bigyàn naη isa η mabúte η lugàr na tulugàn. Dátapuwat, káhit na gánu η pagpílit aη gawìn ni Andrès, ay hindi nya mapatúlog sa ibà η lugàr aη kanya η alíla η unḡò'.

Every night this monkey slept underneath the bedstead on which its master slept. This was not pleasing to the latter, for owing to its great value, Andrés wanted to give it a good place to sleep in. However, no matter what efforts Andrés made to force it, his pet monkey could not be brought to sleep in any other place.

Siy Andrès ay isa η táwu η may tákot at pagíbig sa Dyòs. ⁵Kanyá gabì-gabì bágu sya matúlog ay nagkúkurus syà at tumàtáwag sya sa Dyòs. Sa óras naη kanya η paghigà gabì-gabì ay dinàratnan nà nyà na nása ilálim naη kanya η kátri aη unḡò'. Mínsan màn ay hindi sya náuna sa paghigà' sa unḡu η itò.

Andrés was a man who feared and loved God. Therefore, every night, before he went to sleep, he made the Sign of the Cross and called upon God. At his bed-time every night he found that his monkey was already under his bedstead. Not once did he get ahead of the monkey in going to bed.

Isa η áraw an pári sa báyan ay dumálaw kay Andrés sa ¹⁰kanya η báhay. Pagkaraàn nan ilà η sandalì η pagsasàlitáan ay ibinalítà niy Andrés sa páre' na sya y máy-roo η isà η alíla η unḡò na lubhà η malakì an kabuluhàn, sapagkàt sya y pinagsìsilbihà η mabúte, at káhit na anò an iyútos nya ay sinúsunod, at sinábi pa nyà η masípag pa káy sa maḡa iba nyà η alíla' an unḡo ¹⁵η iyòn.

One day the priest of the town visited Andrés in his house. After some time had elapsed in conversation, Andrés told the priest that he had a pet monkey which was very useful, because it served him well and obeyed his every command, and he also said that this monkey was more diligent than his other servants.

Siy Andrés ay nagálit, nagtindìḡ, at hinánap nya sa maḡa sulok-sulòk nan báhay an unḡò'.

The priest was much surprised and asked that the monkey be shown to him. So Andrés called the monkey. Usually the monkey came at once at a single call by Andrés, but on this occasion it did not appear even when he had called ten times. Andrés got angry, arose, and looked for the monkey in the nooks and corners of the house.

At the approach of the priest the monkey trembled with fear. The priest conceived the suspicion that this monkey was an evil spirit. So he made the Sign of the Cross, and blessing a little water, sprinkled it over the monkey.

Thereupon the priest questioned Andrés concerning his faith in God. Andrés said that his firm faith had not changed and that he prayed every night before going to sleep. The priest then asked where the monkey used to sleep. Andrés answered that it slept every night under his bedstead.

He was met by the smoker. When he approached, Pedro examined the old man's figure, but as he did not succeed in gratifying his curiosity, he was taken with the desire of seeing the old man by daylight. When another half hour had passed, the rays of the sun began to fall upon them, but it was not yet light enough for Pedro to make out what sort of thing it was he had hold of. When five o'clock came, he was greatly surprised to see that he was embracing a post which was not much higher than he. It was, however, firmly fixed in the ground and completely charred.

One night Juan while rambling about, crossed a river. While he was still on the bank and just walking on the sandy beach, he felt some sand being showered on his back. He thought he would watch for the person who was throwing sand on him and catch him, so, while walking, he kept turning suddenly right about at short intervals, but he saw nothing.

This frightened him a little, and he began to wonder if he was not perhaps dealing with some old man of the ant-hill or some goblin. Therefore he hastened his running, but the faster he went, the more frequent grew the striking of sand on his back. His fear increased and he returned home running with all his might.

When he got there he was out of only when he had rested a while that he was able to answer the many questions of his father and the other members of the household. He told his father that he had been pursued by dwarves on his walk and showered with sand.

His father asked him where the scene of this was, and he said on the bank of the river. His father burst into peals of laughter and said that these were no dwarves, but only his own feet, which sent the sand up on his

But Juan refused to believe this, and for several days he did not leave the house. His father therefore wanted to show him the truth of what he had said, so one night he told Juan to go for a walk to that same place, and he would accompany him.

³⁵Pumáyag si Hwàn at sila η dalawà y naparoòn sa pasígan. Naη dumatìη na sila doòn ay nagpahúle aη ama ni Hwàn. Juan consented and they both went to the river-bank. When they got there, Juan's father dropped behind. When Juan walked on the sandy beach and felt the sprinkling of sand on his back, he was again filled with terror and shouted to his father that they were already starting to throw sand on his back.

Pinabalik nya si Hwàn at kanya η pinalákad na mulè'. Dayòn ay sinùsundan nyà sa likuràn. Dáhil díto y nàkíta naη ama ni Hwàn na twì η sya y háhakbàη aη sinélas na soòt nya ay nagtátaηày naη buháñin, at sa pagaalsà nitò naη paà aη buháñi η taηày ay napàpasábuy sa likòd ni Hwàn.

He made Juan come back and walk on again. This time he followed at his back. Accordingly Juan's father saw that every time Juan took a step, the sandals he was wearing carried along some sand, and when he raised his foot the sand thus carried along was sprinkled on his back.

Aη ginawá naη kanya η amà ay ipinaalìs aη soòt nya η ⁵sinélas at pinalákad sya η mulì'. Dayòn, káhit na gáno kaláyo' aη lakáran ni Hwàn ay walá na sya η nàràramdamà η sábuy naη buháñin sa kanya η likòd.

His father now had him take off the sandals he was wearing and made him walk on again. This time, no matter how much ground Juan walked over, he felt no scattering of sand on his back.

Young Maria was famed for beauty in her district. She had no suitors, however, except only Juan. But Maria's father had a great dislike for Juan. Juan could converse with the girl he was courting only in secret, for when Maria's father knew of it, he would punish them both with his stick.

Sometimes, when the father's anger was great, he used a club on Juan, so that he was in danger of getting his bones broken whenever they were caught talking together.

Siniglàn sya agàd naŋ gálit at pasigàw nya ŋ kinaúsap si ²⁵Hwàn: “Anu kà, salbáhe? Sinábi ku nà sa iyò ŋ hwag kà ŋ túntonŋ díto sa áki ŋ pamamáhay. Ano aŋ íbig mo t nàrìrito kà?”

He was at once filled with anger and in a loud voice addressed Juan: “What do you want, you brute? I’ve told you not to set foot in my house here. What do you mean by coming here?”

At pagkasábe nitò y sinuŋgabàn nya aŋ isa ŋ bisìg naŋ kawáyan at inakmaàn nya ŋ bambuhìn si Hwàn. Sa malaki ŋ tákot ³⁰nitò ay nagtalòn sya sa bintánà’, dátapuwat sinundàn dìn syà naŋ amà. Kanyá aŋ ginawá nya y tumakbò sya naŋ úbus-lakàs.

And when he had said this he seized a bamboo cane and made ready to give Juan a caning. In his terror the latter jumped out of the window, but he was followed by the father. So he took to running with all his might.

Aŋ gabì ay madilìm na pára ŋ úliŋ, at hindí nya màtumpakàn kuŋ saàn aŋ parunàn, dátapuwat patúloy rin sya naŋ pagtakbò. Nagkaŋdadápà sya sa pagtakbò, dátapwat maligsi syà ŋ ³⁵nagbàbáŋon at patúluy dìn sa pagtakbò.

The night was dark as coal and he could not make out which way to go, but he kept running nevertheless. He fell on his face again and again as he ran, but he got up quickly and kept on running.

Hindí naláon at nakádaan sya naŋ isà ŋ malakì at maitìm na bágay. Nàkilála nya ŋ iyòn ay isa ŋ kalabàw, kanyá sya y lumundàg agàd sa likòd nitò, at kanya ŋ pinatakbò.

It was not long before he came upon a large black object. He recognized it as a carabao, so he leaped quickly on its back and made it run.

Ang pagsakày sa kalabàw ay hindi lubhà ng mahírap sa kalapáran ⁴⁰nañ likòd nitò at sa kahináan nañ takbò. Kanyà', káhit na walà ng pamitìk si Hwàn ay dí natákot na sumakày. Sa kadilimàn nañ gabì sa kanya ng pagsakày ay nanýári ng náharap sya sa buntútan nañ kalabàw at hindi sa uluhàn.

Riding on a carabao is not very difficult, owing to the breadth of its back and the slowness of its pace. Therefore, even though he had no reins, Juan was not afraid to ride. Owing to the darkness of the night it happened that in his mounting he faced the tail-end of the carabao and not the head.

Pinatúlin nya ang kalabàw. Nanýári namà ng ang kalabàw na ⁵itò ay ári nañ amà ni Maryà. Hindi nalaúnan at nakátanaw sya nañ báhay na maílaw sa pinatutuñuhan nañ kalabàw. Ang boò ng ása nyà ang báhay na iyòn ay sa kanya ng kápit-báhay. Kanyá bumabá sya sa kalabàw at patakbo syà ng pumanhik sa báhay.

He urged on the carabao. Now it happened that this carabao was owned by Maria's father. It was not long before Juan saw a lighted house in the direction toward which the carabao was going. He confidently expected that this house was his neighbor's. Therefore he got down from the carabao and went up into the house on the run.

Malakì ang nagìng pagkalitò nya at pagkatákot nañ pagkápanhik ¹⁰nya y sinalúbon sya nañ amà ni Maryà, at binambò sya sa katawàn at sinábi: “Anò t nagbalìk ka pà? Hindi ba pinaláyas na kità, wala ng hyà’?”

Great was his surprise and terror when, upon entering, he was met by Maria's father and beaten all over his body and addressed: “What have you come back for? Haven't I got rid of you yet, you shameless rascal?”

Naṅ pagsa-ulàn si Hwàn naṅ kanya ṅ saríli ay nagtalòn sya sa batalàn at tumakbò sya ṅ mulí patúño sa kanya ṅ báhay, ¹⁵dátapuwat ṅayò y hindí na sya sumakà y sa káhit anò pa màn.	When Juan came to himself he jumped from the porch and ran toward home, but this time he did not ride on anything.

When her sister Maria was still alive, she was known far and wide for her avarice. She herself rarely had masses said or made offerings of candles. When beggars asking for alms called on her, she had them driven away and gave them no alms. Often also she had them chased with dogs. She forced her peons to work without pay, and when she gave them rations it was without meat or vegetables,—only boiled rice with salt. To propitiate her, her peons, whenever they went home, brought chickens, eggs, young pigs, and vegetables or fruits to give to Maria. They did not make these presents for love of Maria, but as a kind of bribe, so that they might not be too harshly treated during their stay in her house. But when Maria went to the country to her workmen, she appropriated without saying a word and without paying for it, everything she saw in their house that took her fancy. When, for instance, she saw at her workmen's a new basket, tray, sieve, sack, mat, pot, cup, dipper, brazier, or other household utensil, she took it and carried it off to her house. When she could not make use of the things she had taken, she sold them.

Her sister was much grieved then and went at once to the priest to ask to what means she could resort to rescue her sister from Hell. The priest advised her to go to a certain town where there was a wonder-working image of Saint Peter. This image of Saint Peter talked with people and advised various means of getting into Heaven. This was its miracle.

Àñ kapatìd ni Maryà ay nagsadyá agad-agàd sa báya ñ kinàdòroonàn nañ Sam-Pédro ñ milagróso. Nañ dumatìñ sya roòn at ³⁵nakìkipagúsap na syà kay Sam-Pédro, sinábi nya àñ lahàt-lahàt. Maria’s sister went immediately to the town where stood the miraculous Saint Peter. When she got there and talked with Saint Peter, she told him the whole story. She said that her sister had told her that her avarice, selfishness, and cruelty had caused her to be thrown into Hell.

“In that case,” said Saint Peter, “find you but one single person, animal, or plant that was the object of an act of kindness on the part of your sister. When you have managed to find it, come back to me, and I shall give you a means to rescue your sister from damnation.”

An kapatid ni Maryà ay umuwí agàd sa kanila n báyan, at díto y nagusísà sya sa lahàt nan namamáyan kun síno an may útan na loòb sa kanya n kapatid o kayá kun síno an kanya n ginawàn o pinagsalitaàn nan mabúti. Maria’s sister went home to their town at once and there she inquired of all the townspeople which of them owed any debt of gratitude to her sister, or which of them had been well treated or kindly spoken to by her. But not one of them was able to answer. The animals also of the neighbors and on Maria’s own grounds were interrogated by her, but here she found none that had been done a kindness by her sister.

An isa n áso n buto t balàt ay nagsábi sa kanyà: “Isa n hápon akò y gutòm na gutòm. Nakádaan akò sa kanyà n bakúran nan isa n butò. Itò y kinagat kò at áki n dinádala, nan màkíta ¹⁰nya akò. Ipinahábol nya akò n agàd, at nan bitíwan ko an butò itò y ipinabaon nyà sa lúpa’. Iyan bà y isa n kabàitan?”

One dog, a creature of skin and bones, said to her: “One afternoon I was very hungry. I found a bone in her yard. I seized it and was carrying it off, when she saw me. She had me chased at once, and when I dropped the bone she had it buried in the ground. Was that an act of kindness?”

The grief of Maria's sister became much greater, and her hope of rescuing her sister from damnation was gradually failing. She began to question the plants in her sister's yard. She took one by one all the gourds, pumpkins, cucumbers, chile peppers, melons, sincamas, peanuts, egg-plants, cow-peas, and onions and garlic, and other vegetables. She did not find among them that which she sought. She also went through the trees. She made inquiry, one after the other, of the chico, anona, custard-apple, mabolo, grape-fruit, orange, lime, and casoy trees. But here too her labor gave no result; only the group of the garden-plants she had not yet questioned, and if here she did not find what she sought, there would be nothing for her to do about the punishment her sister was undergoing. She went to them all, but there were not any who could say that they had received any kindness from Maria.

“Oh, your sister?” answered the grass, “Yes, it was she who gave me new life. Last summer my blades were all withered and I was near to dying, but your sister bathed one evening by the side of this well. As she bathed, some water was sprinkled on me, so that I grew again and my withered blades became fresh once more.”

Wala ñ pagkàsyahàn añ nagiñ tuwá nañ kapatid ni Maryà, at sa gabì ri ñ iyòn ay nagbalìk sya kay Sam-Pédro. Binigyan syà ni Sam-Pédro nañ isa ñ dàsálan, at sinábi sa kanyà na umuwé sya at iláwit nya sa balòn añ dàsála ñ iyòn. Tawágin nya si Maryà at pakapítin nya sa dàsálan, at dáhil díto y mahàháñù nya sa hírap añ kanya ñ kapatid.

Maria's sister could not contain the joy which arose in her, and that very night she returned to Saint Peter. Saint Peter gave her a rosary and told her to go home and to hang this rosary down into the well. She was to call Maria and let her take hold of the rosary; by this means her sister could be rescued from damnation.

Nagbalìk sya η agàd at sumisíkat pa láman η áraw nan sya sy dumatì η bakúran ni nasíra η Maryà. Lumápit sya sa balòn, inilawit nyà η dàsálan, at tináwag nya η kanya η kapatid. She went home at once, and hardly was the sun shining, when she came to the yard of the deceased Maria. She approached the well, let down the rosary, and called her sister. Maria emerged from under the water and took hold of the rosary. Her sister began to pull at the rosary and she was slowly lifted up.

As she was thus being rescued, some other souls too wanted to escape from Hell. So they all took hold of Maria’s feet, when they saw that she was being rescued from damnation. But when only Maria’s feet were still under water, she shook her two feet, so that the souls who had hold of her should have to let go.

Nan itù y gawin nyà ay napatid η dàsálan at agad-agàd sya η lumubùg sa balòn, at mulá noon ay hindi nà sya nàkaúsap nan kanya η kapatid.

One afternoon when the two were playing in the garden in the wide grounds of Andrés, a butterfly came flying past the two children. They ran after it. Maria ran ahead and Juan followed. As they were running, Maria fell into a shallow pool which Andrés used as a fishpond. Juan gave a loud cry, and, as he cried out, a muscle in his throat broke and his mouth bled. He paid no attention to this and jumped into the pool to save Maria from drowning. As the pool was shallow, the two children did not drown, only Maria was filled with great fear, which caused her to faint while still in the water. So what Juan did was to take hold of Maria by her

There came the day when his teacher said that he ought to go to another town to continue his studies, for he could teach him nothing more. He told this also to Andrés. Andrés sent Juan to a school for sculptors, and there he studied for about six years.

Juan and Maria grew up and their friendship turned into love. Every vacation Juan went home to their house on Andrés' estate, and there he passed the days at Maria's side.

There came a day for the exhibition of the sculptures of the artists, and Juan had planned a design which he was going to carry out for that day. The victor among the contestants was to be given a prize that was to be revealed their secret to their parents.

Juan's father was merely grieved, for he knew that the marriage of the two was not possible, for their position was like that of a slave or thrall and a lord or king. When Andrés learned of the matter, he was filled with great anger. He had Juan called to him and scolded him. He told him he was shameless and did not know how to appreciate favors,—did not know how to repay the man who had given him his education, and told him that he could not marry Maria.
Accordingly Juan at once went away without anyone's knowing his destination.

Five or six years passed, and Juan at his sculpture did not forget Maria.

Maria passed these six years in her Maria's sickness went from bad to worse, and he did not even know where Juan was. To the town of Baliwag there was once assigned a priest who had no education whatever. The people surmised that he was only a grass-cutter in Spain, who had been cast hither by chance and assigned as priest to their town so that he might have some income and so be saved from dying of hunger. Every Sunday he said mass, but those who heard the mass could hear nothing from him, except only the word “Mass, mass, mass,” and so on. He would walk round in front of the altar; at times he faced the people, brought his hands together, and, while making all these movements, he would keep saying his “Mass, mass, mass,” and so on.

Once he went to the festival of a certain town. He was carrying three young pigs to sell in the town. When he got there, he saw many people gathered in the courtyard of the church and listening to a speech which the mayor of the town was delivering. The people stood in a dense crowd, but he succeeded in getting close to the foot of the platform on which the orator was standing. While he took part in the crowding, the three pigs kept squealing. When he had arrived in front of the mayor, he held his hand over their mouths to make them keep quiet, but he did not succeed. It was not long before one of the people who were watching him complained to the mayor, saying that Juan was in the church mounted on a wagon drawn by carabao, and that the whole thing, wagon, carabao, and Juan, was inside the church. Juan, Andrés, and Diego were three expert thieves. They were very famous, and many people were trying to catch them, but their cleverness at dodging and stealing kept them from being caught. The three once made an appointment to meet at a certain quiet and secret place to discuss their means of livelihood and new good methods of thievery. Not one of them had an honest trade. a live man could be stolen without his knowing it, and, to test Juan's ability, the two made a bet with Juan. They told him to steal the priest of the town and to bring him to the place where they now were. If he succeeded in doing this, Andrés and Diego would pay him five hundred pesos. But if he could not do it, he was to pay Andrés and Diego one hundred pesos. Juan agreed to this bet, and they parted.

Juan went to the town and found out by inquiry where the priest lived. When he had found this out, he figured out the plan he would pursue in stealing the priest. He entered the priest's household as a servant. During his stay as a servant he became acquainted with the habits of the priest. One of his habits, from which he never deviated, was praying a rosary before the image of a saint. The image was made of wood, and it represented Saint John. The size of this image was equal to that of a man. Juan had a carver make an image just like this one, but with an opening, and hollow inside. At first the priest was filled with fear, but then he thought that his saint was doing a miracle and was really calling for him in order to take him to Heaven. As he did not say anything, Juan again spoke as follows: “Many are the works of piety which you have done. You have been patient in living a lowly life, therefore all the joys of Heaven have been reserved for you. Come with me, and I shall conduct you.”

The priest answered: “How shall I manage to come with you? I am old and cannot walk from here on earth as far as Heaven.”

Juan answered: “Never you mind that, I have a bag here. Get into it and I will carry you on my way to Heaven.”

When he had said this, he spread out the rice-sack. When the priest had got into it, Juan tied the bag tightly. He got out from inside the image and carried Father Lucas on his shoulder toward the house where he had his 31. How monkeys are caught.

In the jungle one not rarely meets with large herds of monkeys. When the one who comes into their haunts is unarmed, there is danger of their killing the man whom they overpower by their numbers. When angry, they climb down from the trees and all bite at the man who is in their power. Therefore a man who is going into jungles where there are many monkeys will not neglect to carry a gun. When the monkeys hear the noise of the gun, they are unafraid. Most of them do not run away, but look at the place where the noise and smoke come from. Those who are reached by a bullet try to ward it off with their hand, like one who is warding off a mere throw.
Therefore, when they are shot, their palms too are pierced by the bullet.

Not infrequently people catch live monkeys, so as to domesticate them and sell them to the various foreigners who come to the Philippines. The catching of live monkeys does not involve much labor, for the method of catching them is simply to trick them.

When one wants to catch monkeys, one usually cooks or has cooked some sweetmeats, and into these one mixes or has mixed some balasing.
Balasing is the seed of a plant which intoxicates or puts into a deep sleep the animals which eat it. It is used also in catching fish in rivers. When these sweetmeats have been cooked, the man carries them to where the herd of monkeys is. However, if he should place it carefully on the ground, the monkeys would not climb down to eat it. They suspect that these sweetmeats are only a bait for them, that they may be caught or killed. Therefore what the man does is to pretend that he is frightened and when he sees the monkeys, he starts running, carrying on his head the tray of drugged sweetmeats. While running he pretends to take a fall on his face, so that the sweetmeats he is carrying on his head fall down and are scattered over the ground. When this happens, he keeps on running just the same, and hides somewhere or other to watch the monkeys eat.

 When the monkeys see the man running away, and when he is hidden, they climb down from the trees and all start grabbing the sweetmeats. They all crowd on top of one another in their greed, and the noise is very great, for each herd of monkeys is about five hundred or a thousand strong. When they have eaten it is not long before they are attacked by sleepiness. They get weak and cannot climb into the trees.
 It is a laughable sight to see these monkeys, old and young, squatting on the ground and nodding, everyone of them. The ones who did not succeed in grabbing any sweetmeats climb up into the trees and look down at their drunken companions.
 When the monkeys are in this state, and not before, does the man who is hidden come up and take the sleeping monkeys one by one. The effect of the drug is not of long duration, and the monkeys get well after a few days.

Another common way of catching monkeys is to use cocoanuts as bait.
A hole is made in an unopened cocoanut. The size of this hole is just large enough for a monkey to put in his hand when it is not holding anything. Inside the cocoanut-shell is placed a piece of the meat of the cocoanut, and the whole thing is placed in a spot where there are monkeys. Monkeys like cocoanut, and when they see it, they grasp the meat that is inside the shell. But when they have hold of the cocoanut-meat, they can no longer take their hand out through the opening, but they will not let go of the cocoanut-meat. Consequently they are as though in stocks, and when the man who is catching them approaches, they cannot get away, for the cocoanuts are heavy and sometimes are weighted in addition.
So when the catcher comes up, he is able without difficulty to capture the

The twenty-fourth of June is the festival of Saint John, and it is celebrated in the various towns of the province of Bulacán. In the month of June there is usually rain and mud.
The people believe that Saint John is the saint who makes the rain fall, and therefore is fond of water and mud.
Hence the celebrations performed on his day are very different from those performed on the days of other saints. In the towns near the sea there are floods in the month of June and the water comes up into the town. In the towns farther from the sea it is also very rainy, and usually these floods and rains fall on the day of Saint John. The people who take part in the celebration get themselves drenched in the flood or in the rain.
In the towns of Malolos and Hagúnoy, when this holiday falls into a time of large flood, almost all the people get into the water or else go canoeing. If there is no flood, the songs, or dances they stop and all go round asking alms of the people who are watching them. If they receive no alms, they take mud from their body and throw it at the stingy people.

They spend the whole day in such celebration. As these alms-gatherers are very numerous, they help to make the town gay, even though it is very rainy.

When there is canoeing it is not uncommon for people to get drowned. Consequently this custom is gradually disappearing. Moreover, in these days people are getting stingy and rarely give alms. Hence the gatherers of alms on the festival of Saint John are gradually disappearing.

33. Family celebrations after a death.

A family that has suffered a loss by death suffers not only in its mind and soul, but also in its purse. This is on account of the great expense borne by the bereaved ones in conforming with various customs.

On the day when someone has died very many people call on his family, and these visitors do not content themselves with condoling with the dead person's family, but make a long stay in the house of mourning. Consequently the bereaved family is compelled to serve food to the visitors. Usually the dead person is not buried at once, but is first placed in state for two or three days from the time when he ceased to breathe. During these days people's visits stop neither by day nor by night. Most of them are relatives and others are friends, neighbors, and other acquaintances in town. If the deceased had many friends or relatives in other towns, they too come to visit, and they have to be given board and lodging by the dead person's family. This is because in the small towns in the provinces there are no hotels. In feeding all these guests they often use up half a cow, several sheep and goats, and innumerable chickens. The chef is usually hired, and the near relatives of the deceased help with the cooking. For this reason in the house of death the place where the deceased is lying in state is very quiet, and even when many people are there, when they talk it is only in whispers. But in the dining-room and kitchen the noise is extraordinary. Everyone is giving orders to the servants, some are washing dishes or pots, some are polishing knives and forks, some are serving at the table, and so on. In the kitchen the sputtering of the frying-pans never stops, and one can hear only the voices of the chef and his assistants.

Díto ay dumàdálaw

When the dead has been buried the guests who come from other towns go along back to the house of mourning. Most commonly they soon depart, but sometimes they stay three days, to take part in the Three Nights' Celebration. The Three Nights are celebrated in the house of the deceased. At this time the relatives call and all pray together. In this praying only the older people take part, and the young men and young women tell each other riddles. These ceremonies are performed during the Three Nights. On the last night there are usually many people, and the entertaining is more elaborate than on the two preceding nights. Many of those who come give presents to the bereaved ones. Usually these are things to eat for the guests.

In poor families these ceremonies are also performed, but the priest's calling for and escorting the corpse does not take place. For the blessing of the corpse one may pay the priest whatever one desires. The cheapest thing is the blessing of the corpse at the door of the church and placed on the ground. The next in order is the blessing of the corpse also at the door of the church, but with the coffin placed on an altar. The most expensive blessings are performed right by the altar. The price of these is from one-hundred to five-hundred pesos.

The people of San Miguel were like herds of animals fleeing before the whips of the herdsmen and the pursuit of savage dogs. They are very fond of peace and quiet. Also they are very credulous toward hearsay, and these circumstances are what did not allow most of them to stay at ease in the town during the time of the revolutions against the Spaniards and the Americans. It is also true, however, that many of them ran away merely from fright or cowardice.

When the revolution against the Spaniards of the year 1896 took place, I was only four years old. According to what my mother has told me, we went to Manila instead of going up into the mountains. I do not remember much of what happened at that time, except the fact that we went to the railroad station. When we arrived at Manila we were not able to enter the city unless we

The next thing which has become fixed in my memory is our stay in Bigaá, in the house of an attorney, whose name was Don Nasario. We went to this town to escape the fighting of the forces of the Katipunan and the Spaniards in Manila. In Bigaá were Tagalog soldiers drilling to take part in the fighting.

A little later we went to the town of Bustos. This town also was at that time in the hands of the Katipunan. This town is very pretty because of the various aspect of the things one sees. The river is very broad, the banks are wide, and on the banks are hills of stone and sand. The friends with whom we stayed were kind people. They often played with my sister and me, and the game was to make ducks dive in the clear waters of the river.

When the flight from the Americans came, I was already a little older, and I remember much of our flight to the mountains. When the Americans had defeated the soldiers of Aguinaldo the people of San Miguel were filled with terror. The report circulated in the town that the Americans were wild people, cruel and fierce, and without respect for anything. This no doubt was a rumor which the Spaniards caused to be spread, and especially the Spanish priests in the Philippines. Owing to people's fear of the Americans, almost all of us townspeople packed up our belongings and went up into the mountains. We were living at that time in the house of an aunt of my mother's, and there dwelt with us also the family of my mother's oldest brother. I remember that the packing and hauling of the goods of all of us who lived in the house took more than ten days. The wagons laden with our goods were despatched at night, so that the carabao that drew them should not get exhausted in the heat of the sun. The wagons were very secret, so that our hiding-place should not be known by any outsider.

This was a way of escaping not only the enemy, but also robbers and thieves. The house we lived in there was very large, a very long building, all under one roof. The building was cut up into rooms of equal size. The number of these was about eight. In each room one family lived. Here too we were compelled to stay for several months.

met by many fellow-townsmen and people from various other places. Most of them were sick from staying in the mountains. Here the medicines which Mother had taken up into the mountains instead of leaving them in the town, were of great use. These medicines belonged to Father; he had left them behind when he was banished to Sulu by the Spanish priests. One morning someone called at our house to buy some medicine. Mother went to the chest in which the medicine lay. When it was opened, we saw a snake coiled up and sleeping on the rice-hulls that covered the bottles. The people who saw this rejoiced greatly, but Mother was only frightened. She did not know the meaning of the snake. When the rejoicing was over, Mother asked why they were all so glad. They answered that the meaning of the snake was that the owner of the medicine was going to get rich. Mother only laughed at what they said, for she did not believe in these things.

Not long after our arrival in town it was reported that the American soldiers were now near to the town of San Miguel. We were not made uneasy by this news, and awaited their arrival. One noon the town was quiet. The soldiers who were in the town went away and those who did not go away threw away their guns. The reason for this was the entry of the American soldiers. From the back yard of the house in which we were living I saw the approach of the soldiers. Their trousers were khaki and their shirts blue. They carried their guns and ran in single file across the fields and came toward the road.

some months were strict. Lights were ordered extinguished at six o'clock in the evening, and no one was allowed to walk about after this hour. In the mountains near San Miguel were many Tagalog soldiers, and they often attacked the town of San Miguel. On account of these attacks the Americans set fire to houses in San Miguel. Night after night when the soldiers attacked, the houses were regularly set fire to. Our neighbors came to us every night to sleep with us, because in our house the danger from the bullets of the contestants was not so great. The doctor of the American soldiers who were in the town of San Miguel had become a friend of my father's, and for this reason our house escaped being burned. Once this doctor told Father that he often accompanied the patrols and told them not to burn down our house. Finally, as the Tagalog soldiers did not succeed in driving the Americans out of the town, they stopped their attacks, and the town became quiet.

II. GRAMMATICAL ANALYSIS.

NOTE.—The following grammatical analysis of Mr. Santiago's speech can, of course, lay no claim to completeness: he surely uses some constructions and very many forms which I have not heard or have failed to note. Such fulness as will be found is due to Mr. Santiago's intelligence and patience under questioning and in conversation. A very few of the examples represent his form of sentences in MacKinlay's Handbook. The full representation of derivatives of the root pútol cut is due to Mr. Santiago's kindness in listing these forms, wherever they seemed possible to his speech-feeling, in accordance with my list of morphologic elements, and in then forming sentences to illustrate them.

In the use of accent-marks and of the symbol y I have deviated from the practice of the International Phonetic Association. Where roots did not occur as independent words, I have prefixed a hyphen and given a theoretical meaning. In the explanation of constructions I have allowed myself the use of distorted English; although this time-honored device does not really reproduce the foreign expression (substituting, as it does, impossible constructions for natural ones), it does enable the reader to follow the general trend of the foreign idiom.

A. PHONETICS.

1. Distinctive sounds.

1. The distinctive sounds are the following:

	Labial	Dental	Palatal	Velar	Laryngeal
⁵ Stops: unvoiced	p	t		k	'
	b	d		g
„ voiced
Spirants (unvoiced)		s			h
Nasals (voiced)	m	n		ŋ
Trill (voiced)		r
¹⁰ Lateral (voiced)		l
High vowels		i(e,y)		u(o,w)
Low vowel				a

2. a is a low unrounded vowel, as in Standard English far, but more tense and with the corners of the mouth (lips) slightly ¹⁵drawn back: hàlamanàn garden.

3. i and u, in what may be regarded as the normal form, are about as high as the Standard (American) English vowels in pit and put, but more tense;

moreover, the lips are well drawn back for i and well rounded for u: ínit heat, lutúin be cooked.

²⁰4. In the final syllable of a phrase (or of a word spoken alone) the tongue position of i and u is as a rule lowered, often all the way to mid position; the tenseness and lip position are, however, kept, so that the resulting sound often resembles French è and lower o.

²⁵5. u is nearly always so lowered: bágo new, buhòk hair. It is not lowered in pù' ten.

6. i is not lowered before dentals: káhit though, ákin my, pígil compulsion. It is usually kept high also before velars: sahìg flooring, siŋsìŋ ring. Some words ending in velars more or less ³⁰regularly have the lowering: pútik, pútek mud; so especially some proper names: Intsèk Chinese, Lólej Lola.

Even in other cases the higher variants of i are commoner than the lower; hindì' not, kamì we, gabì night, mulì' again are commoner than these words with e; a very few words, such as ulè' again have oftener e than i; others, such as itèm black are fairly regular in their variation.

7. Within a closely unified phrase the lowering is as a rule omitted: ulí sya again he (ulè'), Hintú na! Stop! (hintò'). In ⁵this regard the habits are variable; the form chosen depends mostly on the speaker's momentary attitude toward the closeness of joining of the words.

A dissimilative factor also seems to be involved: a following i or u favors the lowering:

¹⁰Natùtúlug an áso. The dog is sleeping.

Natùtúlog si Hwàn. Juan is sleeping.

8. o occurs in a number of words as the vowel in the last two syllables: in all of them the intervening consonant is the glottal stop: ó'o yes, do'òn there; bo'ò' whole has occasionally bu'ò'. ¹⁵The raised variant is not used within the phrase: Ó'o pò'. Yes, sir. Yes, ma'am. do'òn sya there he.

e occurs in the same way in le'èg neck, beside li'ìg.

9. In word-formation, when, by the addition of suffixes, the i or u is no longer final, it is not lowered: lúto' cook, lutúin be ²⁰*cooked*; itèm black, itimàn be made black. Occasionally, however, the lowered vowel is retained: táo human being, ka-taó-han mankind, beside kataúhan, tao-taó-han manikin, pupil of the eye, beside tautaúhan.

The words with o'o (§ 8) keep the lowered vowel when uncontracted: ²⁵pina-ro'on-àn was gone to (do'òn there); these words are also reduplicated with o: kinà-dò-ro'on-àn is been in.

10. e and o occur also in unassimilated loan-words: bèsbol baseball, Silà y nag-bè-bèsbol, They are playing baseball, estudyànte, istudyànte student, polis, pulis policeman, sipéro football ³⁰*player*, ban kéro canoer (both with Spanish suffix -éro added to Tagalog words: sípa' football, ban kà' canoe).

For e see also § 29.

11. As the variation between i and e and between o and u is thus never distinctive, there is no need of indicating it in transcription; ³⁵I have, however, used the characters e and o wherever I heard markedly lowered variants.

12. i and u occur also as non-syllabics; I use, respectively, the characters y and w: yaòn that, gáya like, wíka' speech, word, táwag call. In final position they are always lowered: thus in ⁴⁰patày dead person, ikàw thou, y represents non-syllabic e, w non-syllabic o.

13. In word-formation before suffixes vowels are in certain cases lost, see Morphology: kánin be eaten, -káin eat with suffix -in.

14. The laryngeal (glottal) stop occurs as a distinctive sound only after a vowel at the end of words: báta' child, boy, girl, hindì' not, hintò' stop.

As a non-distinctive sound it is used as a vowel-separator ⁵wherever syllabic vowels follow each other without an intervening distinctive non-syllabic. In this use I shall not indicate it in transcription, as it may be taken for granted wherever vowels are written together. Such words as those in § 8 will therefore from now on be transcribed without the sign for glottal stop: ¹⁰doòn, óo, boò'. So táo (§ 9) means tá'o, etc. Cf. below.

15. The distinctive final glottal stop is usually lost before a following word in the phrase: hindí sya not he, Hintú na! Stop!

It is always lost before the words η, t, and y: aη báta η mabàit the good child.

t (in contrast with the English sound) is postdental, often near to interdental.

²⁰*k* is always articulated in back velar position (as in English coo), no matter what sound follows. The closure of k is occasionally imperfect, so that a rather open velar spirant (resembling Slavic x) is heard: malaxàs for malakàs strong; this variation has not been noted in transcription.

²⁵In word-formation p, t, k alternate, respectively, with m, n, η; see Morphology.

17. b, d, g correspond in position to p, t, k. They are fully voiced lenis stops; in sentence-final often implosive only, and then weakly voiced.

³⁰The closure of b is occasionally imperfect, so that a bilabial spirant is produced: túVig for túbig water; this variation has been ignored in transcription.

In word-formation b alternates with m; see Morphology.

Final d in word-formation is always replaced by r before the ³⁵vowel of a suffix: lákad walk, laku-àn walking-party.

Initial d becomes r in the sentence frequently after the final vowel of a preceding word and occasionally even after a final non-syllabic, in the words daàn hundred (not in daàn road), damò, dàw, dìn, díne, díto, diyàn, doòn; e. g. ako rìn I too.

⁴⁰In word-formation some words frequently change d to r after the vowel of a prefix or a reduplication, and others do not: pa-raàn means (daàn road, way), but i-pa-dalà be sent (dalà bring, carry). The words (or roots) that have changeable d- are those mentioned in the preceding paragraph and daàn, -dáka, damdàm, dámi, dámot, daṇàl, dapà', dápát, dátí, -dátig, -datìṇ, dikìt, -dinìg, -díwaṇ, -dúkit, -dumè, dúnoṇ, dúsa.

¹⁰*s* alternates in word-formation with n; see Morphology.

In the affricate combination ts, which is felt and treated as a single sound, the s is always palatalized: Intsèk Chinese.

19. h is the unvoiced glottal spirant; as in English, it occurs only in syllable-initial: hindì' not, báhay house, mukhà' face.

¹⁵In word-formation h is often spoken before the initial vowel of a suffix that is added to a final vowel: -bása read, basa-hàn reading room. See Morphology.

20. The nasals m, n, ŋ correspond in position to the stops. In word-formation they alternate, respectively, with p, t, k; m ²⁰also with b, and n also with s; ŋ is often prefixed to an initial vowel; see Morphology.

Both in word-formation and in the phrase the nasals are occasionally assimilated in position to a following consonant: sà m pù' ten (m for ŋ), Saàŋ ka páparon? Where are you going? (for ²⁵*saàn*).

In the sentence, final n is lost before the words ŋ, t, and y: aŋ áki ŋ amà my father (for ákin my).

21. r is the voiced tongue-tip trill, postdental. It occurs between vowels within simple, underived words: áraw sun, day,—no ³⁰doubt as a substitute for d, which never occurs in this position; everywhere else r is merely a variant of d (§ 17).

22. l is postdental; the timbre is much as in Standard French or German, the mid-tongue not lowered.

23. f and v (both labiodental) occur in unassimilated foreign ³⁵words; they are occasionally replaced (especially in derivatives) by p and b. Filipínas the Philippines, infiyèrno, impiyèrno Hell, fiyèsta, piyèsta fiesta, but always ka-piyestá-han day of a festival, sivìl, sibìl civil, provìnsiya province, bintána' window, báso drinking-glass.

The occurrence of ts (§ 18) is probably limited to foreign words.

24. When in word-formation a vowel is lost before a suffix (§ 13), the non-syllabics thereby brought together are subject to ⁵various changes: sigl-àn be filled, silid with suffix -an. See Morphology.

2. Syllabication.

a. In the word.

25. If a single non-syllabic follows a stressed vowel, the latter ¹⁰is spoken with open syllable accent, and the non-syllabic begins the following syllable: bá-hay house, sù-sú-lat will write.

If a single non-syllabic follows an unstressed vowel, the latter has close syllable accent,—that is, no stress-division is made between the syllables (just as in English): itò this, kasakimàn selfishness, ¹⁵sumú-lat wrote.

If two non-syllabics intervene between two syllabics, the syllable-division is made between the non-syllabics: luk-sò jump, muk-hà' face, In-tsèk Chinese. Stressed ay seems, however, to have open syllable accent: káy-lan when?

²⁰Syllabics never follow each other without an intervening non-syllabic. If no other non-syllabic intervenes, a non-distinctive glottal stop is spoken. I have not written the glottal stop in this position, as it may always be taken for granted (§ 14). Hence daàn road is pronounced da'àn, siik young pig si'ik, doòn there ²⁵do'òn, táo human being tá'o.

Nor do more than two non-syllabics ever follow each other in a native word. The following are examples of unusual combinations in foreign words: An-drès, Pé-dro, beside Tagalized Píro, ká-tre bedstead, sèr-mon, trabá-ho work, but in reduplication mag-tà-trabá-ho ³⁰*will work*, krùs cross, but in reduplication nag-kú-kurùs crosses himself, cf. baráso arm, lóbo balloon (Sp. globo).

26. In frequently used words, especially in more rapid speech, the intervocalic glottal stop is often lost.

If like vowels thus meet, they coalesce into a single vowel of ³⁵no more than normal length: pumaròn went there beside pumaroòn. When oo is thus contracted, the resulting o may be raised to u (cf. § 9): pinarunàn was gone to, beside pinaronàn and pinaroonàn.

If unlike vowels meet, the non-syllabic corresponding to the ⁴⁰higher vowel (i. e. y with i, e and w with u, o) takes the place of the glottal stop. So táwo beside táo. The combinations so resulting are treated in every way like those discussed in the next §.

27. If the non-syllabic intervening between two vowels is y or w, the combination involves no peculiarity, provided that neither ⁵⁰of the vowels is homogeneous with the non-syllabic: bá-yan town, pag-dirí-wañ celebration, gayòn thus.

If, however, one of the vowels is homogeneous with the non-syllabic (i. e. i, e with y and u, o with w) and is not stressed, it is spoken shorter than a normal unstressed vowel: in such words ¹⁰as iyòn that, buwàn moon, month the i, u are spoken shorter than in other positions. So also in táwo (see preceding §) the o.

After consonants these short vowels are often entirely omitted: bwàn beside buwàn, syà he, she beside siyà. The syllable-division remains, however, as in the longer form: kápwa' fellow- beside ¹⁵kápuwà' is pronounced ká-pwa' (not kap-wa').

Even in other positions these reduced vowels are often omitted, especially in frequently used combinations: Ano yòn? What's that? beside Ano iyòn?, occasionally táw for táwo, táo.

28. Conversely, one hears now and then a superfluous short ²⁰i, e with a y, and an u, o with a w: iyaòn for yaòn that, máye for máy having, uwalà' for walà' without.

29. The combinations ay and ai are occasionally replaced by a long open e: kélan beside káylan when?, mé báhay beside máy báhay wife, housewife, me áre' beside may áre' master, owner, ²⁵téŋa beside taíŋa car.

b. In word-formation.

30. When in word-formation affixes or reduplicative syllables are added to a root, the syllabication is as in a simple word: sulá-tan be written to (súlat writing with suffix -an), sumú-lat ³⁰wrote (same, with infix -um-), umuwè', umwè' (§ 27) went home (-uwè' go home, with prefixed -um-).

When vowels meet, they are as a rule separated by the non-distinctive intervocalic glottal stop: maà-á-re' will be possible (áre' property reduplicated and with prefix ma-).

³⁵31. The intervocalic glottal stop is rarely reduced, except in certain much-used combinations, the commonest being those with the prefix i- and with the prefix ka- and the suffix -an in certain uses (see Morphology): iniútos was commanded (útos command with prefixes in- and i-), usually iniyútos; laruàn, toy (larò' play, ⁴⁰*game* with suffix -an), usually laruwàn, larwàn, but (with a different use of the suffix -an) làrúan playground; kayibígan, kaybígan friend (íbig love, desire, with prefix ka- and suffix -an), but kaìbígan sweetheart and kaibigàn affection. For -íwan abandon with prefix i- only the contracted form íwan be abandoned is spoken. Cf. further ikaápat, ikápat fourth (ápat four with prefixes ⁵¹i- and ka-).

32. Conversely, an original y or w is sometimes under emphasis replaced by glottal stop; thus, for patayìn be killed (patàŋ dead person, kill with suffix -in), occasionally patàin.

33. When a word is doubled, when two words are united in ^{10a} a compound word, and after the prefixes that end in g, the syllable-division is however made as though separate words were meeting in a sentence,—that is, according to the rules in the following paragraphs.

c. In the phrase.

¹⁵34. When words come together in the phrase, the word-division is maintained (as in English) as a syllable-division.

In the case of initial consonants the division is thus like that within a word: Sumúlat ka. Write (thou), Sumúlat siyà, Sumúlat syà. He wrote, Sumáma ka. Go along, Sumáma siyà, Sumáma ²⁰syà. He went along.

Before a vowel-initial the word-division is maintained as a syllable-division by the use of a non-distinctive glottal stop (as in German): Sumúlat akò. I wrote, i. e. sumú-lat-'akò; Sumáma akò. I went along, i. e. sumá-ma-'akò.

²⁵Doubled words, compound words, and forms with prefixes ending in g (namely, mag-, nag-, pag-, tag-) are similarly treated (§ 33): agàd-agàd immediately (agàd at once doubled), i. e. agàd-'agàd; báhay-aklátan library-building (compound of báhay house and aklátan place for books), i. e. bá-hay-'ak-lá-tan; pagsúlat an ³⁰*act of writing* (súlat writing with prefix pag-), i. e. pag-sú-lat; nagáral studied (áral teaching with prefix nag-), i. e. nag-'á-ral.

Occasionally, in emphatic speech, the same division is made within other formations: umakiyàt, umakyàt climbed (-akiyàt climb with prefixed -um-), occasionally, but rarely, um-'akiyàt, ³⁵usually umakiyàt, umakyàt (by § 30).

35. Reduction of the glottal stop and contraction of vowels occur only in a few much-used combinations of words: si Andrès (si is the article of proper names), also siy Andrès, sy Andrès; Ano iyàn? What's that?, also Ano yàn? and even An yàn?; na ⁴⁰itò this (na is a particle expressing attribution), also na yitò, na ytò.

36. Occasionally such reductions go even farther, as in anò in the preceding paragraph, and occur where the glottal stop is not involved: as, sà for isà one in sà m pù' ten, for isà ŋ pù'.

37. The words at, ay, and na have also a shorter form, t, y, and ŋ, respectively, which occurs only (but not always) after a final vowel, glottal stop, or n. When these forms are used, the final glottal stop or n is lost (§§ 15, 20) and the t, y, or ŋ is treated in every way exactly as though it were part of the preceding word: butò at balàt, butò t balàt bone and skin, i. e. butòt-balàt; Iyòn ¹⁰ay mabúti, Iyò y mabúti. That's good, i. e. iyòy-mabú-ti; aŋ báta' na mabaìt (clumsy, as in the speech of a child just learning to speak, for:) aŋ báta ŋ mabaìt the good child, i. e. aŋ-bá-taŋ-maba'ìt.

3. Accentuation.

¹⁵a. Word-accent.

38. In a word of more than one syllable at least one syllable is normally spoken with a greater degree of stress than the others.

The unstressed syllables have short vowels (about as long as the vowel in English pit or put) and close syllable-stress (§ 25).

unassimilated foreign words: bès-bol, sèr-mon, kwàr-ta, kwàl-ta money (Spanish cuarto), but also Tagalized kwaltà.

Words like ká-pwà' (beside ká-puwà') are not exceptions, for ³⁰the first syllable is not closed (§ 27).

40. The stressed syllables fall into two grammatical classes which are only in part phonetically distinct; we may call them primary and secondary word-accent.

41. The primary word-accent on a final syllable or (in the ³⁵cases mentioned in § 39) on a closed non-final syllable, consists merely in greater stress than that of an unaccented syllable, accompanied by a pitch-rise of about half a note.¹ I use the grave accent-sign: gabì night, hindì' not, kamày hand, buhòk hair, nàndon is there, sèrmon sermon.

42. On a non-final open syllable the primary word-accent involves an increase of stress (less than in English), a pitch-rise ⁵of two notes, lengthening of the vowel to about one and one-half times the duration of an unstressed vowel, and open syllable-stress (§ 25). I use the acute accent-mark: báhay house, báyan town.

So also, irregularly, syllables in ay: káylan, kélan when?, and even finally: káy, ké than, máy, mé having; also mínsan, pínsan.

¹⁰If an unaccented syllable precedes, the pitch-rise really begins on the latter: in sumúlat wrote, for instance, the first syllable is spoken above the usual pitch, and the two-note pitch-rise is merely completed in the accented syllable.

43. The secondary word-accent on a final syllable has weaker ¹⁵stress than the primary accent in the same place, and ordinarily lacks the pitch-rise. Grammatically, it is recognizable by the presence of the primary accent on another syllable; I use the grave accent-mark: áakiyàt, áakyàt will climb, nárinèg was heard.

44. On a non-final open syllable the secondary accent differs ²⁰from the primary accent in similar position in two respects: its pitch-rise is less marked, varying from three-quarters to one and three-quarters notes, and its vowel-lengthening is greater, reaching twice the length of an unstressed vowel. I use the grave accent-mark: sùsúlat will write.

²⁵When the primary accent is on the last syllable and therefore weak (§ 41), the secondary accent often approaches a non-final primary accent in character: the first syllable of a word like nàbuksàn came open is often phonetically the same as that of a word like nárinìg was heard.

Of two secondary accents following each other the preceding is the more marked: nàràramdamàn is felt (nà- has more marked accent than rà-). This helps to make the primary accent distinct, for it is stronger than a preceding secondary accent: sùsúlat will ⁴⁰*write* (the second su- is stronger, not weaker, than the first); nàlàláman is known (if the third syllable had a secondary accent, it would be less marked than the first and second, but its pitch and stress are actually higher).

b. Sentence-accent.

45. Certain words are atonic, i. e. are always spoken unstressed ⁵in the phrase: e. g. aṇ áso the or a dog, sa ákin to me.

The atonic words are: aṇ, at, ay, kay to (not káy, ké than), kuṇ, na attributive (not nà already), naṇ, ni of (not nì nor), o or (not ò oh), pag, sa, si.

The short variants of at, ay, and na, namely t, y, and ŋ¹⁰ (§ 37), having no vowel, cannot be stressed; they are treated in every way as though they formed part of the preceding word.

46. In closely united phrases the last word keeps its accent, while the preceding ones often weaken theirs. Especially a final syllable often loses its accent before another word in the phrase:

¹⁵dáhil díto on account of this, often: dahil díto, aŋ maŋà báhay the houses, often: aŋ maŋa báhay, aŋ kanyà ŋ báhay his or her house, aŋ kanya ŋ báhay, aŋ malakì ŋ báhay the large house, aŋ malaki ŋ báhay.

47. Opposed to the preceding rule is the treatment of certain ²⁰words which we may call enclitics. These very frequently, to be sure, receive the normal treatment: that is, they are stressed and the preceding word either keeps its stress or, if oxytone, often loses it; but frequently, instead, the enclitic loses its accent:

Umakyàt siyà, Umakyat syà. He climbed, but also Umakyàt ²⁵sya.

Áakyàt siyà, Áakyat syà. He will climb, but also Áakyàt sya.

Gánu ka na bà kakínis? How clever are you now? (kà, nà, bà are all enclitic).

Enclitics have the further (and more easily recognized) peculiarity ³⁰that they follow the first orthotonic (i. e. neither atonic nor pretonic, § 48) word of the expression to which they belong (either as modifiers or as subject):

aŋ mahahába nya ŋ paà his (niyà, enclitic) long legs.

When several enclitics come together the last one is often ³⁵stressed.

Monosyllabic enclitics precede disyllabic:

Nahánap na nyà aŋ sombréro. He has already looked for the hat. (nà and niyà are enclitics; the latter is treated as disyllabic even when in the contracted form nyà).

The enclitics are:

⁴⁰(1) always: the monosyllabic forms of the personal pronouns, namely kà, kò, mò, and the words (particles) bà, bagà, dàw, dìn, màn, múna, nà, namàn, nawà', ñà', pà, palà, pò', sána, tulòy.

(2) frequently or in certain senses: the disyllabic forms of the personal pronouns (including siyà, syà and niyà, nyà) except ikàw (which is never enclitic), the demonstrative pronouns, and the words díne, díto, diyàn, doòn, kayà', lámaŋ, ulè'; occasionally ⁵short phrases (§ 88).

For details about these words see Syntax.

48. Opposed to the rule in § 46 are also certain words (particles) which we may call pretonics. Their treatment is often regular: that is, the pretonic as well as the following word keeps ¹⁰its accent, or the pretonic loses its accent before a following word; but sometimes the pretonic keeps its accent and the following word, if oxytone, is unaccented:

máy sakìt, may sakìt having sickness, i. e. sick, but also máy sakit. Only máy and nása actually appear with this accentuation.

Máy katawàn sya ŋ pára ŋ táo. He has a body like a human ²⁰*being*. (siyà he, enclitic follows not máy, which is pretonic, but katawàn body, the first orthotonic word of the predicate).

The pretonics are the particles báwat, káhit, kapàg, kinà, maṇà, máy, nagìṇ (together with its other forms, § 250), nása (together with its other forms, § 212), nì nor (not ni of), ninà, ²⁵pagkà, sinà, tagà (tigà). See Syntax.

49. A final syllable ending in glottal stop (§ 14) often receives a higher degree of stress than a corresponding syllable with a different final.

If the syllable ending in glottal stop has not the word-accent, ³⁰it often receives an accent resembling the secondary accent on a non-final syllable; this is especially common if the glottal stop is lost before another word in the phrase: páre', páre' priest, Pàrì Hwàn Father Juan.

If the syllable has a word-accent and the glottal stop is lost ³⁵in the phrase, its accent is often spoken like a primary word-accent on an open syllable: Walá sya. He has none (walà'), Naglálárú sya. He is playing (naglalarò').

If, however, the glottal stop is lost before t, y, or ṇ, this heightening of accent does not take place, since the syllable is then ⁴⁰treated as ending in t, y, or ṇ: Syà y walà ṇ aklàt (i. e. walàṇ-'ak-làt), Sya y wala ṇ aklàt. He has no book or no books.

50. In a succession of otherwise unstressed syllables a rhythmical movement is usually produced by means of grammatically insignificant stresses weaker than a secondary word-accent; the distribution, and, indeed, the occurrence of these is so variable that I have not tried to indicate them in transcription, especially ⁵⁵as they are never distinctive. Thus, in the phrases in § 46 an accent of this kind may fall on the next-to-last syllables of the words that lose their normal word-accent: aṇ màṇa báhay, aṇ kànya ṇ amà his father, aṇ malàki ṇ báhay.

51. The successive accents in a sentence bear a well-marked ¹⁰relation to each other: the early and especially the middle ones have higher absolute pitch than the last; an accent on the last syllable of a sentence often entirely loses its pitch-rise. As a consequence of this rather fixed melody, the differences of pitch-movement between statements, questions, commands, and exclamations ¹⁵of various kinds are not so marked as in English; the higher stress of emotionally dominant (emphatic) words, also, is less marked than in English.

In exclamation or under emphasis the accent of a final syllable may be like that of a medial syllable, and may, in addition ²⁰take on a falling accent after the rise: Hwán! (with rising-falling stress and pitch) Juan!, for normal Huwàn, Hwàn. Other disturbances of accent also occur in exclamation.

B. SYNTAX.

1. Sentence and word.

a. Syntactic relations.

52. The sentence consists of one or more words: Aráy! ⁵*Ouch!* Umúulàn. It's raining. Ina kò! Mother of mine! (as exclamation). Sya y sumùsúlat. He or she is or was writing.

53. The relations between the words in a sentence are the usual ones: (1) Attribution: Ina kò! Mother (of) mine! (2) Predication: Sumùsúlat syà. Literally: Is-writing he. (3) The ¹⁰serial relation: butò t balàt bone and skin.

54. Some of the particles (§ 55) seem, however, to stand in none of these relations, but rather to express these relations themselves. Thus the particle t and in the preceding example is expressive of the serial relation. So further: malakì ŋ báhay ¹⁵*large house*; the particle ŋ expresses the attributive relation; Sya y sumùsúlat. The particle y expresses the predicative relation.

It is to be remarked, further, that the sphere of attribution includes some cases in which the attribute markedly alters the sense: sakìt sickness: máy sakìt (máy is an attribute) having ²⁰*sickness, sick.*²

b. Parts of speech.

55. Tagalog distinguishes two parts of speech: full words and particles.

The particles either express the syntactic relations between ²⁵full words (as illustrated in § 54) or act as attributes of full words (so máy in the example in § 54): Hindí sya sumùsúlat. He is not writing. The particle hindi' not is an attribute of sumùsúlat.

In contrast with the particles, full words act not only as attributes, but also as subject or predicate, and any full word may, ³⁰in principle, be used in any of these three functions:

(1) Subject: An sumùsúlat ay si Pédro. The person writing is Pedro. An pulà nañ panyò ay matin̄kàd. The red of the handkerchief is intense.

(2) Predicate: Sya y sumùsúlat. He is writing. Pulà an panyo ñ itò. This handkerchief is red.

⁵(3) Attribute: an báta ñ sumùsúlat the writing child, the child who is writing; an pulà ñ panyò the red handkerchief.

56. Independent of this classification into parts of speech are certain less important groupings of words and certain phrase types, some of which will appear in the course of the analysis. ¹⁰Others, however, demand mention at the outset.

c. Static and transient words.

57. Transient words express an element of experience viewed as impermanent, i. e. belonging to some limited portion of time, so sumùsúlat above, as opposed, e. g., to siyà, pulà, panyò, báta', ¹⁵*Pédro*. Words which are not transient may be called static. Only a few particles are transient; among the full words the transient group is large and important.

d. Personal names.

58. Except in exclamations and in address, names of persons ²⁰(or animals) are distinguished from other words by being always (but see § 78) preceded by the atonic particle si: Hwàn! Juan! si Hwàn Juan, si Salamìn Glass, Mirror (as name of a dog).

59. Many terms of relationship and titles may be used in place of the name of an individual and then belong to the personal ²⁵name class: aŋ amà the father, aŋ áki ŋ amà my father, but: si Amà Father. Thus are used, further: si Inà Mother, si Tátay Papa, si Nánay Mama, si Kúya or si Kúyaŋ Oldest brother, si Atè Oldest sister, si Injkòn Grandfather, si Indà' or si Impò Grandmother, si Áli or si Tiyà Aunt, si Mámá' Uncle; si Bathála' God, but: aŋ ³⁰*Dyòs*.

So also phrases in which these and other titles as attributes precede a name, see § 256.

60. The particle sinà or silà, pretonic, in place of si forms an expression denoting the person named together with his family ³⁵or group of adherents:

sina Hwàn or sila Hwàn Juan and his family or Juan and his crowd. With a series of names sinà implies that those named form a group: si Hwàn, si Andrès, at si Mariyáno Juan, Andrés, and Mariano; sina Hwàn, Andrès, at Mariyáno the group consisting of Juan, Andrés, and Mariano; sina Hwàn, sina Andrès, at sina Mariyáno Juan, Andrés, and Mariano, each with his group.

e. The object construction.

61. When a word or phrase denotes an element of experience viewed as an object, it is, with certain exceptions, preceded by the atonic particle aṇ: aṇ báta' the or a child, boy, girl; children, aṇ báhay the, a house; houses, aṇ báyan the, a town, aṇ kabàítan goodness, kindness; an act of kindness, aṇ kataúhan mankind, aṇ pagsúlat the or an act of writing, aṇ mabúte that which ¹⁰*is good, the best thing*.

The following are the exceptions:

62. Personal names preceded by si or sinà (silà) do not take aṇ; they always, of course, denote an object idea. See the examples in § 58 ff.

¹⁵63. The personal pronouns (which always express an object idea) do not take aṇ. They are: akò I; kità we, i. e. thou and I, inclusive dual; táyo we, i. e. thou (or ye) and I (or we), inclusive dual and plural; kamì we (but not you), exclusive dual and plural; ikàw, kà thou (singular); kayò ye, you (dual, plural, and ²⁰*polite singular)*; siyà he, she; silà they.

All of these except ikàw are often enclitic; kà is always so: Ikàw ay talúnan. You are defeated. Sumúlat ka. Write (thou).

Siyà is used only of living beings, except for a single peculiar construction to be described below (§ 106 f.).

²⁵Kità in the sense here given is not much used, táyo being commoner: Palìt kità naŋ sombréro. Let's trade hats. Kità ay pumaroòn sa teyátro. Or, more commonly: Táyo ay pumaroòn sa teyátro. Let us go to the theatre. Kità is more used in another meaning, as we shall see (§ 182).

³⁰Kamì differs from these two words in excluding the person or persons addressed: Kàkáin táyo. We shall eat. Nakitúluy kamì kina Pédro. We asked hospitality of Pedro's. In both of these sentences (as also in that with táyo already given) two or more people may be meant. It will be seen, therefore, that the ³⁵distinction between dual and plural is not categoric (obligatory).

That between singular and plural is categoric in these pronouns; everywhere else it is not obligatory; the idea of plurality is inherent in many words and forms, but these are used only where the idea of plurality is explicitly prominent.

⁴⁰64. The demonstrative pronouns as object expressions also reject aŋ. They are: irè this (on the person of the speaker or within his immediate reach); itò this (more generally, of anything nearer to the speaker than to the person addressed); iyàn, yàn that (nearer to the person addressed); iyòn, yaòn, yoòn, yòn that (of things distant from both speaker and person addressed).

⁵Itò and iyòn are used also anaphorically: the former—the latter.

The demonstrative pronouns are often enclitic.

Aŋ is omitted also before an object expression in which a demonstrative pronoun stands first as a modifier, see § 130.

¹⁰65. Similarly before object expressions in which an interrogative pronoun stands first as a modifier, see §§ 131.168.

66. The use of aŋ is optional before the numerative pronouns. The use of aŋ seems sometimes to lend these greater definiteness, sometimes to be indifferent.

ibà others; ilàn a few; Aṇ ilàn ay malalakàs at aṇ ibà ay ²⁰mahihína'. Some are strong and others are weak. Lahàt naṇ táo sa báya ṇ itò ay dápat umalìs. All people (who are) in this town ought to leave (naṇ táo of people, of the people is an attribute of lahàt). Aṇ lahàt naṇ táo sa báya ṇ itò ay máy sakìt. All the people in this town are diseased. karamíhan sa kanilà ²⁵most of them; aṇ karamíhan the majority.

The use of aṇ is optional also before object expressions in which a numerative pronoun stands first as an attribute, see § 132.

67. The use of aṇ is optional before the cardinal numerals: isà sa kanilà, or: aṇ isà sa kanilà one of them.

³⁰The simple cardinal numerals are: isà one, dalawà two, tatlò three, ápat four, limà five, ánim six, pitò seven, walò eight, siyàm, syàm nine.

Similarly, the use of aṇ is optional before an object expression in which a cardinal numeral stands first as a modifier, see ³⁵§ 133.

In dates and for the hours of the day the Spanish numerals are commonly used; these demand aṇ: aṇ abéynte-kwátru naṇ Húnyo the twenty-fourth of June.

68. Aṇ is omitted, further, before object expressions beginning ⁴⁰with the particle nì (§ 253) and optionally before those beginning with the particle káhit (§ 248). All object expressions lack aṇ when forming an indefinite object predicate (§ 109), in expressions of indefinite quantity (§ 69), when used indefinitely after pára (§ 275), haṅgàṇ (§ 293), patì (§ 305), and in exclamation or address (§§ 75.78).³

f. Expressions of indefinite quantity.

569. Object expressions are used (without añ, § 68) to express indefinite objects (roughly speaking such as would lack the article the in English) or indefinite quantities of objects, when preceded by certain modifiers. These modifiers are the pretonic particle máy, expressing existence or forthcomingness (§ 252), and 10the full words máy-roòn, equivalent with máy; walà' the negative of these; malakì great; maláon long; marámi much, many (§ 138). The phrases so formed may be described as expressions of indefinite quantity. Beside the omission of añ before the object expression, they have the peculiarity that in certain constructions 15they express (without further accompaniments) the possessor of that designated: may súnjay there are horns or having horns, horned; máy-roo ñ aklàt there are books or having a book, books; wala ñ aklàt there are no books or without a book, having no books; malakì ñ kagamitàn great usefulness, there is great use, or having 20*great usefulness*; maláo ñ panahòn long time or taking a long time; marámi ñ salapè' much money, there is much money or having much money; marámi ñ kaybígan many friends, there are many friends or having many friends.

Máy expresses also approximateness (where the object expression 25is one of number): may ápat na pu ñ paà about forty feet or having, measuring about forty feet.

70. An expression of indefinite quantity may, as a unit, stand in object construction; in this case the first three have possessive value, but not the others: añ máy sakìt the or a person having 30*sickness, the or a sick person*; añ máy-roo ñ aklàt the (a) person who has a book or books; añ wala ñ hiyà' the (a) shameless person; but: añ malakì ñ báhay the, a large house; añ marámi ñ bágay the many things.

71. Marámi may by itself stand in object construction; it ³⁵then has the meaning: an marámi the many, the crowd, the people, hoi polloi.

2. Subject and predicate.

72. Most sentences consist of a subject and a predicate, showing the construction of Sumùsúlat syà, Sya y sumùsúlat (§§ 53, 54). Indeed, this goes farther than in English; many commands, ⁵for instance, have the subject-and-predicate structure: Sumúlat ka. Write thou, i. e. Write.

Nevertheless, much of the syntax is determined by the use of constructions which lack subject-and-predicate structure.

a. Non-predicative sentences.

¹⁰73. The sentences which lack subject-and-predicate structure are of two general types: (1) exclamatory, and (2) impersonal-anaphoric.

74. To the exclamatory type belongs the use in independent sentences of certain particles, the primary interjections: Abà! ¹⁵Ah! Aráy! Ouch! Ó! Oh!

As in other languages, some of these violate the normal phonetic structure, that is, are “inarticulate”: Sss! Whew!, uttered when the weather is very hot. One whistles when one wants the wind to blow.

²⁰75. To the exclamatory type belong, further, words and phrases used as secondary interjections: Anò! What! (unpleasant surprise). Inà ko! or: Ina kò! Mother of mine! Ano η hína mo! What weakness of-you! i. e. How weak you are!

As the second example shows, object expressions are here used ²⁵without an (§ 68).

76. Certain words with the prefix ka- expressing high degree of a quality (see Morphology), with their attributes: Kaitim naŋ gabi! What-blackness of-the night! i. e. How black the night is!

77. Certain words with the prefix ka- and reduplication expressing ³⁰recent completion of an act (see Morphology), with their modifiers: Karáratin ko pa lámaŋ! Just-arriving by-me still only! i. e. I have only just arrived.

78. Vocatives, in calling or address: Kayò ŋ maŋa makasalánan! Ye sinners! In this use personal names lack si and all ³⁵object expressions lack aŋ (§ 68): Hwàŋ! Juan! Máma'! Sir! Áli! Madam! Wala ŋ hiyà'! Shameless one!

79. Commands of certain brusque or familiar types, used, e. g., to children, servants, animals, in haste or excitement: Hintú na! Stop! Ílag na! Get out of the way! Súloŋ! Go ahead! ⁴⁰Hurry up! Panáog nà sa báhay! Come down from the house! Come on out! Tàbí po' Look out please! (Cry of drivers to people on the street. The accent is irregular by § 51 for tabì).

80. Certain set expressions, such as greetings: Maganda ŋ áraw pò'! Good-morning! Salámat. Thanks. Salámat sa iyò. ⁵Thank you.

81. Expressions of affirmation and negation: Óo. Yes. Oo ŋà'. Yes indeed. Táma'. That's right, Exactly. Hindì'. No. Walà'. None, Nothing, There isn't.

82. The mere naming of an idea, as in counting or giving ¹⁰the title of a story: Isà, dalawà, tatlò, ápat, limà.... One, two, three, four, five....

83. (2) Of the impersonal-anaphoric type are many answers to questions or continuations of dialogue: Kahápon. Yesterday. Akò. I, It's I, It was I. (Never “Itò y akò,” or the like).

¹⁵84. Certain occurrences, especially meteoric phenomena, are not analyzed into subject and predicate: Umúulàn. It's raining. Kabilúgan naŋ bwàn.

Roundness of-the moon, i. e. There is a full moon. Bumábahà'. There is a flood. Naàáre'. It is possible, allowable. Hindí nalaúnan. It did not take long, It was not long. ²⁰Taginit nà. It is summer already.

85. Very common in impersonal construction are expressions of indefinite quantity (§ 69). In this use they express existence or forthcomingness (or the opposite) of indefinite objects: Mày maña babáye. There are women. Mày-roo ŋ aswàŋ sa báyan. ²⁵*There was a vampire in the town.* Walà ŋ papèl. There is no paper. Walà ŋ anu màn! There is nothing. Also: Not at all! You're welcome! Malaki ŋ twà' naŋ iba ŋ táo. There was great rejoicing by the other people. Sa dalága ŋ itò y marámi ŋ maŋliligaw. For this young woman there were many suitors.

³⁰86. Less common in impersonal construction are expressions of occurrences involving indefinite or indifferent persons or things: Humúkay. One should dig. Nagumpisa nà naŋ pagsábuy. "They" have already begun to throw.

87. There is great freedom as to presence or absence of anaphorically ³⁵determined elements (i. e., such as have been recently mentioned or, less commonly, are about to be mentioned), including the subject; when this is wanting, the subject-and-predicate structure is, of course, lost: Hiníla nya sa pasígan. Was-dragged by-him to-the shore, i. e. He dragged it or the tree (sc. itò, or: ⁴⁰aŋ púno', from the preceding sentence) to the shore. Hindí makabùbúti sa kanilà. (It, the scheme mentioned) will do them no good.

Many constructions later to be noticed depend on this habit of omitting anaphorically determined elements, cf. e. g.: Aŋ púno' ay tumúbo haŋgàŋ sa magbúŋa. The tree grew until (sc. it) bore fruit. Pagdatìŋ niya ay sabíhin mo ŋ maghintày. At-the-coming ⁵⁰of-him be-said (impersonal) by-you that (sc. he) should-wait, i. e. When he comes, tell him to wait.

b. The subject.

88. The subject of a sentence is always an object expression. The only exceptions are complex sentences with entire predications ¹⁰(§ 115) or quotations (§ 329) as subject.

89. The subject may have two positions:

(1) Non-enclitic: it precedes or follows the predicate; in the former case the predicate is introduced by the atonic particle ay, y (y often after syllabic vowel, n, or '; see Phonetics): Sumùsúlat ¹⁵*añ báta'*. The child is writing; or: Añ báta' ay sumùsúlat. Añ báta y sumùsúlat. Siyà ay sumùsúlat. Sya y sumùsúlat. He, she is writing. Here siyà, syà is not enclitic.

(2) Enclitic: it follows the first orthotonic word of the predicate: Hindí sya sumùsúlat. Not he is-writing, i. e. He is not writing. ²⁰*Sumùsúlat sya nañ líham*. He is writing a letter, letters. In these examples siyà is enclitic.

Not only enclitically used pronouns (§§ 63, 64), but even short phrases are thus used: Pinapútol nila si Hwàn nañ káhoy. Was-ordered-to-cut by-them Juan (subject) some wood, i. e. They ordered ²⁵*Juan to cut wood*. Here the position of si Hwàn after the first orthotonic word of the predicate (pinapútol) but before the rest of the predicate (nañ káhoy) shows it to be (like nilà) an enclitic element. With the same subject not enclitically used the sentence would be: Pinapútol nila nañ káhoy si Hwàn, and this, ³⁰indeed, is the more usual locution.

90. On the use or non-use of an anaphoric subject (siyà, silà, itò) see § 87.

c. The predicate.

91. The predicate may be (1) a transient word with its ³⁵modifiers, (2) a static word with its modifiers, or (3) an object expression.

(1) Transient predicate.

92. Transient words fall into four classes according to the four relations which a subject may bear to them when they are used as predicate. We may designate these classes by the following names:

1. active: the subject is viewed as an actor: Sumùsúlat sya naŋ líham. He (subject) is writing a letter, letters. Sya y pumútol ⁵naŋ káhoy. He (subject) cut some wood. Umalis syà. He went away.

2. direct passive: the subject is viewed as an object fully affected or produced: Sinúlat nya aŋ líham. Was-written by-him the letter (subject), i. e. The letter was written by him, He wrote ¹⁰the letter. Pinútol nya aŋ káhoy. Was-cut by-him the wood (subject), i. e. He cut the wood.

3. instrumental passive: the subject is viewed as a means, an instrument, something given forth or parted from: Isinúlat nya aŋ kwènto. Was-written-down by-him the story (subject), i. e. ¹⁵He wrote the story. Ipinútol nya aŋ gúlok. Was-cut-with by-him the bolo (subject), i. e. He used the bolo for cutting, He cut with the bolo.

4. local passive: the subject is viewed as an object partly or less fully affected, as a place or sphere: Sinulátan nya akò. Was-written-to ²⁰by-him I (subject), i. e. He wrote me. Pinutúlan nya aŋ káhoy. Was-cut-from by-him the wood (subject), i. e. He cut a piece off the wood.

For a detailed description of these classes of transient words, see Morphology.

²⁵93. In general the choice between these four constructions is made in accordance with the logical situation: the definite, known object underlying the predication as starting-point of discourse is chosen as subject: Binigyàn nya akò naŋ aklàt. Was-given-to (local passive) by-him I (enclitic subject) a book, books, ³⁰i. e. He gave me a book, books. Ibinigay nyà sa ákin aŋ aklàt. Was-given (instrumental passive) by-him to me the book (subject), i. e. He gave me the book. In the first example the speaker is talking about himself, in the second about a certain book.

94. However, the active construction is avoided whenever ³⁵any object other than the actor is available as subject. Especially are active constructions with an anaphoric subject (siyà, silà, itò) avoided wherever a passive construction is at hand. Thus, in the instance in § 93, even if “he”, the actor, were the real subject of discourse, one would rarely use the active construction: Sya y ⁴⁰nagbigày sa ákin naŋ aklàt. He (subject) gave (active) me a book, books. Even elements which we should look upon as somewhat indefinite are preferred as subjects to an actor: Kinúha nya aŋ isa ŋ aklàt. Was-taken (direct passive) by-him a book (subject), i. e. He took a (certain) book (he knew, or I know which one or what kind).

The active construction is thus confined to instances in which ⁵the object-ideas other than the actor are entirely vague and undetermined or lacking: Umalis syà. He went away. Sya y kumúha naŋ aklàt. He took a book, some books (no matter to him or to me which one or what kind). Sumùsúlat sya naŋ líham. He is writing a letter, letters. Sya y pumútol naŋ káhoy. He cut some ¹⁰*wood*. Kumáin sya naŋ kánin. He ate some boiled rice; but: Kináin nya aŋ kánin. Was-eaten (direct passive) by him the boiled rice (subject), i. e. He ate the boiled rice.

If, in spite of the presence of other definite objects, the actor is very decidedly emphasized, a different construction (§§ 104.107.) ¹⁵is used.

(2) Static predicate.

95. The predicate may consist of a static word with its modifiers: An bàtā ay mabàit. The child is good. Iyà y masamà'. That's bad, wrong. Pulà an panyo η itò. This handkerchief is red.

²⁰96. This type of predicate is regular in word-questions: the question word is used as predicate; it precedes the subject: Páno an pagkágusto ninyò sa trabáho-η-kanyunéro? How (predicate) your liking for (i. e. How did you like) the artillery-service? Papáno an pagsasábi sa wíka η Tagálog nan salità η Inglès na ²⁵“scissors”? How (predicate) the saying in the Tagalog language of the English word “scissors”? i. e. How does one say “scissors” in Tagalog? Gaáno an pagkakagalit nila? How great, How serious was (predicate) their quarrel?

97. This is the construction of the interrogative pronouns in ³⁰questions asking for the identity of an object,—unless, indeed, these belong rather under type (3). The interrogative pronouns are the following:

(a) síno who? (singular and plural), síno-síno (explicit plural, § 63, end) is used of persons only, and then only when the answer ³⁵expected is a name or the equivalent; it asks for the identity of a person: Sínu ka? Who are (predicate) you (subject)? Sínu yàn?—Akò. Who's that? i. e. Who's there? —I. Sínu ya η tumúktók? Who's that knocking? Síno an nagbigày sa iyò? Who (predicate) the one-who-gave (sc. it, anaphoric) to you (subject)? ⁴⁰i. e. Who gave it to you? Síno an nagsábi sa iyò? Who told you? Who told you so? Síno sa kanila η dalawà an nagnákaw? Which of the two committed the theft? The two are known by name or, at any rate, as personalities. Síno-síno sa maña báta' an iyo η nàhúle sa pañuumit? Which ones of the children (predicate) did you catch pilfering? literally: the ones caught by you at pilfering, ⁵subject.

(b) anò what? what kind of? how?, explicit plural anò-anò, asks for the identity of a thing or for the description, character, condition of a person or of a thing: Ano yàn?—Itò y librò. What (predicate) is that you have there (subject)?—This is a book. An ¹⁰yòn?—Yo y súnog. What's that over there? —It's a fire. Anò an ηálan mo? What is your name? Ano an sábi mo? What do you say? Ano an ibig mo? What do you want? Ano-anò an pinagsabè ni Hwàn sa iyò? What things did Juan tell you?, literally: What things (predicate) the things said by Juan to you? Anu kà? ¹⁵What sort of person are you? Anò an lagày nan maña báta'?... nan asáwa mo? ... nan mé báhay? What (or How) is the condition of (i. e. How are) the children? ... your husband or wife? ... your wife?

(c) alìn which? which one? which ones?, explicit plural alìn-alìn, ²⁰is used of persons and things; it asks neither for identification (persons, síno; things, anò) nor for characterization (anò), but for indication, by pointing or by description of the place or some other unessential feature, of persons or things: Alìn an gustu mò? Which one, Which ones do you want? Alìn sa kanila ²⁵an dalawà an nagnákaw? Which of the two (e. g., of these two strange men) committed the theft? Alin-alìn sa maña púnu-an-káhoy an iyo an tinagà'? Which ones of the trees did you cut down?

98. Of the numerative pronouns (§ 66), boò', ibà, and ilàn ³⁰(in this use interrogative) are used as static predicates: Itò y buò' . This is entire, complete, unbroken. Hindí ko gusto iyàn; ibà an áki an gustò. Not by-me wanted (static predicate) that (subject); different (predicate) that by-me wanted (subject), i. e. I don't want that; what I want is different, I want something ³⁵else. Ilàn an manliligaw? How many are the suitors?

99. Of the modifiers of indefinite quantity (§ 69) several are used as static predicates: Sya y walá na. He is or was gone already. Itò y walà' . This does not take place, does not appear, falls away. Malakì an súnog. The fire was great. Marámi an ⁴⁰nagsàsábi nitò. Many are they who say this.

100. For the disjunctive forms of personal pronouns and of síno as static predicates, see § 169. For local expressions, see § 211. For entire predications as static predicates, § 112 f., quotations, § 114.

(3) Object expression as predicate.

101. If the predicate is an object expression, it may have ⁵three different forms: (A) definite, (B) circumlocutory definite, and (C) indefinite.

102. (A) A definite object predicate consists simply of a word or phrase in the object construction (§ 61 ff.); it has therefore the same structure as a subject. Usually this predicate precedes ¹⁰and is emphatic (emotionally dominant): Itò aṅ áki ṅ tìráhan. This is (predicate) my dwelling (subject), i. e. Why, it's here I'm at home!

103. The definite object predicate is especially emphatic in sentences that have as subject a transient word (with or without ¹⁵modifiers) in object construction: Si Hwàn aṅ nagnákaw. It was Juan who did the stealing. Siya rìn aṅ kanya ṅ inìbig. It was he whom she loved. Both nagnákaw and inìbig are transient.

104. When an emphatic actor cannot be used as subject of a transient predicate (owing to the presence of other definite object ²⁰ideas, § 94), it is often used as the predicate in this construction,—the transient part of the sentence being put into object construction and used as subject. Thus, if, in the sentence: Itò y ginawá ni Hwàn. This (subject) was-done (direct passive) by Juan, the idea of “Juan”, the actor, should become dominant, ²⁵one would not use the active transient predicate (“Si Hwàn ay gumawá nitò”), for the idea of “this” is too definite to allow of the actor’s functioning as subject; one says instead: Si Hwàn aṅ gumawá nitò. It was Juan who did this, with “Juan” as definite object predicate and the rest of the sentence, objectivized, as subject. ³⁰So: Siyà aṅ nagbigày sa ákin naṅ aklàt. It was he that gave me the (or a) book, books. (cf. § 93). Ikaw ṅà’ aṅ nagsábi niyàn. It was you yourself who said that.

105. Less commonly the subject precedes the predicate. In this case the construction is quite normal and unemphatic; if ³⁵there is a transient element it usually stands in the predicate: Itò y aṅ áki ṅ tìráhan. This (subject) is my dwelling. Si Hwàn ay aṅ nagnákaw. Juan is the one who did the stealing.

106. (B) In the circumlocutory definite object predicate the central element is the pronoun siyà (in this use never enclitic), ⁴⁰which is followed by modifiers which express the real content of the predicate. In this use siyà may apply to inanimate objects and to two or more objects (§ 63). The subject, which has always a moderate degree of emphasis, usually precedes: Itò ay sya kò ṅ tìráhan. This is what is my home, i. e. This is where I live. In most cases the real content of the predicate is a transient ⁵word (with or without modifiers): Si Pédro ay sya ṅ tumútuṭòk. Pedro is the one (siyà) who is knocking. (Less emphatic than the violently transposed Si Pédro aṅ tumútuṭòk. It's Pedro who is knocking, of type A). Aṅ pagkátahol naṅ áso ay syà ṅ ikinágisiṅ naṅ báta'. The barking of the dog is what woke up the ¹⁰*child.* Aṅ maṅa paṅparikìt ay sya kò ṅ pinamutúlan. The kindlings are what I have cut up. Occasionally the predicate precedes: Baká sya ṅ ikapútol naṅ piṅgà aṅ kabigatàn naṅ buháṅin. Perhaps that which may break the carrying-pole (predicate) the weight of the sand (subject), i. e. See that the weight of the sand ¹⁵*doesn't break the carrying-pole.*

107. This construction, like that of type (A), is often used when a transient predicate is not permissible with an actor-subject; here, however, the sentence is not, as in (A), reversed, but the actor is used as subject and the rest of the sentence as true ²⁰content of the circumlocutory predicate: Si Hwàn ay syà ṅ gumawá nito. Juan is the one who did this. Si Pédro ay syà ṅ nagbigày sa ákin naṅ aklàt. Pedro is the person who gave me the book.

108. A predicate of this type may, in its entirety and as a ²⁵unit, be objectivized with aṅ and used as subject of a sentence of type (A): Aṅ médiko lámaṅ ay sya nyà ṅ màkàkatálo. The doctor alone will be the one to oppose him (literally: he by-him who will-be-opposed, direct passive): Aṅ médiko lámaṅ aṅ sya nyà ṅ màkàkatálo. It is the doctor alone who will be the one to ³⁰oppose him. An bintána η iyàn an syà η kahùhulúgan nan báta'!

It's that window that will be the place where the child will fall out!

109. (C) The indefinite object predicate has the structure of an object expression, but lacks an (§ 68). In meaning it corresponds, ³⁵roughly, to an English noun-predicate without the: Itò y librò. This (subject) is a book (predicate). Yo y súnog. That's a fire. Itò y mabúti η librò. This is a good book. Si Hwàn ay isa η magnanákaw. Juan is a thief. Masípag na táo itò. Industrious people (predicate) these (subject), i. e. These are industrious ⁴⁰*people.*

110. As indefinite object predicates occur especially the expressions of indefinite quantity (§ 69). In this use they have possessive value: Sya y máy famílya. He has a family. May ápat na pu η paà an hába'. Having forty feet (predicate) the length (subject), i. e. The length is about forty feet. Sya y máy-roo η aklàt. He has a book, books. Sya y wala η aklàt. He has no book, ⁵*no books.* Sya y marámi η salapè'. He has much money. Hindí maláo η panahòn an kanya η paghihimatáy. Her fainting-spell did not last long. Itò y malakì η kagamitàn. This has great use, is much used.

It is to be noted that all the modifiers of indefinite quantity, ¹⁰except máy, which is pretonic, are orthotonic and therefore followed by an enclitic subject (§ 89): Máy-roon sya η aklàt. He has no book. But: May dalawà sya η anàk. He has two children.

d. Subordinate predications.

111. An entire predication may be used as subject, predicate, ¹⁵or attribute in a longer sentence. The use of such subordinate predications is, however, limited (as opposed, e. g., to English usage) by the habit of freely using transient words (with their modifiers) as attributes: an súpot nan kwaltà na kanila η ibinigày pagdáka sa kanila η magúlan the bag of money by-them given ²⁰*at once to their parents, i. e. ... which they gave....* It is limited, further, by the freedom of omitting anaphoric elements (§ 87): An púno' ay tumúbo hangàṅ sa magbúṅa. The tree grew until (sc. it, subject) bore fruit.

112. Predications as predicates occur very frequently. An ²⁵ginawá nya ay umalìs sya. That done by-him (subject) was went-away he (predication, as predicate), i. e. What he did was, he went away. An mabúti ay itápun nilà an maṅa báta'. The best thing (to do) was that they should abandon the children. An ísip ko y balat lámaṅ naṅ itlòṅ itò. My thought was (i. e. I ³⁰*thought) this was only an egg-shell.*

113. Especially common is a whole predication as a predicate describing or characterizing the subject: An kúba ay mahína' an katawàn. The hunchback was: weak was his body, i. e. was weak of body. An ikapitu ṅ báta' ay hindí kináin an kanya ³⁵ṅ tinápay. The seventh child was: not was-eaten his bread, i. e. did not eat his bread. An isa nyà ṅ anàk ay pitò nà ṅ taòn an gúlaṅ. His one child was now seven years of age. This construction, together with the use of impersonal expressions (§ 84) makes possible such a sentence as: An maṅa karitòn ... ay gabì kuṅ ⁴⁰ipalákad. The wagons ... were: it-was-night when (sc. they, anaphoric subject) were-made-to-go, i. e. The wagons were driven at night.

114. Direct quotations as predicates are frequent: “Isà!” an sábi naṅ bulàḡ. “One!” was what the blindman said. “Túnay bagà ṅ akò y inìḡbig mo?” an tanòṅ naṅ dalága ni Andrès sa kanya. “Is it really true that you love me?” was the question ⁵⁰*of Andrés' young lady to him.*

115. A predication as subject is rare: Mabúti táyo y dumoòn sa isa ṅ lugàr.... It is best (predicate) that we go to a place.... Hindí bihíra' an maṅa táo y naṅhùhúle naṅ buhàṅ na uṅgò'. It is not rare that people go catching live monkeys. ¹⁰It will be noted that these predications are not objectivized, cf. § 88.

116. Occasionally, however, the predication used as subject is objectivized: Hindí bihíra' an magkalunòd an maṅa táo. It is not rare that people get drowned, or The occurrence that people ¹⁵get drowned is not rare. Súkat nà aṅ ikàw ay magpasalámat. It is fitting now that you be thankful.

117. For predications as attributes see the section on attribution.

e. Omission of predicate.

²⁰118. The use of a predicate, or of the central element of a predicate is (like that of any other element, § 87) optional when, if used, it would be anaphoric: (Si Hwàn namàn ay sumagòt: “Matàr!” at sa hulè) si Andrès aṅ kanya ṅ “Sì!” (Then Juan answered “Matar!” and last) Andrés his “Si!”) The form of ²⁵the sentence with the predicate (which is anaphoric from the preceding sumagòt answered) would be: ... si Andrès ay isinagòt aṅ kanya ṅ “Sì!” ... Andrés was: was-answered his “Si!”, i. e. Andrés answered his “Si!”,—a sentence of the kind described in § 113.

³⁰3. Attributes.

119. We may distinguish four constructions in which an attribute may stand:
1. Conjunctive attribution: the attribute is joined by means of the particle na or ṅ: isa ṅ táo a person, one person; 2. Disjunctive attribution: the attribute, which is always ³⁵an object expression, stands in a special disjunctive form, aṅ, for instance, being changed to naṅ: aṅ púno naṅ uṅgò’ the tree of the monkey; 3. Local attribution: the attribute, which is always an object expression, stands in a special local form, aṅ, for instance, being always changed to sa: nalílígo sa ílog bathing in the ⁴⁰*river*; 4. Absolute attribution: the attribute merely precedes or follows: hindí táma’ not correct.

In a sense the last three constructions, which do not employ the particle na, ṅ, stand opposed to the first, which does. Constructions 2 and 3 make it possible to speak, in a very wide sense, of three “cases” in which an object expression may stand: “subjective” saṅ ílog the river, “disjunctive” naṅ ílog of the river, and “local” sa ílog in the river; but it is to be observed that these “cases” are not confined to any class of words, but appear in any word or phrase when it stands in the object construction.⁴

120. In position attributes may be:

¹⁰A. Loosely joined. In this position occur only attributes of a predicate (or of an entire non-predicative sentence). Their treatment resembles that of a non-enclitic subject (§ 89): they either precede the rest of the sentence with ay, y, or follow at the end of the sentence: Doòn ay syà y nahigà’. There (doòn, loosely ¹⁵joined) he lay down. Nahánap ko nà aṅ sombréro sa lahàt naṅ súlok. I have looked for the hat in every corner. The phrase beginning with sa is loosely joined; it follows all the rest of the sentence, including even the subject, aṅ sombréro.

In the placing of enclitics a loosely joined attribute is ignored: ²⁰*Pagulàn ay gamítin mo aṅ kapóte.* When it rains use your rain-coat. The enclitic mò follows the first orthotonic word of the predicate (which it modifies), not counting the loosely joined pagulàn.

When a loosely joined attribute precedes, the ay, y is in some ²⁵cases left off: Dahil díto tináwag nya aṅ kaybígan nya. Therefore he called his friend. The position of the enclitic niyà shows that dahil díto is loosely joined, but ay, y is not used.

Occasionally a loosely joined attribute is preceded by the subject and only one ay, y is used: Karanyúwa y aṅ kosinéro y ³⁰upahàn. Usually (loosely joined) the cook is hired; but also: Aṅ kosinéro karanyúwa y upahàn.

B. Closely joined. The attribute immediately precedes or follows that modified: hindí táma’ not correct; aṅ púno naṅ uṅgò’ the tree of the monkey.

³⁵C. Enclitic. They follow immediately on the first word of the expression modified, counting closely joined attributes, but not loosely joined: Hindí ko nàláláman. Not by-me (it) is-known, i. e. I don't know. aŋ mahahába nya ŋ paà his (niyà enclitic) long legs.

121. Some attributes always precede (so e. g. hindì', § 239); others always follow (so, for instance, disjunctive attributes, ⁵§ 171).

a. Conjunctive attributes.

122. A conjunctive attribute is connected with the word or phrase which it modifies by the atonic particle na. Normally ŋ takes the place of na after a vowel, n, or the glottal stop (see ¹⁰Phonetics): mabúti ŋ aklàt good book, or: aklàt na mabúti.

However, na and ŋ are not exactly equivalent. Predications, longer phrases, and, frequently, transient expressions are joined with na even where ŋ is possible: isa ŋ malakì ŋ higànte na nalílígo' a big giant who was bathing.

¹⁵On the other hand, some constructions use na rarely or not at all: where ŋ cannot be used the particle is then omitted and we have absolute attribution. These constructions will be described under the latter heading.

In the formation of compound words (see Morphology) na is ²⁰never used, while ŋ is a regular element. This latter circumstance sometimes makes it difficult to determine whether a given expression is a conjunctive phrase or a compound word.

123. Conjunctive attributes are closely joined and either precede or follow; for this reason it is sometimes undetermined ²⁵which of the elements connected is the attribute, which the element modified.

124. The elements connected by conjunctive attribution are viewed as constituting a single larger element. Conjunctive attribution is the normal and general relation between modifier and ³⁰modified and includes relations that in many other languages (such as English) are viewed in manifold ways. We may divide the construction roughly into three types, although these actually merge into each other: (1) quality, (2) manner, and (3) complement.

³⁵Not included in this division are the cases where conjunctive attribution alternates with absolute (§ 122), which will be treated of under the latter heading, and a type which in meaning is so closely parallel with disjunctive attribution that it will be more economical to treat it under this head (§§ 165.168).

⁴⁰(1) Conjunctive attributes of quality.

125. Conjunctive attributes of the quality type are used chiefly in object expressions. They have no fixed order: aṇ mabúti ṇ aklàt the (a) good book, or: aṇ aklàt na mabúti. aṇ sumùsúlat na báta' the writing child, the child that is writing, or: aṇ báta ṇ sumùsúlat.

⁵126. When they precede a personal name the whole expression is preceded by aṇ, but when they follow si suffices: aṇ báta ṇ si Hwà the child Juan, little Juan, si Hwà ṇ Talúnan Juan who is always defeated (as a nickname).

127. Conjunctive attributes of quality tend to precede when ¹⁰they are emphatic or in contrast; when fixed they tend to follow: Aṇ marúnoṇ na pagòṇ at aṇ ulòl na uṇgò'. The clever turtle and the foolish monkey. Si Hwà ṇ Pípe ay nàkíta námin sa tulà. We saw Dumb Juan on the bridge. aṇ báo ṇ babáye the lower half of the cocoanut shell, aṇ báo ṇ malambòt the soft shell of the ¹⁵*cocoanut*, an wíka η Kastíla' the Spanish language. Especially those expressing material tend to follow: an báhay na batò a stone house, an koróna η tinik a crown of thorns, an atsára η papáya papaw salad, pickled papaw, an tinóla η manòk chicken stew, an sáko η pálay a sack of rice. A modifier expressing the ²⁰special kind always follows: an sála η pagnanákaw the crime which is (i. e. of) theft, an bísyo η paginòm the vice of drinking, an larò η taguàn the game which consists of hiding, the game of hide-and-seek, kanína η umága a little while ago in the morning, i. e. this morning, ilà η óras na pagsasàlitáan a few hours of conversation, ²⁵*an bandà η kataasàn (or: itaàs) the direction (which is) north, i. e. the north*; so: an bandà η kababáan (or: ibabà') the south, silánan (or: sìlanánan) the east, kalunúran the west, an gawì η kánan the right-hand side, kaliwà' the left.

128. Titles and the like precede: an báo η si Maryà the ³⁰*widow Maria*.

129. The personal pronouns precede their conjunctive attributes: sila η tatlò they three, Si Pédro ay syà η tumúktòk. Pedro is the one who is knocking (§ 106 ff.).

130. The demonstrative pronouns as conjunctive attributes ³⁵usually follow: an táo η itò this person, this man, an tatlò η itò these three, An korbáta η irè ay bágo. This necktie is new.

Occasionally, however, they precede, especially with a longer expression. In this case an is not used (§ 64, end): ito η súpot ko nan kwàlta this bag of money of mine; iyo η úna η kumalabòg ⁴⁰*that first thing which made a thud*; Itò η báhay an binili kò. This house is what I bought, It's this house I've bought, This is the house I've bought (§ 102 ff.).

Under emphasis the demonstrative pronoun may both precede and follow: ito η táo η itò this man here, iyo η táo η yaòn that man over there.

131. The interrogative pronouns precede; an is not used (§ 65). See also kaníno, § 168. The meanings of the interrogative ⁵pronouns as conjunctive attributes are:

síno which? (of several known people): sínu η táo? which one? which ones?

alìn which? (of several known things): alì η lugàr which place, which places? alì η bandà? which way? (e. g. at a cross-roads) ¹⁰alì η maṇa búṇa? which fruits? which ones of the fruits?

anò what? what kind of? (of persons or things not known), also, in exclamations, what...! what great...! Anu η ílog itò? What river is this? ano η bandà? what direction? which way? (of all possible points of the compass) anu η táo what sort ¹⁵*of a person? what sort of people? who?* Ano η hína'! What weakness!

132. The numerative pronouns mostly precede, and the use of an is optional (§ 66, end); ibà other, however, requires an when, as conjunctive attribute, it begins an object phrase. Of the ²⁰others, karamíhan most and the particle báwat every are not used in this construction, and lahàt all occurs only as modifier of the personal pronouns, which (by § 129) precede. The particle bála any, on the other hand, occurs only as conjunctive attribute: an iba η báhay the other house, another house, sila η lahàt they all, ²⁵*all of them*, bála η táo any person, anyone, an bála η táo any one (of a given group), boò η báyan all the town, everybody in town, an boò η báyan the entire town, everybody in the town, ilà η táo η matalíno a few intelligent men, an ilà η sandalè' a few moments.

133. The cardinal numerals usually precede; an is optional ³⁰(§ 67): isa η itlòg one egg, an egg; an isa η itlòg the one egg.

134. The tens, hundreds, etc. of the cardinal numerals are always modified by isà one or a higher unit. The phrase so formed precedes that counted. The higher numerals are: pù' ten, daàn, raàn hundred, líbo thousand, laksà' million, yúta' billion: isa η ³⁵pù η táo, sà m pu η táo ten men, ápat na raà η báhay four-hundred houses.

135. The teens are expressed by labì preceding the simple numerals as conjunctive modifier: labì η isà η aklàt eleven books, labì η tatlò η áraw thirteen days.

⁴⁰136. The Spanish numerals, however, (used in dates, § 67) follow: aṅ taò ṅ mīle-nobisyentos-dòs the year 1902.

137. saríle self (see § 175) is used as a conjunctive attribute in the sense of own: Walá sya ṅ saríli ṅ baìt. He has no self-respect (literally: own respect).

138. Of the modifiers that form expressions of indefinite quantity all except máy precede as conjunctive attributes; for ⁵examples see § 69 f. In object expressions maláon, malakì and marámi do not differ from normal conjunctive attributes; examples in § 70.

139. Expressions of indefinite quantity as units may stand in conjunctive attribution. They then have possessive value: aṅ ¹⁰háre ṅ may súṅay the king who had horns; aṅ kapútol na wala ṅ dáhon the part without leaves.

140. Conjunctive attribution includes many cases which in English would be envisaged rather as appositions of two objects: aṅ báta ṅ si Hwàn the boy Juan, si Hwà ṅ Bíbas Juan the Jester, ¹⁵Sya y may táṅa ṅ pamálo'. He has hold of a stick. Táṅan that grasped, thing grasped is conjunctive attribute of pamálo' club, stick. aṅ magának na sina Bantòg the Bantog family, tatlò ṅ magkakayibíga ṅ estudyànte ṅ magkababáyan three friends (ṅ) students (ṅ) fellow-townsmen, i. e. three student friends from the ²⁰*same town*; aṅ tatlú ṅ magkakaybíga ṅ si Pédro, si Hwàn, at si Andrès the three friends, Pedro, Juan, and Andrés; aṅ salità ṅ “bámos” the word “vamos”.

141. When a longer expression is used as a conjunctive attribute of quality, it usually follows, and na is often preferred ²⁵to ṅ: aṅ parúsa na hindí mo gustò the punishment not by-you liked, i. e. the punishment you don't like; isà ṅ usà ṅ nanṅináin sa gúbat a deer grazing in the jungle; aṅ isà (sa maṅa kaybígan nilà) na sya ṅ magígíṅ hukòm one (of their friends) who will be judge; cf. the predicates described in § 106. aṅ maṅa kúra na ³⁰sya ṅ maṅa maliliit na háre' the priests (who are) those (who are) little kings, i. e. the priests, those veritable little kings.

142. An object expression is frequently followed by an entire predication of the type described in § 113, as conjunctive attribute: An tagahúle ay isa η táo η an katunjúlan ay humúle ³⁵nan ano màn o síno màn. A catcher is a person (whose) duty is to catch anything or anyone. an maña púno-η-káhoy na masasaràp an búña trees (whose) fruits are tasty; isa η táo η malakì an kapañyaríhan a person (whose) power is great.

(2) Conjunctive attributes of manner.

⁴⁰143. Conjunctive attributes of manner precede or follow. When they precede a predicate they stand as the first orthotonic word and are immediately followed by enclitics (such as an enclitic subject pronoun, § 89), after which comes the na or η, and then the central element of the predicate: Syà y mabúte η tumugtòg. She plays (music) well. This example illustrates the identity of conjunctive attributes of manner and of quality, for mabúte η tumugtòg may be looked upon indifferently as a transient predicate (§ 92) with mabúte well as attribute of manner, or as an indefinite object predicate (§ 109) a good player, in which mabúte good is an attribute of quality. Other forms of the same ¹⁰sentence are: Mabúti sya η tumugtòg. (siyà enclitic), Syà y tumugtòg na mabúti. So further: Isípin mo η mabúti. Consider it well. Literally: Be-considered by-you (mò enclitic) well. Iyòn ay tùtúbo na mabúti. It will grow well. Silà y magkakasáma η nagsipamarìl. They as-companions (i. e. in company, together) ¹⁵*went hunting.* Or: They were companion (quality) hunters. Madalí sya η tumakbò. Quickly he ran. Talagà η mahigpìt an tapòn nan bóte η iyàn. The stopper of that bottle is certainly tight. Mahigpìt tight, as central element of the predicate, is modified by talagà fated, by fate, by nature, certainly. Putikà η dumatìñ ²⁰si Salamìn sa báhay. “Mirror” (as name of a dog) came home all muddy. Or: ... was a muddy comer. Paputòl nya η tinagà’ an bisìg ni Hwàn. He cut Juan’s arm transversely. Kinalaykay kò η patipòn an maña sanà η maliliit nan káhoy. I raked into-a-heap the twigs of-the trees.

146. Expressions of indefinite quantity as conjunctive attributes ³⁵of manner follow: An maña táo ay nagtakbúha η walà η túto. The people all ran without order, in disorder.

147. The particles lubhà' very and lálo' more usually precede: Lubhà η malakì an gálit ni Pédro. Pedro's wrath was very great. Lálu η lumakì an kanya η gálit. His wrath grew still ⁴⁰greater.

148. The particle mulí' again follows: Tátakbo sya η mulí'. He will run again. An kamakalawà ay hindí na dáratiη na mulè'. The day before yesterday will never come again.

149. A conjunctive attribute of manner may express the time throughout which: Syà y nanɣupìt at nanáhìt na maláo η panahòn. He did hair-cutting and shaving for a long time. Silà y nagtítira na tatlu η áraw. They stay three days. May ila η ⁵bwà η an maña útos ay mahihigpìt. For several months (literally: having several months, § 69, end) the orders were strict.

150. A word repeated as its own conjunctive attribute of manner expresses a high degree (intensity): Sya y biηì. He is deaf. Sya y biηì η biηì. He is stone deaf. Inìt si Pédro. Pedro ¹⁰is hot, is angry. Inìt na inìt si Pédro. Pedro is in a rage. líhim na líhim very secretly, malakì η malakì very large.

(3) Conjunctive attributes as complements.

151. The general sphere of conjunctive attribution includes cases where one element involves another as result or content. The ¹⁵latter follows and is in many instances plainly viewed as the attribute. In some instances, however, the former may just as well be looked upon as a modifier, usually of quality, sometimes also of manner. The transition from these latter types to that of the complement appears, indeed, in all possible stages, and no ²⁰real boundary can be drawn. Sya y mabúti η tumugtòg (naη piyáno). She is a good player (of the piano), or She plays (the piano) well,—see § 143—can be analyzed also: She is good that (she, anaphoric subject omitted, § 87) plays the piano; and in some instances this last analysis is the only possible one.

²⁵Other examples illustrating the merging of the three types we have set up are the following: Malápit na siya η makatápos naη karéra. He was already near that (he) end his course, i. e. near ending his course, almost through his course; or: a near ender, cf. isa η báya η malápit a near-by town. An pagmamarúnoη ³⁰ni Hwàn ay ginágawa η katatawanàn naη maηa nakàkàkilála sa kanyà. Juan's pretending to be wise is made fun of by those who know him, literally: ... is-being-made (ginágawà') that (it) is a laughing-stock, or else: ... a being-made laughing-stock. Cf. an gawì η húkay the to-be-made ditch, i. e. the ditch that is to be ³⁵made, where only the quality interpretation is possible. Magtúlin ka η lumákad. Walk faster. This can be interpreted as Be a fast walker, or Walk faster, or Be-quick that (you) walk; and this last interpretation comes nearest to the original in so far as magtúlin is an active transient form used in commands rather than an expression ⁴⁰suited to an idea of quality or of manner. Sya y nagdàdahilà η may sakìt. He alleges that (he) is sick. An pagsakày sa kabáyo ay hindi magaà η pagarálan. Riding horseback is not easy that (it) be-learned, i. e. not easy to learn, or: not an easy thing-to-be-learned. an pinakamahúsay na magsalità' naη Latìn the best that (he) should speak Latin, or: the best speaker of ⁵Latin; Hwag kà, Hwàn, pumásuk na sekréta. Don't go as a spy (or to be a spy), Juan. Ginawá nya si Hwàn na barbéro naη háre'. Was-made by-him Juan that (he) be barber of-the king, i. e. He made Juan barber royal. Si Hwàn ay pinamàmagatàn nan marámi na isa η doktò. Juan is reputed by the people that ¹⁰(he) is (i. e. as) a learned man.

152. The simplest cases are those where both of the expressions connected by na, η refer to the same person or thing, as in the above examples. The following are less doubtful cases of complement construction of this kind: Nagpùpumílit sya η màtúto. ¹⁵*He strives to get educated.* Si Hwàn at si Maryà ay nagkásundo η pakasàl. Juan and Maria have agreed that they (i. e. to) get married. Inanyáhan silà ni Hwàn na magpasyàl. They were invited by Juan that they (i. e. to) go walking. Maári mo ηà η ihúlug sa koréyo an áki η súlat? Can you please mail my ²⁰letter? Literally: maári ... η ihúlug a possible thing-to-be thrown or capable that (it) be thrown. Naàári akò η malígo makálawa maghápon. I am able that (I) bathe (i. e. to bathe) twice a day. Pinabayáan niya kamì η umalìs. We were permitted by him to depart. Hinantày nya η matápus an mísica. The mass was-awaited ²⁵by-him that it end, i. e. He waited until the mass was ended. Anò an gustu mu η sabíhin? What is desired by-you that (it) be-said? i. e. What do you mean to say? Hindí ko gustò η màkatálo si Hwàn. Not by-me desired that (he) be-opposed is Juan, i. e. I don't want Juan to be my opponent.

³⁰153. Clear cases of the complement construction are those in which the two elements connected refer to different persons or things: Nagyayá sya η umuwè'. He advised that (they, anaphoric) go home. (34, ¹².) An pagkámasìd nya sa lánjit ay syà η nagpakilála sa kanyà na úlàn. His glance at the sky was what ³⁵showed him that (it, see § 84) was going to rain.

154. When the former of the two elements is an object expression (or similar element) the complement construction is evident: an kaibigà η màtúto the desire that (he) get educated, i. e. the desire to get an education. an pagkágusto nyà na kumáin nan ⁴⁰nyòg his desire that (he) should-eat coconuts, i. e. to eat.... Anu η tagàl nya η sumísid! What endurance of-him that (he) stay under water! i. e. How long he stays under water! Ano η hína mo η lumákad! What slowness of-you that (you) walk! i. e. How slowly you walk! An tagasulsè ay isa η babáye η may katunjúla η manahì' o manulsè nan manja púnit nan damìt. A darning-woman is a woman having the duty that (she) patch or mend the small holes in clothing, i. e. ... whose duty is to....

157. A predication as complement is often parallel with a disjunctive object modifier, i. e. with an object expression used ²⁵as direct, instrumental, or local object (§ 184 ff.): Sya y nagsábi ñ sya y marúnoñ gumupit nañ buhòk. He said that he knew how to cut hair. An bulàg ay nagakála ñ gawì ñ katatawanàn an pagkahúlog nañ kúba'. The blindman thought that the falling of the hunchback should be made (sc. niyà by-him, anaphoric) that (it) ³⁰be a laughing-stock, i. e. decided to make fun of the falling ...; that which one says or thinks, with sábi and akála', is also expressed as a direct object.

158. Similarly, predications as complements are, in impersonal constructions, parallel with a subject: Sinábi nya ñ sya y ³⁵marúnoñ gumupit nañ buhòk. Was-said by-him that he was able to cut hair, i. e. He said he knew how to cut hair. Hindí bihíra' na an isa ñ táo y pamagatà ñ médiko-ñ-manḡkukúlam. It is not rare that a man is reputed as a witch-doctor. Cf. the example of predication as subject in § 116. Hinilìṅ nya sa unḡò' na dikdikìn ⁴⁰sya sa lusòṅ. It was begged by him of the monkey that he be brayed in the mortar, i. e. He begged the monkey to bray him in the mortar. Pinabayáan niya na kamì y umalìs. It was allowed by him that we depart, i. e. He allowed us to depart, a less usual form than that in § 152. Totoo ṅá na akò y naparoòn sa Balíwag. It is true that I went to Baliwag. Maàári pú ba ṅ kayò y maghintò'? Will it be possible please that you should stop? i. e. Can you please stop? Inísip nya ṅ magnákaw sa isa ṅ tindáhan. It was planned by him that (he) rob a shop, i. e. He planned to.... Iniyútus nya ṅ humúkay. It was ordered by him that (one, see § 86) should dig, i. e. He ordered people to dig. Hindí mo gustò ṅ màhúle ka. Not by-you it-is-desired that you be-caught, i. e. You don't want to be caught.

¹⁰159. A direct quotation may have the same construction as a predication: Sinábi nya ṅ “Bámos!” It-was-said by-him, namely “Vamos!” i. e. He said “Vamos!”

b. Disjunctive attributes.

160. Only object expressions are used as disjunctive attributes, ¹⁵and all object expressions have a special form for this use.

161. Those beginning with an substitute for this particle the atonic particle nan: an púnò nan unḡò' the tree of the monkey, an laruwàn nan báta ṅ si Hwàn the toy of the boy Juan; little Juan's toy, toys.

²⁰162. Those beginning with si (§§ 59. 126) substitute for this the atonic particle ni; those beginning with sinà (or silà, § 60) substitute nilà (or ninà), pretonic: an amà ni Hwàn Juan's father, an báhay nila Hwàn the house of Juan and his family.

163. The personal pronouns as disjunctive attributes take ²⁵the following forms: kò my, nità of us two, nátin our (inclusive), námin our (exclusive); mò thy, niniyò, ninyò your; niyà, nyà his, her, nilà their.

The monosyllabic forms kò and mò are always enclitic, the others usually: Hindí ko nàláláman. I don't know, literally: Not ³⁰by-me (it) is-known. aṅ báhay nya his, her house, aṅ mahahába nya ṅ paà his long legs, aṅ hindí karanyúwa ṅ talíno nyà his unusual talents (niyà not enclitic).

164. When these enclitics meet an enclitic subject, they precede, unless by the general rule (§ 47) the monosyllabic subject ³⁵*kà* precedes a disyllabic disjunctive (including niyà, nyà): Saàn mo sya nàkíta? Where by-you he was-seen? i. e. Where did you see him? Binigyàn nya akò naṅ aklàt. Was-given by-him I a book, i. e. He gave me a book. Baká mo iyàn màbúlag. Perhaps by-you it might-be-blinded, i. e. See that you don't blind it. Hindí ka ⁴⁰námin dinatnàn. Not you by-us were found-there, i. e. We did not find you in.

165. The personal pronouns have another form, which is used as a conjunctive attribute of quality (cf. § 124, end) and always precedes that modified: its meaning, however, is the same as that of the disjunctive forms just given. These prepositive forms are: ⁵*ákin my*, kanitá thy and my, átin our (inclusive), ámin our (exclusive); iyò thy, iniyò, inyò your; kaniyà, kanyà his, her, kanilà their, kaní-kanilà their respective, several, various.

Examples: Anò aṅ iyo ṅ ṅálan? What is your name? or: Anò aṅ ṅálan mo? aṅ áki ṅ amà my father, or: aṅ ama kò, aṅ ¹⁰kanya ṅ báhay his, her house, aṅ kanyà ṅ mahahába ṅ paà his long legs, aṅ kanitá ṅ kwaltà our money (i. e. thine and mine), aṅ kaní-kanilà ṅ báhay their several houses.

Only a demonstrative pronoun modifier precedes these prepositive forms: iyà ṅ iyo ṅ sambalílo ṅ lúma' that old hat of ¹⁵yours. Exceptions are rare: aṅ karanyúwa ṅ kanila ṅ kantahìn their usual song; what they usually sing.

166. The demonstrative pronouns, whether standing alone (§ 64) or as modifiers at the beginning of an object expression (§ 130), have the following disjunctive forms: nirè of this (right ²⁰here), nitò of this, niyàn, nyàn of that, niyòn, nyòn, noòn of that (over there). Aṇ kúlay nirì ṇ korbáta ṇ irè ay nàpàpagítan sa itèm at sa pulà. The color of this necktie (I have on) is between black and red. aṇ dúlo nitò the end of this, aṇ anàk niyòn that one's child (e. g. with pointing gesture), aṇ báhay niyo ṇ táo ṇ ²⁵yaòn the house of that man over there, aṇ anàk noo ṇ táo ṇ iyòn the child of that man over there. The form noòn is used chiefly when the disjunctive attribute expresses time (§ 192).

167. The interrogative pronoun síno, whether used alone or standing first in an object expression as attribute (§ 131), has ³⁰the disjunctive form níno whose? This form, however, is little used, for, while the interrogative pronoun is usually emphatic and tends to come first (§ 96), a disjunctive attribute follows that modified (§ 171). Hence the form níno is used only under peculiar conditions of emphasis: Aṇ sambalílo níno? Whose hat (did you ³⁵say)? Ibinigày sa iyò níno? Given to you by whom? Sinábi sa iyo níno? Told to you by whom?

168. Instead of níno a prepositive form, kaníno, explicit plural kaní-kaníno, is ordinarily used; like the prepositive forms of the personal pronouns it stands in conjunctive attribution and ⁴⁰precedes that modified. Before it the use of aṇ is optional (§§ 65.131); when aṇ is used the expression is more definite: Kaníno ṇ sambalílo? Whose hat? (the ownership of a given hat is inquired after) Aṇ kaníno ṇ sambalílo? Whose hat? (the ownership of each hat is known; the question asks merely which of them is involved) Kaníno ṇ aklàt iyàn? Whose book have you there?

169. The prepositive forms of the personal pronouns and of ⁵*síno* are used also as static predicates expressing possession: Aṇ librò ṇ binàbása mo kahápon ay ákin. The book you were reading last night is mine. Kaníno aṇ aklàt na iyàn? Whose is that book? Kaní-kaníno aṇ maṇa báhay na itò? Whose are these houses? The personal pronouns may be followed by saríle own (cf. § 137): Aṇ ¹⁰laruwà ṇ itò y áki ṇ saríle. This toy is my own.

170. All other expressions which lack aŋ,—that is, the remaining interrogative pronouns, the numerative pronouns, the cardinal numerals, and object expressions in which these as modifiers stand first (§ 131 ff.),—prefix naŋ, atonic, when used as disjunctive ¹⁵attributes: Sa itaàs naŋ anò? On top of what? Takìp naŋ alì ŋ kahòn itò? Of which box is this the cover? aŋ panukálà naŋ karamíhan the opinion of the majority; Nakàkíta akò naŋ isa ŋ táo. I saw a man.

171. All disjunctive attributes are closely joined and follow ²⁰that which they modify. The only exceptions are the enclitic pronoun forms and expressions of time (§ 192). A disjunctive attribute precedes a subject: Binigyàn nya naŋ aklàt si Hwàn. He gave Juan some books. When the subject is enclitic, it of course precedes: Binigyàn nya si Hwàn naŋ aklàt. Real exceptions, in ²⁵which a non-enclitic subject precedes a disjunctive attribute, are not common: Ipinakìkipagpútól ni Hwàn si Pédro naŋ labòŋ. Juan is asking someone to cut some bamboo-shoots for Pedro.

172. In meaning disjunctive attribution includes almost all cases in which an object element is viewed as the attribute of another ³⁰element in the sentence. The only exception is the sphere of relations expressed by local attribution (§ 195 ff.). The meanings may, very roughly, be divided into seven groups: (1) possessive-partitive, (2) agent, (3) direct object, (4) instrumental object, (5) local object, (6) manner, (7) time.

the end, the last night, an ilà η sandalì nan pagsasàlitáan a few moments of the conversation; cf. an ilà η sandalì η pagsasàlitáan a few moments (which consisted) of conversation. Note: an báyan nan Balíwag the town of Baliwag, an provínsya nan Pampànga ¹⁰the province of Pampanga.

174. The pronoun lahàt as an object expression is followed by this kind of attribute: lahàt nan táo all (of) the people.

175. As an object expression saríle self is modified by disjunctive pronouns: an kanyà η saríle his self. Similarly saríle as ¹⁵conjunctive attribute, in the sense of own: Walá sya η baìt sa kanya η saríli. He does not do even himself any good. an saríle nila η bànda nan músika their own band of music; An kanya η saríli η barìl an kanya η ginámit. It was his own gun he used, What he used was his own gun. Cf. §§ 137 and 169, end.

177. Here belongs further the disjunctive attribute with words expressing association, companionship, or equality: Si ²⁵Hwána ay siyà η kabùlúnan ni Maryà. Juana is the one with whom Maria is whispering. An mésa η itò ay kasiṅkúlay nan kahòn. This table is of the same color as the chest. Si Hwàn ay kapantày ni Pédro. Juan is of the same height as Pedro. Kalákip nan súlat ko η itò ay limà η píso. Enclosed with this my letter are ³⁰five pesos. gáya ko like me.

178. Similar is the use of a disjunctive modifier expressing one of the objects, with expressions involving dual or plural ideas: silà ni Maryà they with Maria, i. e. Maria and he (88,₄₂), silà η dalawà ni Maryà (92,₁₇).

³⁵179. Here belongs the disjunctive attribute in exclamatory sentences expressing the high degree of a quality; these are formed with anò (§ 131) and with words with prefix ka- (§ 76): Ano η hína mo! What weakness of-you! i. e. How weak you are! Anu η luwàt nan hindí nya pagdatìṅ! What duration of his not arriving! ⁴⁰i. e. How long he is getting here! Kapulà nan panyo η iyòn! What-great-redness of that handkerchief! i. e. How red that handkerchief is! Karúnoη nan báta η si Hwàn! How much little Juan knows! Kaytipìd na báta' ni Hwàn! How-saving a child of Juan! i. e. What an economical boy Juan is!

180. In the preceding and related constructions the attribute may be an entire predication: Kamuntí nan màtamaàn aη báta'! ⁵*What-little-lack of the (occurrence that) the child should-be-hit!* i. e. How near the child came to being hit! Muntí nan máliguwak aη dala nyà η pulòt. Little-wanting of-the (occurrence that) should-be-spilled the borne by-him honey, i. e. The honey he was carrying came near being spilled.

¹⁰181. (2) A disjunctive attribute expressing the agent corresponds in sense to the subject of an active transient predicate. When it modifies a transient word, the corresponding active can be formed: Sinúlat nya aη líham. He wrote the letter; literally: Was-written by-him (agent) the letter. Isinúlat nya aη kwènto. ¹⁵*He wrote down the story.* Sinulátan nya akò. He wrote to me. The corresponding active is: Syà y sumúlat.... He wrote.... Cf. § 92. So further: Pinútol nya aη káhoη. The wood was cut by him; active: Syà y pumútol nan káhoη. He cut some wood. Kinúha nya aη librò. The book was taken by him; active: Syà ²⁰y kumúha nan librò. He took some book. Áki η binitíwan aη bóte. By-me was-let-go-of the bottle, i. e. I let go of the bottle; active: Bumitìw akò.... Aη hinirà m nya η kampìt ay iyo η kúnin. The borrowed by-him (agent) kitchen-knife by-you (agent) is to be taken, i. e. Take the kitchen-knife he borrowed.

182. When disjunctive agent is the speaker (kò by me ³⁵ or its substitute áki η) and the subject is the person addressed (ikàw, kà thou), the pronoun kità usually takes the place of both. This is the commoner value of kità (cf. § 63): Sùsuṇaṇáin kità. I'll smash your face; the subject of this direct passive expression is the person addressed, the agent the speaker: Ikàw ay áki η ⁴⁰sùsuṇaṇáin would be an unidiomatic equivalent. Ipaglálaba kità naṇ damìt. I shall wash your clothes for you. The predicate is instrumental passive, with you, the person for whom, as subject. Hàhatdan kità naṇ gátas. I shall deliver milk to you; local passive.

Occasionally the agent is redundantly added: Kità ay áki η parùrusáhan. I shall punish you.

⁵183. A disjunctive agent is used with the words expressing recent completion of an act with prefix ka- and reduplication: (§ 77): Karáratin ko pa lámaṇ! I have only just arrived. Kakàkáin ko pa lámaṇ! I have only just finished eating.

184. (3) A disjunctive attribute expressing the direct object ¹⁰ corresponds to the subject of a direct passive transient predicate: Sya y kumáin naṇ kánin. He ate some boiled rice. Passive: Kináin nya aṇ kánin. Was-eaten by-him the boiled rice, i. e. He ate the boiled rice.

It will be seen that when the direct object is definite it is ¹⁵ more likely to serve as subject of a passive predicate (§ 94); hence the disjunctive attribute expressing a direct object has often an indefinite partitive value. Sya y sumúlat naṇ líham. He wrote some letters. Sya y pumútol naṇ káhoy. He cut some wood. Bigyàn mo akò niyà η túbig. Give me some of that water. Katátagpi ²⁰ko niyòn! I have just finished mending that! Sya y naghintày naṇ sàsabíhin naṇ sundálo. He awaited that which was going to be said by the soldier.

185. (4) A disjunctive attribute expressing the instrument corresponds to the subject of an instrumental passive transient ²⁵ predicate: Sya y sumúlat naṇ kwènto. He wrote down a story, stories. Passive: Isinúlat nya an kwènto. Was-written-down by-him the story, i. e. He wrote down the story.

The indefinite value of the disjunctive attribute is here due to the same relation as in the preceding type. Pinútol nya nan ³⁰gúlok an káhoy. The wood was cut by him with a bolo; instrumental passive: Ipinútol nya nan káhoy an gúlok. Was-used-for-cutting by-him of wood the bolo, i. e. He cut wood with the bolo. Binigyàn nya akò nan aklàt. He gave me a book.

186. So a direct quotation or an entire predication: An ³⁵bulàg ay sumigàw nan “Tatlò!” The blindman shouted “Three!”; passive: Isinigàw nan bulàg an “Tatlò!” An báwat isa sa kanilà ay sumagòt nan súgay an kanila n nàkikíta. Each one answered that horns were what they saw.

187. (5) Disjunctive attributes of place correspond to the ⁴⁰subject of a local passive transient predication: Syà y pumanhik nan báhay. He entered a house; passive: Pinanhikàn nya an báhay. He entered the house. An pagòn ay nagumpisà nan pagsisigàw. The turtle began (a) shouting; passive: Inumpisahàn nan pagòn an pagsisigàw.

These attributes are in meaning rather close to local attributes (§ 203); as opposed to the latter they are, however, the ⁵real correspondents of the subject of a local passive transient predication, expressing a real participation of the object in the action or occurrence,—whereas the local attributes express the place of the action as something more or less unaffected and independent.

¹⁰188. (6) Disjunctive attributes of manner do not correspond to any kind of subject. When they are used with a transient word the sentence may, however, be reversed so as to make of the attribute a transient predicate of a sentence in which the action (as subject) is spoken of as being “made such and such”. ¹⁵Tumakbò sya nan matúlin. He ran fast. The words nan matúlin are the disjunctive form of an object expression, an matúlin, which would resemble German das schnelle. Our sentence corresponds to: Tinulínan nya an pagtakbò. Was-made-fast by-him his running, He ran fast. Syà y tumáwa naŋ malakàs. He ²⁰*laughed aloud*, cf. Inilakas nyà aŋ pagtáwa. He made his laughing loud. ... mánákaw naŋ hindí nito nàláláman should be stolen in the manner of not by-him known, i. e. should be stolen without his knowing it. mataàs naŋ kauntè' higher by a little, a little higher.

²⁵189. Expressions of indefinite quantity are used in this way: Silà y nagtakbúhan naŋ wala ŋ hintò'. They ran without stopping. This construction is in rivalry with that of conjunctive attribution (§ 146).

190. The demonstrative pronouns and the interrogative pronoun ³⁰anò are not used as attributes of manner; for this value they have separate derivatives: ganitò, ganiyàn, gayòn or ganoòn, and gaáno or gáno. These forms, moreover, occur also as static predicates and as conjunctive attributes of quality: aŋ báwat sumagòt naŋ ganitò every one who answered in this way; this could be ³⁵viewed also as an instrumental object. Ganitò aŋ kalàgáyan nilà. Their condition was like this. aŋ ganitò ŋ maŋa paglalarò' such games as this; Ganyàn ba lámaŋ aŋ kínis mo? Is your skill merely like that? Nakàsúlat akò kay Hwàn naŋ gayòn dahilàn sa malakì ko ŋ pagkagálit. I came to write like that (or such things, cf. ⁴⁰instrumental object) to Juan through my great anger. Ganoòn aŋ áki ŋ pagkárinìg. That was the way (i. e. the form in which) I heard the thing. Aŋ gayù ŋ pananalità' that manner of speaking, that expression. gánu ŋ pagpílit? how much effort? Gaáno aŋ pagkakagalit nila? How great, how serious is their quarrel? (Cf. § 96).

191. A special case of the disjunctive attribute of manner is the repetition of a word as its own disjunctive modifier, expressing ⁵continuity or insistence of action: Humábà naŋ humába'. It grew longer and longer. Aŋ kanila ŋ báon ay umuntí naŋ umuntì'. Their provisions grew less and less. Si Hwàn ay táwa naŋ táwa. Juan laughs and laughs. Bilì naŋ bilì si Hwàn naŋ pálay. Juan keeps buying rice.

hápon. They went there in the afternoon. So: naŋ umága in the morning, noò ŋ tagáraw ¹⁵(naŋ taò ŋ míle-nobisyèntos-dòs) in the summer (of the year 1902). Naŋ umulàn ay ginámit ko aŋ kapóte. When it rained I used my rain-coat. Nàlákad sina Pédro naŋ hindì óras. Pedro and his party had to start at a time not planned; literally: when not time.

²⁰193. Complete predications as disjunctive attributes of time are common. It is as though the whole predication were objectivized: Naŋ dumatìŋ ako doòn ay sya y walá na. When I arrived there he was already gone. Noo ŋ sya y bágo ŋ táo pa lámaŋ.... When he was still but a young man....

²⁵194. Anaphorically determined disjunctive attributes are often omitted. Íbig nya ŋ kánin aŋ súha'. Desired by-him that be-eaten (by-him) the grape-fruit, i. e. He wants to eat the grape-fruit. Naŋhiŋí sya sa kanya ŋ maŋa kapatìd. He asked his brothers and sisters (for some). Hindí nila sya binigyàn. He was ³⁰not given (any) by them, They did not give him any.

c. Local attributes.

195. An object expression in local attribution expresses a local circumstance of that which is modified, such as the place in, to, or from which, that from whose midst, that about which ³⁵or owing to which, the person to whom, etc.

196. In this construction initial si is replaced by kay (atonic), sinà by kinà (pretonic), and aŋ by sa (atonic); object expressions which begin with none of these particles take sa: Si Pédro ay galit kay Hwàn. Pedro is angry at Juan. Nakitúluy ⁴⁰kamì kina Pédro. We asked hospitality of Pedro's family. Syà y nanáog sa báhay. He came out of his house. sa boo ŋ báyan in the whole town.

Rarely both sa and kay precede a personal name: Itò y nàtúto sa kay Mayèstro ñ Hwàn. This one got his training from ⁵Teacher Juan. añ pagkàbúhay nañ médiko sa kay Hwàn the doctor's saving of Juan's life.

197. The personal pronouns and síno take their prepositive forms after sa: Ibinigày nya sa ákin añ aklàt. Was-given by-him to me the book, i. e. He gave me the book.

¹⁰198. In a peculiar construction these prepositive forms are preceded by the particle ganà as a conjunctive attribute, in the sense of so far as ... is concerned: Sa ganà ñ ákin sya y maàári ñ umalìs. So far as I am concerned he may leave.

199. The demonstrative pronouns and anò never stand in ¹⁵local attribution, see § 263 f.

200. Whole predications are rarely used as local attributes:

Dumatìñ añ dalága ñ itò sa dalawa ñ pù ñ taòn añ gúlañ. This young woman arrived at (the time when) her age was twenty years, i. e. reached the age of twenty years.

Often, however, a disjunctive attribute which is felt to belong closely to what precedes, comes before a local attribute: Bayad-útañ ni Hwàn sa ákin añ relòs na itò. This watch is Juan's ³⁰debt-payment to me.

Occasionally the local attribute precedes the expression modified: Syà y sa bañkà' nañ maña babáe nakíkisakày. He goes along into the canoe of the women. Sa kabilà ŋ bandà mo ibwàl aŋ púno ŋ iyàn. Make that tree fall in the direction away from me.

³⁵202. Very frequently, however, local attributes are loosely joined, preceding or following; in the former case ay, y is sometimes omitted: Sa Báya-ŋ-San-Migèl ay nanjyáre aŋ isa ŋ nakawàn. In the town of San Miguel a robbery took place. Hindí makadádala si Pédro nanj kahòn sa kabigatàn nilà. Pedro will not ⁴⁰be able to carry any boxes, on account of their heaviness. Sa ganà ŋ ákin sya y maàári ŋ umalìs. So far as I am concerned he can go. (§ 198).

203. We have seen that disjunctive attribution expresses the relation of objects (direct object, local object, instrumental object, §§ 184, 185, 187) to an action, provided that these objects are more or less indefinite. If they are quite definite, they are ⁵preferably made subjects in a passive construction. Frequently, however, they are instead put into local attribution, which thus competes with these types of disjunctive attribution, but involves a more definite object: Aŋ báhay na batò ay aŋ áki ŋ pinaghàhatdàn nanj gátas. The stone house is the place to which I am ¹⁰delivering milk (instrumental object), i. e. I am delivering milk to the stone house; but: Aŋ báhay na batò ay aŋ áki ŋ pinaghàhatdàn sa báta'. The stone house is where I am bringing the child. (nanj báta' would be a child or children).

It follows that the personal pronouns, which always refer to ¹⁵definite persons, cannot stand as disjunctive objects of transient words, but stand instead in local attribution: Aŋ báhay na batò ay aŋ áki ŋ pinaghàhatdàn sa kanyà. The stone house is the place where I am taking him.

Similarly a personal name: Ibigày mo kay Hwàn aŋ librò. ²⁰*Give Juan the book*; cf. Bigyàn mo nanj librò si Hwàn. Give Juan a book; “Juan” could not figure as disjunctive local object.

204. In many cases, however, these local attributes differ from disjunctive attributes and from the corresponding subjects of passive constructions: the local attribute represents the object ²⁵as more externally involved and less thoroughly concerned in the occurrence: Humúkay sila naŋ bakúran. They dug up some yards. Hinukáyan nilà aŋ bakúran. They dug up the yard. In both sentences a serious change, such as unauthorized tampering, is implied; but: Humúkay sila sa bakúran. They dug in the yard, ³⁰merely tells where they did their digging. Sya y pumanhìk naŋ báhay. He entered a house (or houses), perhaps illicitly; the house is viewed as in some way affected or intimately involved in the action; so also: Pinanhikàn nya aŋ báhay. He entered the house; but: Sya y pumanhìk sa báhay. He went into the house, ³⁵*He went into his house.*

205. In other cases, where a transient predicate is not involved, the same difference appears: the local attribute is a mere scene or attendant circumstance, the disjunctive a real factor: Aŋ pagtatábon naŋ maŋa húkay na itò ay tapus nà. The filling ⁴⁰*up of these ditches is now finished,* i. e. These ditches are filled up now; but: Aŋ pagtatábon sa maŋa húkay ay mahírap. Filling earth into ditches is hard work. karamíhan naŋ maŋa táo most of the people; karamíhan sa kanilà most of them; sa ganitò under these circumstances; naŋ ganitò (§ 190) thus, in this manner.

206. Expressions of time as local attributes denote future time when; occasionally also past time: Páparoòn akò sa makalawà. ⁵*I shall go there the day after tomorrow.* So: sa lúnes next Monday, cf. noò ŋ lúnes last Monday. Pího akò ŋ páparoòn sa alasìŋko. I will surely go there at five o'clock. Sa gabi ŋ iyòn.... That night....

207. With jussive words with prefix pa- (see Morphology) ¹⁰the person ordered to do so-and-so is viewed as a local feature: Ipinagupìt ko sa barbéro ŋ si Hwàn aŋ buhòk ni Andrès. Was-ordered-to-be-cut by-me of-the barber Juan the hair of Andrés, i. e. I ordered the barber Juan to cut Andrés' hair.

208. Rarely an expression in local attribution is used as a ¹⁵conjunctive attribute in an object expression: it precedes and has the meaning of a disjunctive attribute of possessor: aŋ sa ibà ŋ táo ŋ kawáyan other people's bamboo, or: aŋ kawáyan naŋ ibà ŋ táo.

209. This construction is much commoner when that owned ²⁰is anaphorically omitted: aŋ sa pagòŋ that of the turtle, the turtle's, i. e. aŋ púno naŋ pagòŋ. So: aŋ sa kanyà his, hers.

210. In other cases anaphoric omission of an element modified by a local attribute is less common: aŋ pagsakàŋ sa trèn sa lugàr naŋ sa karumáta the riding on the train in place of the ²⁵(sc. pagsakàŋ riding) in the carriage.

211. A static predicate may have the form of a local attribute: Sa liŋgò aŋ áki ŋ lúlan sa trèn. On (next) Sunday my embarking on the train, i. e. Next Sunday I shall take the train. Aŋ uupà ŋ itò ay sa háre'. This seat is for the king.

³⁰212. The particle sa has a number of derivatives which are transient in meaning, but otherwise have the same construction as sa; they are pretonic. Sya y nása Mayníla'. He is in Manila. Sya y nása kanya ŋ báhay. He is in his house. Aŋ tinterúhan ay nása bíŋit naŋ lamésa. The inkwell is at the edge of the table. ³⁵For these forms see Morphology.

d. Absolute attributes.

213. Absolute attribution, in which no particle is used, is confined to certain expressions and types of expressions. Some absolute attributes and some of the particles introducing absolute ⁴⁰attributes end in -ŋ or -t; these may contain the particle ŋ or at (§ 313).

We may divide the cases of absolute attribution into six types, although these are not fully distinct from one another: (1) enclitic particles, (2) prepositive particles, (3) single words used as attributes of manner and time, (4) absolute complements, (5) words used with disjunctive and local attributes, (6) words introducing ⁵*subordinate phrases or predications*.

(1) enclitic particles.

214. The enclitic particles which are used as absolute attributes follow a monosyllabic enclitic pronoun (kà, kò, mò) but precede a disyllabic enclitic pronoun (including niyà, nyà, siyà, syà). ¹⁰Among themselves they follow the general rule: monosyllabic enclitics precede disyllabic enclitics (§ 47).

215. bà is expressive of interrogation in yes-and-no questions and often in others: Máy-roon ba silà η ginawà'? Have they done anything? Máy-roon ka bà η gágawìn? Have you anything ¹⁵to do? Ipinùpútól mo ba akò naη tubò? Will you cut some sugar-cane for me? Pinapagpùpútól ba nila syà naη káhoy? Does he get ordered by them to cut wood? i. e. Do they have him cut wood? Ano bà aη inilùlútu mo? What is it you are cooking? Anu ba kayò? What sort of people are you? Hindí mu ba nàkíta si ²⁰Hwàn sa teyátro? Didn't you see Juan at the theatre? Aη iyo bà η kapatìd? Your sister? See §§ 223. 229.

216. bagà throws more stress on the interrogation: Ikàw bagà y nagasáwa? Did you (ever) get married? See §§ 290. 317.

217. dàw, ràw expresses that the sentence represents the ²⁵saying of someone other than the speaker; the person so quoted may be the agent of the sentence itself: Pagkà pinapagpútól mo ràw sya naη kawáyan ay làláyas syà. When he is ordered by you to cut bamboo, he will leave, I am told, or: he will leave, he says. Aη paguupú raw nya sa damò ay mabúti sa kanyà. He ³⁰says (or: They say) his habit of sitting on the grass is good for him. It is sometimes used pleonastically, see the example in § 278.

218. dìn, rìn expresses that the expression modified (which may be the whole sentence or an element within the sentence) is ³⁵like a corresponding earlier idea: Ako rìn aṅ nagpalígo sa báta'. It was I, too, that bathed the child (beside the other things I did), i. e. I also bathed the child. Si Hwan dìn aṅ naglínis naṅ kabalyerésa. Juan also cleaned a stable or stables (beside the other things he did). Si Hwàn ay naglínis rìn naṅ kabalyerésa. ⁴⁰*Juan, too, cleaned stables*. Here dìn is an attribute of naglínis naṅ kabalyerésa: this act has been performed by Juan even as by others previously spoken of or known of. Si Hwána ay naglúto naṅ estopádo; kamakalawà naglútu rin akò naṅ estopádo. Juana cooked meat-stew; day-before-yesterday I too cooked meat-stew. Iyo ṅ úna ṅ kumalabòg ay akò, aṅ ikalawà ay ako rìn. ⁵*That first thing which came down with a thud was I, the second was I again*. Nahúlog dìn syà. He fell down again. Káhit na madilím aṅ gabì ay nagpasyal dìn si Pédro. Although the night was dark, Pedro none the less (i. e. even as at other times) took a walk.

¹⁰Thus dìn is especially common in expressions of identity: Kahápon ay nakàkíta ako naṅ isa ṅ táo sa Mayníla', at ṅayòn ay nàkíta ko aṅ táwo rì ṅ iyòn sa báya ṅ itò. Yesterday I saw a man in Manila, and today I saw the same man in this town.

In some instances dìn modifies an element not actually identical ¹⁵with another. Nagtalòn sya sa bintána', dátapuwat sinundàn din syà naṅ amà. He jumped out of a window, but he was followed, too, by the father. See §§ 221. 227. 238. 239. 262, (11).

219. kayà' expresses doubt or possibility of choice: Anò kayà' aṅ ipinagútos mo sa kanyà? What perchance did you order ²⁰*him to do?* Màpàpagkúro' kayá nya sa súlat na iyàn aṅ íbig mo ṅ gawìn nya. Perhaps he may be able to make out from this letter of yours what you want him to do. Baká kayà' magkaputòl aṅ maṅa tubò sa kalakasàn naṅ háṅi ṅ itò. I am afraid that perhaps the sugar-cane may all break off, what with the strength ²⁵*of this wind*.

For another use of kayà' see § 297; cf. §§ 317. 321.

220. lámaŋ only: Isà lámaŋ aŋ mansáнас na nátira sa lamésa. Only one apple is left on the table. So: íisa lámaŋ only a single one. Sila ŋ tatlò ay walà ŋ pagkáin kuŋ hindí aŋ itlòg ³⁰lámaŋ na nàtìtirà. The three had no food except only the egg that was left.

Occasionally lámaŋ follows the expression it modifies: isa ŋ ikápat na partè lámaŋ only a fourth part.

Sometimes a na is left off after lámaŋ: Ákin lámaŋ pinùputlàn ³⁵naŋ buhòk. By-me (for ákin ... na, ŋ) only (he, anaphoric) is-getting-cut of hair, i. e. I am only cutting his hair. siya lámaŋ kàkáin naŋ itlòg he (who; normally this relation is expressed by na, ŋ) will-eat the egg, i. e. the one who is alone to eat the egg. See §§ 227. 243.

⁵With interrogatives màn produces indefinites: Walà ŋ anu màn. There is nothing at all; also: Not at all, i. e. You're welcome. aŋ ano mà ŋ pasákit any kind of injury; aŋ alin mà ŋ paŋkàt any team; sínu màn any person whatever, anyone at all. See §§ 227. 248. 262, (7. 10). 290. 317.

223. nà takes into view the maturity of a situation (cf. ¹⁵German schon): Aŋ librò y gamit nà. The book is used already, i. e. is second-hand. Agad nà ŋ lálamìg. It will soon be cold now. Paálam na akò (sa iyò). Good-bye (to you). Nahánap ko nà aŋ sombréro. I have already looked for the hat. Nahánap na nyà aŋ sombréro. He has.... aŋ maláon na nila ŋ pagpupuyàt ²⁰gabi-gabì their long staying up now every night, i. e. the fact that they have staid up late every night now. íisa na lámaŋ paŋkàt only a single group now. It precedes bà (§ 215): Nakahandá na ba aŋ áki ŋ paŋpalígo? Is my bath ready? Gánu ka na bà kakínis? How clever are you by this time?

²⁵It is used also in brusque or familiar commands: Pálù na sa kanya ŋ kamày! Hit him on his hand! Sáma na sa ákin. Come to me (to a child). Ílag ka na riyàn! Be off there! See §§ 224. 226. 227. 229. 242. 244.

224. namàn expresses transition to another subject, hence ³⁰often also mild contrast: Hábaŋ si Hwána ay naglùlúto', si Hwàn namàn ay naglìlínis naŋ báhay. While Juana is cooking, Juan cleans the house. Anu ka ba namà ŋ táo? What sort of person are you, anyway? Ibà namàn aŋ gawìn mo ŋ lúto sa manòk. You are to cook the chicken in a different way. siya rìn namàn ³⁵nyà ŋ karanyúwa ŋ kinàkáin that which, however, is usually eaten by him.

The combination nà namàn means again: Maínit na namàn. It's hot again.

225. nawà' pray, please expresses imprecation: Kaawaàn ⁴⁰nawà' ninyo kamì, poo ŋ Dyòs! Take pity on us, O Lord!

226. nà' is assertive and emphasizing: Oo nà'. Yes indeed. Ikaw nà' aŋ nagsábi niyàn. You yourself are the one who said that. It is used in polite requests: Itúru ŋa ninyò sa ákin aŋ daàn. Please show me the way. Ipakipútol mo nà', Hwàn, aŋ tinibàn sa áki ŋ bakúran. Please, Juan, cut down for me the banana-stump in my yard. It follows nà: Pakipútol na nà' aŋ sinúlid na itò. Please cut this string for me. See § 229.

was, however, not yet light enough. Kagìgísìṅ ko pa lámaṅ. I have only just waked up. See §§ 243. 248.

228. palà, used after hindì' (§ 239), expresses contrast with ¹⁵one's expectation, reversal: Aṅ ísip ko y balat lámaṅ naṅ itlòg itò, hindí palà, kun dí' itlòg na boò'. I thought this was only an egg-shell, but no, it was a whole egg.

229. pò' is expressive of politeness toward the person addressed: Oo pò'. Yes, sir; Yes, ma'am. Patàtawárin pò'! Pardon ²⁰*me*; used also in refusing to give alms. Patàtawárin po naṅ ilà ṅ sandalè'. Excuse me for a few moments, please. Maghintú pu kayò. Please stop (plural or polite singular). Magsihintú pu kayò. Please stop (explicit plural). Umupú po kayò. Please sit down. Maupú po kayò. Please be seated. Ikinalúlunṅkot ko pò' ²⁵aṅ kasawià-ṅ-pálad na naṅyáre sa inyò. I lament the misfortune which has come to you. aṅ iyo pò ṅ Kamàhálan your Majesty. pò' precedes bà and follows nà and ṅà': Kaawaàn na pò' ninyo kamì, poo ṅ Dyòs! Take pity on us, O Lord! Maàári pu bà ṅ kayò y maghintò'? Can you please stop? Occasionally pò' follows ³⁰that modified: Magandà ṅ áraw pò'! Good day; How do you do?

230. sána expresses unreal futurity in the past or doubtful futurity in the present; in the latter sense it expresses modesty in a request: Ipaglálaba sána kità naṅ iyo ṅ damìt, ṅúnit walà' ako ṅ sabòn. I would wash your clothes for you, but I have no soap. ³⁵Isinúlat ko sa kanyà ṅ pilítin sána niya ṅ màparíto sa átin, pag sya y nàrìritò sa báya ṅ itò. I wrote to him to try to get round here to us when he gets to this town.

231. tulòy further, in continuation: Sinábi tulòy niyà.... He said further....

⁴⁰232. ulè' again, equivalent with mulì' (§ 148), has two irregularities: it is often not enclitic but closely joined postpositive, and, in this case, it may, entirely like mulì', be conjunctive instead of absolute: Nahúlog ulí sya. He fell again; but: Umakyàt sya ulè'. He climbed again; and even: ... naṅ magdaàn sya ṅ ulè' sa pasíga ṅ itò.... when he again walked on this beach.

(2) prepositive particles.

⁵233. Certain particles used as absolute attributes always precede that modified. They fall into two groups: (A) regular closely joined modifiers, and (B) particles which immediately precede single words or short phrases.

234. (A) The closely joined particles usually receive regular ¹⁰treatment, being followed, for instance, by enclitics. Occasionally, however, the feeling seems to be that the particle is, as it were, placed before the whole sentence; in this case a non-enclitic subject or a loosely joined attribute or a second closely joined attribute may follow the particle, and the last-named may (instead ¹⁵of the particle) be followed by some or all of the enclitics.

In the case of huwàg (§ 240) we meet for the first time alternation of absolute and conjunctive attribution, which mostly follows the principle that the latter construction is used where η (as opposed to na) is possible (§ 122).

²⁰235. bakà' is expressive of an undesired contingency; it is the negative of wishes and fears: Baká ka maputúlan naη dalíri', Hwàn. You might get your finger cut off, Juan, i. e. See that you don't ... or I hope you won't.... Baká nya ikátawà aη iyo η sàsabíhin. Perhaps what you intend to say will only make ²⁵him laugh. Baká táyu aη pagbintaηàn naη páre'. I am afraid the priest may suspect us. See § 317.

236. bákit why? Bákit ka naparíto? Why have you come here? Bákit mo inakála' ...? Why do you think...? Bákit hindí ka magáral...? Why don't you learn...?

³⁰237. dì' not is often used instead of hindi' (§ 239) before shorter expressions: dí maláyo' not far, dí karanyúwan unusual, Si Hwàn ay dí natákot na sumakày. Juan was not afraid to mount. See § 301.

238. gayòn (§ 190), in this use always followed by dìn ³⁵(§ 218), also, furthermore: Sya y isa η táo η may kauntì η talíno at gayon dìn may kauntì η tápaη. He was a man of some cleverness and also of some courage.

239. hindi' not is used where the specific negatives áyaw (§ 267), bakà' (§ 235), huwàg (§ 240), and walà' (§§ 61. 81. 89) ⁴⁰are not applicable. Occasionally it is replaced by dì' (§ 237). Hindi'. No. Hindí akò. (It is, was not I; I don't, didn't, etc. Hindí bále. It doesn't matter. Hindí ko nàláláman. I don't know. Hindí ko sya nàkíta. I didn't see him. Hindí ko mabása iyàn. I can't read that. Anj túnay na lakì naη buwàn ay hindí sya η nàkíkíta naη maηa táo kuη gabè. The real size of the moon is not that which people see at night. anj kanya η tákot na baká hindí nya abúta η buhày anj kanya η inìibig his fear that (perhaps) he should not see his loved one alive.

Hindi' negates only the material part of a word, not its grammatical (affixal) elements: Anj kamahalàn naη manòk ay sya η hindí ¹⁰ikabilì nitò naη marámi η táo. The high price of chicken is that which not causes-to-buy it many people, i. e. causes many people not to buy it; the idea of buying is the material element of i-ka-bilì (see Morphology); the causal idea, which is expressed by the prefixes i-ka- is not negated. Anj pagkukubli naη maηa sundálo ay ¹⁵siyà nilà η hindí ikinamatày. The hiding of the soldiers is what caused them not to be killed, i. e. saved them from death.

Note hindí rìn (§ 218) also not, nor, and gayòn dìn hindi' (§ 238): Anj dalága η si Mariyà y sumayàw sa bála η táo η humilìη sa kanyà sa sàyáwa η pinaroonàn niya kagabè: sya y hindí ²⁰namíli naη kanya η sinamáhan at hindí rìn namàn namíli naη tugtòg na kanya η sinayawàn; gayon dìn hindí nya ininò anj bílaη at anj kadalasan naη kanyà η pagsayàw. Miss Maria danced with any man that asked her at the dance to which she went last night: she chose neither her partners nor the music to which she danced;

²⁵*nor did she mind the number and the frequency of her dances.* See §§ 228. 237. 301. 319.

240. huwàg, hwàg is the negative of commands, purpose, obligation. Where η is possible conjunctive attribution takes the place of absolute: An haṇàd ay an huwàg bayáa η lumagpàk sa ³⁰lúpà an bóla. The aim is not to let the ball fall to the ground. (46, ³⁶) Sinàsábi nya rító na hwàg sunúgin an ámi η báhay. He told them not to burn our house. An túro sa ákin nan mayèstro ay hwàg akò η mapagawày. The teacher's order to me is that I must not be quarrelsome. Hwag mò η tawánan si Hwàn. Don't ³⁵laugh at Juan. Hwag kà η umyàk. Don't cry. Hwag kà, Hwàn, pumásuk na sekréta. Don't go as a spy, Juan. See § 239.

241. kaniyà', kanyà' therefore, as a result, consequently: Bumitiw an báta' sa lúbid, kanyá náparapà' an kanyà η kahatakàn. The child let go of the rope, and so the one he was pulling ⁴⁰against fell. Kanyà' hindí tulà' an kanya η kinantà. Therefore what he sang was disconnected. Kanyà' sa katapusàn ay sinábi nya... Therefore in the end he said.... Occasionally it is loosely joined: Kanyà y sya y umalìs. Therefore he went away. See §§ 295. 324.

242. láló' (§ 147), in this use always followed by nà (§ 223), especially, very: Lálù na kuṇ isa η tahòl nan áso an makàgísiṇ sa ⁵kanya, sya y nàpàpaluksò. Especially when the barking of a dog awoke him, he would involuntarily jump. Sya y nanàṇáin nan táo lálù nà nan maṇa báta'. It makes its food of people, especially children.

243. sakà' after that, then: Pagkà pinapagpùpútol ko nà ¹⁰sya nan káhoy ay saká sya nagdàdahilà η may sakìt. As soon as I order him to cut wood, (then) he alleges that he is sick.

Especially saká pa láman (§ 227) only then, not till then: Kapag ipinamùmútol na nya nan káhoy an lagári' ay saká mo pa láman kúnin itò sa kanyà. When he uses the saw for cutting wood, ¹⁵only then do you take it from him.

244. tuwè' when followed by nà (§ 223) is used as a loosely joined prepositive attribute: every time: Tuwí nà y syà aṇ naḡiṇ mánanalò. He turns out victorious every single time. See §§ 307. 317.

²⁰245. (B) The particles of the second group are mechanically prefixed, as it were, to that modified.

246. The pretonic particle báwat every precedes that modified, forming an object expression with or without aṇ (§ 66, end): Báwat marúnuṇ naṇ lekxyòn ay makaáalis pagdatiṇ naṇ alasìṅko. ²⁵*Everyone who knows the lesson will be allowed to leave at five o'clock.* Aṇ báwat hindi marúnuṇ naṇ lekxyòn ay màtìtirà haṅgàṇ alasès. Every one of those who do not know the lesson will have to stay till six o'clock. báwat táo everyone, each person.

247. gaáno, gáno how? (§ 190) is used absolutely before ³⁰words with prefix ka- expressing high degree of a quality (see Morphology and cf. §§ 76. 179): gáno katabà'? How fat? gáno kaláyo'? How far? Gánu ka na bà kakínis? How clever are you now?

248. The pretonic particle káhit precedes interrogatives and ³⁵*isà* one absolutely or with na; its force is generalizing, more emphatically than màn (§ 221). The expression so formed is an object expression used with or without aṇ (§ 68): aṇ káhit na síno, aṇ káhit síno, káhit na síno, káhit síno anyone, anyone whatever, no matter who, káhit anò anything whatever, káhit na anu ṇ ⁴⁰*táo any sort of person whatever, káhit na sínu ṇ táo any person whatever, sa káhit alì ṇ bandà in any direction, káhit isà anyone whatever, even one.*

These expressions are often strengthened by màn (§ 221) or pà màn (§ 227): Hindí na sya sumakà y sa káhit ano pa màn. This time he did not ride on anything. káhit sínu màn anyone at all.

Expressions beginning with káhit have the peculiarity that ⁵in the two normally conjunctive constructions in which they stand na, ṇ is often omitted before them:

After walà' (§ 138): Walá káhit anò. There isn't a thing. Walá sila káhit anò. They haven't a thing. So even when walà' does not immediately precede: Nàbuksàn aṅ pintú naṅ wala ṅ¹⁰nakàmálay káhit sínu màn. The door came open without anyone noticing it. Walá pa sila ṅ nàhùhúli káhit anò. They had not yet caught anything, literally: anything that was caught. Walá sya ṅ nàláláman káhit isa ṅ hóta. He did not know a single iota. Occasionally na, ṅ is used: Walá sya ṅ màkíta ṅ táo ṅ káhit anò.¹⁵ He saw no person whatever.

As (normally conjunctive, § 149) attribute of time during which: Sya y hindí màtahímik káhit isà ṅ sandalè'. He cannot keep quiet even for a single moment. See §§ 253. 294.

249. kápuwà', kápwa' fellow-, equally, applied to one of a ²⁰pair, is sometimes used with personal pronouns: in this case it follows (cf. § 129): Si Pédro at si Hwàn ay dalawa ṅ kápwa magnanákaw. Pedro and Juan are two fellow thieves. aṅ kápwa nya magnanákaw his fellow-thief, Kápuwa maínam aṅ tinìg nila ṅ dalawà. The voices of the two are equally pleasant. Kápwa²⁵ sila malakàs. They are equally strong. Sinàsaktan silà kápuwa'. They both get hurt. Redundantly: Namílog si Hwàn naṅ úlo naṅ kápwa nya kalarò'. Juan fooled (literally: rounded the head of) his (fellow) playmate.

The word modified may be anaphorically omitted: Aṅ táwo³⁰ y hindí dápat sumakìt naṅ kanya ṅ kápwa'. One must not injure one's fellow (sc. táo man).

250. The transient pretonic particle magìṅ and its other transient forms (see Morphology) express that the word or phrase modified is something coming into being, arising, at the time ³⁵specified by the tense-form of the particle: Sya y nagìṅ hukòm. He became judge. aṅ nagìṅ pagkáhulè the falling-behind which arose, Nagìṅ isa syà sa maṅa hindí nátaṅgàp. He turned out to be one of those who were not accepted.

251. The pretonic particle maṅà is the sign of explicit plurality ⁴⁰with object expressions. It precedes the central element immediately, not even the na, ṅ necessitated by a preceding conjunctive attribute comes between; only ibà may come after maṇà: aṇ kanyà ṇ magúlaṇ, or: aṇ kanyà ṇ maṇa magúlaṇ his, her parents, aṇ maṇa ibà ṇ táo other people. Redundantly: Sa tapàt naṇ báhay ni Pédro ay marámi ṇ maṇa bulaklák. In front of Pedro's house there are many flowers. Aṇ áraw ay sya ṇ pinópoon naṇ ilà ṇ maṇa salbáhe sa Áfrika. The sun is worshipped by some savages in Africa. And even: aṇ maṇa ilan pà ṇ maṇa tanòṇ several further questions. With maṇà compare the prefix of the same form, see Morphology.

252. The pretonic particle máy belongs here. For examples see §§ 69. 70. 85. 110. 139.

Occasionally nì seems to take the place of naṇ before káhit: Bákit hindí sya makátagpo nì káhit isà naṇ maṇa bágay na itò? Why could he not meet even a single one of these things? Cf. ²⁰§ 319.

254. The pretonic particle tagà, tigà preceding an expression of place forms an expression denoting a person from that place: *Sya y isa ṇ taga Kapampájan. He is a Pampangan. aṇ taga búkid, aṇ tiga búkid: aṇ isa ṇ táo ṇ túbo sa búkid a country-man: ²⁵a person raised in the country, aṇ mayáma ṇ taga iba ṇ báyan the rich man from another town, stranger, foreigner, aṇ maṇa taga iba t ibà ṇ lupain people from various countries. So: taga báyan, tiga báyan townsman, taga Filipínas Filipino, taga Amérika American, taga Espánya Spaniard (beside Amerikáno, ³⁰Kastíla'). Cf. in Morphology, the prefix taga-.*

255. Numerative pronouns and cardinal numerals are used as absolute attributes before katáo persons, men: sa m pú katáo ten people, ten men; or:

sa m pù ŋ táo; Ilàn katáo (or: Ilà ŋ táo) aŋ bumúhat sa báhay? How many men lifted at the house?

³⁵256. The terms of relationship and titles which are treated as personal names (§ 59) precede a name as absolute attributes; after most of those that end in a syllabic, n, or ', ŋ is however used. Some titles occur only in this construction: si Kúya ŋ Pédro my oldest brother Pedro, si Atè Lóleŋ my oldest sister ⁴⁰*Lola*, si Inkòŋ Píro Grandfather Pedro, si Indà ŋ Hwána, or: si Impò ŋ Hwána Grandmother Juana, si Áli ŋ Maryà, or: si Tiyà Maryà Aunt Maria, si Mà ŋ Andrès Uncle Andrés, Don Andrés, si Ginoò ŋ Polikàrpiyo Mr. Policarpio, si Gíniŋ Màrkes Miss or Mrs. Marques, si Pári Hwàn Father Juan, si Mayèstro ŋ Pédro Teacher Pedro, Master Pedro, si Báó ŋ Mariyà Widow Maria, si nasíra ŋ Mariyà the deceased Maria.

(3) words used as absolute attributes of manner and time.

257. The words used as absolute attributes of manner and ⁵time resemble in meaning conjunctive attributes and are frequently used in the latter construction. As a rule they are loosely joined and absolute. In this way are used:

258. Derivatives by doubling of words of time, in the sense of every (day, night, etc.). With these goes the compound áraw-gabè ¹⁰*day and night*. For both formations see Morphology. Hinàhatdan nyà akò naŋ gátas áraw-áraw. He delivers milk to me every day. Gabi-gabì ay tinùtulúgan naŋ bantày aŋ áki ŋ báhay. Every night the sentry makes our house his sleeping-place.

259. Words with prefix ka- referring to past time (see Morphology): ¹⁵Aŋ pátáya ŋ nanyári kagabì ay paglalasìŋ aŋ nagìŋ sanhè'. The killing that occurred last night had drunkenness as its cause. Aŋ maŋa áso sa báya ŋ itò ay nagtàhúlan kagabè. The dogs in this town all bayed last night. Aŋ kabáyo ay namatày kahápon. The horse died yesterday. Pumaroòn akò kamakalawà.

²⁰*I went there day before yesterday.*

These may be followed by a disjunctive attribute telling the specific time when: Nagsipútol kamì naṅ tubò kahápon naṅ hápon. We cut sugar-cane yesterday afternoon. So: kahápon naṅ umága yesterday morning.

³⁰With disjunctive attribute telling the special time: Kinàbukásan naṅ hápun ay naparoòn sila sa simbáhan. On the next day in the afternoon they went to church.

261. Words of time preceded by the pronouns boò' and isà as conjunctive modifiers: Sila y nagsipagsugàl gabi-gabì boò ṅ ³⁵magdamàg. They gambled all night every night. Isa ṅ áraw naupó sya sa taburète. One day he sat down on his chair. Aṅ iyò ṅ kapatid ay nalígo isa ṅ hápon. Your sister bathed one afternoon. Isa ṅ gabì ay nárinig ko.... One evening I heard.... So: isa ṅ katanḡhalían one midday, isa ṅ liṅgò one Sunday, isa ṅ ⁴⁰tanḡhále' one noon, isa ṅ umága one morning. As conjunctive attributes: Sya y naglálakad na isa ṅ gabì. He was walking one night. Páparoon sya ṅ isa ṅ liṅgò. He will come one Sunday. Those with boò' also as local attributes: Nakatahul nà aṅ maṅa áso sa boò ṅ magdamàg. The dogs have been barking all night.

262. Various words of time:

⁵(1) antimáno beforehand (Spanish).

(2) búkas tomorrow: Magpàpapútol ba táyo naṅ káhoy búkas? Are we going to have some wood cut tomorrow? With disjunctive attribute of specific time: Magsìsipútol kamì naṅ tubò búkas naṅ umága. We are going to cut sugar-cane tomorrow ¹⁰*morning.*

(3) dáti for a long time already; formerly; it is sometimes closely joined: aṇ mukhá naṇ babáye, na dáti y nagpàpakilála naṇ malakì ṇ paghihírap the face of the woman, which before had been showing great suffering; Dáti náriyàn aṇ mansà ṇ iyàn. ¹⁵*That spot has been there for a long time.* As conjunctive attribute: Dáti sya ṇ napàparíto sa áki ṇ báhay. He has been coming to my house since long ago.

(4) kadasàn often, usually: Aṇ kanya ṇ pinasàsakítan kadasà y nagáanyo ṇ pára ṇ ulòl. The person he is injuring ²⁰*usually acts as if crazy.*

(5) kanína a little while ago, just now: Sinábi ko na pò sa inyo kanína, na.... I just told you a little while ago that....

With a conjunctive attribute of the specific time in the phrase kanína ṇ umága this morning, which may be closely ²⁵joined: Kumáin ka ba kanína ṇ umága naṇ karnè?—Hindí ako kumáin naṇ karnè kanína ṇ umága. Did you eat meat this morning?—I did not eat meat this morning.

(6) karanyúwan mostly, usually: Aṇ kosinéro karanyúwa y upahàn. The cook is usually hired.

³⁰(7) káylan, kélan when? Káylan ako malilígo’? When shall I bathe? Káylan pa kayà paṇhìhinayáṇan naṇ maṇa táo aṇ maṇa áni ṇ taòn-taò y nàsísira naṇ luktòn o naṇ túyot? When, pray, will the people regret the harvests every year destroyed by locusts or by drought? So káylan màn at any time, ever, always ³⁵(§§ 221. 317): Káylan mà y hindí nilìlimútan si Maryà. Maria was never forgotten.

(8) makálawà twice, when with maghápon per day: Naàári ako ṇ malígo makálawa maghápun, dahilàn sa kainítan. I can bathe twice a day on account of the heat. Alone makálawà is a ⁴⁰conjunctive attribute: Makálawa ko ṇ itinanùṇ kuṇ saàn sya páparoòn, dátapuwat hindí nya ako sinagòt. I asked him twice where he was going, but he did not answer me. Maghápon does not occur alone.

(9) mámayà', mámyà' after a while, soon, with a disjunctive attribute of the specific time when: Mámyá naŋ kauntì' ay áalis akò. In a little while I am going. As conjunctive modifier; the phrase so formed is used like mámayà' alone: Mámaya ŋ gabì say pàpások táyo sa teyátro. This evening we shall go to the theatre.

(10) mínsan once, once upon a time: Mínsan sila y nakáraàn naŋ isa ŋ púno-ŋ-nyòg. Once upon a time they came across a cocoanut-tree. With màn at any one time (§ 221): Mínsan ¹⁰*màn* ay hindí sya náuna. Not a single time did he succeed in getting ahead. As conjunctive attribute: Aŋ tatlo ŋ itù y nagtìpána ŋ mínsan. These three once made an appointment.

(11) ŋayòn now, just now, today (cf. § 302): Sya y nása Mayníla ŋayòn. He is in Manila today. Ŋayòn ay maŋàkàkatúlog ¹⁵*silà*. Now they will be able to sleep. So ŋayon òn right now (§ 218): Umalis ka ŋayon òn. Go away this minute.

(12) paráti often: Mahína aŋ kanyà ŋ katawàn at paráti sa sakít. Her body was weak and often in sickness. Also conjunctive: Akò y paráti ŋ nàhàhábol. I am often pursued.

Loosely joined, following: Taginit nà naŋ sya y dumatiŋ dító. It was already summer when he arrived here. Aŋ alíla' ay ³⁵*ipinagamùt* nya dító. The servant was-ordered-to-be-cured by-him of-the-latter, i. e. He had the latter cure the servant. Alis dyàn! Get away there! (e. g. to a dog). Alis na riyàn, Pédro. Go away from there, Pedro. Mátira ka dyàn. Stay there.

Closely joined, preceding: Díne ako maúupò'. I am going ⁴⁰to sit right here. Díto ka na makikáin sa ámin. Eat here with us. Díto nya ginámit aṅ kanya ṅ lakàs. For this he used his strength. Doòn sila magpalípas naṅ bakasyòn. There they are to spend the vacation.

⁵Enclitic: Dalhìn mo ríto iyò ṅ librò ṅ binàbása ko kagabì. Bring here the book I was reading last night. Magdalà ka díto naṅ kasapwégo. Bring some matches.

These words often precede a local attribute: Ílag ka dyàn sa daàn. Get out of the road there. Nakitúloy silà sa ámin doòn ¹⁰sa búkid. They asked us to take them in out there in the country. Note also: Sa isa ṅ karitò ṅ dí maláyo sa báhay, doòn sya nahigà' In a cart not far from the house, there he lay down.

264. Similarly saàn where? which serves also instead of a local form of anò (§ 199). It is closely joined and, as a question-word, ¹⁵precedes: Saàn nároon aṅ kanya ṅ kapatìd?—Hindí ko nàláláman kuṅ saàn nároon aṅ kanya ṅ kapatìd. Where is his brother?—I don't know where his brother is. Saan nàndon sya? Where is he? Saàn mo sya nàkíta? Where did you see him? Saàṅ ka maúupò'? Where are you going to sit? Saàṅ ka gáliṅ? ²⁰Where do you come from? (Cf., for the local value, the answer, e. g.: Gáliṅ ako sa Mayníla'. I come from Manila.) Saàn ka naṅgàgáliṅ? Where are you coming from? Saàn ka naṅgáliṅ? Where have you come from? Saàṅ ka páparon? Where are you going? Saàn ka púpunta? Where are you bound for? So: káhit ²⁵saàn anywhere at all (§ 248): Itò y hindí nya màkíta káhit saàn. He could not find the latter anywhere.

As local form of anò, saàn stands also in conjunctive attribution (§ 131):
 Saà η gawè' mulá ríto aη báya-η-Kamálig?—Sa gawì η kánan mulá ríto aη báya-η-Kamálig. In what direction ³⁰from here is the town of Camalig?—The town of Camalig is to the right of here. Pagkaísip mo, Hwàn, kuη saà η báyan ka maghàhánap-búhay ay sabíhin mo sa ákin. When you have decided, Juan, in what town you will try to earn your living, tell me.

³⁵As a question-word, further, saàn may form a static predicate (§ 96): Saàn aη làgáyan mo naη iyo η sapátos? Where is your place for putting away your shoes?

265. Several words of manner:

(1) The particle agàd at once and its doubled form agad-agàd ⁴⁰*immediately* (see Morphology) are closely joined; where η can be used, they are mostly conjunctive: Tumakbò sya agàd. He ran at once, or: Tumakbò sya η agàd. Minulàn nya agàd aη pagtatalumpáte'. He at once began his speech. Agad nà η lálamìg. It will soon be cold now. Agad-agàd inùumpisahàn aη pagsisìgáwan. At once the yelling begins.

(2) halimbáwa' for example, for instance is loosely joined: Kuη halimbáwa y makàkíta sya naη isa η bákol.... When, for ⁵instance, she saw a basket ... isa η tahòl naη áso halimbáwa' the barking of a dog, for instance.

(3) hálos almost is closely joined: hálos lahàt naη táo almost all the people, walà η pamamáro' hálos almost without clothing.

(4) isa-isà one by one is closely joined; it is more often conjunctive ¹⁰than absolute: Siniyásat nya isa-isà aη maηa púno'. She questioned the trees one by one. Itò y sya nyà η isa-isà η inilaglàg. These he dropped one by one.

(5) karáka-ráka right away, quickly (cf. pagdáka, pagkaráka, below): “Hindí akò!” winíka nya karáka-ráka. “It wasn't ¹⁵I!” he said at once.

(6) katunáyan truth, as absolute attribute, loosely joined, truly; in this sense also conjunctive: Katunáya y uwalà η mwàη si Hwàn. Really Juan was ignorant. Katunáya ŋ walá sya ŋ nàláláman káhit isa ŋ hóta. He really did not know a single iota.

²⁰(7) mismo (Spanish) himself, herself, intensive: añ nàkùkúlam mismo the bewitched person himself; siya mismo he himself, she herself.

(8) palibhása' is loosely joined and precedes. It expresses that what follows is stated as a reason; the construction is apparently ²⁵not subordinating, but parallel with that of halimbáwa' above: Añ pagsasáma ... ay hindí nila pinápansìn, palibhása y gawá rin namàn nilà. The living together ... was not minded by them, the reason being that they did it themselves.

(9) pagdáka and pagkaráka immediately, quickly (synonymous ³⁰with karáka-ráka above): Pagdáka y tinañnan nyà añ dalawà ŋ hintutúro' nañ babáye. He quickly seized the woman's two forefingers. Also closely joined: Itinanòn pagdáka nañ médiko.... The doctor at once asked....

(4) absolute complements.

³⁵266. After certain words which are followed by a complement construction, as described in § 151 ff., the conjunctive particle is often omitted, especially where the form na is required; where ŋ is possible its use is preferred. They are:

267. íbig desired, synonymous with gustò (of whose regular ⁴⁰construction examples have been given in §§ 152. 158), and áyaw the negative of íbig. These are usually accompanied by a disjunctive agent: Anò añ íbig nya ŋ sabíhin? What is that desired by-him that (sc. by-him it, both anaphoric) be said? or: What is the desired by-him thing-to-be-said? i. e. What does he want to say? Anò añ íbig mo ŋ gawìn nya? What do you want ⁵*him to do?* Hindí na sya íbig labanàn. He was no longer sought as an opponent. Itò y íbig na gawì ñ úna. This is desired to be done first, i. e. One wants to do this first. An áyaw ko ñ màkíta ay isa ñ núno'. What I don't want to see is a ghost. Itò y áyaw nya ñ gawìn. He does not want to do this.

¹⁰Very frequently the construction is impersonal, in which case the complement (and quasi-subject, § 158) may consist of an entire predication: Íbig nya ñ kumáin nan súha'. It-is-desired by-him that (he) eat some grape-fruit, i. e. He wants to eat some grape-fruit. Íbig nya ñ kánin an súha'. It-is-desired by-him that ¹⁵be-eaten (by-him) the grape-fruit, i. e. He wants to eat the grape-fruit. Áyaw ipamána nan mankukulam an kanya ñ kúlam. The sorcerer does not want to bequeath his magic power.

When the person desiring is at the same time the agent of the complement, the whole expression may serve as predicate or ²⁰attribute of the person desiring; this construction is rarely used with other than active complements: Sya y íbig kumáin nan súha'. He is desired (by-him) that (he) eat some grape-fruit, i. e. He wants to eat some grape-fruit, equivalent to Íbig nya ñ kumáin nan súha'. An kúba' ay hindi rìn íbig umakyàt. The ²⁵hunchback too did not want to climb. isa ñ Kastíla' na íbig malígo' a Spaniard who wanted to bathe. An sundálo ay áyaw pumáyag. The soldier did not want to consent.

Without complement (or with anaphorically omitted complement): Anò an íbig mo? What is it you want? Íbig ko pà ³⁰nan kánin. There-is-desire by-me still of boiled rice, i. e. I want some more boiled rice. An larò ñ taguàn ay íbig nan maña báta'. Children like the game of hide-and-seek. Áyaw ko. I don't want to; less commonly: Áyaw akò.

268. dápat proper, necessary and súkat fitting, right: Itò ³⁵y dápat gawìn. This ought to be done. Sya y dápat palúin. He ought to be thrashed. Anò an dápat nya ñ gawìn? What ought to be done by him? i. e. What ought he do? An isà y dápat muna ñ magsilbè sa dimóniyo. One must first serve the demon. Hindí mo súkat ikagálit an maña tuksò. It is not right for you ⁴⁰to get angry at jokes, literally: Jokes are not by-you a fitting cause of anger.

269. Words with prefix ma-, expressing the possessor of a quality, and their derivatives (see Morphology), have occasionally an absolute instead of a conjunctive complement. Those so used are:

(1) madalàs often, frequent, regular: Akò y madalàs magkumpisàl. I was regular at going to confession, or: a regular confessor. But: Madalàs nila η sinalakáyan aη báyan. They frequently attacked the town.

(2) magalìη skilful, clever, polite: Si Hwàn ay magalìη gumámit naη daràs. Juan was clever at using the adze, or: a clever user of the adze, or: cleverly used the adze. But: Magalìη sya η tumugtòg naη piyáno. She plays the piano well.

¹⁵(3) mahírap suffering, destitute, difficult (i. e. having hardship, actively or passively): Aη aswàη ay mahírap mápatay. A vampire is hard to-be-killed, i. e. hard to kill. Regular constructions: Aη pagabùt naη búηa η itò ay mahírap. The reaching this fruit is hard, i. e. The fruit is hard to reach. aη mahírap ²⁰na kasamà the poor laborer.

(4) mahúsay able, good (at doing something), in good shape: Aη maηa táo sa báyan ay mahuhúsay sumunòd sa kautusàn. The people in the town are good law-abiders. But: aη pinakamahúsay na magsalità' the best at speaking; Aη lípà naη lúpa' ay ²⁵mahúsay. The smearing (with sticky mud) of the ground (in the threshing-room for rice) is well done.

(5) maínam pleasant, tasty, good: Aη manòk na kawalà' ay hindí maínam patayìn. Chickens that run free are not good for killing. Cf.: isa η maínam na siηsìη a pretty ring.

³⁰(6) malakàs strong, powerful, loud: Sya y malakàs kumáin. He is great at eating, or: a great eater; also: malakàs na kumáin. Cf.: aη maηa táo η malalakàs strong men, Sya y tumáwa naη malakàs. He laughed aloud.

(7) maluwàt, malwàt long (in time), slow: Aṇ pagpútol ³⁵naṇ buhòk ay maluwàt màtutúhan. Hair-cutting takes long to learn. Cf.: Syà y nagkalatimbà ṇ maluwàt. He squatted on heels (as exercise or punishment) many times. Natùtúlog akò naṇ maluwàt. I sleep late.

(8) marúnoṇ wise, knowing how: Sya y marúnuṇ gumupìt ⁴⁰naṇ buhòk. He knew how to cut hair. But: Marúnoṇ sya ṇ sumakà y sa kabáyo. He knows how to ride horseback. aṇ marúnoṇ na pagòṇ the clever turtle; Isa ṇ sundálo ṇ marúnuṇ naṇ Latìn. A soldier who knew Latin.

(5) words used with disjunctive and local attributes.

270. Certain words form with their attributes phrases that are used as absolute attributes, for the most part loosely joined. The phrase-forming attributes are either (A) disjunctive or (B) ⁵local.

271. (A) akála' a thought followed by a disjunctive possessor: as so-and-so thinks: Akála ko y gamit nà aṇ sombréro ṇ itò. I think this hat has been used already, is second-hand. More commonly these phrases are used as local attribute: Aṇ harañà ¹⁰ṇ iyòn na naṇyári kagabè sa akála ko y paháraṇ ni Andrès. The hold-up which took place last night was, in my opinion, planned by Andrés.

272. gáya like, resembling, in the manner of; for the disjunctive attribute cf. § 177: aṇ maṇa púno-ṇ-káhoy, gáya naṇ ¹⁵tsíko trees like the custard-apple; Gáya naṇ karanyúwan inumpisahàn naṇ kúra aṇ kanya ṇ sèrmon. As usual, the priest began his sermon. Magaàn aṇ sípa', hindí gáya naṇ bóla ṇ gámit sa bèsbol. The football is light, unlike the ball used in baseball. These phrases occur also as conjunctive attributes: Hindí umuwé ²⁰si Kíko na gáya naṇ karanyúwan. Kiko did not go home as usual. Normal constructions: Aṇ húni naŋ íbo ŋ pipìt ay gáya naŋ isa ŋ sutsòt. The chirp of the humming-bird is like a whistling. aŋ maŋa gáya mo those like you, people like you.

273. kasáma (in normal constructions companion): as companion ²⁵*of, in company with*: Namundok syà kasáma naŋ ilà maŋa táo-ŋ-báyan. He took the mountains along with a few fellow-townsmen.

274. Abstracts of action with prefixes in p- (see Morphology) express the time when or (so pagka- and pagkà-) the time ³⁰*immediately after which*. They sometimes occur without a disjunctive modifier. Cf. § 300. Pagulàn ay gamítin mo aŋ kapóte. When it rains use your raincoat. Pagdatìŋ niya ay sabíhin mo ŋ maghintày. When he arrives tell him to wait, literally: At the arriving of him be-it-said by-you that (he) wait. Pagkasúnog ³⁵naŋ báhay ay hinánap nilà aŋ aláhas. When the house had burned down they looked for the jewelry. Pagakpakan mò si Hwàn pagkaraàn naŋ kanyà ŋ talumpáte'. Applaud Juan when his speech is done.

275. pára like is followed by a conjunctive (instead of a ⁴⁰disjunctive) object expression whenever an indefinite object is meant (§ 68). The phrase so formed is often a conjunctive attribute. It is closely joined: Si Pédro màn pára ni Hwàn ay nábilangò'. Pedro too, like Juan, was put in jail. But: May katawàn sya ŋ pára ŋ táo. He has a body like a human being. Normal constructions: Pára ka ŋ kúra. You are like a priest. Aŋ lamìg naŋ kanya ŋ kamày ay pára ŋ sa patày. The coldness of ⁵*this hand is like that of a dead person.* (Cf. § 209).

276. sábi saying, that said: Sábi daw nyà ay malakì aŋ súnog. He says, I am told, that the fire was big.

277. (B) alintána despite: Nàbálot ko nà aŋ maŋa librò, alintána sa karamíhan nitò. I have managed to pack the books, ¹⁰*in spite of their number.*

278. áyon according to (giving the source of a statement): Áyon sa sábi naŋ marámi ay màpàpaghuli na ràw aŋ maŋa magnanákaw. According to what people say, the robbers are now near to being caught.

¹⁵279. bukòd beside, in addition to: Bukòd sa asáwa ay may dalawà sya η anàk. Beside his wife, he had two children.

280. dáhil reason, cause and its derivative dahilàn, both here in the sense: on account of: Hindí nakatahòl aη áso dáhil sa kanya η kahináan. The dog was not able to bark, on account ²⁰of his weakness, i. e. was so weak that he could not bark. Hinúle si Hwàn naη pulis dahilàn sa pagháraη na ginawá nya kina Andrès at kanila η maηa kaybígan. Juan was arrested by the policeman for having held up Andrés' party and their friends. Dahilàn sa kanya η pagkàgúlat ay nápaupú sya. In his surprise he ²⁵sank down on his chair.

Note especially dáhil díto, dahil díto on account of this, therefore; the omission of ay, y is especially frequent, see § 120, A, and the example there given. Dáhil díto ay nadílat aη kanya η maηa matà. Through this his eyes were opened.

The combination káy sa has so much unity that the sa is often repeated or used where unnecessary: so always before a ³⁵proper name: Aη báta η si Pédro ay mataàs naη kauntè' káy sa sa lamésa. Little Pedro is a bit taller than the table. lálu η mabagsìk káy sa rító more fierce than this; Aη báta η si Pédro ay mataàs naη kauntè' káy sa kay Hwàn. Little Pedro is a bit taller than Juan. Sya y mabúte η tumugtùg ké sa kay Hwána. ⁴⁰*She plays better than Juana.* Si Hwàn ay magúlaη káy sa kay Pédro. Juan is older than Pedro.

282. lában against: an gálit lában sa kanyà anger against him, An kapanyarihan ay ginagamit nya lában sa kanya n maná ⁵kaáway. He uses his power against his enemies.

283. líban except: An maná karumáta n itò ay upahàn, líban na láman sa ilàn. These carriages are hired, except only for a few.

284. The particle mulà' from and its derivative magmulà' ¹⁰*starting from*: an gitnà' mulá sa magkábila n dúlo the middle from both ends; an kanyà n maná súgat mulá sa paà hangà n úlo his wounds from feet to head; mulá rító from here. With disjunctive attribute of time instead of local attribute: mulá noòn from then on, from that time.

²⁰Commonest is patúnjo directed towards, aiming for: Tumakbo syà patúnjo sa ílog. He ran towards the river.

Regular construction: Sya y papuntà sa lánit. He was on the way to Heaven.

286. The particle parà, pára (Spanish) for, equivalent to ²⁵úkol (§ 288): Nagbwàl sila nan isa n báka pára sa fiyèsta. They slaughtered a cow for the fiesta. Humúkay sila nan malálim parà sa patày. They dug a deep pit for the corpse. Pumútol ka bà nan damò parà sa kabáyo? Have you cut any grass for the horse? Also as conjunctive attribute, modifying an object expression: ³⁰Sulat nà an líham na pára kay Hwána. The letter for Juana is written.

287. tunkòl about, concerning: Nasiyásat nan hukòm an lahàt nan bagay tunkòl sa kanila n úsap. The judge inquired into all the matters relating to their suit. Cf.: an tunkùl sa súnog ³⁵*the details about the fire*.

288. The particle úkol is synonymous with parà (§ 286) and tuǹkòl:
Humúkay sila naṅ malálim úkol sa patày. This phrase as predicate: Iyò y úkol sa maṅa hírap sa infiyèrno. This was about the sufferings in Hell.

(6) words introducing subordinate phrases or predications.

289. Certain words precede words, phrases, and whole predications which are thereby subordinated to the main sentence as absolute attributes, loosely joined.

⁵The syntactic relation of these words to the expressions which they introduce seems to be the peculiar one described in § 54. However, some of them are plainly joined to their phrase by na, ṅ, and others end in -ṅ or -t. Most of them merely precede the phrase, others are closely joined.

¹⁰Finally, in a few cases predications apparently not introduced by any subordinating word are used as absolute attributes.

290. bagà (§ 216), in this sense always followed by màn (§ 221), although, is less used than káhit (§ 294). See also § 317. Baga màn nakapagpasyàl si Pédro, nátira kamì sa báhay. Although ¹⁵*Pedro managed to take a walk, we staid home.*

291. bágo, in this use before (in point of time), has closely joined position as regards its phrase: Aṅ maṅa kabáyo ṅ ginàgámit naṅ maṅa kanyunéros naṅ gubyèrno ay pinaínunum múna, bágo pakánin. The horses used by the artillery of the government ²⁰*are watered first, before they are fed.*

Nagkantáhan silà bágo naguwían. They sang together before they went home. Bágo sya y sumúlat ay makipagúsap ka sa kanyà. Before he writes have a talk with him. Magísip ka bágo ka sumagòt. Think before you answer. Balatan mò aṅ maṅgà bágu mo kánin. Peel the mango ²⁵*before you* eat it. maluwat pà bágo mamatày an mankukúlam long before the sorcerer dies.

In normal constructions bágo has the sense of new, recent: an bágu η báhay the new house; an bágo η táo an unmarried man, a youth; an maña manòk na bágo η bilè the chickens just ³⁰*bought*; Bágu η gálin sya sa sakít. He is recently recovered from an illness.

292. hábaη throughout, during, while probably consists of hába' length plus η. Hábaη sya y natútúlog ay nakaraàn an susò'. While he was sleeping the snail passed. Hábaη pinagusápan ³⁵nilà itò an ikapitù η báta' ay nása isa η bitàk naη banjàkò'. While they were discussing this, the seventh child was in a crack of the bench. Nàlùlugmok syà hábaη panahòn sa isa η malálim na kalunókútan. She was sunk constantly (literally: throughout time) in a deep sadness. A short phrase with hábaη may be ⁴⁰closely joined: Hindí nya natagalà η ankinìn hábaη búhay nya an birtùd na iyòn. *He did not succeed in keeping this quality as his own throughout (his) life.*⁵

293. hanğàη as far as, to, until may be hanğàη limit, end plus η; instead of the absolute construction the phrase is, however, ⁵often in local form. For lack of an in the phrase see § 68. Naghintày sya hanğàη katanhalían. He waited till noon. An púno' ay tumúbo' hanğàη sa magbúña. The tree grew until (it) bore fruit. Silà ay nagtakbúhan hanğàη sa dumatìη sila sa kanila η báyan. They both ran until they arrived in their town. ¹⁰As predicate: An kúlaη naη gátas ay hanğàη sa leèg naη bóte. The lack of milk is as far as the neck of the bottle, i. e. The milk goes only up to the neck of the bottle.

294. káhit (§ 245), with or without na, in the sense of although, no matter (cf. §§ 290. 317). The subordinate word or ¹⁵phrase has usually the form of a question; when it is an entire predication the predicate stands first: Tinalaga nyà η sumáma, káhit na saàn sya dalhìn. He decided to go along, no matter where he was carried. Káhit na anò an iyútos nya ay sinúsunòd. No matter what it was he ordered, (it) was obeyed. Káhit na ²⁰madilìη an gabì ay nagpasyal dìn si Pédro. Though the night was dark, Pedro nevertheless took a walk. Káhit na bahagya an ulàn ay nakabasà' naη karsáda. Though the rain was scanty, it sufficed to wet the streets. Káhit ulòl aṅ áso ay áyaw nya ṅ patayìn. Although the dog was mad, he did not want to kill it.

²⁵Note the following instance, in which káhit na precedes its phrase as a closely joined attribute: Nàramdaman kò aṅ kalabìt nya sa ákin, káhit na akò natùtúlog. I felt his touch against me, even though I was asleep.

Phrases with káhit may be closely joined to the main sentence: ³⁰Nàpùpútol nya káhit na walá sya ṅ kasaṅkápan aṅ bákal naṅ kanya ṅ bìlaṅgúan. He managed, even though he had no tools, to cut the iron of his prison. aṅ táo káhit laláki o babáye na nagaári sa kanyà the person, man or woman, who owns it.

295. kaniyà', kanyà' (§ 241) expressive of result, may with ³⁵its phrase be subordinated. It then stands as a closely joined attribute of its phrase: Kanyá nya iníwan aṅ páyoṅ ay sapagkàt nagtígìl aṅ ulàn at lumiwánag aṅ lánìt. The reason he left his umbrella (quasi-subject) was because the rain let up and the sky cleared. Accordingly we may analyze as subordinate such clauses as the following: Náupó sya sa tinìk, kanyá sya nápatindìg agàd. He sat down on a spine, so as to jump at once, i. e. that is why he jumped up at once. Cf., however, § 324.

296. The particle kapàg if, in case (of single events viewed ⁵⁵as completed in the future, synonymous with pagkà, § 304), see § 300: Aṅ hiniràṁ nya ṅ kampìt ay iyo ṅ kúnin, kapag ipinùpútol na nyà naṅ káhoy. Take away the knife he borrowed if he uses it to cut wood.

297. kayà' (§ 219) is sometimes used exactly like kaniyà' ¹⁰(§ 295): Kayà' aku naparíto ay kùkúnin ku aṅ hiniràṁ mo ṅ librò. I am going to take the book you have borrowed, so that I have come here, i. e. I have come here to.... The act is expressed as a subordinate element, the purpose as the principal sentence. Nagpùpútol si Hwàn naṅ káhoy, kayá sya y wala ríto. ¹⁵*Juan is cutting wood now, that is why he is not here.*

298. The atonic particle kuṇ preceding an expression of time states the time when of repeated occurrences: Gumàgámit kamì naṇ makapàl na damìt kuṇ tagulàn. We use thick clothing in the rainy season. Nagtítípon naṇ pagkáin aṇ maṇa 20laṅgàm kuṇ tagáraw. The ants collect food in summer. Aṇ hùnihan naṇ maṇa íbon kuṇ umága ay nakaliligáya. The chirping of the birds in the morning is gladdening. Aṇ iba ṇ táwo y mabúti pa ṇ makisáma káy sa isà ṇ kapatid kuṇ mínsan. An unrelated person is better to associate with than a brother at 25times. So: kuṇ gabè at night, of nights, kuṇ fiyèsta naṇ báyan during the (periodic) fiesta of the town, kuṇ madilim at dark, when it is dark, kuṇ bahà' at flood-times, kuṇ buwàn naṇ Húniyo in June.

Occasionally the phrase with kuṇ is closely joined: Hindí 30hasà' kuṇ mínsan aṇ maṇa bágu ṇ patalim sa Filipínas. In the Philippines new cutlery is sometimes without an edge (i. e. sold without an edge, to be sharpened by the purchaser).

299. With phrases in the form of a question (minus bà § 215 or bagà § 216) kuṇ expresses indirect question. The expression 35so formed stands as quasi-subject or quasi-object (cf. §§ 157. 158) or as predicate: Naalaála nya kuṇ papáno aṇ paggawà' naṇ salamaṅkà. He managed to recall how the trick was done. Ipináyu nya na kuṇ sínu sa kanilà aṇ pinkamahúsay na magsalità' naṇ Latìn ay siya lámaṇ kàkáin naṇ itlòg. He advised 40that whoever (kuṇ síno) among them was the best at speaking Latin should be the one who alone ate the egg. Si Pédro ay nagíisip kuṇ saàn nya naíwan aṇ kanya ṇ páyoṇ. Pedro is trying to recall where he left his umbrella. Nàlàláman mo bà kuṇ saàn sya nároon? Do you know where he is? Aṇ maṇa táo-ṇ-báyan ay nagsiyásat kuṇ maàári sila ṇ magtayò naṇ isa ṇ mákina naṇ bigásan sa kanila ṇ báyan. The townspeople considered whether they could put up a machine for thrashing rice in their 5town. Aṇ siyásat ni Hwàn sa kanya ṇ pagparíto ay kuṇ ilà ṇ kúra aṇ nàriritò sa áti ṇ báyan. Juan's inquiry when he got here was how many priests there are in our town.

300. Introducing other phrases kuṇ has the sense of if, whenever (of non-actual occurrences viewed as unreal, hypothetical, 10or repeated); compare disjunctive attributes of time (§ 192, single actual occurrence), pag (§ 303, single non-actual occurrence, simultaneous), kapàg and pagkà (§§ 296, 304, single non-actual precedent occurrence), words with prefixes in p- (§ 274, single occurrence, actual or non-actual), tuwè' (§ 307, repeated ¹⁵actual):

Kuṇ dumatìṇ si Hwàn ay umalis kà. If Juan comes, go away. Kuṇ dumatìṇ sya ay sabíhin mo ṇ maghintà. If he comes, tell him to wait. Kuṇ úulàn ay gamítin mo aṇ kapóte. If it rains, use your raincoat. Bìbilhin kò aṇ kabáyo ṇ iyòn kuṇ máy-roon akò ṇ marámi ṇ kwaltà. I should buy this horse, if I ²⁰had enough money. Note: Kuṇ sa pagaasáwa namàn, akò y nagkaroòn naṇ dalawà. And as to (literally if) taking a wife, I had two.

301. In the same sense kuṇ with dì' (§ 237) or hindí' (§ 239) if not, precedes the second, positive member of a contrast: ²⁵*unless, but rather, beside, except* (Cf. palà § 228): Hwag kà ṇ makàpakikáin-káin kuṇ hindí ka inàanyáhan. Don't be taking meals with people unless you are invited. Walà ṇ ibà ṇ nagpàpahírap sa kanyà kuṇ hindí kayò. There is no one else who causes suffering to him, beside you.

³⁰302. ṇayòn (§ 262), when subordinating, is conjunctively joined to its clause: Ḭayò ṇ áraw na yitò y dáratiṇ silà. On this very day they will arrive. Ḭayò ṇ táo ṇ iyòn ay patay nà, bákit namàn...? Now that this man is dead, why...?

303. The atonic particle pag gives the time when of a ³⁵single non-actual occurrence; cf. § 274 and see § 300. Pag akò ay pagòd, natùtúlug akò naṇ maluwàt. When I am tired, I sleep late. Pag paputòl mo ṇ hiníwa' aṇ pakuwàn ay hindí màbìbilì aṇ banda ṇ púno'. If you cut the watermelon crosswise, you will not be able to sell the stem-end. Magmùmurahàn sila ṇ dalawà ⁴⁰pag nagkíta. The two will revile each other when they meet.

304. The particle pagkà (synonymous with kapàg, § 296) gives the time immediately after which of a single non-actual occurrence; cf. § 274 and see § 300. Pagka ikàw ay nahúlog ay masàsaktan kà. When you have taken a fall you will be hurt.

305. The particle patì including; cf. § 68. aṅ boò ṅ katawàn patì maṅa mataṅ at taíṅa the whole body, including eyes and ears.

306. The particle sapagkàt (sa pagkà at ?) because, for: Sapagkàt aṅ pári ṅ itò ay nagakála ṅ maṅa walà ṅ pinagarálan aṅ kanyà ṅ sinèsèrmunan ay hindí sya nagpílit.... Because this priest thought his hearers were uneducated people, he took no pains.... Ipinapútol nya aṅ kanya ṅ dalíre', sapagkàt tinubúan naṅ kànsér. He had his finger amputated because there was a cancer on it. For a phrase with sapagkàt as predicate see example under kanyà', § 241.

307. The particle tuwè' (§ 244) in this use tells the time ¹⁵when always of actual repeated occurrences: whenever, every time. It is conjunctively joined to its clause: Pinaghàhatdan nyà naṅ gátas aṅ báyan twì ṅ umága. He delivers milk in the town every morning. Pumàparíto aṅ médiko twì ṅ makalawà. The doctor comes every other day. Si Hwàn ay nakikipagluksúhan ²⁰twì ṅ idinàdáos aṅ maṅa palarò' kuṅ fyèsta naṅ báyan. Juan takes part in the jumping contest whenever games are held in the fiesta of the town. Twì ṅ papásuk akò sa síne sa áki ṅ kúyaṅ ay áyaw sya. Every time I ask my brother to take me to the moving-picture show, he refuses.

²⁵308. úpaṅ in order to, so that (úpa pay, wages ?): Sila y naúupo pa lámaṅ úpaṅ manañhále'. They are just sitting down to eat the noon meal. Syà y tumayò' sa bubuṅaṅ naṅ báhay úpaṅ tanawìn aṅ súnog. He stood up on the roof of the house to watch the fire. Kantahàn ninyò aṅ máy sakit úpaṅ sya y ³⁰malibàṅ. Sing for the sick man so that he may be cheered. Tináwag nilà aṅ isa ṅ kálaw úpaṅ siya ṅ magìṅ hukòm. They called an owl so that (it) might be the one who served as judge.

309. yámaṅ while, as: Aṅ púno naṅ uṅgò ay namatà yámaṅ aṅ sa pagòṅ ay tumúbo'. The tree of the monkey died while ³⁵that of the turtle grew.

310. Predications and similar phrases (impersonal or anaphoric) as absolute attributes, in the meaning of disjunctive attributes of time, are not uncommon: Madali-η-áraw pa lámaη ay nàròroòn na silà. (When) it was still but dawn, they were ⁴⁰*already there*. Makása-m-pu η táwag nà ay walá pa syà. (At) the tenth call he was still not there. Makaraàn aη ila η sandali' ay sinábi nya sa susò' (When) a few moments had passed, he said to the snail.... May ápat na pu η taòn na sya sa lúpa η Katagalúgan ay hindí pa nya nàtutúhan ... (When) he had already been in the Tagalog country for about forty years, he had not yet learned.... Mínsan pumásuk sya sa simbáhan ay nàrinig nya.... Once (when) he went to church, he heard.... ⁵Other examples at 26,₂₁· 28,₁₁· 66,₁₅· 92,₁₃·

4. Serial groups.

311. The serial relation is expressed in part explicitly by particles and in part by parataxis, parenthesis, and anacolouthic constructions.

312. The most important of the coordinating particles is at, t; as some of the others end in -t, they may be felt to contain at; cf. the similar ending in other particles, § 213; t is used after syllabics, n, and ' (see Phonetics), but even here at is commoner.

¹⁵When a sentence begins with a coordinating particle, the latter gives expression to the connection with the preceding sentence (as in English sentences beginning with And ... or But ...)

313. at, t and connects words, phrases, or entire predications. ²⁰báro t salawàl blouse and trousers (native costume), aη tapunàn naη béha at upòs the place for throwing cigarette-ends and cigar-stubs, dalawa η, pù t dalawà twenty-two, kuŋ mínsan at malakì aŋ gálit naŋ amà ... sometimes, when the father's anger was great ... (kuŋ goes with both of the members connected²⁵ by at).

When more than two elements are connected, at is used generally between the last two: sina Pédro, Hwàn, at Andrès the group consisting of Pedro, Juan, and Andrés. isa ŋ líbo, walo ŋ daàn, walo ŋ pu t ánim 1886.

315. at has occasionally a decidedly adversative tone; so, for instance, at 78,³¹.

⁴⁰316. Frequently at has subordinative coloring, the second of the members joined expressing:

cause: Hintày ka múnà t hindí pa akò nakapápahinà. Make a halt first, for I am not yet rested. Íbig mo bà ŋ kumáin sa ámin?—Salámat, áyaw ko t kakàkáin ko pa lámaŋ. Do you want to eat with us?—Thank you, no, for I have only just eaten. Buksan ⁵mo aŋ pintò' at íbig ko ŋ pumások. Open the door, for I want to go in.

result: Ano t dí ka lumákad naŋ matúlin? Why don't you walk fast? Ano aŋ íbig mo t nàirito kà? What do you want that you have come here? i. e. What have you come here for? So ¹⁰especially: anò aŋ dáhil at...? what is the reason that...?

purpose: Umališ sya t makìkipútol naŋ damò. He has gone to help cut grass.

temporal succession: Hindí sya nakaratìṅ naṅ ápat na pu ṅ taòn sa gúlaṅ at sya y namatàṽ. She had not reached forty years ¹⁵in her age, when she died.

a subordinate quasi-subject: Sinábi naṅ maṅhuhúla sa iyò t hindi maláyo ríto aṅ kawàwalan naṅ iyo ṅ siṅsìṅ. The fortune-teller told you that the place where you would lose your ring is not far from here. Sinábi ko nà sa iyò at hwag kà ṅ maíṅay. *I ²⁰have told you already not to make any noise.*⁶

317. The subordinating value of at appears especially in certain expressions which it forms with other particles:

(1) at bakà' lest (cf. § 235): Hwag kà ṅ magpatihúlog diyàn sa kátre at baká ka masaktàn. Don't throw yourself from ²⁵that bed, for you might hurt yourself.

(2) at naṅ so that (cf. § 192 f.): Magiinùm ka naṅ gátas at naṅ ikàw ay tumabà'. Drink milk so that you may grow stout.

(3) bagà mán at although (cf. § 290): Baga mán at umúulàn ay nagsísipaglarò silà. Although it is raining they are at ³⁰play.

(4) kayà' at so that (cf. § 297): Napapúpunta nilà aṅ pelóta kayà t báwat isa sa kanilà ay nakaabàṅ. They direct the ball so that every one of them is on guard.

(5) káylan mán at every time that, whenever, synonymous ³⁵with tuwè ṅ, § 307 (cf. káylan mán § 262): Si Hwàn ay táwa naṅ táwa káylan mà t márinig nya aṅ maṅa katatawanà ṅ bahági naṅ kwènto. Juan laughs and laughs every time he hears the funny parts of the story.

318. dátapuwat but is the commonest adversative coordinating particle. It is used also when the two members are not logically but only formally in contrast: Aṅ húni naṅ pipìt ay mahína', dátapuwat mataàs aṅ tóno. The chirping of the stone-sparrow ⁵is weak, but high-pitched. Pùputúlin ko aṅ lúbid kuṅ máy-roon akò ṅ laséta, dátapuwat walá ako. I should cut the rope if I had a knife, but I have none. Si Pédro ay hindi dumatì, dátapuwat iba ñ táo aṅ naparíto. Pedro did not arrive; it was someone else who came here.

320. The particle ṅunit is equivalent with dátapuwat, but ²⁰is less common: Hindi sya nagísip, ṅunit sumagòt karáka-ráka. He did not reflect but answered at once.

321. The atonic particle o or (probably Spanish): isa ñ malakì ñ áso o báboy a large dog or pig; Dikdikìn kità sa lusòṅ o lunúrin kita sa ílog? Shall I bray you in a mortar or drown you ²⁵in the river? Frequently the combination o kayà' (§ 219) is used; it is loosely joined: Aṅ kapanyariha ñ itò y gálin sa dimóniyo o kayà y mána sa magúlaṅ. This power comes from a demon or else is inherited from one's parents.

322. The particle subálit but is less common than its equivalents ³⁰*dátapuwat* and ṅunit: Aku sána y páparoon sa Balíwag, subálit hindi ako nátulòy, dahilàn sa isa ñ karamdáman. I was going to Baliwag, but I did not keep on, on account of an illness.

(2) paratactic sentences.

323. A vocative joins another sentence: Hintú na kayò, ³⁵maṅa báta'! Stop, children! Té na, baláe! or: Tara nà, baláe! Come on, old man!

324. Contrast, cause, result, detail, etc. are sometimes paratactically expressed; in some cases it seems uncertain whether the second element is paratactic or subordinate, so especially when it ⁴⁰begins with kaniyà' (§§ 241. 295): Sina Pédro, Hwàn, at Andrès ay magkakasamahà ñ nagtánod sa isà ñ dúlo nañ tulày; sina Felípe, Andùy, at Mariyáno sa ikalawà ñ dúlo. Pedro, Juan, and Andrés are standing guard together at one end of the bridge; Felipe, Andoy, and Mariano at the other. Hindí ko gustò iyàn, ibà añ áki ñ gustò. I don't like that, I want something else. ⁵Hwag kà ñ umyàk, Maryà, baká ka himatayìn. Don't weep, Maria, you might have a fainting-fit. Añ kantà nañ báta ñ si Hwàn ay kanya ñ nalimútan, kanyà hindi tulà' añ kanya ñ kinantà. Little Juan forgot his song, that is why what he sang was disconnected. Siya ñà', siyà añ nagbigày sa ákin nañ bágo ñ búhay. Yes, she; ¹⁰it was she who gave me new life. Sya y may famíliya; bukòd sa asáwa ay may dalawà sya ñ anàk. He had a family; beside his wife he had two children.

(3) parenthesis.

325. Not infrequently explanatory elements are inserted into ¹⁵a sentence parenthetically: Tatlò ñ magkakaybígan, isa ñ páre', isa ñ mangagámut, at isa ñ sundálo ... Three friends, a priest, a physician, and a soldier ... sa háyop namàn, karanyúwa y añ bábuy ... against animals, usually a pig ... wala ñ ulàm, asìn at kánin lámañ there was no meat, only salt and boiled rice. ²⁰Further cases at 54,⁵. 86,²¹. 100,²³. 108,²⁹.

326. Often the parenthetic element is descriptive: malakàs kumáin, katimbàñ nañ dalawà katáo great at eating, a match for two persons; nañ pinagkatamàn na walà ñ patìd, ápat na pu ñ paà añ hába' shavings without a break, forty feet in length. Similar ²⁵cases at 80,³⁹. 86,²⁹. 118,⁴³. 120,².

327. Especially common are parentheses describing the temporary state or situation of something: Añ mánanalò ñ pañkàt at añ kanila ñ maña kaybígan, magkakasáma η tinùtugtugàn nan kanila η bànda nan músika, ay agad-agàd na nagpàpaséyo. The ³⁰winning team and their friends, all together accompanied by the playing of their band, at once form a parade. Nakaratìη sila sa kanila η báhay, dalà nila an súpót nan kwaltà. They arrived at their house, bearing the bag of money. Other cases at 92,22. 98,21. 114,42.

328. In other cases a breaking off of the construction rather than an insertion seems to take place: An maηa hindí nagsísitugtòg an katunjúlan ay kumantà. Those who do not play, their duty is to sing. Gáya ko, akò y paráti η nàhàhábul nan maηa ⁴⁰áso. Like me, I am often pursued by dogs. Pabulònη lámaη kuη silà y magsàlitáan. In whispers only (predicate) when they talk together. The organic construction would probably be: Pabulònη lámaη an kanila η pagsasàlitáan. Their conversation is only in whispers. Kuη kanya η pakánin ay wala η ulàm. When (they, ⁵⁰anaphoric) are fed it is without meat.

329. While direct quotations often enter into normal constructions as predicate (§ 114), as conjunctive complement (§ 159), or as disjunctive object (§ 186), they are often joined by a breaking off of construction. In this case their relation to the rest of ¹⁰a sentence may resemble that of a subject; this happens especially when the sentence begins with the quotation or with part of it. If ay, y were used many of these sentences would be regular: “Magáral ka η mabúti,” sinábi ni Hwàn sa kanya η anàk. “Study well” was said by Juan to his son. “Dalawà!” isinigàw nan ¹⁵bulàg. “Two!” was shouted by the blindman. “Sa damdam kò,” an sagòt ni Dyégo, “ay akò an pinakamakínis.” “In my opinion,” was Diego’s answer, “I am the cleverest.” Similarly their relation may resemble that of a disjunctive object (instrumental type, § 186), but nan is not used. This happens if the ²⁰quotation follows active words of saying: Si Hwàn namàn ay sumagòt: “Matàr!” Juan then answered: “Matar!”

330. This peculiar construction of direct quotations is extended to some cases that are not exactly quotations but may be viewed as such: An boò η ása ko an kandidáto η si Manikìs an ²⁵nàgùgustuhàn nan maña táo; hindí palà, kuη hindí an kandidáto η si Sàntos. It was my whole expectation that the candidate Maniquís would be the one chosen by the people; but no, it was the candidate Santos. An paniwála nan maña táo si Saη-Hwàn ay sya η sànto η nagpápaulàn. It is the belief of the people that ³⁰*San Juan is the saint who makes rain.*

C. MORPHOLOGY.

1. Composition.

331. Compound words (i. e. words resembling in form a succession of two or more words, but diverging in meaning from such a succession) are treated phonetically like groups of words in the phrase (§§ 33. 34).

If the first member ends in syllabic, n, or glottal stop, the particle ŋ appears before the second member.

In meaning, compound words resemble a phrase in which the word corresponding to the first member is modified, in disjunctive attribution, by the word corresponding to the second: báhay-aklátan library-building: báhay naŋ aklátan. The meaning of the compound is, however, more specialized than that of the phrase.

Exceptions as to meaning are: (1) the copulative compound áraw-gabì, formed on the model of doubled words, such as áraw-áraw, gabi-gabì (§§ 258. 343.); (2) kapatid-konkristiyános, a foreign product; (3) máy-roòn, equivalent to máy, which has been viewed as a compound because its construction (§ 138) differs from that of the phrase máy roòn (which would not require the particle ŋ, §§ 252. 263).

Similar in form to compound words are words derived from a phrase (§ 332).

Examples of regular compounds: aṅ báhay-báta' the womb, báhay-gúya' the womb of an animal (gúya' the young of an animal), ²⁵báhay-pàhayagàn newspaper office, publishing house, Báhay-Paníki Bat-House (name of a town, paníki a bat), báhay-pintáhan paint-shop; Itò y bigay-loòb lámaṅ nya sa ákin. This is merely a concession he makes to me as a favor; aṅ lalawíga-ṅ-Pampàṅga, aṅ provìnsiya-ṅ-Pampàṅga Pampanga Province, cf. aṅ ³⁰provìnsiya naṅ Pampàṅga; pilìk-matà eyelash (pilìk fin, lash); aṅ Sàmáha-ṅ-Sumúloṅ the Sumulong Company; aṅ tánud-báhay the watchman of a house, tánud-pálay watchman of a rice-field.

A member of a compound may consist of an entire phrase (cf. § 332): Bìgása-ṅ-Sumúloṅ-at-Kasamahàn Rice-mill of Sumulong ³⁵*and Company* (equivalent to Bìgásan nila Sumúloṅ at Kasamahàn); aṅ dúlo-ṅ-bandà-ṅ-kánan the right-hand end (aṅ bandà ṅ kánan the right).

Specialization and transference of meaning are especially marked in hampas-lúpa' (literally: beating of the ground) tramp, ⁵*vagabond*; kápit-báhay not only neighboring house, but also neighbor: Aṅ báhay ni Hwàn ay áki ṅ kápit-báhay, but also: Si Hwàn ay áki ṅ kápit-báhay; kápit-báyan neighboring town, but also person from a neighboring town; Sawi-ṅ-pálad siyà. He is unlucky (literally unhandy of the palm).

¹⁰For the other occurrences of compounds see Index under báhay, bakàs, bànda, bantày, básag, báyad, báyan, búṅa, bútas, daàn, hánap, ílog, kalabàw, kapuluàn, kasamaàn, kasawiàn, kasiraàn, kinamatayàn, lúpa', médiko, paà, pamatày, pantày, piráso, púno', sàmáhan, táo, trabáho, úbos.

¹⁵2. General features of word-formation.

332. Many words are analyzed into (1) recurring affixes, (2) doubling, (3) reduplication, and (4) a recurring unanalyzable element bearing the material meaning, the root. The place of the root may be taken by a word in turn showing derivation by ²⁰these processes, or by a compound word, or even by a phrase. Other words, root-words, contain only the unanalyzable element.

Other modifications affecting the meaning are shifting of the accent toward the end of the word, and the use of secondary accents.

The same morphologic elements may be variously distributed; it is most convenient and corresponds most nearly to the speech-feeling ³⁰to describe these differences as though they were due to different successions in which the modifications are applied: sumùsúlat is súlat reduplicated and with infix -um-; but (nag-)tùtumirà is tirà with infix -um-, then reduplicated (plus prefix nag-).

The part of a word to which a modification is (in this sense) ³⁵said to be added will be called the underlying word (or phrase): in sumùsúlat the infix

-um- is added to the underlying word sùsúlat, in (nag-)tùtumirà reduplication is added to the underlying word tumirà; in ikasa-m-pù' the tenth the prefixes ka- and i- are successively added to the underlying phrase sa m pù' ten.

⁴⁰Roots not actually occurring in this book as independent words will be written with a hyphen prefixed (-káin), except in unmistakable lists of roots.

333. The root. Except for some pronoun forms and particles, the roots have two or more syllables and are almost always ⁵accented either on the last (oxytone roots) or on the next-to-last (barytone roots): báhay house, kamày hand.

Some disyllabic roots are formed as though a single syllable were repeated: bitbìt, budbòd, buṅbòṅ piece of unsplit bamboo, damdàm, dibdìb chest (part of body), dikdìk, diṅdìṅ (dindìṅ, § 20), ¹⁰gága, hinhìn, lādìlād, laglāg, liṅkìṅ, lublòb, maṅmàṅ, niṅnìṅ, padpād, paṅpàṅ, pukpòk, satsàt, siksìk, siṅsìṅ, sísi, súso breast, nipple, sutsòt, tadtàd, tiktìk, tiṅtìṅ (tintìṅ), tugtòg, tuktòk, tuṅtòṅ (tuntòṅ), ulòl.

Of the roots of more than two syllables some similarly repeat ¹⁵one or two syllables: alaála, babáye (see § 345), bulaklāk, lipumpòn (beside lípon).

Others appear as though a syllable -al- or -ag- were infixed (or prefixed) before the first syllabic: alagàd (cf. agàd'), balahíbo fur, hair on the body, balíkat, balíta', Balíwag, balúbad, ²⁰baluktòt, dalága, dalamháte', dalandàn, dalaṅhíta', daláṅin, halakhàk, haláman, halíge, halimbáwa', halimhìm, kalabòg, kalákal, kalasìṅ, kalaykày, kaluskòs, palakà', salakàb, salákay, salakòt a rain-hat of palm-leaves, salapè', salawàl, salaysày, salità', salúboṅ, salúkoy, talastàs, taluṅkò',—bagábag, bagáso bare stalk, of sugar-cane ²⁵*or corn* (Spanish brazo, whence Tagalog baráso arm, assimilated to this type?), Hagúnoy, lagablàb, lagánap, pagakpàk, sagása', sagitsìt.

In some instances roots of the same or similar meaning resemble each other in form. This is commonest in loan-words, where ³⁰different degrees of assimilation exist side by side: biróke, bitóke blow-gun bullet (Spanish bodoque); palànsa, pirìnsa flatiron (Spanish plancha). It occurs also, however, in native (or anciently assimilated) roots: aniyáya', yáya'; áníb, sánib (for sa áníb?); balíta', salità'; bitàw, bitìw; bugòk, bulòk; bujáŋa' ³⁵*mouth, maw* (naŋ hurnò of the oven, naŋ kalàn of the stove), suŋáŋa' a blow on the mouth; dinìg, kinìg; ípon, lípon (lipumpòn, above), típon; laàn, taàn; luhòd, túhod; maŋhà', taŋhà'; matày, patày; hantày, hintày.

When syllables of a root resemble affixes, there is always ⁴⁰possibility that the root may be interpreted as a derived word by the speech-feeling, no matter whether historically it be such or not. Thus the Index will show many roots whose initial syllables are identical with prefixes; the other cases will be mentioned under the various affixes.

334. Affixation. Prefixes are added to the initial of the underlying word: nag-tirà; infixes before the first syllabic: t-um-irà, ⁵um-alis; suffixes to the end: tìrá-han.

Affixes are occasionally accompanied by retraction of accent: itò, d-ító. See §§ 343,c. 358,c.e. 481,c. 485,a. 523. 528,d.

¹⁰(a) prefixes:

(1) The prefixes ending in g are treated phonetically as though they were separate words; this happens occasionally with other prefixes (§ 34).

(2) Initial d of the underlying word becomes r after the ¹⁵syllabic of a prefix in the roots listed in § 17. The change is constant only in the commonest formations: always pa-raàn, but naká-daàn beside naká-raàn. Striking irregularities at §§ 407,a. 468.

(3) The prefix i- and in some formations the prefix ka- contract ²⁰with a following syllabic (§ 31): iy-ánib (for i-ánib), íwan (for i-íwan), ka-yibíg-an

(for ka-ibíg-an), kàwáwa' (for ka-áwa-áwa'). See §§ 368. 401. 421. 426,b. 475,a. 481,c. 485,a.

(4) The prefixes ending in ŋ (maŋ-, naŋ-, paŋ-) alter a following initial, always in much-used words, frequently in others.

²⁵Before an initial syllabic the ŋ is treated as though it belonged to the underlying word and not to the prefix. This appears in reduplication (§ 336).

Initial p, b, t, d, s, are often, initial k is always changed to the corresponding nasal: pamálo' (pálo' with paŋ-), but also paŋ-pa-rikìt; ³⁰pamilmìt (bilmìt), but also paŋ-bambò; panáli' (táli'), but also paŋ-takìp; panaláŋin (daláŋin), but also paŋ-dilìg; na-naríwa' (saríwa'), but also paŋ-sakày; naŋapà' (kapà'). Where the change is not made, the ŋ may be assimilated to dentals (§ 20): mandurúkit beside maŋdudúkit.

³⁵Before nasals the ŋ is usually lost: namahála' (mahála' with naŋ-).

See paŋ- and maŋ- in List of Formations.

(5) The prefix hin- and its compounds give rise to a few similar changes, see §§ 357,b. 376,a. 518.

⁴⁰(6) For occasional irregularities of prefixes see §§ 347,b. 481,d. 528.

(b) infixes:

(1) Where -in- is infixed in a word beginning with l, w, or y, this initial is usually interchanged with the n, so that, practically, we have a prefixed ni- instead of an infixed -in-: ni-lúto' (beside less common l-in-úto'), ni-walìs (beside w-in-íka'), ni-yáya'. See §§ 359 ff. 374 ff.

(2) Where words beginning with syllabic, h, l, w (and y) have the prefix i- and the infix -in-, the latter is almost always used as a prefix, preceding the i-: in-iy-útos, in-íwan (for in-i-íwan), ¹⁰in-i-hatìd, i-ni-lúto' (beside less common i-l-in-úto'), in-i-wisìk. See § 368.

(3) On -um- see § 348,b.

(c) suffixes:

(1) The suffixes (-an and -in) after a syllabic take an initial ¹⁵*h*: luksú-han.

(2) Final d always becomes r before a suffix: laku-àn (lákad).

(3) When used in the formation of transient derivatives, as well as in some other of their uses, the suffixes are accompanied ²⁰by irregular modifications of certain roots.

Some roots ending in syllabic are treated as if they ended in glottal stop; they are amà, kíta, matà: ama-in, kitá-an, matá-an.

Others are treated as though they ended in n; they are paà, tálo, táwa: paa-nàn (beside regular paa-hàn), talú-nan, tawá-nan.

²⁵Other roots lose the syllabic of the last syllable, as well as a final glottal stop which may follow this; if the syllabic is final, the suffix adds h: asìn asn-àn, bigày bigy-àn, bilì bil-hàn, mulà' mul-àn. The roots so treated are: asìn, bigày, bilì, bukàs, dalà, hatìd, higà', ibà (but also regular iba-hàn), eskuwéla, gawà', káin, ³⁰kamìt, lagày, lakì, likòd, masìd, mulà', punò', pútol (but also regular putúl-an), sakày, sákit, subò, sunòd, tánan, tibà', tiñin, tirà (but also regular tirá-han), ulì', upò', walà'.

Still other roots add assimilation, dissimilation, or metathesis of consonants to the loss of vowel: anak aṅk-àn, atip apt-àn, ³⁵danìw (? see § 421) ka-raniyúw-an, datìṅ datn-àn, gílìd ta-lìgd-àn (beside regular ta-gilír-an), halìk hagk-àn, haṅgà haṅg-àn (i. e. the h of -han is lost), kinìg kiṅg-àn, silìd sigl-àn, tanìm tamn-àn, tuwìd ka-tu-tur-àn.

Entirely irregular are the following: alaála alala-hánin (-hánin ⁴⁰for -hin), aniyáya anyá-han, hári' ka-hariy-àn ka-hary-àn (beside regular pag-harí-an), íhip híp-an, ílag inlag-àn (for ilag-nàn? but also regular ilág-an), kawáyan kwayan-àn (beside regular kawayan-àn), kilála kilan-làn (for kilal-nàn?), kúha kú-nin, larò' laruw-àn larw-àn (beside regular laru-àn), pulò' ka-puluw-àn ka-pulw-àn (beside regular ka-pulu-àn), sála saŋ-làn (for sal-nan? also ka-salá-nan and regular salá-han), sundò' pagkà-sunduw-àn (beside regular -sundu-àn), táo ka-taw-àn (? see § 422, also regular ka-taú-han), totoò tòto-hánan (-hánan for -hàn).

335. Doubling. In certain formations the underlying word, if disyllabic, is repeated; the phonetic treatment is the same as ¹⁰that of successive words in a phrase (§ 34): agad-agàd, gabi-gabì, ápat-ápat, pa-lígid-lígid.

If the underlying word has more than two syllables, only the beginning of it, inclusive of the second syllabic, is repeated, and the final syllabic of this repeated part has a primary accent: kaní-kaníno, ¹⁵kaní-kanilà, nag-kagá-kagalit (underlying word ka-galit).

336. Reduplication. In some formations the beginning of the underlying word, including the first syllabic, is repeated, sù-súlat, á-akiyàt. Words with reduced i or u (§ 27) reduplicate with i, u: maka-sí-siyà, maka-sí-syà.

²⁰Note the foreign words: krùs nag-kú-kurùs, trabáho nag-tá-trabáho.

Initial d of the roots listed in § 17 often becomes r after the reduplication: k-in-à-dò-roon-àn (doòn), nag-dá-daàn (daàn).

When a prefix which involves change of initial comes before ^{25a}reduplicated form, the latter has the changed initial both in the reduplicative syllable and in the underlying part: nà-rò-roòn (doòn), pa-ŋu-ŋumìt (umìt with paŋ-, § 334, a, 4; also: paŋ-u-umìt) pútol pa-mu-mútol (pútol with paŋ-).

337. Accent-shift. In certain formations the accent is displaced ³⁰one syllable toward the end of the word: súlat sulàt. This is especially the case before suffixes forming transient words: súlat sulát-an. In some formations with suffixes the accent moves two syllables toward the end of the word: súlat sulat-àn.

Certain roots are especially given to this change and show it ³⁵in formations where it is not regular. In these roots the accent-shift is more or less clearly and regularly connected with a modification of meaning. The roots are: ábot overtake, with shift: reach for, take hold of, pass, hand; e. g. pa-ábot let oneself be overtaken, pa-abòt something caused to be handed, ákay, álam, ⁴⁰áwa', áyaw, bába', báhay, báya', búlag, gálit, gísiŋ, háyag, húli, lápit, láyo', múra, sákit, sáma, síra', tálo, táma', táwa, túloy, úna. See Index. A few pairs of roots differing only in accent may possibly belong here, e. g. -ának family and anàk child.

338. Secondary accents. (1) In some formations a secondary accent is spoken on the initial syllable of the underlying word: ⁵alìs àlís-an, ka-galìt kàgalít-an, iyàk òyák-an. If the first syllable is closed, the secondary accent is omitted: luksò luksú-han; so also if it is followed by consonant plus reduced vowel (§ 27): taniyàg tanyàg tanyág-an; and also if its own vowel is reduced: niyòg nyòg niyúg-an nyúg-an. There are some irregularities. See ¹⁰§§ 377,b. 383. 421. 421,b. 426,b.

(2) Prefixes and reduplications often take a secondary accent: nà-pútol (different in meaning from na-pútol), sù-súlat.

These secondary accents have phonetically the quality of primary accents when they come before short oxytone underlying ¹⁵words: ná-rinìg, á-akiyàt. If, however, the word is accented on a suffix, the accent on this is more audible and the secondary accent remains: nà-buks-àn. So also if there are two secondary accents: nà-rì-rinìg. Longer oxytone words not accented on a suffix vary; they have been transcribed as heard in each case: nag-sì-si-pag-larò' ²⁰nag-sí-si-pag-larò'.

339. Indications. In the following description formations will be indicated as follows:

prefixes thus: nag-; infixes: -um-; suffixes: -an; secondary accent on prefixes: nà-;

²⁵doubling by “D”, e. g. nag- D -an represents the formation seen in nag-aswàṅ-aswáṅ-an;

reduplication by “r”, with secondary accent by “R”, e. g. pag- r (pag-pu-pútol), nag- R (nag-pù-pútol), -um- R (s-um-ù-súlat), nag- R -um- (nag-tù-t-um-irà);

³⁰secondary accent on the first syllable of the underlying word by “S”, e. g. S -an (àlís-an); accent-shift by “(1)” or “(2)”, e. g. (1) describes the formation of sulàt from súlat; (1) -an (sulát-an); (2) -an (sulat-àn).

These indications are a mere rough guide: neither the characteristic prefix nor the meaning indicated runs through the entire group. The first three groups are the most important, and, to a large extent, each formation of the other five groups belongs also ⁵to one of the three primary groups.

In each group there are four types of words: simple static, transient, abstracts of action, and special static. The simple static words involve no idea of active or passive; the transients are accompanied by abstracts, in which the transient occurrence is viewed ¹⁰as a static concept, and by special static words, which, though static, involve the idea of voice: simple static súlat a document, writing, letter; transient sumúlat wrote, sulátan is to be written to; abstract pagsúlat an act of writing; special static sulatàn a writing-desk (with idea of local passive).

¹⁵Each (active or passive, § 92) transient formation exists in two modes, actual and contingent, and each of these has two aspects, punctual and durative; the durative always has accented reduplication. The actual mode envisages the occurrence as actually having taken place or taking place: in the punctual aspect the ²⁰occurrence is viewed in its entirety, without regard to duration, and hence always as past: nagáral studied, learned; in the durative aspect of the actual the occurrence is viewed as a process going on in time, past or present: nagàáral was studying, is studying, used to study, studied (repeatedly), studies. The contingent ²⁵mode views the occurrence as not having actually taken place: the punctual aspect views it as possible, hypothetical, or commanded: magáral should study, study (as command); the durative as future from the point of view of the past or present: magàáral will study, was going to study. The punctual contingent ³⁰form is used not only in commands and hypothetical clauses, but in subordinate predications and complements generally, even, for instance, after naŋ (§ 192 f.), and often, in such constructions, in competition with actual forms. It is often used, further, after hindì’ (§ 238). When objectivized with aŋ, it expresses the possibility ³⁵or circumstance of the occurrence: aŋ magáral a hypothetical studier, the circumstance that one might study.

The abstracts of action are much used in the construction described at § 274.

In addition to these more or less regular and systematized ⁴⁰forms, there are various isolated formations, which will be discussed after the others.

A systematically arranged list of formations precedes the Index.

3. Description of formations.

I. Primary groups (zero, pag-, paŋ-).

A. Simple static forms.

(1) Root-words.

¹⁰While a complete list of the examples occurring in the Texts and illustrative sentences will be given for nearly all other formations, the root-words are so numerous that it will be expedient merely to refer to the Index.

(1) Root-words in many cases express object-ideas which are ¹⁵viewed as simple: aṇ báhay house, aṇ táo human being.

(2) If the words containing a root have in common the idea of a quality rather than of an object, the root-word may express either the quality itself, or an object possessing the quality.

(a) In the former case, it is generally a single occurrence of ²⁰*the quality* that is expressed, not the quality in general, which is expressed rather by a collective with ka- and -an (§ 421 ff.), but this distinction is not fully carried out. The root-word generally stands in object construction. Examples: Aṇ búte ni Hwàn ay walá sa kanya ṇ úlo, dátapuwat násàsa kanya ṇ púso'. Juan's ²⁵*good quality lies not in his head, but in his heart*. Si Pédro ay táo ṇ wala ṇ danàl. Pedro is a person without honor. aṇ ínit naṇ tagáraw the heat of summer. Aṇ lálím naṇ balòn ay isà ṇ pantay-kawáyan. The depth of the well is the length of a bamboo-tree. Aṇ lamìg sa Amérika ay masyádo. The cold in America is ³⁰*excessive*. Aṇ ligsè naṇ usà ay hindí gáya naṇ sa áso. The speed of the deer is not equal to that of the dog. Aṇ samá naṇ ságiṇ na itò ay nása ugàt. The trouble with this banana-tree is at the root. aṇ taàs naṇ káhoy the height of the tree.

(b) When expressing an object endowed with a quality, the ³⁵root-word is in competition with words formed with the prefix ma- (§ 454). It usually stands as a predicate or as conjunctive attribute of another word. aṇ túbig na álat salt-water, aṇ dágat na álat the salt-sea, the ocean. Aṇ páko' ay baluktòt. The nail is crooked. Aṇ patalím ay báwal sa maṇa báta'. Children are not ⁴⁰*allowed to have sharp tools*. Aṇ itlùg na yitò y bugòk (or: bulòk). This egg is rotten. Sya y bugòk. He is crazy. aṇ buwísit na alíla' a repulsive servant. Ikàw ay bwísit. You are a bore. Maṇa gíliw ko ṇ ginoò! Honored sirs! isa ṇ táu ṇ hámak a no-account person. aṇ táu ṇ lasìṇ the drunken man. Sya y lasìṇ. ⁵*He is drunk*. aṇ pulúbe ṇ lumpò the lame beggar. Sya y lumpò. He is lame. Si Hwàn ay isa ṇ mahàl na báta' sa kanya ṇ maṇa magúlaṇ. Juan is a child dear to his parents. Múra aṇ maṇa síle sa panahò ṇ itò. Peppers are cheap at this time. Hindí pansìn aṇ piklàt sa mukhà naṇ dalága ṇ si Maryà. The scar on young ¹⁰*Maria's face is not noticeable*. aṇ táo ṇ panòt a bald-headed man. isa η báya η payápa' a tranquil town. Sya y pípe. He is dumb. An pintà nan bintána' ay putè'. The window is painted white. Sagàd an kanya η gupìt. His hair-cut is close. Sina Hwàn ay salàt sa pananamìt. Juan and his family are short of clothing. ¹⁵Akò y sawí sa pagsusúbo' sa báta'. I am in an awkward position for feeding the child. Sáyan an báta η si Hwàn. Little Juan is to be regretted. Isa η táo η sinunálin si Pédro. Pedro is a liar. Si Hwàn ay isa η táo η tanyàg. Juan is a renowned man. Tanyàg sya sa kanya η kláse. He is at the head of his class. an ²⁰tigàs nan káho y the hard part of the log. an daà η tumpàk the right road. si Untè' Shorty (as nickname).

(3) If the words containing the root refer rather to an action or occurrence, the uses of the root-word are more varied.

(a) The root-word may refer to the action itself; it is used ²⁵of a single instance rather than of the action in general, which is expressed rather by abstracts of action, though the distinction is not always clear. The root-word so used is mostly in object construction. Examples: An anyáya sa ákin ni Hwána ay áki η tinangàp. I accepted Juana's invitation. May bálì' an kawáyan. ³⁰*The bamboo has a break in it*. May búhay pa an púsa η itò. This cat is still alive. An dalamhátì nan kanya η inà ay malakì. His mother's grief is great. Sa damdam kò y nagumpisa nà an malalamìg na áraw. I think (literally: In my feeling) the cold days have begun. Si Hwàn ay sya η pumáyag sa hilìñ nilà sa kanya ³⁵η sasakyàn. Juan was the one who acceded to their request for his vehicle. (b) The root-word may express an object by virtue of which the action becomes possible or has concrete manifestation; this use closely approaches transient passives of various kinds. Root-words ¹⁵in this use are most commonly conjunctive attributes, but the object construction, especially in the predicate, is frequent. Añ ágaw nya ñ laruwàn ay inilagay nya sa kahòn. *The toys he snatched were put by him into a box. Síno sa maña táo añ ináko ni Mariyáno? Añ áko ni Mariyáno ay si Pédro. ²⁰Which one of the men did Mariano relieve?—The one whom Mariano relieved is Pedro. Hwag kayò ñ mamútol nañ kawáya ñ hindí ninyo ári'. (c) Especially with the particle nà (§ 223) the root-word ⁴⁰often expresses a brusque command; in this use it is in competition with transient forms. Dalí ka nan iyo η pagtakbò. Hurry your running, i. e. Run faster. Hampàs na kayò, maña báta', sa maña lanğàm. Whip at the ants, boys. Hátì na nan mansánas. Divide up the apples. Hintú na kayò, maṇa báta'. Stop, children. Ísip na kayò kuṇ anò aṇ kahulugàn naṇ áki ṇ bugtòn. Guess the meaning of my riddle. Láyas na! Get out! Lígù na! Take a bath! ⁵Luksu nà sa tinìk na iyàn. Jump across those spines. Sáma nà sa kanyà. Go to him. Táwag na naṇ maṇa polis. Call the police. Tayò'. Stand up. Upú na. Sit down.

(d) Repeated with naṇ (§ 191) root-words, as predicates, denote an actor in repeated and continuous action: Nàkíta ko ṇ ¹⁰pútol naṇ pútol si Hwàn naṇ tubò. I saw Juan cutting away at the sugar-cane. Similarly (see Index) bilì and táwa.

342. Root-words with accent-shift. Barytone roots are used as root-words with shift of accent to the last syllable to denote something which has been affected by the action, quality, or (in ¹⁵fewer cases) thing, which is denoted by the root. The particle nà is usually added. Agaw nà sa súnog aṇ maṇa laruwàn. The toys have been snatched from the fire. Awá na si Hwàn sa kanya ṇ pinarùrusáha ṇ anàk. Juan is already overcome with pity for his child, whom he is punishing. Aṇ áso ni Hwàn ay bahày. Juan's ²⁰dog is grown up in the house, is completely domesticated. Aṇ báta ṇ si Hwàn ay bahày. Little Juan is shy, is unused to strangers. Bayad nà aṇ útaṇ sa ákin ni Hwàn. Juan's debt to me is paid now. Bihis nà aṇ báta'. The child's clothes have been changed, The child is dressed up now. Bilaṇ nà aṇ maṇa itlòg ²⁵na itò. These eggs are already counted. Aṇ úlo ni Hwàn ay bilòg. Juan's head is round; or: Juan has been fooled; aṇ bilòg na tábo' the round dipper. Buhày aṇ áki ṇ inà. My mother is living. Sya y bulàg. He is blinded; or: He is blind; aṇ babáye ṇ bulàg the blind woman. Daiṇ nà aṇ isdà'. The fish has been ³⁰laid open. isa ṇ táo ṇ gutòm a hungry (or: gluttonous) person. Hatí na aṇ tubò. The sugar-cane is cut in two. Huli nà si Hwána sa trén. Juana is late for the train. Aṇ karnè ay ihaw nà. The meat is done. Init nà aṇ gátas. The milk is heated. Kayas nà aṇ kawáya ṇ itò. This bamboo is already smoothed. Aṇ ³⁵pagkùkúnan nya naṇ itlòg ay aṇ kahò ṇ kulaṇ nà. He will take eggs from the box that is already started (literally: incomplete, cf. Ápat na sèntimos aṇ kúlaṇ nitò. This lacks four cents, is four cents too little). Lakàd kamì ṇ umwè'. We went home on foot. Lipas nà aṇ gamòt (aṇ pabaṇò'). The medicine (the perfume) is stale, has lost its strength. Lipas nà an⁴⁰áki η gútóm. My hunger has disappeared. Pasò' an lugàr na itò nan kanya η kamày. This spot on his hand is burned; an pasò' a pottery dish. An pagkakàgalítan ni Hwàn at ni Pédro ay pawí nà. The quarrel between Juan and Pedro is now allayed. Pigil nà an kabáyo. The horse is under control now. An káhoy ay putul nà. The wood is now cut. Itò y sirá na. This is already ruined. Sunòg an damìt na kanya η pinirinsa. The clothes which she ironed are scorched; sunòg na asúkal burnt sugar. Tamá na an iyo η pagkwènta. Now you have figured it correctly. Tipun nà an maña kalabàw. Now the carabao are rounded up. Tulis nà an lápìs. The pencil is sharpened. Turò' an kanya η dalíre'. His finger is stiff.

¹⁰This form occurs, in this book, also from the following roots (see Index): básag, búnot, gálit, gámit, hása', kilála, lápad, líman, págod, sákop, sánay, súlat, tápos, tiwála', túloy.

(a) In the case of some roots this form is used like a simple root-word without accent-shift; these are roots in which the accent-shift¹⁵ expresses a modification of the material meaning; see § 337. So: alàm that known (see Index); Babá na riyàn sa iyò η kinàùupàn! Come down from your perch! An sakìt na kanya η tinítiis ay an lagnàt na típus. The sickness from which he is suffering is typhoid fever. ²⁰(an sákìt na kanya η tinítiis the grief he is enduring). Sama táyo sa pagbilì nan pálay. Let us be partners in buying rice. Cf. also hulì, above.

(b) In oxytone roots, where the accent-shift cannot occur, our form is homonymous with the simple root-word: Bigti nà si ²⁵Pédro. Pedro is now strangled. Bukas nà an láta. The can is opened. Busug nà an maña háyop. The animals have been fed their fill. Hintú na an trén nan akò y sumakày. The train had stopped when I got on. Hubad nà an báta'. The child is undressed now. ³⁰An maña Igoróte ay hubàd. The Igorote go naked. Hunkuy nà an bigàs. The rice is fanned now. Sya y kasàl. He (she) is married. Pantay nà an lúpa'. The ground has been levelled. Nàkíta ko η patid an sampáyan nan damìt. I saw that the clothes-line was broken. Punú na an bóte η itò. This bottle is already full. ³⁵Tayú na an báhay. The house is already erected. Tikwas nà an káhoy. One end of the log is down.

Similarly are used: aṅkìn, bilì, tadtàd, tuwà'.

(2) Doubling.

343. Simple doubling. Simple doubling expresses explicit ⁴⁰plurality or repetition, often with the idea of variation, intensity, or diminution: ápat-ápat four by four, four at a time, aṅ mata-matà trellis-work. Aṅ dúrù nya naṅ karáyom ay hindi parè-parého. Her stitches with the needle are not even. Sabày-sabày sila ṅ umalìs. They all went away at the same time. Similarly from: agàd, alìn, anò, áraw, bágay, bakìl, baluktòt, barà, gabì, ⁵gibà', halò', isà, lahàt, líbo, liṅgò, loòb, pantày, sári', síno, sunòd, tulà', untì'.

(a) The simple root does not occur and the meaning is discrepant in paru-parò butterfly.

(b) From derived words, in the same meaning: kaní-kanilà ¹⁰(ka-n-ilà § 528), kaní-kaníno (ka-n-í-no § 528), dalá-dalawà two by two, two at a time (da-lawà § 345), tatlu-tatlò three by three, three at a time (ta-tlò § 345).

(c) With retraction of accent: Dálì-dáli sya ṅ tumakbò. He ran off like a flash.

¹⁵344. (1) D. In some cases the accent is shifted; the meaning is the same: Putòl-putòl aṅ katawàn ni Hwàn naṅ áki ṅ màkíta. Juan's body was all cut up when I saw it. This form from: báhay, báyan, púnit, sábi, súlok.

(3) Reduplication.

²⁰345. Simple reduplication. In a very few cases the place of the root-word is taken by the root with reduplication. The only clear case is tutulè ear-wax, root -tulè. The numerals dalawà two and tatlò three seem to be irregularly reduplicated forms of roots -lawà and -tlò (for -talò?), as a few of the derivatives ²⁵seem to indicate. A number of words, treated in the following as simple roots, have, however, the aspect of this formation: babáye, bibin̄kà, bubuwìt a kind of mouse, gagambà, laláki, papáya (Spanish), tutubè, totoò.

346. Accented reduplication. Accented reduplication is used ³⁰chiefly in transient forms (§ 348); distinct from this use seems to be that of numerals, in the meaning of only so many: àápat, ílàn, íisà; similarly dá-dalawà only two (from da-lawà) (§ 345).

mámayà', mámyà' seems to be felt as a simple root-word and has been treated as such.

347. Of the two prefixes round which primary forms are grouped (§ 340), pag- is used only for abstracts of action (§§ 348. 350. 351); with paŋ- are formed words denoting the thing used for doing so and so, or as such and such: Nawalà' aŋ kanyà ŋ ⁴⁰paŋakála'. His power of thought left him. aŋ paŋatìp that used for roofing, a shingle. Magpapútol ka, Pédro, naŋ maŋa kawáya ŋ paŋbákod. Have some bamboo cut for a fence, Pedro. aŋ paŋbambò a stick or club used for beating. paŋbayò instrument for pounding rice, pestle. paŋdilìg implements used for sprinkling. ⁵paŋgápas a slicer, a curved knife with saw-toothed edge. Aŋ ginámit nya ŋ paŋgupìt na guntìŋ sa damìt ay mapuròl. The scissors he used for cutting cloth were dull; also simply: aŋ paŋgupìt scissors, shears, aŋ paŋhampàs a whip. Aŋ ginawà ŋ paŋháraŋ sa daàn naŋ maŋa tulisàn ay isa ŋ gibà ŋ karitòn. The robbers used ¹⁰*a broken-down wagon to make the obstruction on the road.* Aŋ laséta ŋ itò ay paŋháte' naŋ dáyap. This knife is used for cutting limes. aŋ paŋlìpa' the sticky mud used for smoothing the threshing-floor. aŋ paŋagínip a dream. pamitìk a single rein (one guides the animal by flicking it in various ways, cf. pitik a fillip, a flick, ¹⁵*a snap*). pamatày in pamatay-kúto thumb, literally: that with which one kills head-lice (kúto). Pamútol naṅ buhòk aṅ guntìṅ na itò. These shears are used for cutting hair. Aṅ salawàl na yitò y sya kò ṅ paṅsakà y sa kabáyo. These are my trousers for horseback-riding. Aṅ maṅa pintò ṅ may paṅsarà na gámit ay ²⁰sumásara ṅ kúsa'. Doors that have closing attachments close themselves automatically. aṅ panáli' a halter or rope for tying up an animal. Aṅ kulilìṅ na ytò y sya kù ṅ panáwag naṅ alíla'. This bell is what I use for calling the servants; also: paṅtáwag. Aṅ paṅtayò naṅ halíge ay hindí dumatiṅ. The instruments for ²⁵*setting up posts (i. e. the cranes) did not arrive*. Aṅ kalaykà y sya kò ṅ ginámit na paṅtípon naṅ maṅa bunòt na damò. I used the rake for piling up the uprooted grass. aṅ panúro' a pointer, anything used for pointing. Sya y may salawàl na paṅupò sa damúhan at gayon dìn máy-roon syà ṅ paṅupò sa sùgálan. ³⁰*He has trousers for sitting on the lawn and others for when he sits at the gaming-table*.

Similarly from, the following roots: áhit, áko', alaála, anàk, bilì, bilmìt, daláṅin, gamòt, hilámos, húli, ísip, ṅalán, pálo', pukpòk, sáboṅ, takìp, tanìm, tiwála'.

³⁵(a) This derivative from numerals denotes a thing used to fill such and such a place: aṅ paṅápat that used as fourth, as: the fourth horse in a team; of similar meaning: paṅlimà fifth, paṅánim sixth, pamitò seventh, paṅwalò eighth, paṅsiyàm ninth. From the ordinal (§ 416,a) is formed paṅúna first. From phrases ⁴⁰the higher numbers: paṅsa-m-pù' the tenth (sa m pù' ten), paṅlabi-ṅ-isà the eleventh (labi ṅ isà), paṅdalawa-ṅ-pù' twentieth, pamito-ṅ-pù' seventieth.

(b) A few formations show irregularities: panukála' equivalent to paṅakála' above, is felt to belong with akála'; cf. the similar insertion of u in paubáya' (§ 481,d); paṅinoòn master, does not seem to be felt as a derivative of ginoò and has therefore been ⁵treated as a separate root.

Second and third are derived from the reduplicated form (§ 345) and show phonetic irregularity: aṅ paṅalawà the second; one's second in a duel; paṇatlø third, third horse in a gun-carriage; similarly paṇatlo-ŋ-pù' the thirtieth.

¹⁰(c) From root with accent shift (§ 337) only paṇhulè the last (of an established series).

B. Transients, abstracts, and special static words.

(1) Active with -um- and abstract with pag-.

348. Of the active forms of the primary groups, that of the ¹⁵type with prefix zero expresses the actor in a simple action or process. Both of the punctual forms, actual and contingent, are made with infix -um-; the actual durative consists of the root reduplicated, with infix -um-; the contingent durative is reduplicated, but lacks the infix; the reduplication is in both cases accented. ²⁰The abstract of action consists of the root with prefix pag-. Thus the forms are: p-um-útol, p-um-ù-pútol, p-um-útol, pù-pútol, pag-pútol. Examples:

Umabaṇ kà naṇ maglalakò naṇ gátas. Watch for a milkman. Sya y umágaw naṇ maṇa laruwàn. He snatched some toys. Sya ²⁵y umáhon sa ílog (sa bundòk, sa gulòd). He went up the river (up into the mountains, up the hill). Pumútol ka, Hwàn, naṇ búho', pagáhon mo sa bundòk. When you go up into the mountains, Juan, cut some slender bamboo. Umámin sila Pédro sa harapàn naṇ hukòm. Pedro and his band confessed before the judge. ³⁰umámot sold, of other than a regular merchant. Umánib ka kay Pédro. Let your mat overlap Pedro's, i. e. Sleep next to Pedro. Umanḱin ka naṇ laruwàn. Take some toys for yourself. An pagáyaw nya ṇ kumáin naṇ karnè ay sya ṇ nakabùbúte sa kanyà. His not being willing to eat meat is what does him good. An ³⁵halíge naṇ báhay ay bumába' sapagkàt hindí káya naṇ lúpa' an bigàt na kanya ṇ dinádala. The post of the house sank because the

(2) Active with mag- and abstract with pag-r.

350. Many roots form their active with the prefix mag- for the contingent, nag- for the actual mode; the durative is reduplicated ³⁵before the prefix is added. The corresponding abstract of action has unaccented reduplication and prefix pag-. Thus: nagpútol, nag-pù-pútol, mag-pútol, mag-pù-pútol, pag-pu-pútol. These actives express, generally, a more deliberate action than those with -um-; often also one involving more effect on external objects than ⁴⁰do those with -um-. We take up first those roots from which forms with -um- do not occur in our material:

Akò y nagáantòk. I am sleepy. Aŋ lúsoŋ kay Hwàn sa kanya ŋ pagaaráro ay nagsidatiŋ nà. The helpers for Juan in his plowing have arrived (aŋ aráro a plow). Si Pédro ay magàasáwa. Pedro is going to take a wife. Si Pédro ay magàasáwa kay Hwána. Pedro is going to marry Juana. Silà y nagàáway. They are fighting. ⁵magbáhay build a house. ¹⁵351. When a root is used both with -um- and mag-, the latter form usually differs by adding another object affected (dumalà bear, bear up: magdalà carry to someone, to a place; bumalik go back; magbalik return to a place, to someone); in some instances the added object is the actor himself (reflexive); in others the ²⁰mag- form expresses a general activity, that with -um- a specific act (so, in part, pútol). Examples:

Sya y nagàáral. He is studying (umáral is known as an archaic word for teach morals, instruct; an áral that taught, precept, moral doctrine). Magbaluktot ka nañ yantòk. Curve some ²⁵*pieces of rattan* (bumaluktòt, § 348, intransitive or of a single specific transitive action). 352. Transients with mag- are much used with derived words; in so far as these belong to secondary groups, they will be treated below; see §§ 384. 405. 410. 427, a. 430, a.b.c. 453, a. 489. ²⁰489, a. 513.

(a) From phrases: Nagmàmadali-ñ-áraw. The day is dawning (madalì ñ áraw proximate day, i. e. dawn, daybreak), nagmèmè-ári' is possessing, has mastery of (may ári' owner, master). naghàháti-ñ-gabì. It is midnight (háti ñ gabì midnight). pagtatatlo-ñ-gabì ²⁵*the three nights' celebration* (tatlò ñ gabì).

(b) From compound words: pagbibigày-loòb (bigày-loòb); Añ maghampas-lúpa' ay nakasísira' nañ púri. Being a vagabond is dishonorable (hampàs-lúpa'); maghàhànap-búhay (hànap-búhay).

³⁰(c) From derived words: Transients with mag- from the contingent of transients with -um- express insistent and prolonged action: Káhit na walá sya ñ talíno ay nagpùpumílit sya ñ màtúto. Although he has no gifts, he is trying very hard to get educated. Sya y nagpùpumílit na pumaroòn sa pìknik. He is ³⁵trying hard to be able to go to the picnic (pumílit). Similarly, nagtùtumirà (tumirà).

From words with prefix ma- (§ 454) in the sense of making something or making (claiming) oneself to have a quality: Magmàmadalì táyo nañ paglákad, úpañ hwàg táyo ñ máhuli sa trèn. ⁴⁰*We will hurry our pace, so as* not to be late for the train (madalì'). Nagmámaligsì si Kulàs sa pagsunòd sa maña útos sa kanyà. Nicolás is quick about obeying the orders that are given him (maligsì). Nagmalwàt sya nañ pagparíto. He took a long time coming here. Hwag kà ñ magmaluwàt nañ pagparíto. Don't take too long about coming here (maluwàt). Similarly, pagmamarúnoñ (marúnoñ).

⁵From various words: Sila y naghimagsìk. They came to an armed conflict (-himagsìk § 518). Si Hwána ay naghíhimatày. Juana is fainting (himatày). Si Hwána ay nagkàkakanìn. Juana makes sweetmeats (for sale) (kakanìn, § 367,e). Sya y nagkalatimbà nañ marámi. He did the well-bucket exercise many times ¹⁰(kala-timbà', § 519).

(d) Especially common are transients with mag- from special static words with suffix -an; they express mutual or concerted action by two or more actors.

From the forms in S -an (§ 377): Nagàlísan añ mañà aluwáge ¹⁵no ñ lúnes nan hápon. The carpenters all left last Monday afternoon (àlís-an). Naglàlábásan silà. They were all going out. Silà y nagpitàsan nañ maña biyábas. They all picked guavas together. Magsìsìgáwan muna táyo bágo tapúsin añ mítiñ. We will all give a yell together before we close the meeting. Añ maña áso ²⁰sa báya ñ itò ay nagtáhúlan kagabì. The dogs in this town all barked last night. Similarly, from: bañkà', bastà, daàn, hukòm, iyàk, kamày, kantà, salità', takbò, tampò, taniyàg, tipàn, tugtòg, uwì'. The form in S -an is itself from a derived word in: Naghìmagsíkan añ mañà sundálo ñ Tagálog at Kastíla'. The Tagalog ²⁵*and Spanish soldiers fought each other* (hìmagsíkan from -himagsìk, § 518).

From the forms in S (1) -an (§ 378): Nagàawítan silà nañ akò y dumatiñ. They were singing in chorus when I arrived. Magìbígan kayò. Love one another. Nagìibígan si Pédro at si ³⁰Hwána. Pedro and Juana love each other. Añ ginawá nya ñ pagmumùráhan nañ kanyà ñ mañà kalákal ay dahilàn sa kanya ñ pañañailájan nañ kwàlta. His putting down the prices of his goods was due to his need of money. Similarly: hákot, káin.

From forms in (2) -an (§ 379): Hwag kayò η magmurahàn ³⁵sa daàn. Don't abuse each other on the street. Nagmùmurahàn silà. They were engaged in an abusive quarrel. An kàgalítan ni Pétra at ni Kulása ay natápus sa hàyága η pagmumurahàn. The hostility between Petra and Nicolasa ended in an abusive quarrel in public. Nagpurihàn an dalawa η magkaybígan sa kanila η pagtatalumpáte'. ⁴⁰*The two friends praised each other in their speeches.* Nagpùpurihàn an maña kaybíga η itò sa pàhayágan. This group of friends praise each other in the newspapers. Si Hwána at si Maryà ay nagputulàn nan kukò. Juana and Maria cut their fingernails. Silà y nagsàgasaàn. They all jostled one another. An pagsasàgasaàn nan maña táo ay lubhà η magulò. The jostling of all the people was most confused. Nagsugatàn silà. They inflicted wounds on one another. magtaanàn flee. An kanila η pagtutuluñan say hindí nátulòy. Their plan to help each other was not carried out. Similarly: ágaw, balíta', dáhil, hánap, harán, lában.

From diminutives in D -an (§ 381): Magàaswan-aswáñan daw si Pédro sa karnabàl. Pedro says he will dress up as a bogey-man for the carnival. Hwag kà η magaswan-aswáñan. Don't ¹⁰*play bogey-man.* Nagmanòk-manúkan si Hwàn sa karnabàl. Juan masqueraded as a rooster at the carnival. Silà y nagùuñgú-uñgúan. They are playing at being monkeys. Nagusà-usáhan siyà. He pretended he was a deer. So also: dapà'. From (1) D -an: Sya y nagbabá-babayíhan. He went dressed as a woman. ¹⁵So also from tákot.

353. Transients with accent shift and mag- may owe the shift to the root; so from ábot (§ 337): Nagáabòt si Hwàn nan sigarìlyo sa kanya η maña kaybígan. Juan is passing cigarettes to his friends. An pagaabòt nan sigarìlyo ay isa η ugáli η magálan. ²⁰*Passing cigarettes is a polite custom* (umabòt, § 348,c, does not involve a person to whom). So also múra.

In the great majority of instances, however, the accent shift is not peculiar to the root, but constitutes a special formation, which expresses a more plentiful and diverse action than the transient ²⁵with -um- or simple mag-. Silà y nagbábabàg. They are fighting each other. Magbarú ka. Get dressed, Put on your clothes. Sya y nagbunòt nan damò. He plucked up a lot of grass. Maghanàp kayò nañ maña bulaklàk sa párañ. Go and look for flowers in the woods. Pabayaàn nawá ninyò na sya y maghanàp. ³⁰*Please allow him to make an inspection.* Naghatí ako nañ maña itlòg na pinatigasàn ni Hwána. I halved a quantity of eggs which Juana had hard-boiled. añ paghahatè nañ maña mansánas the halving of the apples. Magisip kà nañ maña lugàr na maàári ñ kinaiwánan mo nañ iyò ñ librò. Think of the various places where ³⁵*you may have left your book.* Si Hwàn ay nagíisip nañ maña iháhandá nya sa fiyèsta. Juan is thinking of what things he will serve at the fiesta. Hwag kà ñ magputòl nañ abakà, Hwàn. Don't cut up any hemp, Juan. Magpúputol kamì nañ búho', yantòk, at bayúgin, pagdatìñ námin doòn. We shall cut slender bamboo, rattan, ⁴⁰*and thick bamboo when we get there.* Nagputòl si Hwàn nañ tubò sa pinások nya ñ tubúhan. Juan cut down a lot of sugar-cane in the cane-field he got into. Nagpúputol nañ kawáyan na hindí nya ári si Hwàn. Juan cuts down bamboo that does not belong to him. Nagpuyàt akò sa maña gabì ñ nagdaàn. I have repeatedly staid up late the last few nights. Hindí ko màputúlan nañ tahìd añ kátyaw, sapagkàt itò y nagsísikàd. I couldn't cut the rooster's spur, because it kept struggling with its feet. Sya y ⁵nagsísinuñalìñ. He is telling lies. Pagsusulàt nya nañ maña súlat ay pumaroòn ka t linísin mo añ kanyà ñ aralàn. While he is writing all his letters, go and clean his study. Añ pañinoò y nagtawàg nañ maña alíla'. The master called various servants. Nagtátawag syà nañ maña kitè', nañ ákin sya ñ datnàn sa bakúran. ¹⁰*She was calling to a lot of little chicks when I came upon her in the yard.* Añ pagtatawag nyà sa maña kitè' at añ maña pùtákan nañ maña manòk ay nakabíbiñì. Her constant calling to the chicks and the clucking of all the hens made a deafening noise. Añ báta y nagtúturó nañ kanyà ñ gustò. The child points at the various ¹⁵*things it wants.* Hwag kà ñ magutàñ. Don't go about asking for credit. Añ magutàñ sa marámi ñ tindáhan ay hindí maínam na ugále'. Buying on credit in many shops is a bad habit. Similarly from: bálot, íñay, lákad, láyag, líbot, tágo'.

(a) When transients with mag- are made from derived words, ²⁰the accent of the underlying word is occasionally shifted, apparently without change of meaning: Sya y nagmayabàñ. He boasted (mayábañ, § 454). Similarly: magkákalahatè' (kalaháti' § 519).

(b) In one such case there is not only accent shift, but also secondary accent on the first syllable of the underlying word: Sya ²⁵y nagmápuri. He praised himself. Sya y nagmàmàpuri. He is praising himself. Aṇ pagmamápuri ay hindí magandà ṇ ugáli'. Praising oneself is not a becoming habit (ma-púri, § 454).

354. The corresponding form from oxytone roots is made with unaccented reduplication of the underlying word: mag-si-sigàw, ³⁰mag-si-si-sigàw, nag-si-sigàw, nag-sí-si-sigàw; the abstract, however, lacks the extra reduplication, coinciding with that of §§ 350. 351: pag-si-sigàw.

Sya y naggugupìt naṇ maṇa papèl. He cut some pieces of paper into bits.
Sya y naggúgugupìt naṇ maṇa papèl. He is cutting ³⁵up some pieces of paper. Aṇ báta ṇ si Hwàn, kuṇ walà ṇ mágawa', ay sya ṇ nagháhahampàs sa maṇa púnu-ṇ-ságiṇ. It is little Juan who goes whipping at the banana-trees when he can't find anything to do. Hwag kà ṇ magpupukòl naṇ batò, sapagkàt baká mo tamáan aṇ bintána ṇ salamìn. Don't be always throwing ⁴⁰stones; you might break a window. Nagpúpuputàk aṇ inahì ṇ manòk na nása kulujàn. The hen in the crate keeps up a constant cackling. Ilágan mo aṇ dumáratinṇ na kabáyo na nagtátatakbò. Look out for the horse that's coming there; it's a run-away. Nagúuupú sya sa damò. He always sits on the grass. So also: dugò', inòm, lundàg, sigàw, tagpò'.

(a) In one instance a barytone root has this reduplication ⁵with explicit plural meaning: magkikíta see one another, meet (of more than two people, cf. magkíta).

355. Accent shift and reduplication of the root appear in barytone roots in the same sense as accent-shift alone, with perhaps a somewhat greater intensity of the action: Nagpúpuputòl ¹⁰naṇ retáso aṇ báta'. The child was cutting some rags into small bits. Aṇ kátyaw ay nagsísikàd. The rooster kept struggling with its legs. Sya y nagtátatawàg naṇ maṇa kitè'. She kept calling to the chickens.

356. With doubling of the root, transients in mag- express ¹⁵either action repeated at intervals or reciprocal action of explicitly more than two actors: Nagisà-isà aṅ maṅa báta' naṅ paglápít sa ákin. The children came to me one by one. So from: duklày, hiwalày, úlit.

(a) In one instance the root has accent shift: Naguna-unà ²⁰aṅ maṅa báta' naṅ paglápít sa ákin. The children vied with each other for the first place in coming to me.

(3) Active with maṅ- and abstract with paṅ- r.

357. The active with maṅ- has the forms: ma-mútol, ma-mù-mútol, na-mútol, na-mù-mútol, pa-mu-mútol (from pútol); it expresses ²⁵action more deliberate, selective, or in larger quantity (professional, habitual) than mag-; like the latter, but more clearly, it is used for the making or using of such and such an object. Examples:

Sya y naṅabála sa ámin. He made trouble for us. Naṅano ³⁰kà naṅ iyo ṅ maṅa kalarò'? What did you do to your playmates? Naṅáyap lámaṅ aṅ báta'. The child ate only relishes. Sya y naṅbábambo naṅ áso. He is a caning a dog. aṅ pamamaṅkà' canoeing. Namilì akò sa báya-ṅ-Malólos. I shopped in Malolos. Sya y naṅdídilig naṅ karsáda. He sprinkles streets. aṅ ³⁵paṅdidilig street-sprinkling (as vocation). Aṅ kasalatàn nina Hwàn sa pananamìt ay naṅgálin sa pagsusugàl ni Hwàn. Juan's family's want of clothing is due to his gambling. Hwag kà ṅ maṅhampàs. Don't go whipping people. Sya y naṅháraṅ naṅ maṅa táo. He made a practice of holding people up. Sya y hinúli naṅ ⁴⁰pulìs dahilàn sa paṅhaháraṅ naṅ maṅa táo. He was arrested by the police for highway robbery. Naṅháte si Hwána naṅ kalákal. Juana shared orders for goods. Aṅ paṅhaháte ni Hwána naṅ kalákal na ipinagbíbili nyà ay sya nyà ṅ ikinalúge. Juana's getting her stock of goods for sale by sharing in orders of fellow-retailers is what made her lose money. Naṅhínà naṅ pagtakbò aṅ kabáyo sa kalaúnan naṅ pagkàgámit sa kanyà. The horse slackened its pace because it had been driven too long.

Silà y nanhína'. They ⁵*grew faint*. Mañhiràm ka nañ palakòl. Go borrow a hatchet. mañhúla' practise fortune-telling. Nañhùhúli kamì nañ isdà' sa kagamitàn nañ dála. We catch fish by means of nets. Añ kanya ñ maña pañiñílag sa sakìt ay lubhà ñ malakè. His precautions against sickness are elaborate. Sya y nañàñabáyo. He rides ¹⁰*horseback*. Nañapá si Pédro nañ isdà'. Pedro caught fish in his hands (by feeling for them in mud-holes). Sya y nañàñaséra. He eats in a boarding-house. mañáwit cut twigs with the káwit (a small, hook-shaped pruning-knife); also: get tired of a position or occupation. Añ báta ñ si Hwàn ay nañàñáya nañ maña kápwa ¹⁵nya báta'. Little Juan lords it over the other children. Sya y nañúñublè. He is keeping himself in hiding. Hwag kà ñ mañuròt, Pédro. Don't be pinching people, Pedro. Añ kanya ñ pananagínip ay hindí nátuloy, sapagkàt nágisiñ syà sa kalabòg nañ púsa'. His dream was interrupted by his being awakened by the ²⁰*falling of the cat*. Sya y nanàñagínip. He is dreaming. Akù y nanagínip kagabè. I had a dream last night. Namáso sya nañ dalíri nañ kápwa nya báta'. He scorched his playmate's finger. Pamumútol nya nañ kawáya y sundàn mo syà t baká magliwaliw lámañ sa kalakhàn nañ panahòn. When he goes bamboo-cutting, ²⁵*follow him to see that he doesn't loaf most of the time*. Añ pamumútol nañ kawáyan ay mahírap. Bamboo-cutting is hard work. Namútol si Hwàn nañ kawáyan. Juan cut bamboo. Mamumútol kamì nañ damò úpañ ipagbilè. We are cutting grass for sale. Mamumútol kamì nañ tubò sa bakúran ni Áli ñ Pétra. We are ³⁰*going to cut sugar-cane in Aunt Petra's yard*. Añ báta ñ may sakìt ay namùmúyat sa kanya ñ inà. The sick child keeps its mother awake. Añ maláwig na pananalità' ay hindí maínam. Roundabout speeches are not pleasant. Pédro, hwag kà ñ manyásat nañ gawá nañ máy gawà'. Pedro, don't be inquiring into ³⁵*other people's business*. añ panunúlat writing in quantity, clerkship. añ pananahè' the occupation of sewing, the being a seamstress. Silà y nanahímik. They quieted down. Añ bàta y nanahímik. The boy quieted down to take a rest. manáwag call, summon (people). añ panunúro' the act of pointing things out. Sya ⁴⁰y nañúna. He went first, He led. Sya y mañùñúna. He will be in the lead. Añ báta y nañupò sa buntòt nañ sáya nañ babáye. The boy went and sat right down on the lady's train. Añ pañuupò nañ báta sa buntòt nañ sáya ay ipinahintú sa kanyà nañ kanya ñ nánay. The boy's trick of sitting down on people's trains was put a stop to by his mother. Sya y nanjusísa nan maña babáye. She interrogated a number of women. Nanútañ sya sa ákin nan 5limà ñ píso. He made a loan of five dollars from me.

Similarly from: áhit, áko', anàk, báhay, balíta', barìl, báro', báyan, bílog, bíro', búhay, bundòk, damìt, dúkit, gamòt, gupìt, hábol, hámon, hiñì', igìb, ìlin, káin, kumpisàl, latà', lóko, mahála', noòd, pagítan, píli', púlot, salákay, sariwa', siñìl, súbok, sulsè, súnog, 10súyo', tálo, tañháli', tiwála', umìt, yári.

(a) From derived words: añ pañhihìmagsíkan in the same meaning as paghihìmagsíkan (from hìmagsíkan, § 377,a); so from kalahátì' (§ 519), kináin (§ 365). See also §§ 421,a. 422,a.

(b) From words with prefix hin- (§ 518) we may derive, 15theoretically, the transients with prefix mañhin-, though the underlying word in most cases does not exist. For the phonetic irregularities see § 334,a,5.

Sila y nanhimagsìk. They came to an armed conflict (bagsìk). Hwag kà ñ mañhigantì sa kanilà, Hwàn; añ kababáan nan 20loòb ay láló ñ magandà. Don't take revenge against them, Juan; meekness of spirit is more becoming. Mañhìhigantì kamì dahilàn sa maña kalupità ñ ginawá nila sa ámin. We will take vengeance on them for the many cruelties they have committed against us. mañhinukò cut the fingernails (kukò). Nanhìhináyañ silà sa pagkamatà 25ni Del-Pilàr. They were mourning the death of Del Pilar. Malakì añ kanila ñ pañhihináyañ sa namatà ñ báta ñ si Hwàn, dahilàn sa hindí karanyúwa ñ talíno nya. Their grief at little Juan's death was great, on account of his unusual talents. (sáyañ). mañhiniñà pick the teeth (añ tiñà foreign substance between 30the teeth). mañhinulè clean out the ears (tu-tulè earwax, § 343).

(c) In one instance the root is doubled; its accent shift is due to the meaning of the root: Nanawà-nawà si Pédro nan márníng nyà na sya y nàpíli ñ magíñ bóbo sa larò'. Pedro could not 35keep from snickering when he heard that the choice had fallen on him to be clown in the play.

(4) Special static words.

358. A few individual forms of the preceding group have static value; of transients, umága morning (§ 348) and an mamáso' ⁴⁰*a blister* (páso'); of abstracts, an pagkáin food (beside the act of eating), cf. also pagdáka, § 265,9. The following are the regular formations of special static words of this type:

(a) Dual collectives with mag-: an magáli aunt and niece or nephew. An magamá η si Maryà at si Pédro ay naparoòn sa búkid. Pedro and his daughter Maria have gone to the country. An magasáwa η Pédro at Hwána ay naparoòn sa teyátro. Pedro and his wife Juana have gone to the theatre. An magatè η si Maryà at si Maryáno ay nagsipagpasyàl. Mariano and his oldest sister Maria went for a walk. Sila y magatè. She is his oldest sister. an magbaláe η si Hwàn at si Andrès Juan and Andrés, whose children have married each other. magbayàw two men, one of ¹⁰*whom has married the other's sister.* magbilàs two men who have married two sisters (an bilàs the husband of one's wife's sister). maghípag two women, one of whom has married the other's brother (each of the two is the other's hípag). magimpò grandmother and grandchild. maginà mother and child. magkúya the oldest brother ¹⁵*and a younger brother or sister.* magnánay mother and child. magtátay father and child.

Slightly divergent is magának: it includes the whole family, a given person plus his anjàn (§ 379): Nagsimbà an boò η magának. The whole family went to church. an magának na sina ²⁰*Hwàn Krùs the Juan Cruz family.*

Irregular in meaning are also magdamàg and maghápon, of periods of time.

From a compound word: an magkápít-báhay two neighbors.

From a phrase: Sila y magkápwa-táo. They act toward each other as fellow men should (kápuwà táo).

²⁵From a derived word: magamain uncle and nephew or niece (ama-in, § 367,a); see also §§ 408. 412,a. 490.

(b) mag- r similarly forms explicit plurals: an magaamà the group of a father with two or more of his children. an magbabaláe a group of three or more people whose children have intermarried. ³⁰an magiinà mother and children. an magkukúya a group of brothers and sisters including the oldest brother. magnanánay mother and children. magpipínsan a group of cousins. magtatátay father and children.

³⁵From a derived word: magkakasiñlakì (kasiñlakì, § 520). See also §§ 412,a. 427,d.

(c) mag- r also forms static words denoting a professional agent: an magaaráro a plowman, magbibistày woman who sieves the rice in a mill, magnanákaw thief.

⁴⁰From oxytone roots also with retraction of accent: an magbabáyo a rice-pounder, magbibígas a dealer in hulled rice.

(d) Barytone roots usually shift the accent: an maghuhugàs a dish-washer, maglalakàd traveller, maglilinìs a cleaner, maglilipà' plasterer, maglulutò' cook; Si Hwàn ay isa ŋ magpuputòl nañ káhoi. Juan is a wood-cutter; an magsusulàt a clerk scribe, magsusuyòd a harrower (súyod a harrow), maguutàñ a habitual borrower. So also from: láko', táwag.

¹⁰Oxytone roots often have retraction of accent: mangagámot mangagamòt; mangugúpit mangugupìt; Sya y màñiñinum nañ álak. He is a drunkard; also: mañínom (with the prefix kept apart by glottal stop, § 34, and no effect on initial vowel); mǎṇaṇatàm mǎṇaṇátam; mǎṇlilímos; aṇ mǎnanáhe' a seamstress ¹⁵(aṇ tahè' a seam); aṇ mǎnanánim a planter.

(f) Barytone roots usually have accent shift: aṇ maṇhuhugàs a dish-washer, maṇlalagarì' a wood-sawer, mǎmumulòt a gleaner (púlot); Aṇ maṇa mǎmumutòl naṇ káhoy ay nagsiáhon nà sa bundòk. The wood-cutters have already gone up into the ²⁰*mountains*. aṇ mǎnunulàt a scribe, clerk, aṇ mǎṇuṇutàṇ a habitual borrower, a "sponger". So also from: káyo, tálo.

(5) Direct passive.

359. The simple direct passive has suffix -in with accent shift of one syllable in the contingent, infix -in- (§ 334,b,1) in the ²⁵actual: putúl-in, pù-putúl-in, p-in-útol, p-in-ù-pútol. It corresponds to actives with -um- and abstracts with pag- and, to a large extent, also to actives with mag- and abstracts with pag- r. It expresses, transiently, an object viewed as fully affected, taken in by the actor, or created by a simple action.

³⁰Irregularities of form are as listed in § 334,c.

Ináko ni Hwàn aṇ útaṇ ni Pédro. Pedro's debt was taken over (pledged for) by Juan. Inàalaála ni Pédro aṇ kanya ṇ inà. Pedro was thinking of his mother. Hindí nya inàalaála iyòn. He does not mind that. Hindí nya àalalahánin iyòn. He won't ³⁵*mind that* (§ 334,c,3). Inàámin nya na ginawá nya iyòn. He admits that he did it. (a) From derived words: Inùumága silà sa kanila ṇ pagsasàlitáan. They were being overtaken by their morning in their conversation (um-ága, § 358). Si Hwána ay hinimatày. Juana was attacked by a fainting-fit (himatày, § 518).

(d) From doubled root, with meaning of repeated action: see isà; barytone root with accent shift: ámo'.

360. A few roots which have actives with mag- form the ¹⁰direct passive from the root with pag- prefixed. On the analogy of other forms (cf. § 369) one should expect this to be the case with roots whose active with mag- stood in contrast with -um- (§ 351); this is clearly the case, however, only in pag-isíp-in, pag-ì-isíp-in p-in-ag-ísip, p-in-ag-ì-isíp: Pinagísip nya ṇ magnákaw sa ¹⁵isa ṇ tindáhan. He laid plans for robbing a store (cf. in-ísip, § 359). The other roots which have pag- in the direct passive are: barìl, doòp, kúro', tapìk.

361. To the active with mag- (1) (§ 353) corresponds a direct passive with pag- and accent shift: pag-putul-ìn, p-in-ag-putòl, ²⁰etc. (pútol): Pinaghatí ko aṇ maṇa itlòg na pinatigasàn ni Hwána. I halved each of the eggs Juana had hard-boiled. Pinagisìp nya aṇ kahulugàn naṇ maṇa sènyas na nàkíta nya ṇ ibiníbigay naṇ isa ṇ sundálo sa isa nya ṇ kasamahà ṇ nàhúle naṇ kaáway. He figured out the meaning of the signals he saw a soldier ²⁵make to a comrade who was captured by the enemy. Pinagpúputul naṇ báta' aṇ sinúlid. The child is cutting the thread to bits. Pagputulin mò, Hwàn, aṇ maṇa siit. Cut out the bamboo-spines, Juan. Pinagusisá naṇ hukòm aṇ maṇa magnanákaw. The judge cross-examined the robbers. Similarly from kúha, nákaw, ³⁰sábi, sípa', súnog.

362. Likewise, corresponding to the active with mag- r (§ 354), is a direct passive with pag- r; see gawà', kagàt.

Passive with pag- (1) r (cf. § 355) from sípa'.

363. Passive with pag- (1) D (cf. § 356): Pinagsabì-sabi ³⁵nyà sa ibà t ibà η táo na si Pédro ay nàhúli sa pagnanákaw. He told various people on various occasions, that Pedro was arrested for thievery.

364. The direct passive is made from the root with prefix paη- to correspond to actives with maη- (§ 357): pa-mitas-ìn, pa-mì-mitas-ìn, ⁴⁰p-ina-mitàs, p-in-a-mí-mitàs (pitàs). Examples: Inamútan ko si Hwàn naη pinamilì ko η maηa librò. I let Juan purchase from me some of the books I had bought up. Pinamímitas nilà aη maηa kamatsilè. They picked the fruits of the tannic acid tree. Pamìmitasìn námin aη maηa búlak. We shall pick the capoc cotton. Pinamùlot námin aη maηa laglàg na búηa. We picked up the fallen betel-fruits. Pinaηútaη ko iyà η salapì' sa ⁵kanyà. I had to borrow that money you have there from him. Also from noòd.

(6) Special static words.

365. The infix -in- produces static words denoting things which are produced by such and such a process or treated so and ¹⁰so: aη pinítak each of the small sections into which a rice-field is divided by the irrigation trenches (pítak divide; as root-word, division). So from báta', hiηà, káin, lúgaw, púno', sáiη, súlid.

(a) With accent shift: inakày.

(b) A number of roots (here treated as simple) have the form ¹⁵of words with infix -in- (cf. § 333): hinála', kinábaη, linamnàm, sinuηáliη, tinápay, tinóla.

366. -in- R: aṅ ináamà godfather, iníinà godmother; cf. § 412,a.

367. Suffix -in with secondary accent on the first syllable of ²⁰the underlying word forms static words denoting something which undergoes such and such an action: Aṅ kalasìṅ naṅ kwàlta sa ibà y pára ṅ isa ṅ tugtúgin. The clinking of money is for others (than the spender) like music. So from bandà, damdàm, tiis (only here does the S show itself), tuṅkòl.

²⁵(a) Static words with (1) -in, with irregularities (§ 334,b), person or animal like something: amàin uncle; so from inà. Also of things consumed: inumìn drinking water, káin (káin) boiled rice ready to eat.

(b) The same with paṅ- in pa-naú-hin guest, if from táo.

From derived word, in the latter sense, with S on the first of three syllables: pàniwalàin credulous (paniwála', § 347).

(e) r (2) -in, with irregularity: ka-kan-ìn sweetmeat (káin).

(f) The following roots end in -in (§ 333): bayúgin, buhájin, dalájin prayer, kaiṅin, muláwin, salamìn.

⁴⁰(7) Instrumental passive.

368. The instrumental passive corresponding to the active with -um- and, to a large extent, to that with mag-, is formed with the prefix i- (§ 334,a,3); the actual taking also the infix -in- (§ 334,b,2): i-pútol, i-pù-pútol, i-p-in-útol, ip-in-ù-pútol. It denotes, transiently, an object given forth, parted from, or used as instrument or the person for whom in such and such an action ⁵or process.

(c) From root with accent shift (so that the total shift is two syllables): Aṅ utusàn naṅ kapitàn ay tinamaàn naṅ bála. The ³⁵*captain's orderly was hit by a bullet.* Aṅ lulòd ni Pédro ay tinamaàn naṅ bála. Pedro got shot in the shin. Tinamaàn naṅ kulòg (naṅ lintìk) aṅ isa ṅ púnu-ṅ-maṅgà. A mango tree was struck by the thunder (by lightning). Tamaàn ka naṅ lintìk! May the lightning strike you! (curse.)

40375. The local passive is formed from the root with pag- when it corresponds to an active in which mag- is contrasted with -um- (§ 351) or when the local relation, especially of person for whom, is highly explicit: pag-putúl-an, pag-pù-putúl-an, p-in-ag-putúl-an, p-in-ag-pù-putúl-an. Examples: An pagsakày sa kabáyo ay hindi magaà η pagarálan kuη salbáhe an kabáyo. Riding horseback is not easy to learn if the horse is unruly. Hindi káya ni Hwàn an kanya η pinagàaralan. Juan's studies are too hard for him. Pagbàbalikàn kità. I will come back to you. Pagbalikàn mo akò. Come back to me. An útaη ni Maryà ay pinagbayáran naη kanya η kapatid na babáye. Maria's debt was paid off by her sister. An áki η kapatid na laláki an pinagbilhàn ko nito η báhay. I sold this house to my brother. Napatid an lúbid na kanya 10η pinagbìbiyabúhan. The rope on which he was swinging broke. An pinagharáhan kina Hwàn ay isa η lugàr na malápit sa maηgáhan sa daà-η-Balíwag. The place where Juan and his company were held up was a spot near the mango-grove on the Baliuag road. Pagharían mo η mabúte an pulò η itò. Rule righteously over this 15island. Paghasáan mo naη maηa paηáhit an hasaà η itò. Use this whetstone to sharpen razors on. An pinaghatdan kò naη gátas ay maláyo'. The place to which I delivered the milk was a long way off. Sa pasíga η itò y walà η lugàr na pinaghùhubaràn naη damit. At this beach there is no place for undressing. an pinagibhàn the 20point of difference, the difference. Pagiñátan mo η dalhìn an túbo η kristal na iyàn, sapagkàt baká magkàputòl-putòl iyàn kuη hindi ka maíñat naη pagdadalà. Carry that glass tube carefully, because it might get smashed if you are not careful about the carrying it. Pinagkabyawàn nilà an lugàr na itò. This place is where they 25pressed sugar-cane. An pinagkàkabyawàn námin ay isa η lugàr na mataàs káy sa tubúhan. The place where we press sugar-cane is a place higher than the cane-field. Pagkabyawàn ninyò naη tubò an bágo η kabyáwan. Press the cane in the new press. Pagkàbyawàn nilà an bágo η tayò η kabyáwan. They will press sugar-cane 30in the newly-erected press. An hwátaw an sya mò η pagkánan. The Chinese bowl is what you are to eat from. Si Pédro an pinagkúnan naη maηa kasaηkápa η itò. Pedro is the one from whom we got these tools. Si Migèl an pinagkùkúnan nya naη kwàlta η paηbilè naη kalabàw. Miguel is the one from whom he gets money 35to buy carabao. An pagkúnan mo nan pálay ay an sáko η may kúlan. The place for you to take rice is the sack that is already broken. Hwag mò η paglaruwàn, Hwàn, an kutìη, sapagkàt baká mo iyàn màbúlag. Don't play with the kitten, Juan, for you might inadvertently blind it. Paglarwan mò an bóla. Play (with the) ⁴⁰*ball.* An kutìη ay nàbálot sa pinaglàlaruwàn nya η damìt. The kitten got wrapped up in the piece of cloth with which it was playing. Pagmasdan mò an bwàn. Look carefully at the moon. Hwag mò η pagputúlan nan ano màn an sankála η iyàn. Don't cut anything on that cutting-block. Pinagsalitaàn ni Hwàn an kanyà η maηa báta η kapatìd. Juan gave his little brothers a talking-to.

(a) From a phrase: pinagsa-ulàn (sa ulè').

(b) From a derived word: Maηa pinagpìpitagánan ko η ginoò! Respected sirs, Dear sirs (in oral or written address).

¹⁰(c) Irregularly without accent shift: pinagdaánan (daàn), cf. § 374,b.

(d) With extra accent shift, corresponding to active with mag- (1): Pagputulàn mo, Hwàn, nan maηa usbòη an kalabása. Cut a bundle of shoots from the pumpkin, Juan.

(e) With reduplication of the root, corresponding to the ²⁰active with mag- r (§ 354): pinagsisiglàη (silìd).

(f) With both extra accent shift and reduplication, corresponding to § 355: Pinagdàdadagukàn nya an maηa kaáway niyà. He was dealing blows to his enemies right and left (dágok a blow with the fist).

²⁵(g) From doubled root (cf. the active, § 356): pinagtùtulùṅ-tulúṅ (túlṅ).

376. The local passive with paṅ- corresponds to actives with maṅ-: pa-mutúl-an, pa-mù-mutúl-an, p-in-a-mutúl-an, p-in-a-mù-mutúl-an.

³⁰Saàn aṅ pinanṅalínan mo?—Aṅ pinanṅalínan ko ay an báya-ṅ-Mayníla'. Where have you come from?—I come from Manila. Aṅ maṅa pinítak na kadátig naṅ sápa' ay sya nyà ṅ pinanṅágapásan (or: sya nyà ṅ pinamùmutúl-an naṅ pálay). The sections of the rice-field bordering on the ditch are the ones he is cutting rice ³⁵*from.* Pinaṅitlugàn naṅ manòk aṅ kahò ṅ itò. The hen laid its eggs in this box. Hwag mò ṅ pamítasàn naṅ búṅa aṅ átis na nása tabì naṅ balòn. Don't pick the fruits from the atis tree by the side of the well. Siya kò ṅ pamítasàn naṅ búṅa aṅ byábas na nása gitná naṅ bakúran. I shall pick fruits from the guava tree ⁴⁰*in the middle of the yard.* Ali ṅ lugàr aṅ iyo ṅ pinamutúl-an naṅ damò? Which place did you cut grass from? Sinundó ni Pédro aṅ kapatid na babáye sa báhay na pinanànahían. Pedro fetched his sister from the house where she was working as seamstress. So also from: tálo, tiwála'.

(a) With paṅ-hin- the local passive corresponds to the active with maṅ-hin- (§ 357,b); the reduplication affects the hin- which, ⁵theoretically, we may regard as part of the underlying word. “Magáral ka ṅ mabúti at paṅhinayáṅan mo aṅ mahalagà ṅ panahòn,” sinábi ni Hwàn sa kanya ṅ anàk. “Study hard and take account of the precious time,” said Juan to his son. Káylan pa kayá paṅhìhinayáṅan naṅ maṅa táo aṅ maṅa áni ṅ taòn-taò y nàsisíra ¹⁰naṅ luktòn o naṅ túyot? When will the people at last regret the harvests that are every year destroyed by locusts or by drought? Pinaṅhinayáṅan nilà aṅ nálubog na baṅkà'. They were sorry about the canoe that had sunk. Pinaṅhìhinayáṅan námin aṅ marámi ṅ búhay na ginúgol naṅ báyan sa pagtatangòl sa katwíran. ¹⁵*We regret the many lives lost by the country in the defense of its rights.* (sáyaṅ); similarly from ganti: paṅhigantihàn.

(10) Special static words.

377. With S -an special static words are formed from oxytone roots, without the irregularities described in § 334. In meaning ²⁰they fall into two types, which, however, are not always clearly distinct.

(a) They express an action by two or more actors, a kind of plural of root words of the type described at § 341,3,a. An àlisan naṅ maṅa aluwáge ay sa lúnes naṅ hápon. The leaving of the carpenters ²⁵*is fixed for Monday afternoon.* an ìnúman a drinking party. An ìyákan naṅ maṅa báta' ay nárinig ko sa kalsáda. I heard on the street the crying of the children. An kàlabúgan naṅ maṅa nalaglàg na nyòg dahilàn sa malakàs na hájin ay nárinig hanğàṅ sa maláyo ṅ lugàr. The thud of the cocoanuts that were ³⁰*thrown down by the strong wind was audible for some distance away.* An kàlasíjan naṅ maṅa kwaltà ṅ laglàg sa bulsà ni Hwàn ay sya ṅ nakàgísín kay Pédro. The rattling of the coins falling from Juan's purse was what woke Pedro up. An kantáhan naṅ maṅa íbon ay ginágawà nila kuṅ umága. The birds sing together ³⁵*in the morning.* An kùrútan nilà sa nilúto ko ṅ isdà' ay lubhà ṅ madalàs. They often pinched pieces out of the fish I had cooked. An litsúnan nila Hwàn ay hindí nátulòy. The barbecue of Juan and his friends did not come off. An luksúhan naṅ maṅa luktòn ay totoò ṅ maiiklè'. The leaps of the small grasshoppers are very ⁴⁰*short.* An pàgakpákan naṅ maṅa táo pagkaraàn naṅ talumpáte' ay lubhà ṅ mahába'. The applause of the people after the speech was very long. An pintásan ni Hwána at ni Maryà ay parého ṅ hindí totoò. The criticisms of Juana and Maria make of each other are equally untrue. An kanyà ṅ maṅa lalagyàn naṅ tuba' ay pùnúa ṅ lahàt. His containers for the sap are all full. An kanila ṅ sàkáyan sa trèn ay sa liṅgò naṅ umága. They are all to take the train Sunday morning. Naparoòn akò kagabè sa isa ṅ sàyáwan. ⁵*I went to a dance last night.* An sìgáwan naṅ maṅa báta' sa kalsáda ay nakabíbiṅì. The shouting of the children on the street is deafening. an tàhúlan naṅ maṅa áso the baying together of the dogs. an tàyáan a staking, a putting up of stakes (an tayà' a stake in a bet or game). Nárinig sa isa ṅ ùpúan naṅ maṅa Intsèk an ¹⁰kwènto ṅ itò. This story was heard in a gathering of Chinamen.

From derived word: An hìmagsíkan sa Filipínas ay natápus nà. The fighting in the Philippines is over. (as though from a form ¹⁵-himagsìk, see § 518).

This formation underlies further derivatives, see §§ 352,d. 357,a.

(b) The other meaning of the formation S -an is that of an object viewed, rather explicitly (cf. § 380), as the scene of plural ²⁰*action* or the place of things. So: an bìgásan the place where hulled rice is made, threshing floor for rice, rice-mill. Si Hwàn an bìgáyan nilà nan kanilà η maña ninákaw na aláhas. Juan is the one to whom they give the jewelry they have stolen. an bìlangúan a prison (an bilanğò' a prisoner). An kanila η bìlíhan nan pálay ²⁵ay sa kamálig ni Hwàn. The place where they buy rice is in Juan's storehouse. An dàanan nan maña sundálo ay an landàs na itò. The usual route of the soldiers is this path. an hampásan the whipping-bench. An maña magkakápit-báhay na si Andrès, Kulàs, at Pédro ay nagtátalo tunkùl sa kaní-kanilà η hanğáhan nan bakúran. ³⁰*The neighbors Andrés, Nicolás, and Pedro are disputing about the boundaries of their grounds.* Sa pagítan nan báya-η-Balíwag at báya-η-San-Migèl ay máy-roo η isa láman na hintúan an maña naglálakad. Pedestrians have only one stopping-place between the towns of Baliuag and San Miguel. Si Pédro ay sya η hìráman nan ³⁵salapì' nan maña táo sa báyan. Pedro is the one from whom the people in the town borrow money. an hunkúyan a machine for fanning the pounded rice. An isa η taburète láman an ginawá nila η làgáyan nan kanila η maña sombréro, sapagkàt an sabitan ay punú nà. A chair was all they had to lay their hats on, for the ⁴⁰*hat-rack was already full.* An lànúyan sa ílog ay bumábaw. The swimming-place in the river grew shallow. an làrúan the playground. An libáhan sa maña báta' sa maña bapòr na naglálalayag sa dagat nan Pasífiko ay lubhà η malilínis na lugàr. The play-rooms for children on the steamers that ply on the Pacific Ocean are very neat places. an nyúgan a cocoanut grove. An pàtáyan nan bábuy ay nasúnog. The pork slaughter-house burned down. ⁵an pàtisan a factory for shrimp-sauce (patìs, made of the small shrimp called hípon). An báro η punìt-punìt ay sya nyà η ginawà η tagpían nan maña retáso. She sewed the patches all on to the ragged blouse. An kanila η tagpúan ay an daà-η-Balíwag. Their meeting-place is the Baliuag road. aŋ tanyágan an exhibition, exposition. ¹⁰aŋ timbáŋan a pair of scales. aŋ tindáhan a shop, store (aŋ tindà the goods for sale in a store).

Similarly, from: aklàt, bantày, bigtì, biniyàg, bukàs, buntòt, dasàl, gawà', hagdàn, higà', hukòm, kabiyàw, kublì, kulòŋ, libìŋ, luksò, maŋgà, pintà, pintò, pitàg, punlà', sampày, saŋlà', simbà, ¹⁵sahàn, taŋgàp, taraŋkà, tirà, upò'.

A very few show irregularities: eskwèl-han, paá-nan, tòto-hánan the truth (totoò); the secondary accent is lacking in damú-han, tubú-han; irregular in kumpisál-an.

From a compound word: úbus-làkásan (úbos-lakàs).

²⁰From a phrase: sà-lawáhan changeable, fickle, as though from sa lawà; for the latter see § 345.

From derived words: aŋ ìnumínan place for drinking-water, water-shelf (inum-in, § 367,a); aŋ sìlaŋán-an the east (silaŋ-àn, § 379).

Aŋ ìbígan ni Maryà at ni Hwàn ay natápus sa pagtatampúhan. The love-affair of Maria and Juan ended through their contrariness. ³⁰Aŋ làyásan naŋ maŋa sundálo ay hindí maampàt naŋ kanila ŋ maŋa pinúno'. The deserting of the soldiers could not be stopped by their officers. Sa miyèrkules aŋ lùlánan nilà sa trèn. On Wednesday they are to embark on the train. Aŋ pùlútan nilà naŋ kwaltà ay náhintò' naŋ márinig nilà aŋ putòk. Their scrambling ³⁵*for money ceased when they heard the crash.* aŋ tìpúnan a meeting.

So: háyag, húni, káin, kílos, sáma, túloy.

Irregular in form is: An tawánan nila Hwàn ay náhinto dahilàn sa kanila η pagkàgúlat. The laughter of Juan's crowd stopped on account of their surprise (táwa).

⁴⁰Irregular in meaning, as though local instead of plural, is: An gulòd na itò ay sya η siláñan nan áraw. This hill is the place where the sun rises (silán).

379. The form from barytone roots corresponding to the type in § 377,b and often also to type a, is: (2) -an, without irregularities: An agawàn nan maña unḡò' ay magulò. The grabbing by the monkeys was confused. an basahàn a reading-room, library. ⁵Bulakàn Bulacán (name of a province, if from búlak a cluster of capoc cotton). An maliit na úna η itò ay sya kò η duruàn nan maña aspilè. This little cushion is where I stick my needles. an haluàn a mixing-vessel. an hugasàn a place for washing dishes. an hulihàn nan isdà' a fishing-expedition. Si Hwána ay isa η babáye ¹⁰η kutuhàn. Juana is a lousy woman. An labanàn nan maña Tùrkos at Inḡléses ay kasulukúyan pa láman. The warfare between the Turks and the English is only now taking place. An kanila η lakaràn ay lubhà η masayà. Their walking party is very merry. An kanila η lusunàn ay hindí natápus na mabúte, sapagkàt marámi ¹⁵sa maña táo ay matamàd. Their cooperative scheme did not turn out well, because most of the people were lazy. An murahàn ni Hwána at ni Maryà ay nárinig nan boò η báyan. The revilings of Juana and Maria were heard by the whole town. Sa báya-η-San-Migèl ay nanjyàre an isa η nakawàn. In the town of San Miguel a ²⁰*robbery took place.* An tablà η itò ay ginawà η pakuàn nan maña báta' sa maña páku η aspilè na kinúha nilà. The children used this board for hammering in the tacks they had taken. An bútas nan banka' ay sya η ginawà η pasakàn ni Pédro nan pagkìt. The leak in the canoe was where Pedro calked in the wax. an putikàn a clay-pit; ²⁵a person or thing covered with mud. An isà η labanàn ay syà η nagiñ silañàn kay Hesùs. Jesus was born in a manger; an kátri η silañàn ni Hwána the bed in which Juana's children were born. Sya y sugatàn He is wounded; an sugatàn the wounded (as, after a battle). an sulatàn a writing-desk. An sílon nan báhay ay sya nyà η ³⁰taguàn nan maña kasanjápan sa pagaalwáge. The ground-floor of his house is where he keeps his carpentry tools. An kuwàrto η itò ay sya kò η tulugàn. This room is my sleeping-place. An tulugàn nan báhay ni Hwàn ay nása bubuñan. The sleeping-quarters in Juan's house are on the roof. aṇ utusan a servant, a waiter, an ³⁵orderly.

Similarly: áral, búkol, dáhil, háraṇ, hása', íhaw, ílaw, káin, lúto', sábit, sáboṇ, tápon, túlis, úlo, úpa, óras.

With irregularities: hàlamanàn garden, flower-pot (haláman) has secondary accent on the first of three syllables; aṇkàn the members ⁴⁰*of a given person's immediate family*, not including himself: aṇ aṇkàn ni Hwàn Krùs Juan Cruz' wife and children (from -ának, cf. mag-ának, § 358,a); kwayanàn, beside kawayanàn (kawáyan).

With irregularity and reduplication: ka-kan-àn (-káin).

380. (1) -an with irregularities forms static words denoting objects by the action for which they are locally used or by the things they are the place of; the local meaning is less explicit, and ⁵the object has more fixed identity apart from its local relation than is the case in the preceding forms. This distinction is very clear where both forms occur from the same root (cf. kulònṇ, lagày); it may disappear where only one form is made (sagínan, atísan have the same value as nyúgan).

¹⁰aṇ atísan a grove of atis trees. Aṇ asuhàn naṇ báhay ni Pédro ay nasúnog. The chimney in Pedro's house burned out. Bigasàn aṇ kanya ṇ sináinṇ. Her boiled rice has raw rice in it, is not done. Aṇ kanya ṇ damìt ay pulahàn. Her clothes are all red. Sya y isà ṇ pulahàn. He is a Red, a member of the Red party. aṇ siláṇan the east, also Siláṇan Silangan (name of a town). aṇ taanàn a fugitive. aṇ manòk na talúnan ¹⁵*the defeated game-cock*; lúto ṇ talúnan a dish in which the defeated game-cock is cooked with ginger. Similarly: bákod, bubònṇ, dúlo, gawà', haṇgà, haràp, kulònṇ, labàṇ, larò', likòd, lulòd, paà, ságinṇ, tintéro.

(a) Some roots which begin with l and most of those whose ²⁰irregularity involves contraction, have reduplication in this form: Aṇ lalagyàn ko naṇ librò ay aṇ mésa ṇ itò. This table is my bookstand. Aṇ uupà ṇ itò ay gàgamítin naṇ maṇa panaúhin. The guests will sit on these seats. Aṇ uupà ṇ itò ay sa háre'. This seat is for the king. luluràn shin. Similarly: hihigàn (higà'), lalamúnan (lámon), ²⁵lalawígan (láwig), sasakyàn (sakày), titirhàn (tirà).

(b) From derived words: Napútol nilà aṅ púno-ṅ-káhoy sa kalahatían. They cut the tree at the middle. Nalagòt aṅ lúbid sa kalahatían. The rope broke at the middle. (kalahátì', § 519). Aṅ bútas naṅ baṅkà' ay nása tagilíran. The leak in the canoe is in the ³⁰*side.* Nilagyàn ni Hwàn naṅ tagilíran aṅ kanya ṅ báhay. Juan put side-walls on his house. (tagílíd, § 523).

381. D -an, with accent shift if the root is barytone, forms words denoting an object which is an imitation or miniature of such and such: aṅ dagat-dagátan a lake; aṅ kabá-kabayúhan a play-horse; ³⁵aṅ tao-taúhan a manikin, doll; the pupil of the eye; aṅ baril-barílan a toy-gun. Further derivatives from this formation, see § 352,d.

382. Many roots here treated, because felt, as simple, end in -an: baṅàn, batalàn, dalandàn, hagdàn, haláman, kánan, kápitan, ⁴⁰kapitàn, kawáyan, laráwan, pagítan, pakuwàn, paṅnàn a hand-basket, pasígan (Pásig is the name of a river), piṅgàn, saguwàn a paddle, saṅkálan, tampalásan, tahílan.

383. Similar formations with paṅ- prefixed add the element of meaning present in the transient formations with maṅ- and paṅ-; they have secondary accent on the prefix, as though it formed part of the underlying word:

(a) pàṅ- -an (cf. § 377): Aṅ kahò ṅ itò ay sya ṅ pàṅitlúgan ⁵naṅ manòk. This box is the place where the hen lays its eggs.

(b) pàṅ- (1) -an (cf. § 378): Si Hwàn ay sya ṅ paráti ṅ pàmunúan naṅ básag-úlo. Juan is the one who always starts the fighting.

(c) pàṅ- (2) -an (cf. § 379): pàṅaserahàn boarding-place.

¹⁰II. Secondary groups.

1. Prefix si-.

384. The prefix si- is used only in active transient forms, and is always preceded by mag- or nag-: mag-si-pútol, mag-sì-si-pútol, nag-si-pútol, nag-sì-si-pútol. In meaning these forms are explicit ¹⁵ plurals of the primary active forms. Occasionally the plural value is emphasized by infixation of -aŋ- into the mag- or nag-.

385. From the simple root the explicit plural with si- corresponds to the primary actives with -um- or, in many cases, with mag-. Nagsiílag sila sa báyan naŋ itò y pasúkin naŋ maŋa kaáway. ²⁰*They all fled from the town when the enemy entered it.* Aŋ maŋa áso ay nagsìsilámon. The dogs are eating. Magsiligáya kayò. Rejoice, Be glad. Aŋ maŋa laŋgàm ay nagsìsilipumpòn (or: nagsìsilípon) sa nápatay nila ŋ gagambà. The ants are crowding all over the spider they have killed. Nagsìsipútol sila ŋ lahàt naŋ tubò ²⁵nañ kamì ay dumatìṅ. They were cutting sugar-cane when we arrived. Magsipútol kayò ñañ tubò. Do you all cut sugar-cane.

So from: akìyàt, alìs, dálaw, dalò, datìṅ, húli, húsay, iyàk, kantà, kápìt, lakì, lípat, lúlan, pígil, puntà, pustà, sáyad, tindìg, tugtòg, túlonṅ, túṅo, uwì'.

³⁰(a) Plurality emphasized: Nañagsiúronṅ aṅ maña sundálo. The soldiers retreated. So also from alìs.

386. This formation is made from the root with pag- prefixed when it corresponds to primary actives with mag- in contrast with -um- (§ 351). Nagsìsipagáral silà. They are studying. Magsipagáral ³⁵kayò. Study. Aṅ maña báta' ay áyaw magsipagbíhis. The children don't want to change their clothes, get dressed up. Aṅ maña langàm ay nagsìsipagípon (or: nagsìsipaglípón) ñañ pagkáin kuṅ tagáraw. The ants store up food in the hot season. Magsipagpútol kayò, Pédro, ñañ káhoy na gàgamítin sa paglilitson. Pedro, ⁴⁰do you folks cut some wood to be used in the barbecue.

“Magsìsipagpútol dàw sila ñañ dikóla,” aṅ sábi ni Hwána. “They say they are going to cut off the trains of their skirts,” said Juana. Napsipagpútol ñañ buhòk aṅ maña Intsèk. The Chinamen cut off their queues.

Nagsìsipagpútol ñañ buhòk aṅ maña Intsèk na si Yèṅ at Tsàṅ, ñañ sila y datnàn ko sa kanila ṅ tindáhan. The Chinamen ⁵Yeng and Chang were cutting their queues when I came upon them in their shop. Nagsipagtipìd aṅ sundálo. The soldiers economized.

So from: basà', dasàl, hintò', larò', pasiyàl, sísi, sugàl, takbò, tindìg, yukayòk.

¹⁰(a) Plurality emphasized: ñañagsipagtakbò.

(b) The pag- is used when the underlying word is a derived word: Aṅ maña sundálo ṅ Tagálog ay nagsipaghimagsìk. The Tagalog soldiers revolted (-himagsìk, § 518). Nagsipaghìmag síkan silà. They fought each other (hìmag síkan, § 377,a). So ¹⁵from: agawàn (§ 379), -bugtúnan (§ 377,a), labanàn (§ 379), takbúhan (§ 377,a). Cf. § 406.

(c) The same formation with accent shift of the root corresponds to primary actives with mag- (1), § 353. It occurs from: bálot, lákad, líbot.

²⁰387. With paŋ- prefixed to the root, this formation corresponds to the primary active with maŋ- (§ 357). Magsipamaŋká táyo. Let's all go canoeing. Magsìsipamiyábas kamì sa maŋa gúbat na malápit. We are going guava-picking in the jungles near here. Si Pédro at si Hwàn ay umáhon sa bundòk úpaŋ magsipamútol ²⁵naŋ káhoy na asanà'. Pedro and Juan went up into the mountains to cut asana. Àáhon kamì sa bundòk at magsìsipamútol kamì naŋ muláwin. We are going up into the mountains to cut molave.

So from: barìl, hína', hiŋì', noòd, tahímik, tálo.

³⁰(a) With paŋ-hin-, cf. § 357,b: Silà y nagsipaŋhimagsìk. They made a revolution.

2. The prefix paki-.

388. The prefix paki-, which forms simple static forms, transients, and abstracts, expresses that the subject of the sentence ³⁵performs or undergoes the action along with others that were involved in it before,—this either through interference or by favor of someone else.

389. Simple static form: aŋ pakikinábaŋ the obtaining of profit (kinábaŋ) in trade with others; also: holy communion. So ⁴⁰pakipútol, in command (cf. § 341,3,c), cut as a favor.

390. The active transient and the abstract have the forms: maki-pútol, makì-ki-pútol, naki-pútol, nakì-ki-pútol, paki-ki-pútol, i. e. the reduplication affects the syllable -ki-.

An kapitán ay nagpadalà nañ isa ñ sekreta sa lúpà nañ kaáway úpañ makiramdàm nañ kanila ñ kilúsan. The captain sent ⁵a spy to the enemy's country to spy out (literally: perceive along) their movements. Makikikáin akò kina Lílày. I am going to Lilay's for a meal. Si Pédro ay nakikáin kina Hwàn. Pedro took a meal at Juan's house. Nakipútol akò nañ damò sa lúpà ni Mariyáno. I obtained permission to cut grass from Mariano's ¹⁰land. Sila y nàròroòn sa búkid ni Pédro at nakikipútol nañ damò. They have gone to Pedro's field and are cutting grass there by his permission. Pumaroòn ka t makipútol nañ damò. Go and ask them to let you cut some grass. Pakikipútol díto ni Hwàn nañ damò ay siñilín mo añ útañ nya. When Juan asks to be allowed ¹⁵to cut grass here, dun him for his debt. Sila y nakisúno kay Mariyà. They had Maria let them live in her house with her.

So: sakày, sáma, túloy, túlog.

(a) With accent shift of the root (§ 337): makialàm look after someone, nose into others' affairs (álam).

²⁰391. The root has pag- when the formation corresponds to a primary active with mag- in contrast with -um- (§ 351): Nakikipagáway añ báta ñ itò, kanyà' hindí dápat pahintulúta ñ madalàs na manáog nañ báhay. As this boy gets into fights, he should not often be allowed to leave the house. Nakipagáway si Pédro. ²⁵*Pedro got into the fight.* Nasaktàn si Hwàn sa kanya ñ pakikipaglarò'. Juan got hurt when he joined into the game. So from: bunò', dalamháti', lában, tagpò', úsap.

(a) From derived words: Hwag kà ñ makipaglànúyan, Hwàn, at baká ka malúnod. Don't go swimming with the crowd, ³⁰Juan, I am afraid you might get drowned. Makikipaglànúyan ka bà, Pédro? Are you going along swimming, Pedro? Nakipagluksúhan si Hwàn nañ idáos añ maña larò'. Juan entered in the jumping-contest when the games were held. Similarly, from: pustá-han, siksík-an, takbú-han. All these belong under § 377,a. ³⁵See also § 427,b.

(b) Corresponding to primary active with mag- (1) § 353: Nakipagbabàg si Pédro. Pedro got into a free fight (bábag).

392. The root has paŋ-, corresponding to a primary active with maŋ-: Sya y hindí pinahintulútan sa kanya ŋ pakikipamútol ⁴⁰naŋ tubò. His request to be allowed to cut cane was not granted.

393. In the passive the paki- expresses that the subject undergoes the action along with others, often as a favor on the part of the actor. So direct passive: paki-putúl-in be cut, as a favor on the part of the one who does the cutting; the recipient of the favor is the speaker.

394. In the instrumental passive the meaning is similar; sometimes, however, the instrumental passive is used with the person ⁵asking the favor as agent.

Maárì mo ñà ŋ ipakihúlog sa kuréyo aŋ súlat? Will you please mail my letter for me? (literally: Can my letter please be thrown-along-with-yours or thrown-as-a-favor into the mail by you?). Ipinakihúlog ni Pédro aŋ áki ŋ súlat. Pedro mailed my ¹⁰letter (along with his or as a favor) for me.

Ipinakìkihúlog ko lámaŋ kay Pédro aŋ áki ŋ maŋa súlat. I am asking Pedro to mail my letters for me; here ipinakìkihúlog is not that thrown as a favor, but that asked to be thrown as a favor. Ipakìkipútol daw ni Hwàn aŋ buhòk naŋ alilà nya ŋ Intsèk. Juan says he will ask ¹⁵someone to cut his Chinese servant's hair; ipakìkipútol is here that asked to be cut as a favor, and the relation of asking is the only thing expressed by the instrumental (rather than the direct) passive.

395. The root has pag-, corresponding to § 351: Ipakipagpútol ²⁰mo ñà' naŋ buhòk aŋ guntìŋ na itò, úpaŋ áti ŋ masubúkan aŋ húsay naŋ talìm. Please use this shears in cutting hair, so that we may test the quality of the edge (genuine instrumental passive). Ipakìkipagpútol daw nya akò naŋ búhò' pagáhon nya sa bundòk. He says he will cut some bamboo for me when he goes ²⁵up into the mountains. (genuine instrumental passive).

Ipinakipagpútol akò ni Hwàn naŋ tubò. Juan had someone cut me some sugar-cane (literally: I was asked to be cut for as a favor).

Ipinakìkipagpútól daw ni Hwàn si Pédro naŋ labòn. Juan says he is having someone cut bamboo-shoots for Pedro.

³⁰396. Local passive with paki-: pinakibalitáan was ascertained by the actor getting people to tell him as a favor.

(a) From shifted root: pinakialamàn.

(b) With pag- (cf. § 352): pinakìkipagtakbuhàn.

3. The prefix ka-.

³⁵397. Secondary forms with the prefix ka- are of most varied meaning; the principal types express association of two individuals or groups and involuntary action. In accented form the prefix kà- expresses chiefly accidental occurrence. In certain passives associated with this group the prefix itself does not appear.

⁴⁰(1) Simple static forms.

398. Words with prefix ka- denote objects (or groups) standing in such and such a relation to another object (or group). Sya y áki ŋ nagìŋ kabaláe. He (she) has become my fellow-parent-in-law, i. e. Our children have intermarried; the form ka-baláe merely makes explicit the element of relation present in the simple word: ⁵Si Bantùg ay áki ŋ baláe. Bantug's son (daughter) has married my daughter (son). Aŋ maŋa áso ay nása kabilá naŋ bákod. The dogs are on the other side of the fence (the simple -bilà' does not occur; the idea of other side is always envisaged as relative). Aŋ búkid ni Hwàn ay karátig naŋ kay Pédro. Juan's field borders ¹⁰*on Pedro's*. Aŋ mésa η itò y kakúlay naη kahòn. This table is of the same color as the chest. Si Hwàn aη kalában ny Andrés sa larò η dáma. Juan is Andres' opponent at checkers. Kamatà si Hwàn ni Pédro. Juan and Pedro took to each other from first sight. Aη tagpí naη báro ni Pédro ay hindí kamukhá naη báro'.

Similarly from: áway, báyan, biyàk, bunò', ribàl, haràp, kilála, ³⁰kláse, lákip, larò', pantày, partè, sabuwàt, sáli, sálo, sáma, súno', tapàt, timbà', untì', úsap, walà'.

Divergent in meaning are katáo (§ 255), kagabì, kahápon (§ 259). Cf. also § 520.

(a) From derived words: Syà y isa kò η kamagának. He is ³⁵a relative of mine (mag-ának, § 358,a), and kamakalawà (§ 259, from maka-lawà, § 453).

(b) From a phrase: aη kasa-η-báhay a person dwelling in the same house with another, a housemate (isà η báhay).

(c) From shifted root (§ 337): Si Hwàn ay kagalìt ni Pédro ⁴⁰at ni Kulàs. Juan is at odds with Pedro and Nicolás. aη kanyà η kagalìt the person or persons with whom he is at odds. Si Pédro aη nagìη kasirá ni Hwàn. It is Pedro with whom Juan is angry. Hindí ko katalò si Pàrì Hwàn. I don't play winning-and-losing games with Father Juan. Similarly from álam, sáma.

(d) The root is reduplicated in a few cases: Si Pédro aṅ áki ṅ kababáyan. Pedro is my fellow-townsmen (beside kabáyan); katutúbo' native, ingrown, inborn, inherited.

400. ka- R. With accented reduplication of the underlying ¹⁰word ka- forms words expressing the recent completion of an act; they are used impersonally (§ 77) or as conjunctive attributes. Kaàáway pa lámaṅ ni Hwàn sa kanya ṅ kalarò'. Juan has only just now quarreled with his playmate. Kabàbáṅon ko. I have just got up. Kagàgáliṅ sa báyan naṅ kapatid ko ṅ babáye. My ¹⁵sister has just come back from town. Kahíhiga ko pa lámaṅ. I had just then lain down. Kalàlarú ku pa lámaṅ sa báta'. I have just finished playing with the child. Kapùpútol ko pa lámaṅ naṅ yantòk. I have only just now cut some rattan. So gísìṅ, káin.

(a) ka-pag- R, with the usual value of pag- (§ 369, etc.): ²⁰Kapagpùpútol lámaṅ ni Hwàn naṅ kawáyan. Juan has just come from cutting bamboo.

(b) ka-paṅ- R, corresponding to active with maṅ- (§ 357): kapamùmútol (pútol).

401. ka- D. With doubling of the root ka- has causative ²⁵value: it expresses that which causes such and such an involuntary action, specifically, such and such an emotion: Aṅ dumatiṅ na bálaṅ ay katákot-tákot aṅ dámi. The locusts that came were frightful in quantity. So from hiyà', takà. Vowel-contraction in kàwáwa' pitiable, piteous (for ka-áwa-áwa'). Slightly divergent ³⁰in meaning is karáka-ráka (§ 265,5).

402. In a different use ka- has the form kay- in some words; these formations express a remarkable degree of a quality; they are used impersonally (§ 76), as predicate (§ 247), occasionally as conjunctive attributes: kaálat kayálat what saltiness! (of ³⁵water); kay-asùl what blueness! Katáyog naṅ púno-ṅ-niyòg na iyòn! How tall that cocoanut tree is! Kayuntì' naṅ ibinigày nya ṅ laruwàn sa ákin! How few toys he gave me! So: kay-dámot, ka-rámot, ka-rúnoṅ, ka-itìm, kakínis, ka-láyo', ka-muntì', ka-pulà, ka-tabà', kay-tipìd.

(b) With doubled root these forms intensify the quality: Kaydámot-dámot naṅ báta ṅ itò! What a terribly stingy child! ⁵(kaydámot, karámot what stinginess! aṅ dámot stinginess).

403. A few forms with accented ka- prefixed to the root envisage the accidental nature of the reciprocal relation: Aṅ maṅa damìt na itò ay kásiya sa baòl. These clothes will fit into the trunk. Akò aṅ kásundo' ni Pépe sa pagpapalarò' naṅ bèsbol ¹⁰sa maṅa báta'. I am at one with Pepe as to letting the children play baseball. Hábaṅ akò y nagdádaàn, kátaon namà ṅ isinábuy nya aṅ túbig. He threw out the water at the very time, it happened, that I was passing by. aṅ kàtiwála' a confidential agent, manager, overseer.

¹⁵The words káluluwà and kápuwà', which resemble this formation, seem to be felt as simple roots and have been so treated here.

(2) Normal transients, abstracts, and special static forms.

404. k-um-a-. An active with -um- is made from ka-úsap as underlying word: Si Hwàn ay kumàkaúsap sa ákin. Juan ²⁰*was talking at me, haranguing me.*

405. mag-ka- pag-ka-ka-. Actives with mag- and abstracts with pag- r from underlying words with ka- express a partial affection of the actor or of a group of actors; ka- here has its involuntary force: the actor is not a rational and voluntary agent. ²⁵Nagkaroòn ako nañ trabáho kanína ñ umága, sapagkàt nagpasakày akò sa trèn nañ maña kamátis nañ tátay ko. I was kept busy this morning, for I attended to the shipping by train of my father's tomatoes. Nagkaroòn sya nañ gálit. He harbored ill-feeling. Nagkagulò añ maña Amerikáno sa pagdatiñ nañ Dòytland. The ³⁰Americans were surprised at the coming of the "Deutschland". Nagkagustò sya ñ kumáin nañ súha'. He conceived a desire of eating grape-fruit. Nagkàkalípon añ maña lanjgàm sa púto. The ants are getting all over the cake. Akò y nagkamálay pagkaraàn nañ ilà ñ sandalì ñ paghihimatày. I returned to consciousness ³⁵*after a few moments' fainting-spell.* Nagkapálad si Hwàn na makaratiñ díto ñ maluwalháti'. Juan was fortunate enough to get back here safe and sound. Añ pakwàn ay nagkasíra'. The watermelon got partly spoiled. Añ maña ságiñ ay nagkasíra' sa kalaúnan nañ pagkàtágo' sa lalagyàn. Some of the bananas got spoiled on ⁴⁰*account of the long time they were kept stored.* Nása simbáhan. silà nañ magkasúnog. They were at church when a fire occurred. Twi ñ papasúkin ko sa kuràl añ maña kalabàw ay nagkákawalá silà. Every time I put the carabao into the corral, they get away.

So: búkol, hinòg.

406. mag-ka- (1) pag-ka-ka- (1). Accent shift in this formation serves various uses:

Nagkákaputòl aṅ maṅa tubò sa kalakasàn naṅ háṅin. Much sugar-cane is breaking under the force of ¹⁵the wind.

So also from lúnod.

(c) The form is really a simple active with mag- from an underlying word of the form ka- (1), § 398,c; three words of this kind occur: Sila y nagkagalìt. They quarreled. aṅ pagkakagalìt ²⁰*the quarrel.* Aṅ Hapòn at aṅ Tsína ay nagkasirà'. Japan and China had a break. Silà y nagkatalò. They played a winning-and-losing game. Nagkatalu nà aṅ maṅa nagsúsugàl. The gamblers have lost and won, have finished their winning-and-losing game.

In accordance with § 356, the underlying word is doubled with ²⁵distributive plural meaning: Sila ṅ ápat ay nagkagá-kagalìt. The four of them all got angry at one another.

Similarly, an explicit plural with mag-si-pag- is formed (cf. § 386,b): Nagsipagkasirá silà. They had a falling out.

407. (a) mag-ka- r pag-ka-ka- r. The reduplication of the ³⁰root expresses repeated action in a form with retraction of accent and irregular insertion of ṅ after the prefix: Sya y nagkàkaṅdadápa'. He kept falling on his face.

(b) mag-ka- D pag-ka-ka- D. Doubling of the root seems a more regular expression of the same value: nagkàkaumpòg-umpòg. ³⁵

408. Special static words with mag-ka- are simply dual collectives with mag- (§ 358,a) from underlying words with ka- (§ 398): Aṅ banìṅ ni Hwàn at ni Pédro ay magkaánib (or: magkasánib) sa pagkàlátag. Juan's and Pedro's sleeping-mats overlap ⁴⁰each other as they are spread. aṅ magkabaláe a pair of persons related by intermarriage of their children (more insistent on the relational element, but practically equal to magbaláe, § 358,a). Aṅ dalawa ṅ manòk ay magkabukòd naṅ kulunàn. The two chickens were in separate crates. Aṅ búkid ni Hwàn at ni Pédro ay magkarátig. Juan's field and Pedro's border on each other. Si Pédro at si Hwàn ay magkapantày. Pedro and Juan are of the same height. aṅ magkapatìd two brothers or sisters, a brother and ⁵a sister. aṅ magkapútol na si Andrès at si Rafayèl the brothers Andrés and Rafael. Magkapútol kami ni Hwàn naṅ báro'. Juan and I have blouses made of the same cloth. dalawà ṅ bágay na gágawi ṅ magkasunòd two things that are to be done one after the other.

¹⁰(a) From kababáyan (§ 398,d): dalawà ṅ estudyànte ṅ magkababáyan two students from the same town.

409. mag-ka-ka. As the explicit plural corresponding to these duals reduplicates the underlying word (§ 358,b), the syllable ka- is repeated in this meaning: aṅ magkakapatìd a group of ¹⁵three or more brothers and (or) sisters; in the same meaning aṅ magkakapútol. So also from: bukòd, sáma, súno'.

(a) The form magkababáyan (§ 408,a) rejects the extra reduplication, and is therefore plural as well as dual: tatlo ṅ estudyànte ṅ magkababáyan three students from the same town.

²⁰410. mag-kà- pag-ka-kà-. The transient with mag- and abstract with pag- r from underlying words with kà- have the accidental value of the latter prefix, usually with a dual reciprocal meaning. Sa kabilà ṅ bandà mo ibwàl aṅ púno ṅ iyàn, sapagkàt kuṅ irè ay ibuwal kò y baká magkádagan aṅ dalawa ṅ púno'. ²⁵*Fell your tree in the direction away from me, so that if I fell this one, the two trees won't fall one on top of the other*. Magkàkàdagàn aṅ dalawa ṅ púno ṅ itò, kapag hindi mo ibinwàl sa kabilà ṅ bandà iya ṅ pinùpútol mo. These two trees will fall one on top of the other, if you don't make the one you are cutting down fall ³⁰the other way. Nagkádagan aṅ dalawa ṅ báta' naṅ mahúlog sila sa hagdàn. The two children landed one on top of the other when they fell from the ladder. Ilabas mò sa búkid, Kulàs, aṅ dalawa ṅ sáko ṅ pálay na nagkàkàdagàn na nása banàn. Nicolás, take out to the field the two bags of rice that are lying one on top of the ³⁵other in the granary. Aṅ pagkakáiba naṅ ugáli ni Pédro at ni Hwàn ay gáya naṅ pagkakáiba naṅ túbig at naṅ apòy. The difference in character between Pedro and Juan is like the difference between water and fire. magkáhiwalày part from each other (by force of circumstances, of two people). An ikinahàtì naŋ palayòk ⁴⁰ay an masamà ŋ pagkakálagay nitò. What caused the rice-pot to break was the bad way it was placed. magkàmáyaw harmonize. an pagkakásabày the happening at the same time of two events. Sya y nagkàsála. He sinned (against the moral order, God, etc.) An pagkakàsála kay Bathála' ay pinarùrusáhan sa infiyèrno. Sinning against God is punished in hell. Bìbilhin kò an kabáyo ŋ iyòn, kuŋ magkàkàsyá an áki ŋ kwaltà. I shall buy this horse, if my ⁵money is sufficient. Walá sila ŋ pagkakásundò'. The two don't agree on anything. an pagkakátaòn the coincidence in time of one event with another, of two events. an pagkakátayò' the standing up together (even of more than two people).

(a) Somewhat different are kuŋ magkàbihíra' at odd times; ¹⁰kuŋ magkágayòn when things turn out thus, when this is the state of affairs. So also, with static value: An magkábila ŋ dúlo naŋ lápis ay matúlis. Both ends of the pencil are sharpened.

411. mag-kà- D pag-ka-kà- D. With doubled root plurality is expressed: Nagkàhiwá-hiwalày an maŋa dáhun naŋ librò. The ¹⁵leaves of the book came apart. An maŋa ginágawá nya ŋ paŋísip naŋ maŋa makabuluhà ŋ fétsa naŋ istòriya ay an pagkakàsundòd-sundòd at pagítan nilà. He remembers the important dates of history by their sequence and their intervals.

(a) With accent shift, from a barytone root: Nagkàputol-putòl ²⁰an katawàn naŋ táo ŋ nàsagasáan naŋ trèn. The body of the man who was run over by the train got all mangled. Nagkàkàputol-putòl an katawàn naŋ bála ŋ táo ŋ màsagasáan naŋ trèn. The body of a person run over by a train is cut to pieces. Magkàkàputol-putòl an túbo ŋ kristàl na iyàn kapag iyo ŋ ibinagsàk. If ²⁵you drop that glass tube, it will break into a thousand pieces.

412. ka- (1) -in, k-in-a-. The simple direct passive is formed from an underlying derived word with ka- with normal meaning. So from ka-lában, ka-úsap.

(a) A special static word corresponding to those in § 366 is ³⁰aŋ kinákapatìd the child of one's godparents (from ka-patìd).

From it are derived the dual collective (§ 358,a) magkinákapatìd a pair of such, and the plural (§ 358,b) magkikinákapatìd three or more, as a group.

413. i-ka- i-k-in-a-. The instrumental passive with prefix ka- ³⁵has a specialized meaning: it expresses transiently, an inanimate, or at least irrational and involuntary, object or circumstance which causes such and such an action: and this latter action is in turn also involuntary or out of control of the actor (as, for instance, the ability to do a thing), see § 432 ff.

⁴⁰Aŋ kawalàn ni Andrès naŋ hánap-búhay sa báya ŋ itò ay sya nyà ŋ ikinaalìs. Andrés' inability to make a living in this town is what forced him to leave. Aŋ malì ŋ anyò naŋ pulúbe ay siyà ŋ ikinaáwa' sa kanya ni Hwàn. The bad condition of the beggar was what made Juan pity him. Aŋ pagsasakày naŋ kutséro naŋ maŋa táo ŋ may sakìt na nakàhàháwa ay sya ŋ ikinabáwì naŋ kanya ŋ pahintúlot. The driver's taking people with contagious ⁵diseases into his carriage was what caused his license to be withdrawn. Aŋ ikinaháraŋ naŋ maŋa naglálakàd ay aŋ pagkáalam naŋ maŋa tulisàn na silà y may dalà ŋ kwaltà. What caused the wayfarers to be held up was the robbers' happening to know that they had money with them. Ikinaháte ni Hwàn sa búŋa aŋ kanya ¹⁰ŋ laséta. Juan's knife enabled him to cut the betel fruit. Aŋ pagkasála nya sa siŋsìŋ ay aŋ hindí niya ikinakúha naŋ ganti ŋ pála'. His missing the ring is what kept him from winning the prize. Yòn ay áki ŋ ikinalúluǹkòt. I am sorry, I am sorry to hear that. Aŋ paŋuŋublì naŋ maŋa sundálo ay sya nilà ŋ hindí ikinamatày. ¹⁵*The soldiers' keeping in hiding is what saved their lives.* Ikinapútol naŋ yantòk na pamálo' aŋ pagkàpálu kay Hwàn. The caning Juan got broke the rattan that was used on him. Ikinapùpútol naŋ marámi ŋ tubò aŋ malakàs na háŋin. The strong wind is making much sugar-cane break. Ikapùpútol naŋ maŋa saŋà naŋ ²⁰káhoy aŋ malakàs na háŋi ŋ itò. This strong wind will cause many branches of trees to break off. Ikapùpútol nya sa maŋa kawáyan aŋ paggúlaŋ nitò. The aging of the bamboo plants will force him to cut them down. Aŋ pagkalúnod naŋ Kastíla' ay ikinatákot naŋ tatlò ŋ

Similarly, from: biñì, búhay, búti, gálit, háno', húlog, káya, lípat, lúgi, túlon, walà'.

An ipinagkagusto nyà η kumáin nan sorbétes ay an kainítan. It is the heat which makes him want to eat ices. Ipagkákamatây ³⁵nan maña manòk an masamà η túbig. The bad water will make the chickens die. An kalamigàn sa tagulàn ay sya η ipinagkàkamuò nan túbig sa ílog. The cold weather in winter is what makes the water in the river congeal. Baká ipagkawalá nan maña manòk sa kulunàn an pagpapapások mo doòn niyà η ⁴⁰áso. See that your putting that dog into the enclosure doesn't make the chickens try to get away. Ipagkákawalà nan bíhag an pagkàbalíta' sa kanyà nan parúsa η kàkamtan nyà. The captive's being told of the punishment he will get, will make him try to escape. Ipinagkawalá nya sa kùlúnan an pagpapahírap sa kanyà. Their torturing him made him escape from his confinement. Ipinagkákawalà nya sa bìlangúan an masamà η pagpapakáin sa kanya díto. The bad food they gave him in the jail made ⁵him try to escape.

415. Similarly, with accent shift this passive corresponds to the active with mag-ka- (1), § 406,b. Ipinagkàkabalè' (or: ipinagkàkaputòl) nan maña sanà nan káhoy an bagyò η itò. This hurricane is breaking off many branches of trees. Nan ipagkaputòl nan ¹⁰áki η maña tubò an háñin ay naluǹkùt akò. When the wind broke down my sugar-cane I was dismayed. Ipinagkaputòl nan maña tubò an malakàs na háñi η nagdaàn. The recent strong wind broke down much sugar-cane.

Similarly: ipinagkasakìt (sákit).

²⁰(a) The ordinal corresponding to isà one is however the independent root úna first; half is kalaháte', § 519.

(b) From phrases, of course, the higher numbers: ikaisa-η-daàn hundredth; ikaisa-η-laksà' millionth; ikaisa-η-líbo thousandth; ikasa-m-pù' tenth; ikalabi-η-isà eleventh; ikadalawa-η-pù' twentieth; ²⁵ikadalawa-η-pù-t-isà twenty-first.

417. i-kà- i-k-in-à-. The instrumental passive from the root with accented kà- differs from that with unaccented ka- (§ 413) in that the action or occurrence caused is not only involuntary but accidental and entirely out of the control of the actor (see ³⁰§ 458 ff.).

An ikinàgùgusto kò sa kayibígan ko η si Hwàn ay an kanya η mabait na ugáli'. What makes me have a liking for my friend Juan is his lovable character. An ginawá nya η paggugupit sa maña retáso η itinátágo nan kanya η nánay ay sya nyà η ikinàpálo'. ³⁵*His cutting up the patches his mother was saving is what made it necessary to thrash him.* An ikinásakay nyà sa kabáyo η bara-barà ay an kawalàn nya nan iba η kabáyo. What made him get on the wild horse was his lack of other horses. Ikinátahol nan áso an pagkádapá ni Hwan. Juan's falling down made the dog ⁴⁰*bark.*

So also from: iyàk, pátag.

(a) Accent shift is due to the root: An pagkátahol nan áso ay sya η ikinágisin nan natútúlug na báta'. The barking of the dog was what made the sleeping child wake up. Ikàtàtawà nyà an iyo η sàsabíhin. He won't be able to keep from laughing when you say that. Ikinàtàtawà ni Hwàn an sinábi ni Pédro. What ⁵*Pedro said makes Juan laugh in spite of himself.*

418. Corresponding to primary actives with mag- contrasted with -um-, and with maŋ-, we should expect pag- and paŋ- to be retained before the root in these formations; the only example is: ikinápagtirà, corresponding to magtirà, in contrast with tumirà ¹⁰(§§ 348. 351).

419. ka- (1) -an, k-in-a- (1) -an. The local passive with ka- is used when the action is an involuntary one, especially an emotion, of a rational actor, or when the actor is inanimate or irrational.

¹⁵An hulihàn naŋ maŋa kinagalítan ni Patúpat ay idináos naŋ maŋa gwàrdiya-sibìl kagabè. The arrest of the people who have incurred Patupat's anger was carried out by the gendarmes last night. Kahiyaàn mò aŋ táo ŋ matandà'. Reverence the aged. aŋ kinahulúgan naŋ báta' the place from which the child fell. An ²⁰bintána ŋ iyàn aŋ syà ŋ kahùhulúgan naŋ báta', pag hindí mo isinarà. The child will fall out of that window, if you don't shut it. Baká ninyo kalunúran aŋ ílog, maŋa báta'. See that you don't get drowned in that river, children. An kanya ŋ kalùlunúran ay aŋ ílog na itò. He will get drowned in this river some day. ²⁵aŋ báhay na kinamatayàn the house where someone died, aŋ báhay naŋ kinamatayàn the house in which someone died, the house of the bereaved family. Kinapatiràn naŋ lúbid aŋ lugàr na malápit sa dúlo-ŋ-bandà-ŋ-kaliwà'. The rope broke at a point near the left-hand end. An kapàpatiràn naŋ sinúlid ay malápit sa buhòl. ³⁰*The place where the thread will break is near the knot there.* Kinatakútan nya aŋ báhay na pinagpatayàn sa kúra'. He was afraid of the house where the priest was killed. An kinatàtakútan naŋ maŋa báta' ay aŋ núno'. The children are afraid of the ghost. Katakútan ninyò aŋ núno'. You had better be afraid of ghosts. Kinatamaràn ³⁵ni Hwàn aŋ kanyà ŋ pagaáral. Juan became neglectful about his studying. Naŋ katamaràn ni Hwàn aŋ kanya ŋ pagaáral ay malápit na syà ŋ makatápos naŋ karéra. When Juan became lazy about his studies, he was already near the end of his course. Katàtamaran nyà aŋ kanyà ŋ pagaáral, pag binigyàn mo syà naŋ ⁴⁰marámi ŋ salapè'. He will be lazy about his studies, if you give him too much money.

Similarly from: buwísit, íwan, kíta, walà'.

(a) With shifted root: Isa η pulúbe aη kinaàawaàn ni Hwàn. It was a beggar who aroused Juan's pity.

420. pag-ka- (1) -an, p-in-ag-ka- (1) -an; pag-ka- (2) -an, p-in-ag-ka- (2) -an. Local passives with pag- before the ka- involve a plurality of actors. The durative reduplication affects the ka-; barytone roots have an extra accent-shift.

Aη kináin naη usà ay malakì η pinagkàkagustuhàn naη maηa Ilóko. The Iloco are very fond of the contents of deers' stomachs.
Pinagkàkalipumpunàn naη maηa langàm aη púto. The ants are ¹⁰swarming all over the cake. Aη pinagkamatayàn naη maηa kambèη ay aη lugàr na itò. This is the place where the goats perished. Hwag mò η dalhìn sa bundòk aη maηa manòk, sapagkàt iyò y kanilà η pagkàkamatayàn. Don't take the chickens into the hills, for they would die there.

¹⁵Barytone roots: Pinagkatakutàn nilà aη báhay na pinagpatayàn sa kúra'. They were afraid of the house where the priest was killed. Pinagkàkatakutàn nilà aη maηa mababagsìk na háyop. They are afraid of wild animals. Hwag mò η ipamalíta' aη nàkíta nátin díto, sapagkàt baká aη lugàr na itò y pagkatakutàn. ²⁰*Don't tell what we have seen here, for this place would be feared.* Pagkàkatakutàn nilà aη lugàr na itò, pag nàláman nilà aη naηyári η paghaharaηàn díto. They will be afraid of this place when they know of the hold-ups that occurred here. aη pinagkatalunàn that which was the occasion of winning by many (tálo).

²⁵421. ka- S -an. Special static words, corresponding to those with S -an (§ 377) are formed with prefix ka- from oxytone roots; in meaning they are collectives and abstracts of quality: aη kasàyáhan gladness; Aη katàmáran ni Patrísiyo ay katutúbo' sa kanya η láhi'. Patricio's laziness is inborn in his family. So from the ³⁰roots: baìt, banàl, damdàm, daηàl, duwàg, lagày, luηkòt, luwàη, mahàl, malì', matày, pintàs, saηkàp, tuηkòl, tuwà', tuwìd.

Divergent in meaning is aη Kapampáηan a Pampanga, if from paηpàη.

The secondary accent is lacking, irregularly, in kalayáan ³⁵(layà'); with contraction in kayilájan, kaylájan (beside kailájan, from ilàn).

(a) This latter word underlies an active with maŋ-, an abstract with paŋ- r, and a simple direct passive: naŋàŋayilájan requires; aŋ paŋaŋayilájan need, necessity; Kàkayilaŋani ŋ magdaàn ⁴⁰*si Pédro rító bágu sya umalis. Pedro will have to come here before he leaves.*

(b) From a derived word, with the secondary accent irregularly placed: Boo ŋ báyan ay nagdíwaŋ sa kapaŋànákan ni Risál. The whole country celebrated Rizal's birthday; also: aŋ áraw naŋ kapaŋànákan birthday,— from paŋanàk (§ 347).

422. ka- (2) -an. Barytone roots have, in the same sense, an accent shift of two syllables, corresponding to § 379. Boò ŋ ⁵*kabahayàn aŋ nàkíta námin sa gitnà naŋ daàn. We saw a whole set of household goods in the middle of the road*; also: aŋ kabahayàn a house containing several dwellings. Marámi sa maŋa táo aŋ nakàkìkilála naŋ kanila ŋ karapatàn, dátapuwat nakalilímot naŋ kanila ŋ katunókulan. Many are the people who know their ¹⁰*rights but forget their duties. Aŋ karamútan naŋ páre' ay nagìŋ kasabihàn. The stinginess of the priest is proverbial. Aŋ katakutàn sa Dyòs ay isa ŋ kabàitan. Fear of the Lord is a virtue. Aŋ pagbibigày naŋ sigarìlyo ay isa sa maŋa matatandà ŋ kaugaliàn sa Filipínas. Giving cigarettes is one of the old customs in the Philippines.* ¹⁵*aŋ kawikaàn a proverb.*

So from abála, áraw, búlo, gámit, húlog, íbig, lájit, payápa', síra', tápos, útos.

²⁰(a) From the latter word there is an abstract of action, with paŋ- r: aŋ paŋaŋatawàn physique (cf. pananamit, etc., § 357).

423. ka- (1) -an. Corresponding to the formation (1) -an (§ 378), the collective-abstracts of this type with ka- have formal irregularities and, where there is any contrast (e. g. mahàl), less ²⁵explicit and more specialized meaning than the preceding two groups.

an kaalátan saltiness (of water). Sa gabì η itò an kabilúgan nan buwàn. The fullness of the moon is tonight. An kadalámhatían ay isa η damdámi η hindi nàràrápat sa táo. Grief is an ³⁰emotion not becoming to a man or woman. an karunúnan wisdom. an kahanalàn foolishness (an hanàl a fool). an kaibhàn the difference. an kalinísan cleanness, cleanliness. an kamatsinàn monkey-tricks, naughtiness. an kamuráhan cheapness. Sawì' an kanya η kapaláran. His luck is bad. Sa kapanayàn nan ulàn kun tagulàn ³⁵ay hindi masiglà an báyan. The town is not cheerful during the unabated rains of the rainy season. An maná táo y marámi η kasalánan. People have many sins. an kasamaàn badness. kasawiàn poor position, awkwardness. kasinuhalínan falsehood, a lie. kasipágan diligence. An desgrásya η nanýári kay Hwàn ay isa η ⁴⁰hampàs nan katalagahàn. The misfortune which has come to Juan is a blow of fate. An kanila η pagílag ay hindi katapájan. Their fleeing was not a brave act. an boò η kataúhan all mankind. an katipúnan a meeting, Katipúnan a secret society organized against the Spaniards; a member of this. kayabájan pride.

So from: bába', bábaw, bigàt, buhájin, búhay, búti, dalàs, dámi, dámot, dáníw (if karaniyúwan is so to be analyzed), dilim, ⁵ginháwa, gúbat, hába', hína', hírap, ikli', ínit, lakàs, lakì, lamìg, lápad, láon, liit, lóko, lúnod, lupit, mahàl, manmàn, páran, fiyèsta, pulò', sakim, salàt, salbáhi, salúkoy, taàs, Tagálog, tahímik, tákaw, tákot, talíno, tampalásan, tanháli', túlin, túnay, totoò, ulòl, walà', yáman.

(b) From derived words: an Kakapampañánan the Pampanga country (Kapampájan, § 421).

an boò η kamaganákan nina Krùs, Bantòg, at iba pà the whole ¹⁵*relationship of the Cruz's, Bantogs, and so on;* an boò η kamaganákan ni Pédro Vyóla

424. ka- r (1) -an, ka- r (2) -an. With reduplication of the ²⁰root and accent shift of one syllable for an oxytone root, of two in barytone roots, ka- and -an form special static words denoting something surprising or provocative of such and such an emotion.

Itù y kagagawàn ni Hwàn! This is some of Juan's work! cf. Itù y gawá ni Hwàn. Juan did this, made this. Añ pagkáupo ²⁵ni Pédro sa sùgálan ay kagagawàn nañ isa nyà ñ kaybígan. Pedro's sitting at the gaming-table was the work of one of his fine friends. Añ pàtáya ñ nañyári kagabì ay kagagawàn ni Pédro. The killing which occurred last night was some of Pedro's doing. So: katuturàn a correct outcome (tuwìd).

425. With secondary accent on the first syllable of the underlying ³⁵word, ka- and -an form also words denoting one of two reciprocal actors. This is the form for oxytone roots, añ kabìgáyan a person with whom one exchanges gifts. Si Hwána ay siya ñ kabùlúnan ni Maryà. Juana is the one Maria whispers with. añ kahampásan one of two who perform mutual flagellation, kahìráman ⁴⁰*one of two who borrow from each other.* kàinúman person one drinks with. kakàlabítan one of two who touch each other. Añ kapàtáyan ni Hwàn ay si Pédro. Juan is engaged in a mortal conflict with Pedro. Añ kapàtíran ni Hwána nañ sinúlíd ay añ kanya ñ kaybíga ñ si Maryà. Juana cuts thread with her friend Maria. añ kasàlitáan the person with whom one converses. Si Hwàn ay kaùlúlan ni Pédro. Juan and Pedro fool each other. añ kaùpúan one of two who sit together.

down grape-fruit from the tree is his brother. aṅ kahùnihan one of two birds that chirp at each other. aṅ kaibígan one of two who love each other. aṅ kakáinan ¹⁰*one of two who eat together. Si Hwána ay siya ṅ kapútulan ni Maryà naṅ kukò. Juana and Maria cut each other's fingernails. aṅ kasulátan one's correspondent. aṅ katàlunan one's opponent in a dispute.*

(a) The shift is due to the root in: Si Maryà ay syà ṅ kaàbútan ¹⁵ni Hwána naṅ maṅa mabaṅù ṅ bulaklák. Maria and Juana hand each other fragrant flowers (as in some ceremony or game).

(b) With contraction and lack of secondary accent: aṅ kayibígan, kaybígan a friend (contrast kaibígan above).

(c) In a few instances barytone roots have accent shift of ²⁰two syllables without secondary accent. Si Maryáno ay kahatakàn ni Kulàs naṅ lúbid. Mariano is pulling at the rope against Nicolás. aṅ kamurahàn one of two who curse at each other (with meaning ordinarily peculiar to the shifted root, § 337). Sumúloṅ at Kasamahàn Sumulong and Company. kasulatàn one's correspondent ²⁵(equal to kasulátan, above). Aṅ katuruàn ni Pédro ay aṅ báta ṅ si Hwàn. Pedro and little Juan are pointing at each other.

427. These formations serve as underlying words of a few derivatives:

(a) Active with mag- and abstract with pag- r (§ 352): aṅ ³⁰pagkakayibígan the joining in friendship of two people.

(b) Secondary active with maki- from the preceding: makipagkakayibígan win one's way into someone's friendship, become friends with someone.

(c) Dual collective with mag- (§ 358,a): Si Pédro at si Hwàn ³⁵ay magkahiráman naṅ sambalílo at sandàlyas. Pedro and Juan lend each other hats and sandals. magkaibígan a pair of lovers. magkaybígan a pair of friends.

(d) Where the dual value of the underlying form is weak, explicit plurals of the preceding with mag- r (§ 358,b) occur: aṅ ⁴⁰magkakaybígan a group of three or more friends. an magkakasamahà η si Pédro, si Hwàn, at si Andrès the party consisting of Pedro, Juan, and Andrés. an magkakasamahà η sina Pédro the party of Pedro and his followers. An magkakasamahà η nagsipagpasyàl ay sina Maryà, Hwána, Pédro, at Kulàs. The party that went for a walk consisted of Maria, Juana, Pedro, and Nicolás. An magkakasamahà η napasa húlo' at napaluwásan ay sinà ⁵Mariyáno, Pépe, at Kulàs at sina Pédro, Húlyo, at Andrès. The groups that went upstream and downstream were, respectively, Mariano, Pepe, and Nicolás and Pedro, Julio, and Andrès. An tatlo η manòk na ytò y magkakasamahà η inihatid díto, an ibà y magkakabukòd. These three chickens were brought here together, ¹⁰the others each by itself.

428. kà- (1) -an, k-in-à- (1) -an. Local passives with kà- denote the place where someone or something happens to be. Hwag kà η kumibò' sa iyò η kinàdòroonàn. Don't stir from the spot (where you happen to be). Sa alì η bandà an kinàdòroonàn nan ¹⁵báya-η-Kamálig?—Sa bandà η kaliwà'. In which direction is the town of Camalig?—Toward the left. An báya-η-Balíwag ay an kinàmahalà η úna η úna nan pálay. The town of Baliuag was the first place where rice got dear. An kàpàpatayàn sa táo η iyàn ay an bigtíhan. This man will end on the gallows. An báya-η-Balíwag ²⁰an iyu η kàtùtuñúhan pag tinuntùn mo an landàs na iyàn. You will get to the town of Baliuag if you follow that path.

Divergent in meaning are kinàbukásan (§ 260) and, from a ²⁵phrase, kinàhàti-η-gabihàn (§ 260, hāti η gabì).

429. pag-kà- (1) -an, p-in-ag-kà- (1) -an. Local passives of this type with pag- reduplicate the kà-; they refer to other local passive relations than place in which; so: pagkàkìlanlàn be the occasion of showing something; pagkàsayahàn be the container of ³⁰*something that fits in*; pagkàsunduwàn, pagkàsunduàn be agreed upon.

430. Special static words with kà- and -an are few and differ in meaning.

(a) An kàgalítan nila Andrès, Hwàn, at Mariyáno ay napáwì ³⁵na. The quarrel between Andrés, Juan, and Mariano has been appeased; this is no doubt merely a plural with S -an (§ 377,a) from the underlying word kagalít (§ 398,c).

It forms the underlying word of a simple active with mag- and abstract with pag- r: an pagkakàgalítan a quarrel (of two or more ⁴⁰people).

(b) Si Pédro ay kàibígan ni Maryà. Pedro is liked by Maria. Sina Pédro, Kulàs, at Hwàn ay sya η maηa kàibígan ni Mariyáno. Pedro, Nicolàs, and Juan are the ones whom Mariano likes. This is probably a real special static word corresponding to the transient with kà- (1) -an (§ 428).

Derived active with mag-: Nagkàkàibígan si Pédro at si ⁵Hwána. Pedro and Juana are in love with each other, have come to like each other.

(c) An kàtwáan ay náhintò' sa pagdatìη naη isa η magnanákaw. The rejoicing was stopped by the coming of a robber. This is, in form at least, a plural with S -an from an underlying -katuwà', ¹⁰which is not known.

Derived active with mag-: magkàtwáan rejoice together, be merry together.

The same form is seen in kàliηkíηan; little finger, fifth finger; if this is from a root -liηkìη.

¹⁵431. ka- (1) D -an. With doubling of the root and radical accent shift: Kàunà-unáha η dumatìη si Hwàn. Juan got there the very first. So: kàhulì-hulíhan the very last.

(3) Additional transients, abstracts, and special static forms.

432. The prefix ka- in its involuntary meaning and the prefix ²⁰kà- in its accidental meaning appear in an additional set of transients and abstracts with maka-, makà- prefixed for the active, ma-, mà- for the passives, and pagka-, pagkà- for the abstract. The meanings of these forms are most varied; especially in the direct passive, where the involuntary or accidental character of the actor ²⁵sometimes reaches the point where an actor is entirely left out of view or lacking, and the passive borders closely on active meaning. For this reason it will be convenient to divide the uses into a number of somewhat arbitrarily defined groups. The forms are as follows:

The active expresses an inanimate object or circumstance causing an emotion or feeling; the meaning, then, is the same as in the forms with i-ka- (§ 413), except that here the thing causing ³⁵the emotion is viewed as an actor. Nakabùbúlag aṅ ílaw. The light is blinding. Aṅ gamòt na itò aṅ nakaginháwa sa máy sakít. This medicine is what relieved the patient. Itò y makapàpáwì naṅ gútom (úhaw, ginàw, ínit, págod). This will relieve the hunger (thirst, cold feeling, hot feeling, fatigue). Aṅ áwit naṅ maṅa ⁴⁰íbon ay nakatútuwà'. The song of the birds is gladdening. Similarly from: bigàt, biṅì, búti, lasìṅ, ligáya, síra', tákot.

434. The active expresses, further, an inanimate object which has got (in the past) into such and such a condition or position.

Aṅ baṅkà' ay nakaáyon sa ágos. The canoe is righted with the stream. Aṅ pagkáin ay nakahandá nà. Dinner is served. Nakasábit ⁵sa páko' aṅ áki ṅ amerikána. My coat is hanging on the nail. Nakasigàṅ aṅ palayùk naṅ sináinṅ. The rice-pot is on the fire. Hindí ko bìbilhìn aṅ kabáyo ṅ iyòn, káhit na makasísiya aṅ áki ṅ kwaltà. I would not buy this horse, even if my money should be sufficient. Similarly: daàn, lawìt, táli', túloṅ.

Nakasakày an báta η si Hwàn sa áso nan sya y màkíta ko sa bakúran. Little Juan was mounted (i. e. riding) on the dog when I saw him in the yard. Nakatayó si Pédro nan ákin sya η màkíta. Pedro was standing up when I saw him. Nakaupó sya sa banjò'. He was ²⁰seated on the bench. So from: abàn, hiléra, íkid, kápít, luhòd, panàw, talunjà', tindìg.

436. The active may denote an animate actor who is able, succeeds in doing so and so; the involuntary element inheres in the matter of ability, which is not dependent on the actor's will: ²⁵Sa gana η ákin sya y makaáalìs. So far as I am concerned, he may go. Sa tigàs nan kanya η loòb ay walà η makabále'. There is no one (or, under the type in § 433, nothing) can break the firmness of his will. Nakagágawà' an alilà nan páyon. The servant is able to make umbrellas. Nakagupìt sya nan makapàl na ³⁰damìt. He succeeded in cutting thick cloth. Si Pédro ay hindí makaháwak nan palakòl, sapagkàt masakìt an kanya η kamày. Pedro cannot hold an ax, because his hand is sore. Naàári η sya y makahigà'. He may lie down. Hindí ako makahinjì nan kwaltà kay Hwàn. I cannot (bring myself to) ask Juan for money. Nakahúlog ³⁵sya nan isa η nyòg sa kanya η pagpukòl sa kumpòl. He succeeded in bringing down a cocoanut, in his throwing at the cluster. An báta' ay hindí makakáin, sapagkàt kumáin sya nan marámi η kakanìn. The child can't eat because he has eaten so many sweets. Si Pédro ay hindí nakapùpùtol nan káhoy, sapagkàt ⁴⁰bágu η gálin sya sa sakìt. Pedro cannot cut any wood, for he has just recovered from sickness. Sa tantyà raw nyà ay makapùpùtol na sya nan káhoy, sapagkàt sya y malakas nà. He reckons he will be able to cut wood, for he is strong again. Nakasásakay syà sa kabáyo. He is able to mount the horse. An báta y nakasùsùlat nà. The child is already able to write. Hindí ako makasùlat. I can't write. An máy sakit ay nakatátayú nà. The patient is already able to stand up. Hindí ako nakatípon nan maña ⁵dáhon, sapagkàt walá ako η kalaykày. I was not able to pile up the leaves, because I had no rake. An húle η isdá ni Hwàn ay nakawalà'. The fish Juan caught got away. Similarly from: akuyàt, balìk, báyard, dalà, datìg, kílos, kúha, lákad, pások, sagòt, sigàw, suwày, tahòl, takbò, tirà, úbos, úsap.

437. Closely bordering on the preceding type is the active, ²⁰mostly with the particle nà, expressing the actor of a completed action. Nakaalis na siyà. He has already (succeeded in going, i. e.) gone away. Nakapútul nà si Pédro nan káho. Pedro has now finished cutting wood. Si Pédro ay nakapútul nà nan káho, bágo ko η inutúsa η manigìb. Pedro had already cut the wood, ²⁵before I asked him to fetch water. Similarly from: bútas, datì, kúha, límot, tápos.

The abstract lends itself especially to the use as absolute attribute (§ 274): Pagkagawá nya nan bákod ay naglasì siyà. When he had finished making the fence, he got drunk. Pagkaháran ³⁰nan maña tulisàn sa koréyo ay nagsitúnjo silà sa bundòk. When the bandits had robbed the mail, they took to the hills. Pagkaháte ni Hwàn nan maña mansánas ay umalis sya. When Juan had distributed the apples, he went away. Pagkahúli nan pulis sa magnanákaw ay dinala nyà itò sa bilangúan. When the policeman ³⁵had caught the thief, he took him to the jail. Pagkapatày nya sa táo η kanyà η hináran ay tumakbo syà. When he had killed the man he had held up, he ran away. Pagkapútol ni Hwàn nan tahid nan kátyaw ay nagdudugò' an paà nitò. When Juan had cut the spur of the rooster, its foot kept bleeding. Pagkasakày ⁴⁰sa kabáyo ay naparoòn akò sa halamanàn at pumitàs ako nan isa η pakwàn úpan áki η kánin. When I had had my horseback ride, I went to the garden and picked a melon to eat. Pagkasakày ni Hwàn sa trèn ay lumákad ito η agàd. When Juan had got on the train, it soon started to move. An pagkasúnog nan báyan ay ikinalunghòt nan marámi. The people grieved at their town having burned down. Pagkatanàw nan unghò' sa pagòn ay nagbalik ⁵syà sa púno-η-ságin. When the monkey had looked at the turtle, he went back to the banana tree. Pagkatáwag naṅ pagònṅ sa unḡò' ay sumunòd itò agàd. When the turtle had called the monkey, the latter came at once. Pagkatayó nya sa kanya ṅ ùpúan ay minulàn nya agàd aṅ pagtatalumpáte'. When he had ¹⁰stood up from his seat he at once began making his speech. Pagkatípon mo naṅ maṅa bayábas ay umuwí ka. When you have piled up the guavas, go home. Pagkaúna nya sa takbúhan ay naghintú sya. When he had got ahead in the running, he stopped. Similarly from: alìs, bendisiyòn, gupìt, hápon, ísip, káin, kúha, ¹⁵lagòk, lúto', mísa, sábi, sánay, tápos, típon, tupàd.

438. The forms of the direct passive are: ma-, ma- R; na-; na- R.

The direct passive may correspond regularly to the active in § 436, and denote the object directly affected by an action which ²⁰*an actor is able to perform.*

Hindí nya mabásag aṅ bóte. He did not succeed in breaking the bottle. Sa kalakasàn ni Páblo ay nadala nyà aṅ kabà ṅ bákal. Pablo, with his strength, managed to lift the iron chest. Nadalà naṅ báta' aṅ káhoy. The boy managed to carry the wood. ²⁵Hindí madalà ni Pédro aṅ kahòn sa kabigatàn. Pedro cannot lift the box; it is too heavy. Hindí ku magámit aṅ páyoṅ na itò. I can't use this umbrella. Hindí nakáin naṅ báta' aṅ matigàs na tinápay na iyàn. The child was not able to eat that hard bread of yours. Nakáya ko ṅ buhátin aṅ isà ṅ maliit na púno-ṅ-káhoy. ³⁰*I managed to lift one small tree. Nakàkáyá ko aṅ pagaáral naṅ Inḡlès. I manage to get along with the study of English. Nakáyas ni Pédro aṅ báo. Pedro managed to smooth the cocoanut shell. Nalákad námin aṅ lahàt naṅ daàn. We managed to walk the whole way. Nalílípon naṅ maṅa langàm aṅ kanila ṅ pagkáin.* ³⁵*The ants succeed in amassing their food. Hindí ko mapatày aṅ báta ṅ itò. I cannot (get myself to) kill this child. Hindí ko mapútol naṅ kamày aṅ bákal na itò. I can't break this iron with my hand. Mapùpútol daw nyà ṅ wala ṅ túloṅ aṅ lahàt naṅ kawáya ṅ magúlaṅ. He says he will be able to cut all the old bamboo* ⁴⁰*without any help. Hindí nya masíra' aṅ kandáro naṅ pintò', káhit na iniyúbus nya aṅ kanya ṅ lakàs. He did not succeed in breaking the lock of the door, although he used up all his strength. Natátalastàs mo bà aṅ* sinàsábi ko sa iyò? Do you understand what I am saying to you? Similarly: ágaw, akiyàt, alaála, ampàt, gawà', háño', híla.

439. Similarly, the direct passive may correspond regularly to the active of the type in § 437 and denote an object directly affected by an action which has been (successfully) completed by an actor.

Naáso ko nà sa boo η báyan aη báta'. I have hunted and 10called the child all over town. Nabálot ko nà aη maηa librò. I have already wrapped up the books. Nabása ku nà aη diyáriyo. I have finished reading the paper. Nahampàs ko nà aη báta'. I have already whipped the child. Nahánap na nyà aη librò. He has already looked for the book. Napatày ku nà aη manòk. I 15have already killed the chicken. Kapag napùpútol na nyà aη púno-η-káho y ay saká mo hatakin aη lúbid na nakatáli sa saηà nitò. When he is getting the tree cut, then do you pull at the rope that is tied to the branch. Natipìd nya aη pagkáin naη kánin. He has been saving of the rice. Natípon ko nà aη maηa 20dáhon. I have already heaped up the leaves. Natísod ku nà aη bakyà'. I have kicked off the sandal. Naúnat ku nà aη baluktòt na káwad na ibinigày mu sa ákin. I have straightened the bent wire you gave me. Nausísà ku nà si Hwàn. I have already questioned Juan. Similarly from: ágaw, gawà', ípon, íwan, líbot, 25sákop, siyásat.

440. We come now to direct passives which do not correspond regularly to any active; these have their own abstracts with pagka-.

The commonest type expresses an object which undergoes or 30has undergone a process due to an inanimate actor or to no actor in particular; it differs from the simple direct passive in the involuntary and often perfectic nature of the action. Nabále' aη saηà naη káho y. The branch of the tree is broken. Aη túlis naη lápis ay nabále'. The point of the pencil is broken. Hwag mò η 35ilagay dyàn aη palatòn, sapagkàt baká mabásag. Don't put the plate there, for it might get broken. Aη kanila η káinan ay nagambála sa pagdatìη naη maηa pulis. Their dinner-party broke up when the police arrived. Aη boo η báyan ay nagulò. The whole town became riotous. Naháte' aη mansánas. The apple is 40in halves. Nalagòt aη lúbid.

The rope broke. An kanya η dalíri' ay napáso'. His finger is blistered. Napatid an lúbid. The rope broke. An batò η hasaàn ay napiráso. The whetstone went to pieces. Napitas nà an maña bulaklák. The flowers have been picked. Napùpútol an maña saña nañ káhoy sa lakàs nañ hánin. The branches of the trees are being broken off by the force of the wind. Napútol nà an káhoy. The tree has been cut down. Napútol an dúlo nañ káhoy. The end of the log is cut off. Napútol sañ saña nañ káhoy. The branch of the tree broke off. Nasáyan an trabáho ni Hwàn. Juan's work went for naught. An búkid ay nasíra'. The field is waste. Similarly, from: ári', bágo, buwàl, dílat, gúmon, hinòg, laglàg, lamòg, láon, páwi', punò', puròl, súnog, tápos, úbos, utàs, walà', yári'.

441. The passive is used, further, to denote the animate performer of an involuntary act, which, then, is looked upon rather as an undergoing than as a performing.

¹⁵This is the clearest where the subject is undergoing an emotion or sensation: Naáwà si Hwàn sa pulúbe. Juan pitied the beggar. An báta η si Hwàn ay nadúduñò. Little Juan is bashful. Naginàw sya sa kanya η pagpalígo'. He got cold while taking his bath. Akú y nagùgútom. I am hungry; isa η táo η nagùgútom ²⁰*a hungry person. Nahàhàpis siyà. He is sad. Nahíhiyá ka bà? Are you ashamed? Nahíhiyá sya. He is ashamed. Akù y nailàn. I was nonplussed, I didn't know what to do. Akò y naínip nà nañ paghihintày kay Hwàn. I am impatient with waiting for Juan. Sya y nalíman sa kanya η pagbílan. He got confused in* ²⁵*his reckoning. Sya nalúlunghòt. He is sorry. Akò y naùúhaw. I am thirsty. So: bagábag, gálit, libàn, tákot, tuwà'.*

This form is used also of processes of life, especially physiological and morbid: Nalumpò syà. He got lame. Napípe sya. He got dumb. So: naári' got the ability, nabáo got widowed, nabúhay ³⁰*lived, naínay was noisy, nakinìg heard, nalúnod got drowned, namatày died, natúlog slept.*

It is used, finally, in nahúlog fell (from a place to the ground), and, strangely enough, for two voluntary actions which consist of a relaxing of the muscles: Sya y nahigà' He lay³⁵ down. Sya y nahíhigà'. He was in the act of lying down. Naupó sya sa ban̄kò'. He sat down on the bench. Naúupó sya sa taburéte. He was in the act of sitting down on the stool.

Further, irregularly, in: Sya y nalígo'. He took a bath. Sya y nanáog. He came down from the house. See § 488,c.

⁴⁰Abstracts: An pagkaáwà ni Hwàn sa pulúbe Juan's pity for the beggar. an pagkabáta' one's childhood. an pagkabúhay ni Hesùs the resurrection of Jesus. An pagkagúlat ni Hwána ay sya nyà η ipinagkasakìt. Juana's scare was what made her sick. Pagkalúnod nan̄ Kastíla' ay lumáyas an̄ maña estudyànte. When the Spaniard had got drowned, the students hurried away. an̄ kanya η pagkamatày his death. an̄ kanya η pagkasála sa sin̄sìn. his missing the ring. Pagkaupú nya sa ban̄kò' ay minulàn nya^{5a} an̄ pagkukwènto sa maña báta'. When she had sat down on the bench, she began her story-telling to the children. So: ári', hápis, húlog, litò, lóko, pípi, tákot, tálo, ulòl.

442. An explicit plural of both active and direct passive is formed by the infixation of -an̄- into the prefix.

¹⁰In the active the syllable after this infix often receives a secondary accent: Nan̄àkaupú na silà sa pagkáin, nan̄ kamì ay dumatìη. They had already sat down to their meal when we arrived. So also from: bitàw, biyábit.

With reduplication of the ka- instead of root initial: Nan̄àkàkaupó¹⁵ silà sa pagkáin. They are able to sit up for their meals.

Direct passive: An dinala nyà η maña manòk ay nan̄amatày. The chickens he brought all died. Nan̄apútol an̄ tubò sa lakàs nan̄ bagyò. The sugar-cane broke under the strength of the typhoon. Nan̄apùpútol an̄ karamíhan nan̄ tubò nan̄ kasalukúyan²⁰ an̄ bagyò. During the typhoon most of the sugar-cane got broken. So from: bulòk, íwan, lúnod, lun̄kòt, tákot, tuwà'.

443. From a compound word, passive: nasawi-η-pálad (sawì η pálad).

From a derived word, active: makataanàn (taanàn, § 378).

²⁵444. Accent shift is due to the root. Si Pédro ay nakaayàw nà. Pedro has left the table. So from ábot, sákit.

Passive: Naabut nyà an ilawàn. He managed to reach the lamp. Hindí nya maabùt an itlòg. He can't reach the egg. An báta η si Hwàn ay nabábahày. Little Juan is shy.

³⁰Abstract: Pagkaabòt nan báta nan kanyà η laruwàn ay tumakbò sya η agàd.
After reaching for his toys, the boy at once ran.

445. With pag- before the root, this active is made from roots whose primary active has mag-. The reduplication affects either the ka-, or the pag-, or the root initial: makà-ka-pag- or maka-pà-pag- or maka-pag- R.

³⁵An báta' ay nakapagdalà nan káhoy. The boy managed to bring the wood. An báta' ay nakapagdàdalà (or: nakàkapagdalà, or: nakapàpagdalà) nan káhoy. The boy is able to bring the wood. Nakàkapaglasìη si Ánoη, káhit na sya y hindí binàbayáan nan kanya η asáwa na makapagpabilè nan álak. Anong manages to ⁴⁰*get drunk, even though his wife does not allow him to have liquor purchased for him.* Nakapagpútol na si Hwàn nan káhoy. Juan has finished cutting wood. Nakapagpùpútol nà si Hwàn nan káhoy. Juan is already able to cut wood. Hindí makapagpútol nan káhoy si Hwàn, dahilàn sa sùgat nya sa kamày. Juan cannot cut wood, on account of the wound on his hand.

Similarly: antòk, áral, bíhis, ligtàs, mísa, nákaw, pasiyàl, sábi, salità', tágo', takà.

⁵446. Direct passive: ma-pag-; ma-pag- R or ma-pà-pag-. Hindí ko mapagáyos an maña damìt na itò. I can't straighten out these clothes. Mapàpagáyos nya an maña lipàs sa úso η damìt na itò. She will be able to fix these out-of-date clothes. Hindí ko mapagkúro' kuη anò an íbig nya η sabíhin. I couldn't make ¹⁰*out what he wanted to say.* Nan mapagkúro' ni Hwàn kuη anò an manýàyári, ay hindí nya itinúloy an kanya η bálak. When

Juan saw what was going to happen, he did not carry out his plan. Hindí ko mapagkúro aṅ kahulugàn naṅ sùlat na itò. I can't get at the meaning of this letter. Napagtalastàs ko aṅ maṅa sinàsábi ¹⁵mo sa iyo ṅ sùlat. I understand all you say in your letter. Napagtátalastàs (or: napàpagtalastàs) kò aṅ íbig mo ṅ sabíhin. I understand what you mean.

447. maka-pag- (1), cf. § 353. Naṅ nakapaghanap syà ay umuwé sya sa kanya ṅ báhay. When he had finished searching, ²⁰he went home. Kuṅ makapaghanap syà ay úuwé sya. When he has finished searching, he will go home.

448. maka-pan-, corresponding to maṅ-, § 357. Nakàkapanḡhiràm kamì naṅ kwaltà kay Áli ṅ Kulása. We can borrow money from Aunt Nicolasa. Makàkapanḡhiràm ka ṅ wala ṅ sála kay ²⁵Hwàn naṅ isa ṅ sombrero. You will surely be able to borrow a hat from Juan. Nakapanḡṅabáyo sya ṅ patayò', sapagkàt hindí gulatìn aṅ kanya ṅ kabáyo. He is able to ride standing up, because his horse is not given to shying.

Abstract: pagkapanḡáko' (áko').

³⁵(b) From a derived word: makapanḡináin (kináin, §§ 365, 357,a).

449. ma- D; expressive of slow activity: Hindí sya mamatày-matày. He is lingering on the death-bed. Aṅ pàgakpákan naṅ maṅa táo ay hindí matápus-tápus. The applause of the people ⁴⁰could find no end.

450. In the instrumental passive, which seems to occur only with pag- and pan-, the i- follows the ma-: Aṅ pagkàtáwag naṅ kúra sa maṅa pulis ay hindí nya ikinabúte, sapagkàt silà y kàkauntí lámaṅ úpaṅ maipagtaṅgòl sya

With paṇ-: naipaṇánàk (anàk, cf. § 357).

§451. The local passive has the prefix ma- and the suffix (1) -an.

Namatayàn sina Hwàn. Someone has died in Juan's family. Namatayàn sa báhay ni Hwàn. There has been a death in Juan's house. Naputúlan si Hwàn naṇ dalíre' sa pagpapalákad naṇ mákina. ¹⁰*Juan got a finger cut off in running the machine.* Napùputúlan naṇ médiko aṇ maṇa táo naṇ kanila ṇ kamày o paà kuṇ kayiláṇan. When necessary, people get their hands or feet cut off by a doctor. Mapùputúlan ka naṇ dalíri', pag hindí ka nagíṇat sa iyo ṇ pagtatrabáho sa mákina ṇ iyàn. You will get your ¹⁵*finger cut off, if you aren't careful about the way you work that machine.* Nasakyàn ko nà aṇ kabáyo ṇ bara-barà. I have succeeded in mounting the wild horse. Naskyàn ko nà aṇ baṅka ṇ itò. I have already been in this canoe. Nawalàn naṇ málay aṇ babáye sa kanyà ṇ paghihimatày. The woman lost consciousness ²⁰*in her swoon.*

Similarly: báli', bukàs, halìk, hírap, láon, límot, luwàt, patìd, pílit, sákit, síra', siyà, súbok, súgat, suṅgàb, tagàl, tandà', úbos.

(a) bitìw lacks accent shift: mabitíwan, cf. § 374,b.

452. Local passive with explicative pag-: Hindí námin mapaglagarían ²⁵naṇ káhoy aṇ kabáyo ṇ káhoy na ginawá mo. We cannot saw wood on the saw-buck you have made. Napagputúlan námin naṇ kawáyan aṇ bágo ṇ gawá mo ṇ kabáyo ṇ káhoy. We were able to cut bamboo on the sawbuck you have just made.

453. Special static words resembling the active; the following ³⁰occur: Si Bantùg ay isa ṇ táo ṇ makabáyan. Bantog is a patriotic man. damò ṇ makahyà' the sensitive plant, Mimosa pudica.

nagmàmakaáwa' provoking pity (as though from makaáwa').

(b) The abstract is like a special static word in: An bigàs ay sya η pinakamahilagà η pagkabúhay nan táo sa Filipínas. Rice is the most important staple food in the Philippines. Cf. ⁴⁰also pagkaráka, § 265,9.

454. ma- forms special static words denoting that which by nature or circumstance possesses such and such, usually a quality. Maalikabok nà an mésa. The table is dusty already. Maásim an súka η itò. This wine is sour. an púno-η-káhoy na mabába' a low tree; isa η mabába η táo a humble person. An labàn ay mabábaw. The trough of the manger is shallow. Madálan an maña lindòl ⁵dító. Earthquakes are rare here. Sya y isa η ginoò η magálan. He is a polite gentleman. Maginháwa an umupó sa silya η itò. This chair is comfortable to sit in. Si Maryà ay isa η babáye η mapúri. Maria is a decent woman. Maluwàn an báro η itò. This blouse is too loose. matamìs sweet, an matamìs sugar. Matipìd na ¹⁰báta' si Hwàn. Juan is a saving child.

The plural is made with ma- r: An maña táo sa báyan ay mahuhúsay sumunòd sa kautusàn. The people of the town are all good law-abiders.

These forms are made from so many roots that the Index will ¹⁵be as convenient as a list.

Derivatives: §§ 352,c. 353,a.b. 370. 499,a. 500,b.

(a) Note masiyádo excessive, extreme, as though from a root -siyádo (and so listed), still felt by Mr. Santiago to be from Spanish demasiado.

(c) From derived words: An pagtayú sa bubunàn ay mapañánib. It is dangerous to stand on the roof. So from kasalánan (§ 423), kabuluhàn (§ 422).

455. ma-pag- someone given to doing so and so: An inà ni ²⁵Pédro ay mapagbigày sa kanya η maṇa kaululàn. Pedro's mother always gives in to his foolishness. Sya y mapagtipìd. He is very economical. So from: gawà', kumpisàl, simbà, siyásat, usísa'.

(a) From a phrase, probably: An táo η si Hwàn ay mapagpáku-m-babà'. That man Juan is overmodest (páko η babà' low ³⁰peg?).

(b) With accent shift: Mapaghunì an maṇa kabáyo η itò, kanya hindí dápat dalhìn sa labanàn. These horses are given to neighing and therefore should not be taken to war. So also: mapagawày.

³⁵456. In the same sense, but transitive in value, ma-paṇ-: mapaṅgúlat given to surprising or frightening people, mapaṅhágis given to flinging things; An táo η si Hwàn ay mapaṅhiràm. The fellow Juan is a great borrower. mapaṅhiyà' given to embarrassing people. mapamukòl given to throwing things. So from: ⁴⁰hilìṇ, matà.

457. In similar meanings, with suffix -in:

(a) ma- S -in: So magustúhin, masùnúrin.

(b) ma- (2) -in: An maṇa táo y hindí maibigìn sa pagkakàsála. People are not fond of sinning.

(c) ma- r (2) -in: matatawanìn easily made to laugh; Sya y matutulugìn. He is a sleepy-head. So also: magugulatìn.

scissors accidentally cut a large artery, in consequence of which his patient died. Similarly, from ¹⁵gísiŋ, háwa.

460. More frequent is a rational actor of an accidental action; as such is viewed any action the exact form of which is out of the actor's control. Si Pédro ay nakàháwak naŋ káwad na mày elektrisidàd. Pedro got hold of a charged wire. Hindí nya kilalà ²⁰an maŋa kwayanà ŋ iyòn, kaniyà nakàpútól sya naŋ sa iba ŋ táwo ŋ kawáyan. As he did not know those bamboo-groves, he inadvertently cut some bamboo that belonged to other people. Sundan mò silà sa kawayanàn, sapagkàt baká sila nakàpútól naŋ kawáya ŋ hindí nasàsákop naŋ áti ŋ lúpa'. Follow them to the ²⁵bamboo-grove, for they may be cutting some bamboo that is not included in our land. Hwàn, usisáin mo ŋ mabúti an haŋgáhan naŋ kawayanàn, bágo ka tumagá naŋ kawáyan, sapagkàt baká ka makàpútól naŋ kawáya ŋ hindí átin. Juan, find out exactly the borders of the bamboo-grove before you cut any bamboo, for else ³⁰you might cut some bamboo that is not ours. Pího ŋ makàpútól silà naŋ kawáya ŋ hindí sakòp naŋ lúpa', kapag hindí mo sila pinakialamàn, sapagkàt an haŋgáhan naŋ lúpa ŋ iyòn ay lubhà ŋ balú-baluktòt. They will surely cut some bamboo not included in the piece of ground, if you don't look after them, for the boundary ³⁵of the land is very irregular. Nakàtísod akò naŋ isa ŋ áhas. I hit a snake with my foot. Nakàtúlog si Hwàn sa báhay na gibà-gibà'. Juan hit upon a broken-down house as a place to sleep in, was constrained by circumstances to sleep in a broken-down house. Nakàusísà sya naŋ nawalà ŋ kwaltà. It came to her mind to inquire ⁴⁰about the lost money. Nakàusísà sya naŋ isa ŋ táo ŋ nakààalàm naŋ líhim. He happened to ask a man who knew the secret. Similarly: bilì, daàn, inòm, káin, súlat, tagpò'.

Abstract: In the abstract the element of accident often takes the form of expressing the way something turned out. Limàn an pagkàbílan nya sa maŋa itlòg na itò. His count of these eggs has turned out wrong. An pagkágawá ni Hwána sa páyon ay masamà'. The umbrella Juana made turned out poorly. An pagkágupit ⁵sa úlo naŋ báta' ay hindí pantày-pantày. The boy's hair-cut isn't (hasn't turned out) even. An pagkàhátì naŋ mansánas ay hindí parého. The halving of the apple is not exact. An pagkàísip nya sa bugtòn ay hindi táma'. His guess at the riddle is not correct. An pagkálagok nyà sa itlòg ay kanya η pinagsisihan. ¹⁰*He repented his having (in a moment of weakness) swallowed the egg.* An pagkàpások ni Hwàn naη tapòn sa bóte ay malálim. Juan got the cork too deep into the bottle. An pagkápatay sa magnanákaw ay hindí sinadyà'. The killing of the thief was not done on purpose. An pagkápatay sa manòk ay masamà'. This chicken ¹⁵*has not been slaughtered in the proper manner.* An pagkàpútol naη pálon naη kátiyaw ay hindí sagàd. The cock's comb is not cut off clean. An pagkátahul naη áso ay sya η inilalá naη sakít nya sa lalamúnan. The dog's barking made the pain in its throat worse. An pagkátanaw kò sa púno-η-káhoy ay itò y may madidilaw ²⁰na dáhon. The way I looked at that tree made it seem as if it had yellow leaves. An kanya η pagkátayò' (or: pagkátindìg) ay dahilàn sa kanya η pagkàgúlat. He jumped to his feet because of his surprise. An pagkàtípon naη maηa dáho η itò ay hindí mabúte. These leaves have not been well heaped up. So from: ²⁵bendisiyòn, bitbìt, hampàs, higà', pálo', tágo', tirà, upò'.

461. The active may denote a rational actor successful, thanks to outer circumstances, in such and such an action. Nakáhampas an báta η si Hwàn naη isa η tutubè. Little Juan succeeded in hitting a dragon-fly with his whip. Nakàháte si Hwàn ³⁰naη maηa mansánas. Juan got a chance to divide up the apples. Nakàkàkapá sya naη isa η palakà'. He has got hold of a frog (as, in grasping for frogs in mud-holes). Nakàpána akò naη usà. I hit a deer with an arrow. Nakàtípun nà akò naη maηa dáhon, naη pumaròn si Tátay. By the time Father got there, I had already ³⁵*had time to get some leaves heaped up.* So also: ágaw, hiñì', sáli.

sa kahabáan nañ kanya ñ pamálo'. He can hit the children because of the length of his stick. An pagkàhárañ kina Hwàn ay sya nilà ñ ikinawalá nañ kanila ñ salapè'. Juan and his party's having been held up was what deprived them of their money. An pagkàhátì nya sa tubù ay hindí manýàýaré kuñ gumámit sya nañ mapurùl na gúlok. He would not have been able to slice the sugar-cane down its length (as a game or trick), if he had used a dull bolo. Pagkàísip nya kuñ anò an dápat nya ñ gawìn sa magnanákaw na nàhúli nya, ay ginawá nya iyòn agàd. When he had at last hit upon the idea of what to do with the thief he had caught, he immediately carried it out. Nañhináyan an boo ñ báyan sa pagkápatay kay Risàl nañ maña Kastíla'. The whole country mourned over the killing of Rizal by the Spaniards. An ámi ñ pagkásakay sa bañkà' ay syà ñ nagligtàs sa ámi ñ búhay. Our having been able to get into the canoe is what saved our lives. An pagkàsúnog nañ maña magnanákaw sa báyan ay pinarusáhan nañ gubyèrno. The thieves' burning the town was punished by the government. An pagkátayo nañ isa ñ báhay-pàmahaláa ñ batò ay dahilàn sa pagpapaalaála ni Hwàn nañ pañánib sa súnog. The fact that a stone government-building came after all to be built, was due to Juan's calling attention to the danger from fire. Anu ñ pagkátipid ni Hwàn! How saving Juan has been! So from: sábi, táwag.

462. The active is used of certain acts of sensation whose occurrence is out of the control of the subject: an nakàkìkilála, an nakàkàkilála one who has got knowledge of a person or thing, has come to know his habits, recognizes his nature. An pagkàgúlat ni Hwána ay syà ñ ikinátawà nañ marámi ñ nakàkàkíta. Juana's astonishment amused many who saw it. With kilála compare nakáramdàm felt; with kíta, nakàmálay, nakátanàw, and nakárinìg heard.

463. The direct passive has the forms mà-, mà- R, nà-, nà- R.

It may correspond regularly to the active type in § 460, and ⁴⁰denote an object undergoing an accidental action of a rational actor.

Nàáso ko sa boo η báyan aη báta', káhit na hindí ko gustò. I was forced to go shouting after the child all over town, though I didn't like to do it. Hindí mu ba nàbása sa diyáriyo aη tunkùl sa súnog? Haven't you come across the details of the fire in the paper? Baká mo màbásag, Hwána, iyà η pinaglàlaruwan mò η ⁵skandeléro. See that you don't break that candlestick you're playing with, Juana. Nádala nyà naη hindí sinásadyà' sa kanya η pagalis aη áki η páyoη. When he went away he inadvertently carried off my umbrella. Nàgambála ku aη pagaáral ni Hwàn dahilàn sa áki η pagdatìη na walá sa óras. I disturbed Juan in ¹⁰his studying by my untimely arrival. Nàgámit ni Hwàn aη áki η, sombréro dahilàn sa kanya η pagmamadalí naη pagalis. Juan used my hat in the haste of his departure. Nàgísìη nya sa kanya η pagiiηày aη maηa báta'. What with his racket he woke up the children. Náhampàs naη hindí sinásadyá ni Pédro aη bábuy naη ¹⁵kanya η kápit-báhay. Pedro inadvertently hit his neighbor's hog with his whip. Nàíwan dìn nyà sa ákin aη kanya η anàk, káhit na itò y áyaw nya η gawìn. She was also forced to leave her child with me, although she disliked to do this. Nápatày ko naη barìl-barìlan aη manòk. I accidentally killed the chicken with my toy-gun. ²⁰Kánin mo aη milòn, kuη iyu η gustò, o kayà' aη ságin, kuη sya mo itò η nàpìpíle'.—Nàpìpíli ko aη milòn. Eat the banana, if you like, or the melon, if you prefer it.—I prefer the melon. Nápitás nyà aη bulaklák naη hindí sinásadyà'. She picked the flower without intending to. Nàpútol ko naη hindí sinásadyà' aη lúbid na ²⁵itò. I chanced, without intending it, to cut this string. Baká mo màsira', Hwàn, aη patágo sa iyù η kwàlta naη iyu η kapatìd. See to it, Juan, that you don't do away with your brother's money that is entrusted to you. Nàusísà ni Hwána aη inumìt na siηsìη naη kanya η kapatìd. Juana happened to inquire for the ring her ³⁰sister had filched. So from: aηkìn, búlag, bútas, hábol, patày, púlot.

464. The direct passive may correspond regularly to the active described in § 461, and denote an object undergoing an action which a rational actor was enabled to perform by virtue of ³⁵outer circumstances.

Aη úlo ni Hwàn ay nàbìbílog naη kanya η kalarò'. Juan's playmates are succeeding in making a fool of him (literally: in rounding his head). Nágupit nyà aη makapàl na damìt. It turned out that he was able to cut the thick cloth. Hindi ku màípon ⁴⁰añ maña karáyum na nañàsábug sa lúpa'. I did not succeed in gathering up all the needles that were scattered over the floor. Hindi ko mápatay añ púsa ñ itò. I cannot kill this cat (i.e. its life is tough, it gets away, etc.) Kapag nàpútol mo añ bákal na iyàn, ikàw ay makawáwalà'. If you can get a chance to cut through that iron, you can make your escape. Nàpútol nya añ káhoy. He got the wood cut all right. Hindi nya màpútol añ leèg nañ manòk. He couldn't get the chicken's neck cut through. ⁵Màpùpútol na raw nyà añ púno nañ káhoy na nabwàl. He says he will be in a position to cut through the tree that has fallen. añ kanyà ñ násiñìl the money he was able to collect. Similarly, from: bálot, gawà', húli, kúha, kúlam, nákaw, pitàs, sábi, taàs, táwag.

465. Similarly, the direct passive is regularly used to correspond ¹⁰to the active in § 462, of objects of sensation. Nàkilála ko si Hwàn doòn sa sàwáyan. I got acquainted with Juan at that dance. So from: alaála, dinìg, inò, kíta, málàs, pansìn.

466. Other uses of the direct passive do not regularly correspond to any active, cf. § 440 f.; these have their own abstract ¹⁵with pagkà-.

The direct passive is used to denote an object which has accidentally got into such and such a condition; the actor is either indifferent or entirely lacking. There seems to be no abstract principle clearly separating this form from the passive with na- ²⁰described in § 440; where position of the object is involved, the accidental form is preferred.

Nàbúte añ kanyà ñ pagkatákot. His fear reached a high point. Añ kanya ñ bañkà y patúño sa bandà ñ kalunúran, dátapuwat pagkaraàn nañ ilà ñ sandalì' ay náiba añ kanya ñ bandáhin. ²⁵*His canoe was headed toward the west, but after a while his direction changed.* Añ ìnumínan nañ báhay ay dápat málagay sa lugàr na malílim. The shelf for drinking-water of a house should be in a shady place. Násakay sa trèn añ ipinahatìd mo ñ maña dalañhíta'. The tangerines you sent have been shipped. Nàtúlin añ pagpapadulàs ³⁰nañ báta ñ si Hwàn sa pútek. Juan's sliding on the mud got faster and faster (in spite of him).

Abstract: Pagkásakay naŋ maŋa sáko naŋ kamóte sa trèn ay lumákad itò agàd. As soon as the bags of sweet-potatoes had been put on board the train, the latter started to move. So from: balíta', gámit, ibà, látag, libìŋ, sarà.

In some cases the accidental actor is imaginable: Náakyàt si Pédro sa itaàs naŋ lánit dahilàn sa ginawá nya ŋ pagkápit sa ⁵pinalipàd na lóbo. Pedro got carried up into the air owing to his grip on the loosed balloon. Nàháraŋ sina Hwàn sa daà-ŋ-Balíwag. Juan and his company chanced to get held up on the Baliuag road. Hwag kà, Hwàn, pumásuk sa sekréta, sapagkàt baká ka máhigà' sa ihawàn, kuŋ ikàw ay màhúle. Don't go as a spy, Juan, for you might get laid on the gridiron, if you got caught. Similarly: baŋgìt, barìl, bilaŋgò', distíno, húli, ligtàs, píli', taŋgàp, táwag.

Processes of life: Sya y nábiŋì. He got deaf. Nàbúte si Hwàn sa kanya ŋ pagkatákot. Juan was bettered by his fright. Si Pédro at si Maryà ay màkàkasàl. Pedro and Maria will get ¹⁵married some day. So: himbìŋ, lóko, tahímik, tinìk, túto, wíli.

Abstract: Aŋ pagkàgúlat ni Hwána sa maíŋay na putòk naŋ kanyòn ay sya nyà ŋ ikinabiŋì. Juana's shock at the loud report of the cannon was what made her deaf. Malakì aŋ kanila ŋ nagìŋ pagkàgúlat. Their astonishment was great. Aŋ pagkàsúnog sa ²⁰maŋa sundálo sa loòb naŋ báhay ay nanjári dáhil sa pagkásara naŋ maŋa bintána'. The fact that the soldiers were burned in the house was due to the circumstance that the windows had been closed. An pagkátinik sa lalamúnan nan báta' ay sya nyà n ikinamatày. The boy's getting a fishbone into his throat was what ²⁵*killed him.* Pagkátinik nan unḡò' ay sya y nagálit. When the monkey had got a spine into his foot he got angry. An pagkàwíle ni Hwàn sa báhay ny Andrés ay dahilàn sa anàk na dalága nitò. Juan's being spell-bound in Andres' house was due to the latter's daughter. So: gustò, kasàl, manḡhà'.

³⁰Movements, especially the resultant position: Sya y nárapà'. He fell on his face. Náriyan kamì sa iyo n báhay kahápon nan umága, dátapuwat hindí ka námin dinatnàn. We were at your house yesterday morning, but we did not find you there. Náluhod sya sa kanyà n harapàn. He knelt down in front of her. Nàpàpagítan si Hwàn sa dalawà n dalága. ³⁵*Juan chanced to get placed between two young ladies.* Sila y nàupò'. They are seated. Similarly from: ákap, alis, bálot, díne, díto, dulàs, doòn, haràp, kublì, kulòn, lákad, lugmòk, padpàd, panhìk, sakày, sísid, tabì, tágo', tayò', tirà, tuḡtòn.

Abstract: An ikinátahol nan maḡa áso ay an pagkádapá ni ⁴⁰Hwàn. What made the dogs bark was Juan's falling on his face. Pagkásakay ni Hwàn sa trèn ay lumákad ito n agàd. When Juan was on board the train, it soon started to move. So also: dulàs, kublì, lagày, panhìk, silìd, tabì, tayò'.

467. The passive forms an explicit plural in which -an- is infixed into the na-: Tibáyan mo an maḡa itátayú mo n kúbo sa búkid, sapagkàt baká iyo y manágibà' kuḡ lumakàs an háḡin. Prop up the huts you are going to build in the fields, for otherwise ⁵*they might break down when the wind gets stronger.* Maḡàḡibà' an maḡa báhay na itò, sapagkàt hindí táma' an pagkátayò'. These houses will break down, because they are not built right. So from: paḡàw, sábog, taluḡkò'.

468. An irregular form is nàndon beside ná-roòn.

Passive: Náabut nyà sa kanyà η paglulundàg na may tája η pamálo' an ilawàn, kanyà' itò y nabásag. In his climbing with ¹⁵the stick in hand, he accidentally reached the lamp, and so it got broken. Sya y nábulàg. He went blind. So: gísìṅ, háyag, húli, lápit, láyo', túloy.

Abstract: An pagkáhuli naṅ susò' ay malakè. The snail was left way behind. An pagkáabot nyà sa bóte ay hindi magálan. The way he reached for the bottle was not polite. So: álam, áyaw, gísìṅ, lápit, úna.

From derived words: Passive: Nàtàtagílìd an baṅkà'. The ²⁵boat has a list to one side (ta-gílìd, § 523).

(a) Passives from words with prefix ka- (§ 398) are frequent. An búkid ni Hwàn ay nàkàkarátig naṅ kay Pédro. Juan's field borders on Pedro's. Nàkasále nya sa kanya η paglalarò' an kanya η pínsan. He took his cousin for playmate. Si Maryáno ay nàkatálo ³⁰ni Hwàn. Mariano was Juan's opponent. Si Narsíso an lági η nàkàkatálo ni Pédro sa maṅa pagtatálo η idinàdáos lingo-lingò sa kanila η sàmáhan. Narcisso is always Pedro's opponent in the debates which they hold every Sunday at their club. Si Lúkas an màkàkatálo ko. Lucas will be my opponent. nàkàkatúṅo the person ³⁵one happens to be dealing with. nàkaúsap be by chance able to be conversed with.

Underlying word non-existent: Nàkatúlog si Hwàn sa panunoòd naṅ teátro. Juan fell asleep while watching the play. Umulàn kagabì at lumamìg, kaniyà' ako nàkatúlog naṅ mahimbìṅ. Last ⁴⁰night it rained and got cool; in consequence I fell sound asleep, got a sound sleep. Hindí ako màkatúlog. I couldn't get any sleep. Abstract: an pagkàkatúlog.

(b) Explicit plural of the preceding: Naṅàkàkatúlog sila η lahàt, naṅ pumások sa báhay an magnanákaw. They had all fallen asleep, when the thief came into the house. Pagpilítan ninyò η hwag kayò η maṅàkatúlog sa inyo η pagbabantày sa maṇa háyop at iba pà η árì naṇ pàmahalaàn. See to it that you don't fall asleep when on guard over the animals and other property of the government. Dayòn ay maṇàkàkatúlog silà, dahilàn sa maláon nila η pagpupuyàt gabi-gabì. Now they will be able to sleep, owing to their staying up late night after night.

471. Passive with pag- (cf. § 445): the reduplication affects ¹⁰the pag-. Hindí ko màpagáway aṇ tamìs at aṇ ásim naṇ limonáda η itò. I cannot produce a balance of sweet and sour in this lemonade. Sa kalaúnan ay nàpagkilála ni Hwàn aṇ kanya η kamàlián. Finally Juan saw where he was wrong. Hindí nya nàpagkúro' agàd kuṇ anò aṇ gàgawin nyà. He was not able to decide at once ¹⁵what he was going to do. Nàpàpagkúrù mo bà aṇ lahàt naṇ sinábi ko sa iyò kahápon? Are you able to figure out all I said to you yesterday? Hindí ko màpagkúro kuṇ anò aṇ íbig nya η sabíhin. I simply couldn't make out what he was trying to say.

(a) Accent shift is due to the root: Áyon sa sábi naṇ marámi ²⁰ay màpàpaghuli na ràw aṇ maṇa magnanákaw. According to what people say, the thieves will soon be caught.

472. Passive with paṇ-: Nàpanagínip niya η nàkíta nya aṇ kanya η amà. He dreamt he saw his father.

473. makà- D is used in prohibitions: Hwag kà η makàláyas-láyas! ²⁵*Don't ever run away!* So from tuṇtón.

(a) with paki-: Hwag kà η makàpakikáin-káin kuṇ hindí ka inàanyáhan. Don't ever take a meal with people unless they invite you.

474. The instrumental passive is rare: badiyà, màilabàs, màipások, ³⁰màitúro'.

475. Local passive with mà-.

Nàmàmasdan kò mulá sa banda η itò naṇ bintána' aṇ báhay ni Áli η Maryà. I get a view of Mistress Maria's house from this side of the window.

Pagiñátan mo aṅ iyo ṅ kwaltà sa bulsà pagluwàs ³⁵mo sa Maynìla', at naṅ hwag kà ṅ mànakáwan. Look carefully to the money in your purse when you go to Manila, so as not to get robbed. Nàpasúkan nya sa kwàrto aṅ magnanákaw. In entering the room he came upon the thief. Nàputúlan ku naṅ tahìd aṅ kátyaw. I managed to cut the game-cock's spur. Nàpùputúlan ⁴⁰ko nà naṅ pálonṅ aṅ kátyaw. I am succeeding in cutting off the game-cock's comb. Màpùputúlan daw nyà naṅ maṅa pálonṅ aṅ maṅa kátyaw nya ṅ paṅsábonṅ. He will manage to cut off the combs of his pit game-cocks, he says. Nàsagasáan naṅ trèn aṅ isa ṅ táo. A man got run over by the train. Nàsakyan námin aṅ baṅká ni Hwàn. We happened to get into Juan's canoe. Aṅ kamátáya ṅ màtagpuàn naṅ isa ṅ magnanákaw ay lági ṅ hindí mabúte. The death a robber meets is usually not good. Baká mu ⁵màtamáan aṅ úlu naṅ báta'. See that you don't hit the child's head (and disfigure him).

Similarly: balíta', bukàs, damdàm, datìṅ, gustò, intindì, kamìt, kulápol, ligtàs, málay, pígil, tanìm, túlog, tumpàk, túto, wisìk.

(a) With contraction of prefix and initial: màláman (álam).

¹⁰(b) Accent shift lacking: nàmatáan (matà).

(c) Extra accent shift is due to the root: Kamuntí naṅ màtamaàn naṅ kanya ṅ pukòl aṅ báta'. He nearly hit the child with his throw. Baká mu màtamaàn aṅ báta'. See that you don't hit the child. So also: nàalamàn (álam).

(a) Extra accent shift (plural): mà-pag-alam-àn.

²⁵477. Local passive with mà-paŋ-; the only example lacks accent shift: nà-paŋ-aginàl-do-han.

478. Local passive with mà- from underlying word with ka- (cf. § 398): nàkagalítan, màkatuwaàn.

(a) with pagka-, corresponding to an active with magka- ³⁰(§ 405): màpagkalipumpunàn (lipumpòn).

479. Special static words with makà- are formed from numerals in the sense of so many times: makàánim six times; makálawà twice; makálimà five times; makásiyàm nine times. So: makáilàn several times.

Reduplicated: makàlilíbo a thousand times.

4. The prefix pa-.

⁴⁰480. The general sense of the prefix pa- is to denote something caused or ordered to undergo such and such an action. With accent pà- an increase of the action is expressed.

(1) Simple static forms.

481. The root with prefix pa- denotes an object or person ordered, caused, or allowed to undergo such and such an action. The person caused to undergo may be the same as the person ordering ⁵or allowing.

An paakyàt ni Hwána na púnò nan kakàw ay an nása súlok nan bakúran. The cocoa-tree Juana ordered climbed is the one in the corner of the yard. An panyo η itò ay paalaála sa ákin niy Áli η Maryà sa anàk nya η dalága. This handkerchief is a souvenir ¹⁰to me from Aunt Maria which she sent by her daughter. Inihandá nan ámi η kaséra an atsára η papáya úpan siya námi η magìη paáyap. Our landlady served some pickled papaws for us to use as condiment. Pabalik ni Hwàn an libru η itò. Juan sends this book back. Itò an paháti' sa ákin ni Pédro. This is what ¹⁵Pedro ordered me to deal out. An maña tubò η itò ay papútol sa ákin ni Pédro. Pedro ordered me to cut this sugar-cane. An táo η itò an pasakày ni Hwàn sa karumáta ko. This is the man whom Juan asked me to take into my carriage. An binása ni Hwà η kautusàn ay patáwag nan kúra. The ordinance Juan read was ²⁰given out for proclamation by the priest. An báhay na ytò y patayó ni Hwàn. Juan had this house built. Patípon ni Hwàn sa ákin an maña nyòg na itò. Juan ordered me to gather up these cocoanuts. An pauwé ni Hwàn sa kanya η inà ay isa η maínam na sinjìη. What Juan sent home to his mother was a beautiful ²⁵ring.

As conjunctive attribute the word with pa- may express manner: an daà η pabalik sa Balíwag the road back to Baliuag. Papások sya η lumàlákad sa gitná nan báhay. He was ³⁰going farther in toward the inside of the house. Pasakày sya η lumuksò sa kabáyo. He jumped on the horse as if mounting to ride. Nan mahúlug an báta' sa káhoy, ay paupó sya η lumagpàk sa lúpa'. When the boy fell from the tree, he landed on the ground in a sitting position. Pauròη sya η lumákad. He went ³⁵backwards.

With movements pa-, reflexive, is often weakened to a mere indication of direction: Paakyàt sa púnù nan káhoy an ungò' nan sya y abútan nan lóbo. The monkey was just climbing the tree, when he was overtaken by the wolf. Pabalik si Hwàn. Juan ⁴⁰is going back. Patúño si Hwàn sa báya-η-Balíwag. Juan was headed for the town of Baliuag.

Similarly: álam, biglà', bulòn, gawà', háraŋ, kálat, lági', lalà', puntà, sigàw, tágo', takbò, taluŋkò', tayò', túloy.

(a) From a derived word: paitaàs (itaàs, § 373).

(b) The peculiar meaning is weakened in some words: aŋ paága a kind of rice which matures early, aŋ pakinábaŋ profit, advantage, aŋ palabàs a theatrical performance, aŋ palígo' a bath, ⁵aŋ pamagàt an appellation, a nickname. So from: baŋò', bása, bayò, bigàt, daàn, dúsa, háyag, hintúlot, lákad, lígid, lúgit, sákit, talìm.

(c) With retraction of accent and contraction: páno (anò).

(d) Irregular: Aŋ pagkáparoŋ kò sa bèsbol ay paubáya' ¹⁰naŋ áki ŋ gurò'. My going to the baseball game was by permission of my teacher (báya').

482. pa- (1) is made from barytone roots when they express manner, or, more especially, direction: Aŋ baŋkà' ay hindí paayòn sa ílog. The boat is not headed with the stream. Pahagis nya ŋ iniyabòt sa ákin aŋ aklàt. He handed me the book by tossing it. Iníwan nya ŋ ¹⁵paharàŋ sa daàn aŋ karitòn. He left the wagon blocking the road. Paharàŋ nya ŋ inihágis sa ílog aŋ púno-ŋ-ságiŋ. He threw the banana tree crosswise into the river. Aŋ paglakè naŋ lámát naŋ piŋgàŋ ay pahatè'. The increase in the crack of the dish is going towards halving it. Aŋ búŋa ŋ itò y pahatè' kuŋ mapiráso pagkahinòg. ²⁰*This fruit goes into halves when it breaks on ripening.* Similarly: líhim, pútol.

(a) The accent shift is due to the root and the value of the formation is as in § 481, in: Aŋ paabòt mo ŋ súlat ay tinaŋgàp ko. I have received the letter you sent to me. Si Hwàn ay isa ŋ ²⁵báta ŋ pabayà'. Juan is a neglectful boy.

(b) The accent shift is like that of a root word in: Paligú na aŋ maŋa báta'. The children are bathed now (pa-lígo').

483. pa- r, as explicit plural: see ábot.

484. pa- D. The action is repeated at short intervals; the ³⁰reflexive value is frequent. Sya y lumàlákad na pahintò-hintò' . He goes on, stopping every little while. Pamalí-mali' aṅ kanya ṅ pagbílaṅ. His count contains repeated errors. Alam nyà aṅ maṅa pasíkot-síkot sa báya-ṅ-Balíwag. He knows all the ins and outs of the district of Baliuag. So from: iyàk, lígid, mínsan, pasiyàl, ³⁵túlog.

(a) Accent shift is due to the root: Patúlog-túlog at pagisìṅ-gisìṅ siyà. He sleeps and wakes by fits and starts. Patawà-tawà at paiyàk-iyàk siyà. She giggles at one moment and weeps the next.

485. pa-pa- has durative-iterative meaning: Papaalis sya ⁴⁰naṅ akò y dumatìṅ. He was just going away when I arrived. Papauròṅ sya ṅ lumàlákad. He was going backwards. So from labàs.

(a) papáno (anò) seems equivalent to páno (§ 481,c).

486. As appears in the example of paligò' above (§ 482,b), the forms with pa- are apparently capable of all the modifications that are found in simple roots: Thus:

(b) with ka- R (§ 400): Kapàpapútol ko pa lámaṅ naṅ maṅa káhoy na itò. I have just had this firewood cut.

(c) with ka-pag- R (§ 400,a): Kapagpàpapútol ko lámaṅ naṅ sièt kay Hwàn. I have just ordered Juan to cut up the bamboo ¹⁵spines.

(2) Normal transients, abstracts, and special static words.

487. The root with pa- is sometimes used as a transient contingent punctual, with the value of a reflexive passive; more commonly the form with ma-pa- (§ 506) fulfils this function. There ²⁰are three types:

(a) Genuine reflexive passive: Paábut ka sa maṇà nagsìsihábul sa iyò. Let yourself be overtaken by your pursuers. Paakyat kà kay Hwàn sa itaàs naṇ káhoy. Ask Juan to take you up into the tree. Twì ṇ papásuk akò sa síne sa áki ṇ kúyaṇ, ay nasìsiráan ²⁵ṇ mákina. Every time I ask my oldest brother to take me to the moving-picture show, something goes wrong with the machine. So: kasàl, ligàw.

(b) Reflexive of interest: one who orders that something undergo such and such an action for him: Paakyàt ka kay Hwàn naṇ ³⁰isa ṇ búṇa-ṇ-nyòg. Ask Juan to climb for a coconut for you.

(c) Reflexive of motion; the pa- has faded value; thus are used the local equivalents of the demonstrative pronouns and a few other words. Paríni ka. Come here. Tuwì ṇ aku y paroòn sa kanya ṇ báhay ay hindí ku sya inàabútan. Every time I go to his ³⁵house, I fail to find him in.

(d) If the pa- is accented, the action is more intense: Pàága ka naṇ pagparíto. Be very early in your coming here.

(e) A contingent durative is formed with pa- R. (a) Paáakyat akò kay Hwàn sa itaàs naṇ káhoy. I shall ask Juan to take me ⁴⁰up into the tree with him. Papàpások akò sa síne sa áki ṇ kúyaṇ. I shall ask my brother to take me to the moving-picture show. (b) Paáakyat akò kay Hwàn naṇ isa ṇ búṇa-ṇ-nyòg. I shall ask Juan to climb for a coconut for me. Papùpútol akò naṇ buhòk kay Hwàn. I shall ask Juan to cut my hair.

488. For the reflexive of motion (§ 487,c) a set of transients ⁵and an abstract are formed with -um- and pag-. These also are equivalent to the forms with ma-pa- (§ 506).

(a) Regularly from the four roots serving as locals of the demonstrative pronouns. Pumaríni ka! Come here! Pumaríne ka sa áki ṇ tabì. Come close here to my side.

Pagparoòn ko ay sàsabíhin ko sa kanyà an ibinalíta mo. When I get there I shall tell him what you have told me. Kità n dalawà ay páparon sa teyátro. We two are going to the theatre.

(b) Occasionally from loòb: pumaloòb.

(d) Plurals: magsipalígo', nagsìsipanáog.

489. mag-pa-, pag-pa-pa-. Active with mag- from the root ²⁵with pa- denotes one who causes, orders, or allows such and such an action to be performed on something else or (reflexively) on himself.

(b) Accent shift is due to the root: Ipaalàm ka sa kanyà aṅ áki ṅ patùtuṅúhan. Let him know where I am going. Ipinaalam snya sa ákin aṅ kanya ṅ nilóloòb. He made his intentions known to me. Ipinatulòy ni Pédro aṅ pagpapatayò naṅ báhay. Pedro had them go on with the construction of the house. Similarly: ábot.

(c) With pag- (cf. § 491): ipapagáral.

¹⁵495. i-pag-pa-, i-p-in-ag-pa-. When the relation of the object ordered to undergo an action is explicitly that of a thing given forth (§ 368), a kind of double instrumental passive is made by prefixing pag- to the pa- (cf. the explicit use of pag- in primary passives, §§ 369. 375): Ipinagpaháte' sa ákin ni Pédro aṅ pálay. ²⁰*The rice was ordered by Pedro to be dealt out to me.* Aṅ kwàlta ṅ nàpaṅaginàldohan ni Hwàn ay sya nyà ṅ ipinagpasakày sa tiyobíbo sa kanya ṅ kapatid na maliit. Juan used his Christmas money to treat his little brother to a ride on the merry-go-round. Aṅ kautusàn ay ipinagpàpatáwag naṅ kúra. The law is being called out ²⁵*by order of the priest.*

(a) With additional pa- (as in § 494,d): ipinagpapadalà.

496. i-paki-pa-, i-p-in-aki-pa-. Before a word with pa- the instrumental passive with paki- denotes the thing asked (as a favor) to be caused to undergo such and such an action. Hwag mò ṅ ipakipapútol ³⁰aṅ púno-ṅ-káhoy, dátapuwat pakiputúlin mo na mìmso. Don't ask someone else to cut down the tree for me, but cut it down for me yourself. Ipakìkipapútol ni Hwàn sa inyò aṅ maṅa tinibàn sa kanya ṅ bakúran. Juan will ask you to have the banana-stumps in his yard cut down. Ipinakipapútol nya kay Hwàn an maña ³⁵damò sa bakúran. He asked Juan to have the grass cut in his yard.

(a) The thing asked (as a favor) to be caused to do so and so: Ipinakipakáin láman niya an kanya n anàk hában sya y walà'. She asked someone else to feed her child while she was away. Ipinakìkipasúso láman nya kay Maryà an kanya n anàk, sapagkàt walá ⁴⁰sya n gátas. She is asking Maria to nurse her child for her, because she has no milk.

497. pa- (1) -an, p-in-a- (1) -an. The local passive with pa- denotes that caused to undergo an action as local object.

Paaláman mo sa kanyà kuñ saàn ka páparon. Let him know where you are going. Pinaasuhàn ni Pédro an maña púno-n-manjà. ⁵*Pedro smoked (i.e. warmed, so as to speed flowering) the mango trees.* Pinabayáan ni Hwàn an kanya n maña tunkúlin. Juan neglected his duties. Pabayáan mo syà. Leave him alone. An pagpatà y sa maña magnanákaw ay hindí pinarùrusáhan nan hukòm. The judge does not punish one for killing robbers. Pinahatían akò ¹⁰ni Pédro nan pálay sa kàtiwála'. Pedro had the agent give me my share of rice. Pinahubaràn nan inà an maña báta'. The mother had her children undressed. Pakinggàn nawá ninyò an áki n pagtáwag. Pray give hearing to my call. Pinaliligúan nan pagòn an ílog. The turtle bathed in the river. Pinaliligúan nan babáye an ¹⁵báta'. The woman was bathing the child. Hwag mò n pamaláyan sa marámi na ikàw ay marámi n kayamánan sa báhay, úpan hwag kà n nakáwan. Don't let people know that you have many valuables in your house, lest you be robbed. Pinanaúgan nya an báhay. He went down from the house. Pinaputúlan ni Hwàn nan taíja ²⁰an kanya n maña biik, úpan hwag máan kin nan iba n táo. Juan had the ears of his little pigs cut, so that they might not be inadvertently taken by anyone else. Pinapùputúlan ni Hwàn nan buntòt an lahàt nan kanya n maña manòk. Juan has all his chickens' tails clipped (for identification). Paputúlan mo nan kaunti' an ²⁵mahábà mo n buhòk. Have your long hair cut a little. Papùputúlan ko nan buntòt an maña manòk na bágo n bilè. I shall have the tails clipped of the chickens I have just bought. An banka n itò ay pinasakyàn ko kay Hwàn. I allowed Juan to ride in this canoe. Pinatunáyan sa ákin ni Hwàn na ikàw ay nagsúsugàl. Juan proved ³⁰to me that you are gambling. Ano η bandà an kanilà η pinatùtuṅúhan? What direction are they headed for?

(a) Accent shift, due to the root: pabayaàn, equivalent, however, ³⁵to pabayáan.

(b) pà-: Pàagáhan mo an pagsúloṅ. Get away very early. Pàináman mo an súlat. Write very neatly. Pàitiman mò an kúlay nan túbig. Make the color of the water very black. Hwag mò η pàputian an pintà nan báhay. Don't put too much white into the ⁴⁰paint for the house.

503. ka-pa- (1) -an. Local passive with ka- (§ 419) from a word with pa- (§ 481): kapàpatunúhan the place one will be headed for.

With (2), (§ 422): An kapabayaàn nya sa maña tunjúlin ay ⁴⁰syà η malakì nya η kapintásan. His neglectfulness of his duties is his great fault.

504. maka-pa-. With maka- in the usual meanings (§ 433 ff.) a few transients are made from words pa-. Nakapahinà sa lílim an maña kalabàw. The carabao rested in the shade (irrational actor). Bayáan mo η makapahinà an maña dalà mo η kalabàw bágu ka bumalik sa búkid. Let the carabao that brought you rest before you go back to the country. Makapàpahinà nà an maña sháyop bágo sya dumatì. The carabao will have rested before he arrives. So from: doòn, lígo’.

505. Commoner is maka-pag-pa- (corresponding to mag-pa-); the abstract has pagkapa-. Nakapagpapútol na akò nan káho y na gágamítin ko sa boò η tagulàn. I have already had wood cut for the entire rainy season. Si Lílày ay nakàkapagpapútol nan káho y sa alílà ni Kíka’. Lilay has permission to order Kika’s servant to cut the wood. Hindí ako makapagpapútol nan tubò kay Hwàn, sapagkàt marámi sya η trabáho sa ibà. I cannot have Juan cut sugar-cane, because he has already too much work to do for other people. Makàkapagpapútol akò nan labòη, kuη iyò η gustò. I can have some bamboo-shoots cut, if you wish.

506. The passive with ma- from words with pa- varies in meaning, owing chiefly to the various values of words with pa-.

²⁰(a) Genuine passive: Hindí nya napahinòg an maña ságin. He did not succeed in getting the bananas to ripen. Mapahíhram mo ba akò nan lima η píso η gintò? Can you let me borrow five dollars gold? Napapások ko sa kuràl an maña kalabàw. I succeeded in bringing the carabao into the corral. Napatátalim ni Pédro ²⁵an mapuròl na gúlok. Pedro is able to sharpen dull bolos. So from: alìs, puntà, sáboy, túlog.

(b) Reflexive passive: An máy sakit ay napadapà’ sa maña nagàalágà sa kanya, sapagkàt sya hindí makakílos. The sick man had the people who were caring for him lay him on his face, because ³⁰*he could not move.* Napagísì si Hwàn sa kanya η kapatid sa óras nan alaskwátro nan umága. Juan had his brother wake him up at four o’clock in the morning.

Napapások akò sa síne sa áki η kúyaη. I asked my oldest brother to take me to the moving-picture show. Mapapàpások.... I shall ask to be taken in. ³⁵Silà y napatùtuloη. They are asking for help. So: álam, hatìd, tawìd.

(c) Reflexive of interest: Napaakiyàt akò kay Hwàn naη isa η búña-η-nyòg. I asked Juan to climb for a coconut for me. Napapútol silà naη káhoy. They asked to have wood cut for them. ⁴⁰Napapùpútol aη maηa anàk naη kanila η kukò kay Nánay. The children ask Mother to cut their fingernails. Napapùpútol akò naη gágawi η pípa kay Hwàn. I am asking Juan to cut me some wood for a cigarette-mouthpiece. Napatilàd akò naη tubò kay Nánay. I asked Mother to slice me some sugar-cane.

(d) Movement: Napabíηit sya sa malaki η paηánib. He got into a very dangerous situation. Naparíne sa tabi kò aη báta'. The child came up close to me. Aη magkaybíga η si Pédro at si ⁵*Maryáno ay naparoòn sa Mayníla'.* The two friends, Pedro and Mariano, have gone to Manila. Sya y napaóo. He assented. So from: díto, loòb, salámat, túηo. Also from the derived word luwásan: napaluwásan.

507. Instrumental passive only in: maipabarìl.

¹⁰508. Passive with mà- (§ 463 ff.) from words with pa-. Bumitiw aη bátà sa lúbid, kanyá nàparapà' aη kanyà η kahatakàn. As the child let go of the rope, the one who was pulling against him fell on his face. Nàparíto si Hwàn sa kanyà η pagtatagò' sa maηa tiktèk. Juan happened to come here in his hiding from the ¹⁵*spies. Nàpàparíto sya η madalàs. He often gets round here. Màpàparíto raw syà sa báya η itò. He will get round to our town, he says. Nàpahámak sya sa ginawá nya η pagsusugàl at pagsasáboη. He became good-for-nothing through his gambling and cock-fighting. Nàpàpahámak aη báta η si Hwàn, dahilàn sa lubòs na pagpapaláyaw* ²⁰*sa kanyà naη kanya η maηa magúlaη. Little Juan is getting spoiled through his parents' complete indulgence. Hwag kà η duwàg, Hwàn, at naη hwàg ka η màpahámak lámaη sa iyo η pagsusundálo. Don't be a coward, Juan, so that you may not merely come to misfortune through your military service. Màpàpahámak* ²⁵*lámaη aη báta η itò, kapag hindí nàtin pinapagáral naη sapàt. This boy will turn out a* good-for-nothing, if we don't make him study enough. Hindí nàpahinòg na maága ni Hwàn aṅ maṅa ságiṅ. Juan didn't get his bananas ripe early enough. Hindí nya nàpahinòg aṅ maṅa ságiṅ, sapagkàt naúbus agàd. He did not get ³⁰his bananas ripe, because they were all eaten up too soon. Si Pédro ay nàpàpahinà. Pedro is resting. Nàpatayó si Pédro dahilàn sa kanya ṅ pagkàgúlat. Pedro leaped to his feet in his surprise. Dahilàn sa kanya ṅ pagkàgúlat ay nàpaupú siya. In his surprise he fell into his chair.

(a) Plural with -aṅ-: Aṅ maṅa kalabàw ay naṅàpàpahinà. The carabao are resting. So: naṅápamaṅhà'.

(b) Accent shift: Nàpagisìṅ si Hwàn sa kalakasàn naṅ putòk ⁴⁰naṅ barìl. The report of the gun was so loud that Juan woke up. So: táwa.

(c) Abstract, of movements, pagkàpa-. Aṅ dáhìl naṅ kanya ṅ pagkàparíto ay aṅ paniniṅìl. What brought him here was the collecting of debts. Aṅ pagkàpalígo naṅ kabáyo ay marumè. The horse has not been bathed clean. So from: alíla', doòn.

(d) With makà- D (§ 473) from -paríto: Hwag kà ṅ makàparí-paríto. Don't you ever come round here!

509. Instrumental passive, mà-i-pa-, from: dalà, kilála, kíta, ⁵túlos.

510. Local passive, mà-pa- (1) -an. Màpàparusáhan kità. I shall have to punish you. So: kinìg.

511. Special static words with nà-pa-ka- denote something having a high degree of such and such a quality. Aṅ sákìt na iyo ¹⁰ṅ ipinarùrúsa sa ákin ay nàpakabigàt. The grief you cause me is very severe. Nàpakabúte aṅ kanya ṅ pagkatákot. Her fear reached a high degree. Aṅ sakày na táo naṅ kutséro sa karumáta ay nàpakatabà'. The man the driver has taken into his carriage is very stout. So also: ikli'.

¹⁵(a) From a phrase: nàpakawala-η-hiyà'.

5. The prefix pati-.

512. pati- before a root expresses that such and such a movement (of one's own person) is suddenly performed.

513. With mag- it denotes the voluntary performer. Barytone ²⁰roots seem to have accent shift. An báta y nagpatihigà' sa sahìg. The child suddenly lay down on the floor. Nagpatihulòg si Pédro sa bintána' sa isa η pagsumpòn naη kanya η pagkalóko. Pedro suddenly threw himself from the window in an attack of his madness. Nagpàpatihulòg si Hwàn sa hagdánan kuη sinúsumpòn ²⁵naη kalokóhan, kaniyà' sya y itináli nilà sa isa η halígi naη báhay. They tied Juan to one of the posts of the house, because when he is assailed by a fit of insanity he throws himself down the stairs.

Magpàpatihulòg daw sya mulá sa ituktòk naη kanya η bìlangúan úpaη sya y makataanàn. He says he will throw himself from the ³⁰roof of his prison so as to make an escape. Sya y nagpatiluhòd. He suddenly knelt down. An pagpapatiluhòd naη báta' ay sya η nakasakit sa kanya η túhod. The boy's throwing himself on his knees is what injured his knee.

514. The passive with mà- denotes the involuntary performer.

³⁵Nàpàpatihigà' an báwat mádulàs sa lugàr na itò. Every one who slips at this place falls on his back. Hwag kà η magpadulàs, sapagkàt baká ka màpatihigà'. Don't slide, for you might fall on your back. Sya y nàpatiluhòd. He fell, landing in a kneeling position. Nàpatiupú sya sa kanya η pagkádulàs. He fell into a sitting ⁴⁰position when he slipped. Nàpàpatiupò' an báwat táo η magdaàn sa lugàr na itò, dahilàn sa madulàs na lúmot naη lúpa'. Everyone who comes through this place falls and lands in a sitting position, owing to the slippery moss on the ground.

III. Irregular Derivatives.

(1) Transients and abstracts of the particles sa and -giṇ.

⁵515. The particle sa has transient forms as follows:

(a) A normal transient: with pà-sa, pá-pà-sa, ná-sa, ná-sà-sa. Nása simbáhan silà. They are (were) at church. Násàsa simbáhan silà naṇ maṇyáre aṇ súnog. They were at church when the fire occurred. Naṇ pása simbáhan silà.... When they went to ¹⁰*church....* Pápàsa simbáhan silà. They will go to church.

Plural: Naṇása simbáhan silà. They are (were) at church.

(b) An accidental passive (of movement): má-pa-sa, má-pà-pa-sa, ná-pa-sa, ná-pà-pa-sa-; abstract: pagká-pa-sa. Naṇ mápasa simbáhan silà ay malálim nà aṇ gabì. When they got to the church, ¹⁵*it was already late at night.*

Mápàpasa simbáhan silà sa gabì. They will strike the church at nightfall. aṅ pagkápasa simbáhan a chance coming upon the church.

516. The (transient) forms of -gìṅ are ma-gìṅ, ma-gí-gìṅ, na-gìṅ, na-gí-gìṅ; abstract: pa-gi-gìṅ. Magpùpútol daw naṅ buhòk ²⁰aṅ Intsèk na si Yèṅ pagigìṅ binyágan nya. The Chinaman Yeng says he will have his queue cut when he gets baptized.

(2) Odd affixes.

517. ba- seems to appear in ba-lasìṅ.

518. hin-, with irregular nasalization of initials, in one simple ²⁵derivative: Aṅ kanya ṅ himatàṅ ay hindí nalaúnan. Her fainting-fit did not last long (matàṅ). -himagsìk (bagsìk) does not occur, but underlies many derivatives, especially maghimagsìk (§ 352,c) and hìmagsíkan (§ 377,a). Many such underlying forms can be postulated from the various transients with maṅhin- ³⁰(§ 357,b).

(a) With r: aṅ hintutúro' the forefinger (túro').

519. kala- in aṅ kalaháte' a half; aṅ kalatimbà' dipping on the heels and rising, hands holding opposite ears (as trick or imposed as a punishment), from háti' and timbà' a well-bucket; these ³⁵have various further derivatives, see Index.

520. kasiṅ- having such and such a quality in common with something else; hence partly equivalent with ka-: Kasiṅkúlay naṅ áki ṅ báro' aṅ kanya ṅ salawàl. His trousers are of the same color as my blouse. Aṅ bóla ṅ itò ay kasiṅlakì naṅ itlòg. This ball is the same size as an egg. Si Hwàn ay kasiṅpantàṅ ni Pédro. Juan is of the same height as Pedro.

521. mala- (Spanish ?) derogatory: an malasutsòt a young lout, a half-grown boy (literally: a bad whistler).

522. pala- expresses extreme tendency to such and such an action:

(a) pala- S -in, from oxytone roots: Sya y isa η palabintáñin. He is very distrustful. An maña isdà y palabùlúkin sa tagáraw. Fish easily spoil in the hot season. an palaluñkútin a ¹⁰melancholy person, palapùtákin a fowl given to cackling, palasumbúñin tattle-tale, palasutsútin one who is always whistling, palatuntúnin one who is always trying to follow up his stolen property, palatuwáin palatwáin one who is easily amused.

From root with shifted accent: palasàkítin person who is always ¹⁵*getting sick*. Irregularly: palahùníhin an animal given to neighing, chirping, etc.

Lack of secondary accent: palaiyákin a cry-baby.

(b) pala- (2) -in, from barytone roots: palagalitìn a hot-head, palagisiñin a poor sleeper, palagutumìn one who is always ²⁰*getting hungry*, palagulatìn nervous person, palahilawìn a kind of rice that is hard to cook through; Palaputulìn an maña tiñtìñ nañ walis na ytò. The fibres of this broom are very brittle. palatakutìn a timorous person.

(c) palà- -an the place for such and such a thing: an palàisdáan ²⁵*a fish-pond*, palàsiñsínan the ring-finger, the fourth finger, palàtuntúnan a set of rules, rules of order.

523. ta- in ta-gílid the side; with retraction of accent: -talíkod.

524. tag- in names of seasons: tagáraw, tagulàn, the two ³⁰Philippine seasons; an taglamìg cold weather, the (American) winter. With accent-shift: taginìt the hot season.

525. taga- person whose duty it is to do so and so, especially upon some particular occasion: an tagaalìs nañ gwarnisyòn nañ kabáyo the one detailed to unharness the horses, tagabílañ accountant, ³⁵*counter*, tagaíkid sa gawaàn naŋ lúbid the one who rolls up a rope in the rope-factory; Ikàw ay tagainùm lámaŋ. Your job here is only to drink; so: tagakáin one whose only duty is to eat. Tagapútol naŋ káhoy aŋ katuŋkúlan niyà. He is delegated to cut wood. tagasúlat the one who does the writing; tagatahè' one who does the ⁴⁰*sewing*. So from: húli, sulsì.

(a) With pag-: tagapagbigày, tagapagtangòl.

(b) With pag-pa- one whose duty it is to oversee the doing of so and so: aŋ tagapagpaalis naŋ tapòn naŋ maŋa bóte head bottle-opener; tagapagpainùm sa fiyèsta bartender at a fiesta; Isa ŋ tagapagpainùm ay isa ŋ tagapagbigày naŋ inumìn sa maŋa háyop o maŋa báta'. So: aŋ tagapagpakáin who gives food to animals or ⁵*children*, tagapagpalígo' who bathes children or horses, tagapagpasúlat head writer, tagapagpatotoò witness.

526. tara-, tra- is felt to be a prefix in: aŋ táo ŋ tarabúko, trabúko a bald-headed person, felt as derivative from búko smooth, unripe cocoanut.

(3) Pronoun forms.

¹⁵528. The various forms of the pronouns and objectivizing particles show some regular derivation.

(a) n- with irregularities, for disjunctive forms: n-aŋ, n-i (si), n-inà n-ilà (sinà silà), n-íno (sínò), n-irè, n-itò, n-iyàn, n-oòn (iyòn, yaòn); n-ità (kità), n-iyà (siyà), n-ilà (silà). From the ²⁰*prepositive* form: n-átin, n-ámin, n-iniyò.

Similarly, the particle nawà', root áwa' pity.

(b) ka- for local and prepositive forms: ka-y (si), k-inà (sinà); from the disjunctive form: ka-níno, ka-nità, ka-niyà. ka-nilà.

²⁵(c) With si compare sí-no, with aŋ, a-nò.

(d) Local equivalents of the demonstrative pronouns (treated as separate roots): d-íne (irè), d-ító (itò), d-iyàn, d-oòn.

(e) Words of manner with ga-: ga-áno, gá-no (anò), ga-yòn (iyòn). From disjunctive forms: ga-nitò, ga-niyàn, ga-noòn. Cf. ³⁰also gáya like.

Of similar formation: Aŋ butò naŋ haláma ŋ itò y gabútil naŋ pálay. The seed of this plant is as large as a grain of rice (bútil a kernel of grain).

¹ I owe this and the following statements about the degree of pitch-rise to the kindness of Dr. C. Ruckmich of the Department of Psychology of the University of Illinois. ↑

² It might perhaps be more correct not to include such cases under the term attribution (as will be done in the following analysis), but to set up instead an additional syntactic type of “exocentric modification”. ↑

³ In the proverbial expression at 16,18, balàt skin, skins is used as an object expression without an, contrary to the normal habit. ↑

⁴ Although grammatical terms are necessarily and properly employed in different meanings when referring to different languages, the Tagalog constructions in question are so different from what is ordinarily understood by “cases” that the above terminology has been avoided in the following discussion. ↑

⁵ At 16, 2 hábaŋ, instead of standing at the beginning of its clause, follows the subject, taking the place of ay. I take it that this sentence has been handed down in this form from an older generation of speakers. Cf. § 316. ↑

⁷ Cf. Kern’s derivation of liŋgò from Spanish domingo, felt as containing infix -um- (Sanskritsche woorden). ↑

III. LIST OF FORMATIONS.

The formations with irregular affixes (515 ff.) have been omitted from this list.

The following regular features have been ignored:

(1) Prefixes beginning with n-; these are the actual-mode forms of prefixes beginning with m-, and are treated in the same paragraphs as the latter.

(2) Forms with doubling or reduplication of the root; also those with accented reduplication (of root or prefix) expressing durative aspect; these are treated in the same paragraphs as the corresponding forms without reduplication.

(3) Secondary accent, when not peculiar to prefixes.

(4) Variations in position of accent.

INDEX OF WORDS.

The words are arranged by roots, in accordance with the speech-feeling, so far as ascertainable. The forms díne, dító, diyàn, doòn have, however, been given separate places.

In using the index the sound-variations described in § 334 should be kept in view. The forms are given with fullest accentuation and vocalism (iy for y, uw for w after consonant), regardless of actual occurrence. For e see i, for o see u. Foreign r is under d, f under p, v under b.

The brief indication of meaning after each form ignores shades of meaning that would require long definitions; so especially factors of involuntary or completed action and of ability (ka-, maka-, ma-) and of accident or ability due to external causes (kà-, makà-, mà-).

The references to occurrence have been limited by considerations of space; the numbers refer to page and line; when in heavy type, to paragraphs of the Grammatical Analysis.

The following abbreviations are used: arch.: felt as archaic. C.: Chinese. disj.: disjunctive form. E.: English. excl.: exclusive. id.: the same meaning. incl.: inclusive. intr.: English definition to be taken in intransitive sense. loc.: local. n.: name. pl.: the Tagalog form is an explicit plural. prep.: prepositive. S.: Spanish¹. tr.: English definition to be taken in transitive sense.

1 Where S. words are, as genuine loan-words, more or less fully Tagalized, the S. is enclosed in brackets. In cases where Mr. Santiago is not conscious of this origin, it would have been more consistent to omit the indication, but it would be very difficult to single these out. 1

CORRIGENDA.

The following errors are due entirely to oversights on my part; they would have been far more numerous, but for the accuracy and intelligence of the typesetter, Mr. Staley, and the unfailing kindness of the editor, Professor W. A. Oldfather.—L. B.

The indicated errors have been corrected in the text of this edition, except for the one referring to 212\(25\), as the instruction is not clear enough, and 322(42), as the location could not be found.

Encoding

This book uses Tagalog in phonetic transcription, which does not match current orthography. Accent usage is kept as in the original, even where it may appear inconsistent, as are inconsistencies in the use of the letters i and e, as well as o and u. These may very well indicate differences in pronunciation as spoken or perceived by the author. As in the source, the particle η is written separately, omitting a final ' or n from the previous word.

The line-breaks in this digital edition have been replaced by anchors, which are used to link cross-reference to; but no attempt has been made to preserve the original line-breaks otherwise.

Obvious typographical errors have been fixed and documented in the colophon; the blunder caribou (reindeer) has been replaced by carabao (Philippine water buffalo) throughout the text; end-of-line hyphenation has been silently removed.

The errors indicated in the Corrigenda have been fixed in the text.

The Tagalog texts and English translations, originally on facing pages, have been aligned side-by-side on the paragraph level.

The three parts of the original work have been consolidated into a single book with a single table of contents. The title-pages for each part have been omitted.

 END OF THE PROJECT GUTENBERG EBOOK TAGALOG TEXTS WITH GRAMMATICAL ANALYSIS ***

Updated editions will replace the previous one—the old editions will be renamed.

Creating the works from print editions not protected by U.S. copyright law means that no one owns a United States copyright in these works, so the Foundation (and you!) can copy and distribute it in the United States without permission and without paying copyright royalties. Special rules, set forth in the General Terms of Use part of this license, apply to copying and distributing Project Gutenberg™ electronic works to protect the PROJECT GUTENBERG™ concept and trademark. Project Gutenberg is a registered trademark, and may not be used if you charge for an eBook, except by following the terms of the trademark license, including paying royalties for use of the Project Gutenberg trademark. If you do not charge anything for copies of this eBook, complying with the trademark license is very easy. You may use this eBook for nearly any purpose such as creation of derivative works, reports, performances and research. Project Gutenberg eBooks may be modified and printed and given away—you may do practically ANYTHING in the United States with eBooks not protected by U.S. copyright law. Redistribution is subject to the trademark license, especially commercial redistribution.

START: FULL LICENSE

THE FULL PROJECT GUTENBERG™ LICENSE

PLEASE READ THIS BEFORE YOU DISTRIBUTE OR USE THIS WORK

To protect the Project Gutenberg™ mission of promoting the free distribution of electronic works, by using or distributing this work (or any other work associated in any way with the phrase “Project Gutenberg”), you agree to comply with all the terms of the Full Project Gutenberg License available with this file or online at www.gutenberg.org/license.

Section 1. General Terms of Use and Redistributing Project Gutenberg electronic works

1.A. By reading or using any part of this Project Gutenberg electronic work, you indicate that you have read, understand, agree to and accept all the terms of this license and intellectual property (trademark/copyright) agreement. If you do not agree to abide by all the terms of this agreement, you must cease using and return or destroy all copies of Project Gutenberg electronic works in your possession. If you paid a fee for obtaining a copy of or access to a Project Gutenberg electronic work and you do not agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement, you may obtain a refund from the person or entity to whom you paid the fee as set forth in paragraph 1.E.8.

1.B. “Project Gutenberg” is a registered trademark. It may only be used on or associated in any way with an electronic work by people who agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement. There are a few things that you can do with most Project Gutenberg electronic works even without complying with the full terms of this agreement. See paragraph 1.C below. There are a lot of things you can do with Project Gutenberg electronic works if you follow the terms of this agreement and help preserve free future access to Project Gutenberg electronic works. See paragraph 1.E below.

1.C. The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation (“the Foundation” or PGLAF), owns a compilation copyright in the collection of Project Gutenberg electronic works. Nearly all the individual works in the collection are in the public domain in the United States. If an individual work is unprotected by copyright law in the United States and you are located in the United States, we do not claim a right to prevent you from copying, distributing, performing, displaying or creating derivative works based on the work as long as all references to Project Gutenberg are removed. Of course, we hope that you will support the Project Gutenberg mission of promoting free access to electronic works by freely sharing Project Gutenberg works in compliance with the terms of this agreement for keeping the Project Gutenberg name associated with the work. You can easily comply with the terms of this agreement by keeping this work in the same format with its attached full Project Gutenberg License when you share it without charge with others.

1.D. The copyright laws of the place where you are located also govern what you can do with this work. Copyright laws in most countries are in a constant state of change. If you are outside the United States, check the laws of your country in addition to the terms of this agreement before downloading, copying, displaying, performing, distributing or creating derivative works based on this work or any other Project Gutenberg work. The Foundation makes no representations concerning the copyright status of any work in any country other than the United States.

1.E. Unless you have removed all references to Project Gutenberg:

1.E.1. The following sentence, with active links to, or other immediate access to, the full Project Gutenberg License must appear prominently whenever any copy of a Project Gutenberg work (any work on which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” appears, or with which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” is associated) is accessed, displayed, performed, viewed, copied or distributed:

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere in the United States and most other parts of the world at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg™ License included with this eBook or online at www.gutenberg.org. If you are not located in the United States, you will have to check the laws of the country where you are located before using this eBook.

1.E.2. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is derived from texts not protected by U.S. copyright law (does not contain a notice indicating that it is posted with permission of the copyright holder), the work can be copied and distributed to anyone in the United States without paying any fees or charges. If you are redistributing or providing access to a work with the phrase “Project Gutenberg” associated with or appearing on the work, you must comply either with the requirements of paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 or obtain permission for the use of the work and the Project Gutenberg trademark as set forth in paragraphs 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.3. If an individual Project Gutenberg electronic work is posted with the permission of the copyright holder, your use and distribution must comply with both paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 and any additional terms imposed by the copyright holder. Additional terms will be linked to the Project Gutenberg License for all works posted with the permission of the copyright holder found at the beginning of this work.

1.E.4. Do not unlink or detach or remove the full Project Gutenberg License terms from this work, or any files containing a part of this work or any other work associated with Project Gutenberg.

1.E.5. Do not copy, display, perform, distribute or redistribute this electronic work, or any part of this electronic work, without prominently displaying the sentence set forth in paragraph 1.E.1 with active links or immediate access to the full terms of the Project Gutenberg License.

1.E.6. You may convert to and distribute this work in any binary, compressed, marked up, nonproprietary or proprietary form, including any word processing or hypertext form. However, if you provide access to or distribute copies of a Project Gutenberg work in a format other than “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other format used in the official version posted on the official Project Gutenberg website (www.gutenberg.org), you must, at no additional cost, fee or expense to the user, provide a copy, a means of exporting a copy, or a means of obtaining a copy upon request, of the work in its original “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other form. Any alternate format must include the full Project Gutenberg License as specified in paragraph 1.E.1.

1.E.7. Do not charge a fee for access to, viewing, displaying, performing, copying or distributing any Project Gutenberg works unless you comply with paragraph 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.8. You may charge a reasonable fee for copies of or providing access to or distributing Project Gutenberg electronic works provided that:

- You pay a royalty fee of 20% of the gross profits you derive from the use of Project Gutenberg works calculated using the method you already use to calculate your applicable taxes. The fee is owed to the owner of the Project Gutenberg trademark, but he has agreed to donate royalties under this paragraph to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation. Royalty payments must be paid within 60 days following each date on which you prepare (or are legally required to prepare) your periodic tax returns. Royalty payments should be clearly marked as such and sent to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation at the address specified in Section 4, “Information about donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation.”
- You provide a full refund of any money paid by a user who notifies you in writing (or by e-mail) within 30 days of receipt that s/he does not agree to the terms of the full Project Gutenberg™ License. You must require such a user to return or destroy all copies of the works possessed in a physical medium and discontinue all use of and all access to other copies of Project Gutenberg™ works.

- You provide, in accordance with paragraph 1.F.3, a full refund of any money paid for a work or a replacement copy, if a defect in the electronic work is discovered and reported to you within 90 days of receipt of the work.
- You comply with all other terms of this agreement for free distribution of Project Gutenberg™ works.

1.E.9. If you wish to charge a fee or distribute a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work or group of works on different terms than are set forth in this agreement, you must obtain permission in writing from the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the manager of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark. Contact the Foundation as set forth in Section 3 below.

1.F.

1.F.1. Project Gutenberg volunteers and employees expend considerable effort to identify, do copyright research on, transcribe and proofread works not protected by U.S. copyright law in creating the Project Gutenberg™ collection. Despite these efforts, Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, and the medium on which they may be stored, may contain “Defects,” such as, but not limited to, incomplete, inaccurate or corrupt data, transcription errors, a copyright or other intellectual property infringement, a defective or damaged disk or other medium, a computer virus, or computer codes that damage or cannot be read by your equipment.

1.F.2. LIMITED WARRANTY, DISCLAIMER OF DAMAGES - Except for the “Right of Replacement or Refund” described in paragraph 1.F.3, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the owner of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark, and any other party distributing a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work under this agreement, disclaim all liability to you for damages, costs and expenses, including legal fees. YOU AGREE THAT YOU HAVE NO REMEDIES FOR NEGLIGENCE, STRICT LIABILITY, BREACH OF WARRANTY OR BREACH OF CONTRACT EXCEPT THOSE PROVIDED IN PARAGRAPH 1.F.3. YOU AGREE THAT THE FOUNDATION, THE TRADEMARK OWNER, AND ANY DISTRIBUTOR UNDER THIS AGREEMENT WILL NOT BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR ACTUAL, DIRECT, INDIRECT, CONSEQUENTIAL, PUNITIVE OR INCIDENTAL DAMAGES EVEN IF YOU GIVE NOTICE OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGE.

1.F.3. LIMITED RIGHT OF REPLACEMENT OR REFUND - If you discover a defect in this electronic work within 90 days of receiving it, you can receive a refund of the money (if any) you paid for it by sending a written explanation to the person you received the work from. If you received the work on a physical medium, you must return the medium with your written explanation. The person or entity that provided you with the defective work may elect to provide a replacement copy in lieu of a refund. If you received the work electronically, the person or entity providing it to you may choose to give you a second opportunity to receive the work electronically in lieu of a refund. If the second copy is also defective, you may demand a refund in writing without further opportunities to fix the problem.

1.F.4. Except for the limited right of replacement or refund set forth in paragraph 1.F.3, this work is provided to you 'AS-IS', WITH NO OTHER WARRANTIES OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR ANY PURPOSE.

1.F.5. Some states do not allow disclaimers of certain implied warranties or the exclusion or limitation of certain types of damages. If any disclaimer or limitation set forth in this agreement violates the law of the state applicable to this agreement, the agreement shall be interpreted to make the maximum disclaimer or limitation permitted by the applicable state law. The invalidity or unenforceability of any provision of this agreement shall not void the remaining provisions.

1.F.6. INDEMNITY - You agree to indemnify and hold the Foundation, the trademark owner, any agent or employee of the Foundation, anyone providing copies of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works in accordance with this agreement, and any volunteers associated with the production, promotion and distribution of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, harmless from all liability, costs and expenses, including legal fees, that arise directly or indirectly from any of the following which you do or cause to occur: (a) distribution of this or any Project Gutenberg work, (b) alteration, modification, or additions or deletions to any Project Gutenberg work, and (c) any Defect you cause.

Section 2. Information about the Mission of Project Gutenberg

Project Gutenberg is synonymous with the free distribution of electronic works in formats readable by the widest variety of computers including obsolete, old, middle-aged and new computers. It exists because of the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and donations from people in all walks of life.

Volunteers and financial support to provide volunteers with the assistance they need are critical to reaching Project Gutenberg's goals and ensuring that the Project Gutenberg collection will remain freely available for generations to come. In 2001, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation was created to provide a secure and permanent future for Project Gutenberg and future generations. To learn more about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and how your efforts and donations can help, see Sections 3 and 4 and the Foundation information page at www.gutenberg.org.

Section 3. Information about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation is a non-profit 501(c)(3) educational corporation organized under the laws of the state of Mississippi and granted tax exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Foundation's EIN or federal tax identification number is 64-6221541. Contributions to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation are tax deductible to the full extent permitted by U.S. federal laws and your state's laws.

The Foundation's business office is located at 41 Watchung Plaza #516, Montclair NJ 07042, USA, +1 (862) 621-9288. Email contact links and up to date contact information can be found at the Foundation's website and official page at www.gutenberg.org/contact

Section 4. Information about Donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

Project Gutenberg™ depends upon and cannot survive without widespread public support and donations to carry out its mission of increasing the number of public domain and licensed works that can be freely distributed in machine-readable form accessible by the widest array of equipment including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit www.gutenberg.org/donate.

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: www.gutenberg.org/donate.

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg electronic works

Professor Michael S. Hart was the originator of the Project Gutenberg concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For forty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as not protected by copyright in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.

Most people start at our website which has the main PG search facility: www.gutenberg.org.

This website includes information about Project Gutenberg, including how to make donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, how to help produce our new eBooks, and how to subscribe to our email newsletter to hear about new eBooks.
